DEFENCE

NATO Defence Ministers

The Secretary of State for Defence (Des Browne): I attended an informal meeting of NATO Defence Ministers in Vilnius, Lithuania, on 7 and 8 February. It provided an important opportunity for discussions on operations and on the transformation of NATO capabilities in the run-up to the summit meeting to be held in Bucharest in April.

The main focus was on current operations. Ministers underlined the importance of the NATO operation in Afghanistan and agreed the need to work for a better co-ordinated and comprehensive effort by the international community. Ministers were also keen to ensure that NATO's KFOR mission was prepared to continue to provide a safe and secure environment in any eventuality in Kosovo. NATO Ministers were joined by their counterparts from non-NATO nations making valuable contributions both to KFOR and the International Security Assistance Force in Afghanistan and by the Afghan Defence Minister as well as by representatives from the UN, the EU and the World Bank.

At the meeting, Ministers reaffirmed the high value they placed on the NATO response force and approved its transition to a graduated force structure.

In addition, there were meetings of the NATO-Ukraine Commission, where Minister Yekhanurov set out the new Ukrainian Government's priorities in security and defence policy, and the NATO-Russia Council which agreed a joint programme of work for 2008.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Freedom of Information Act (John Williams' Document)

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (David Miliband): In accordance with the Information Tribunal's decision of 22 January 2008, I have today released what has been described as John Williams' draft of the September 2002 Iraq weapons of mass destruction dossier.

The document produced by John Williams, then head of the FCO's press office, was not commissioned as part of the formal drafting process and was not used as the basis for the dossier the Government subsequently published, which was produced by the Joint Intelligence Committee.

The document was originally withheld under section 36 of the Freedom of Information Act on the important point of principle that for the effective conduct of public affairs the space which Ministers and officials have to consider and discuss ideas should be protected. Officials and others who draft policy documents should not feel constrained in presenting free and frank advice through fear that their ideas will be made public. This must continue to be an important principle for the effective conduct of government.

I have placed a copy of the document in the Library of the House. Copies are also available on the FCO website: www.fco.gov.uk

HOME DEPARTMENT

Tackling Violence

The Secretary of State for the Home Department (Jacqui Smith): Today I am publishing "Saving Lives, Reducing Harm, Protecting the Public", which sets out what we as a Government, together with the police and our other delivery partners, will be doing over the next three years, both to reduce the incidence of serious violence, and to reduce the harm to victims when tragedies do occur. We will be taking this forward within the framework of the Government's new public service agreements, which prioritise serious violence for the first time, recognising that this is core business for the police and local partners.

We have achieved a great deal over the past 10 years. The British crime survey shows that violent crime overall has fallen by 31 per cent. since 1997. Domestic violence has halved over the past decade. The number of deaths initially recorded by the police as homicides last year was the lowest for eight years. Offences resulting in serious wounding fell by 9 per cent. between 2005-06 and 2006-07. Recorded gun crime fell by 13 per cent. in the same period. We know a lot about what works. The challenge is to ensure that the good practice we have developed is applied in all communities, to the benefit of everyone.

The actions in this plan will reduce serious violence, including gun and gang-related crime, knife crime, and sexual and domestic violence, and will improve the criminal justice response to these offences.

We will continue to prevent and detect illegal firearms entering the UK, and introduce new controls to remove deactivated firearms from our streets. We will work with the police to develop new technology to improve intelligence on firearms used in crime and we will ensure that, particularly in relation to gang violence, witnesses receive the best possible protection from the earliest stages of the criminal justice process. We will be educating 1.1 million children over five years on the dangers of carrying weapons. We will give the police and others 100 search arches and 400 search wands this year to increase detection of knife crime, and will roll out more over the next three years. We will increase the presumption to prosecute those caught in possession of a knife. And we will ensure that young people convicted of knife crime receive focused interventions to change their behaviour and prevent reoffending.

We will double the number of specialist domestic violence courts by 2011, to ensure that sensitive domestic violence cases can be heard in a safe and protected court environment; and we will roll out multi-agency risk assessment conferences nationally, to ensure that local agencies work positively and proactively together to reduce repeat victimisation among domestic violence victims.

On sexual offences, a particular focus will be on improving the criminal justice response. The current conviction rate for rape cases is unacceptably low, and I am determined to see a step change in this area. We will therefore be driving forward work to improve the investigation and prosecution of rape, including engaging with areas where performance is particularly poor, and we will be more than doubling the number of joint police-NHS sexual assault referral centres, so that victims of serious sexual offences across the country can benefit from the excellent services they provide.

We will work with the internet industry to ensure that the online protection of children from sex offenders is as robust as possible, and we will continue to implement the recommendations of the 2007 review of the protection of children from sex offenders, including allowing for the disclosure of child sex offenders' convictions to certain members of the public where this is necessary for child protection.

We will also be taking forward action on two key cross-cutting themes. First, the plan includes a number of actions to get local agencies working better together. It is important for them to share information about the relatively small number of people in their communities at risk of involvement in serious violence, either as victims or offenders, so that early interventions can be made to prevent serious violence from occurring in the first place, or from escalating where it has already started. We will be investing over £20 million over the next three years to support this.

Secondly, there are actions to improve the care we provide all victims of serious violence, both to reduce harm and to help secure more convictions and thereby reduce reoffending.

Our vision is to save lives, reduce harm and protect the public. The police and other delivery partners have been closely involved in the development of this plan, and we are committed to working with them all, and local communities, to implement it. We are confident that, by delivering the actions in this plan over the next three years and beyond, this vision will become reality.

Prevention of Terrorism Act

The Secretary of State for the Home Department (Jacqui Smith): In accordance with section 14(3), 14(4) and 14(5) of the Prevention of Terrorism Act 2005, Lord Carlile of Berriew QC has completed the report on the operation of the Act in 2007, which will be laid before the House today.

The Financial Secretary to the Treasury (Jane Kennedy): Subject to parliamentary approval of any necessary Supplementary Estimate, the HM Revenue and Customs total DEL will be decreased by £3,595,000 from £4,624,117,000 to £4,620,522,000. Within the total DEL change, the impact on resources and capital are as set out in the following table:

[1]The total of 'administration budget' and 'near-cash in resource DEL' figures may well be greater than total resource DEL, due to the definitions overlapping.
[2]Capital DEL includes items treated as resource in estimates and accounts but which are treated as capital DEL in budgets.
[3]Depreciation, which forms part of resource DEL, is excluded from the total DEL since capital DEL includes capital spending and to include depreciation of those assets would lead to double counting.

The change in the resource element of DEL arises from:

Near cash administration costs draw down of non-voted DUP of £20,200,000 taken up as voted provision to facilitate improvements to key operational activities.

Near cash programme transfer of £153,000 from the Department for Finance and Personnel in respect of the aggregates levy.

Non-cash revaluation costs of £2,500,000 reclassified as AME from DEL.

Office for National Statistics Departmental Expenditure Limit

The Exchequer Secretary to the Treasury (Angela Eagle): Subject to Parliamentary approval of any necessary Supplementary Estimate, the Office for National Statistics' total departmental expenditure limit (DEL) will be increased by £6,672,000 from £175,178,000 to £181,850,000, and the administration budget will be increased by £6,520,000.

[2]Capital DEL includes items treated as resource in Estimates and accounts but which are treated as Capital DEL in budgets.
[3]Depreciation, which forms part of resource DEL, is excluded from the total DEL, since capital DEL includes capital spending and to include depreciation of those assets would lead to double counting.

The change in the resource element of DEL arises from:

Reserve claim of £5,400,000.

The take up of Departmental Unallocated Provision (DUP) of £6,000,000 in order to finance in-year pressures and to meet new priorities

Transfer from the BERR in respect of Construction statistics consisting of £152,000 programme and £1,120,000 admin.

Government Actuary's Departmental Expenditure Limit

The Exchequer Secretary to the Treasury (Angela Eagle): Subject to Parliamentary approval of any necessary Supplementary Estimate, the Government Actuary's Department's total DEL will be increased by £222,000 from £424,000 to £646,000. Within the total DEL change, the impact on resources and capital is set out in the following table:

[3]Depreciation, which forms part of resource DEL, is excluded from the total DEL, since capital DEL includes capital spending and to include depreciation of those assets would lead to double counting.

The change in the resource element of DEL arises from:

the take up of DEL End-Year Flexibility (EYF) of £222,000 to cover reduced appropriations-in-aid.

The change in the administration budget arises from the take up of administration DEL EYF of £222,000.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

EU Competitiveness Council

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (Mr. Gareth Thomas): I will be attending the EU Competitiveness Council in Brussels on 25 February.

The two main agenda items are likely to be the Lisbon economic reform process, and the single market review. The Council will be invited to adopt a key issues paper on the renewed Lisbon strategy. This will form the Competitiveness Council's contribution to the Spring European Council. The Council will then be invited to adopt conclusions on the Commission's single market review. The review follows much of what the UK called for—a new flexible approach to single market policy that puts the emphasis on promoting competition, reducing the burden of regulation, and encouraging innovation. It is important that the UK builds on the success of the review by ensuring positive conclusions.

The only other substantive agenda item for which BERR is responsible will be:

Strategic Energy Technologies (SET) action plan (an exchange of views). The UK strongly supports the need at Member State and EU level to increase the scale and impact of our investments in low carbon technologies.

There will be seven further items taken under Any Other Business for which BERR is responsible:

i) A presentation by the Commission on its recent package of proposals for the European defence industry, ii) Information from the presidency on emissions of $CO_2$ from passenger cars and light commercial vehicles.

iii) Information from the Commission on a consumer markets scoreboard, iv) Information from the presidency on the recent European clusters conference,

v) Information from the presidency on the climate-energy legislative package.

vi) Information from the Commission on the single market scoreboard, vii) Information from the Commission on better regulation.

SPRING SUPPLEMENTARY ESTIMATES 2007-08—OFGEM WRITTEN STATEMENT

Expenditure Limits

Subject to Parliamentary approval of the necessary supplementary estimate, the Office of Gas and Electricity Markets' DEL will be increased by £1,000 from £1,652,000 to £1,653,000 and the administration budget will be increased by £1,000 from £702,000 to £703,000.

Within the DEL change, the impact on resources and capital is as set out in the following table:

| | Change | | New DEL | | |

[1]The total of the 'Administration Budget' and 'Near-cash in Resource DEL' figures may well be greater than total resource DEL, due to the definitions overlapping.
[2]Capital DEL includes items treated as resource in Estimates and accounts but which are treated as Capital DEL in budgets.
[3]Depreciation, which forms part of Resource DEL, is excluded from the total DEL since capital DEL includes capital spending and to include depreciation of those assets would lead to double counting.

The change in the resource element of the DEL arises from a token increase in administration costs to bring to Parliament's attention a reclassification of Ofgem's expenditure in connection with environmental programmes from RfR2 to RfR1.

This change better reflects Ofgem's responsibilities for the administration of environmental programmes, and it is therefore no longer appropriate to treat it as a separate RfR.

There is no change in the capital element of the DEL

The change in the resource element of the DEL arises from:

(i) take up of End Year Flexibility of £17,854,000 comprising :

Programme Expenditure

(a) £9,100,000 to provide cover to enable the settlement of the Thurmaston case. The Ombudsman has completed her report on the Co-operative Society claim of maladministration against the Department with respect to the handling of a planning appeal that was called in 1996, and finds the Department partly at fault. (d) £18,255,000 for ERDF new programmes. There is a switch from voted to non-voted expenditure because for the new programmes, DEL income is now voted, whereas its expenses are non-voted due to management of programmes by Regional Development Agencies (which are Non-Departmental Public Bodies); and

(a) £711,000 from Capital Housing Pooled Receipts to fund pressures on the Housing Corporation's Information Technology costs;

(b) £250,000 from Planning Inspectorate also to fund pressures on the Housing Corporation's Information Technology costs;

(c) £4,000,000 within Thames Gateway to Thurrock UDC to reflect allocation of funding under the programme; and

Depreciation, which forms part of Resource DEL, is excluded from the total DEL since capital DEL includes capital spending and to include depreciation of those assets would lead to double counting.

The changes to the resource and capital elements of the DEL arise from:

the take up of the Department's End Year Indirect Resource Flexibility totalling £1,621,874,000 to reflect latest TLB forecasts of outturn of Indirect Resource expenditure; an increase in the RfR2 of £566,000,000 Direct Resource DEL and £380,650,000 Capital DEL to reflect the forecast costs of peace keeping operations in Iraq, Afghanistan and Balkans;

the transfer of £424,000,000 Indirect Resource DEL from RfR1 to RfR2 to cover depreciation, cost of capital and impairment forecasts with no overall impact on DEL;

a transfer out of £750,000 to the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform; the take up of Capital End Year Flexibility (EYF) of £40,000,000 resulting from the sale of QinetiQ in 2005-06, as agreed with Treasury; draw down of £200,000,000 from the Department's (Unvoted) Unallocated Resource Provision to reflect the increased (Voted) Indirect Resource DEL forecast of outturn for RfR1 with no overall impact on DEL; resource and capital transfers in from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office in respect of contributions to the Balkans Conflict Prevention Pool net costs, the Global Rest of the World Conflict Prevention Pool costs, and Afghanistan capital costs of £39,850,000.

The changes to Resource DEL and Capital DEL will lead to an increased net cash requirement of £894,351,000.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Carbon Offsetting (Code of Best Practice)

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Hilary Benn): Today I am announcing the final framework for a Code of Best Practice for Carbon Offsetting. The code will increase consumers' confidence when purchasing offsets by endorsing established mechanisms which offset in a clear and verifiable way. The code intends to inform and protect consumers by requiring providers of accredited offsets to supply clear information and transparent prices. A supporting quality mark and communications will help raise awareness about tackling climate change, the steps that consumers can take and the role offsetting can play. The Government encourage consumers to avoid and reduce their emissions and then use offsetting to tackle unavoidable emissions.

The Government's appointed accreditation body, AEA, published the draft code today, a copy of which is available at:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/environment/climatechange/uk/carbonoffset/codeofpractice.htm

AEA are seeking industry comments on the planned practical arrangements and we intend the final code to be implemented in April.

Initially the code will grant accreditation only to providers of Kyoto-complaint credits. The Government believe that these credits provide the best available guarantee to consumers that the amount of carbon they have purchased represents verifiable, additional carbon savings.

We recognise, however, the value the non-regulated market can add, in particular by enabling innovative offset projects to be tested prior to entering the compliance market. However, there is not yet a single agreed formal definition or fully operational standard for "good quality" Voluntary Emissions Reductions (VERs), which currently prevents their inclusion in the Government code. Therefore, I am inviting the industry to agree and put into practice its own standard for VERs, which can provide a similar level of assurance as the compliance mechanisms. This standard should address the principles of additionally, avoiding carbon leakage, permanence, verification, transparency and avoiding double counting. We will assist the industry to come together to discuss how this might be done.

Once industry has reached a consensus on a standard and it has been fully operational for six months, the Government will conduct an audit to confirm whether credits approved under the industry standard can be included under the Government code.

Political Developments (Kosovo)

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (David Miliband): On 17 February the Parliamentary Assembly of Kosovo was convened for an extraordinary session at which Prime Minister Thaçi read out Kosovo's declaration of independence. The declaration made clear that Kosovo was a democratic, secular and multi-ethnic republic and that its leaders would promote the rights and participation of all communities in Kosovo. The declaration in particular committed Kosovo to implementing fully the obligations contained in UN Special Envoy Ahtisaari's Comprehensive Proposal for a Kosovo Status Settlement, including its extensive minority safeguards. And the declaration invited and welcomed an international civilian presence to supervise implementation of the Comprehensive Proposal, an EU rule of law and police mission (EULEX) and a continuation of NATO's Kosovo Force (KFOR). The declaration was endorsed by all Parliamentary members present.

The declaration took place following exhaustive negotiations between Belgrade and Pristina aimed at finding a mutually agreed resolution to Kosovo's status. UN Special Envoy Ahtisaari had presided over 14 months of intensive negotiations before concluding an agreement was out of reach. An EU-Russia-US Troika facilitated an additional four months of talks, with EU member Ambassador Ischinger concluding that the parties would not be capable of reaching agreement if negotiations were to be continued, in whatever format.

My statement of 11 December noted that, against this backdrop of inconclusive negotiations, almost all in the international community were agreed that the status quo in Kosovo was unsustainable. This is a point that had been underlined by the European Union, the UN Secretary General and the Contact Group. My statement made clear that we could not therefore allow the status process to grind to a halt, having learned in the 1990s the cost of an indecisive international response to developments in the Balkans. In the view of the Government, it would be important for the EU to play a leading role in bringing the status process through to conclusion. The UN Special Envoy's Comprehensive Proposal, balancing independence with strong minority safeguards and international supervision, remained in our view the only viable way forward.

Since my statement, the Government have worked hard to ensure the necessary international community resolve and engagement to solve the Kosovo issue. The Government strongly supported the decision at the December European Council that the EU should play a leading role in implementing a settlement defining Kosovo's status.

Against this background, the General Affairs and External Relations Council met on 18 February, the day following Kosovo's declaration of independence. EU Ministers agreed that the EU should play a leading role in strengthening stability in the region. The EU has given effect to this commitment through a series of steps:

In terms of ensuring security and justice sector reform, the EU has agreed on the deployment of an ESDP Policing and Rule of Law Mission (EULEX) consisting of 2,200 international personnel. This will be the largest civilian ESDP mission to date.

In terms of ensuring Kosovo's political development and good governance, the EU has now agreed on the appointment of an EU Special Representative to Kosovo.

The EU has agreed to make a major contribution to the international civilian office which will oversee settlement implementation.

The EU has committed itself to the promotion of Kosovo's economic and political development. The Commission will use community instruments to take this forward and is planning to organise a donors conference.

EU Ministers were clear in their view that Kosovo constituted a sui generis case which did not set any precedent.

Taken together, these decisions amount to a clear and united EU approach towards contributing to Kosovo's future and to delivering stability in the Western Balkans region. I welcome the leadership that the European Union has shown in tackling this European foreign policy challenge.

EU Ministers also discussed the issue of recognition. There was agreement that this is a matter for national governments and the Council acknowledged that it was for member states to decide, in accordance with national practice and international law, on their relations with Kosovo.

Bringing all these elements together—the unsustainable status quo; Kosovo's commitment to the stringent safeguards in the UN Special Envoy's Comprehensive Proposal; and the international support for settlement implementation and, increasingly, recognition—the Government considers that UK recognition of Kosovo is fully justified. Our firm view is that it is the best way of resolving Kosovo's status, ensuring regional stability and solving this last remaining issue from the break-up of the Former Yugoslavia. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister wrote to President Sejdiu on 18 February indicating to the Kosovo government that the United Kingdom recognises Kosovo's independence. I have also written to Prime Minister Thaçi proposing the establishment of diplomatic relations. At least 16 other countries, including France, Germany, Italy, the US and Turkey, have also either recognised Kosovo or indicated their intention to do so.

Kosovo's independence will bring a long-awaited certainty and permanence to Kosovo's identity, marking an end to nearly nine years of political and economic limbo But it will also be just the beginning of a challenging journey ahead, building a stable, sustainable, multi-ethnic and democratic country. It will be important for Kosovo's Assembly and Government to adhere faithfully to the undertakings made in their declaration of independence. It will also be important for all sides to refrain from action that risks provoking or increasing ethnic tensions.

The UK will make a full contribution in support of Kosovo's efforts. The UK will second approximately 70 personnel to the ESDP mission and about 10 to the International Civilian Office. We will maintain our current contribution of around 140 troops to KFOR as well as maintaining a battalion on stand-by as part of the NATO operational reserve force. And in terms of development, the UK has committed £23 million in bilateral assistance to Kosovo over the next three years.

As Kosovo moves forward, there will remain a need to address the regional dimension. We recognise how difficult an issue Kosovo's independence is for Serbia. Despite the difference of view with Belgrade on Kosovo, the Government will remain keen to maintain a cooperative and warm bilateral relationship. We will also want to assist Serbia and the other countries of the region to move towards European standards and EU accession. The interim political agreement offered to Serbia following the January General Affairs and External Relations Council was a sign of the EU's commitment to Serbia's progress. There remains a compelling strategic case for enlargement to the Western Balkans as a whole so that this region can share in the security, stability, and prosperity that the EU offers.

HEALTH

Children's Palliative Care Services

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Health (Mr. Ivan Lewis): In May 2006, the Secretary of State announced details of an independent review of palliative care services for children and young people with life-limiting or life-threatening illnesses and their families.

This independent review was an important piece of work. It offered us a crucial opportunity to look at current provision and consider what more can be done to improve the sustainability and accessibility of children's palliative care services in both the statutory and voluntary sectors. The Government accepted and endorsed the recommendations contained in the review report and committed to the delivery of a first ever national strategy for children's palliative care to meet the expectations of the review, of sector stakeholders and of children and families.

The strategy, which is launched today, sets out clear expectations for improving choice, access and continuity of care, and seeks to place palliative care at the centre of local children's service provision. It highlights how commissioners, providers and teams of palliative care professionals can shape the provision of services to meet the needs of children, young people and their families. In addition, it emphasises the roles that each can play in providing child-focused, family-centred services and gives examples of what could be put in place to achieve this.

The policy sits as a framework for future service development. It seeks to highlight the key aspects of the Independent Review and challenge local areas to take this group of children more seriously. Accordingly, local areas will need to devise their own strategies and spend their money better to deliver more effective and more equitable services.

The findings of the Independent Review of Children's Palliative Care Services and the cross-Government programme "Aiming High for Disabled Children" are backed by a significant financial commitment to help deliver the step-change in service provision that is needed for these children, young people and their families, all of whom wish to pursue ordinary lives, achieve their full potential and make a contribution to society.

A copy of the report has been placed in the Library.

CABINET OFFICE

Departmental Expenditure Limit (2007-08)

The Parliamentary Secretary, Cabinet Office (Phil Hope): Plans to change the Charity Commission's Departmental Expenditure Limit (DEL) and administration budget for 2007-08.

Subject to parliamentary approval of any necessary supplementary estimate, the Charity Commission total DEL will be increased by £2,800,000 from £31,993,000 to £34,793,000. Within the total DEL change, the impact on resources and capital is as set out in the following table:

[2]Capital DEL includes items treated as resource in estimates and accounts but which are treated as capital DEL in budgets
[3]Depreciation, which forms part of resource DEL, is excluded from total DEL since capital DEL includes capital spending and to include depreciation of those assets would lead to double counting

The change in the resource element of the DEL and in the administration budget arises from the take up of £2.6 million from the modernisation fund—out of a total £3 million agreed in the CSR 07 settlement. This funding will be used to pay for staff severances consequent upon the Commission's reprioritisation and restructuring exercise, which will enable the Commission to meet the CSR settlement through to 2010-11.

The change in the capital element of the DEL reflects take up of £200,000 from prior years' EYF to fund the completion of capital projects to enhance the effectiveness of IT systems and increase the availability of on-line services.

The supplementary estimate also details changes in operating appropriations in aid, fully offset by changes in spending and not impacting on the Commission's Departmental Expenditure Limit:

project funding of £50,000 by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office for the continuation of the International Outreach project;

£50,000 additional accommodation charges funded by the sub-letting of a floor at the Commission's London office building.

As a result, the Cabinet Office Total DEL has increased by £27,377,000 from £398,597,000 to £425,974,000.

The impact on Resource DEL (RDEL) and Capital DEL (CDEL) is set out in the following table:

[2]Depreciation, which forms part of resource DEL, is excluded from the total DEL since capital DEL includes capital spending and to include depreciation of those assets would lead to double counting.

The changes in the spring supplementary estimate 2007-08 compared to the winter supplementary estimate 2007-08 are due to:

The administration budget decreases by £116,000 from £81,869,000 to £81,753,000 as a result of resource budget transfers of £100,000 to the Department of Culture, Arts and Learning for Ordnance Survey mapping services and £16,000 to the Office of the First Minister and Deputy First Minister for Stormont Castle messengers.

The increase in capital DEL of £35,000 is the budget transfer of £20,000 from the Northern Ireland Court Service for prison video links and £15,000 from the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for prison healthcare costs.

The Northern Ireland Executive DEL will increase by £193,887,000 from £8,522,664,000 to £8,716,551,000.

The change reflects the draw down of EYF of £105,000,000 (£75,000,000 near cash and £30,000,000 capital) and an addition of £100,000,000 (£88,000,000 near cash and £12,000,000 capital) for funding the water industry and innovation. In addition there are net outward budget transfers totalling £11,113,000 (£6,163,000 resource near cash and £4,950,000 capital) to the Northern Ireland Office and HM Revenue and Customs.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Employment and Social Policy Informal Meeting (Brdo, Slovenia)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Mr. James Plaskitt): The Employment and Social Policy informal meeting was held on 31 January to 2 February in Brdo, Slovenia. I represented the UK.

The theme of the informal meeting was "How best to respond to the common principles of flexicurity", following their adoption at last year's December Council. There was a broad consensus around the concept of flexicurity and the discussion was positive and forward looking, but there was no agreement on how to make the "flexicurity" principles a reality.

Ministers agreed that there was no one model to copy, but that we could usefully learn from each other's experiences. All Member States raised the importance of better training and lifelong learning, and also the need to anticipate the economy's future requirements. There was also a strong focus on the need to facilitate job transitions, modernising social protection systems to ensure their long-term fiscal sustainability and ensuring that flexicurity worked for all workers, with a particular focus on young and older workers.

I spoke on the importance of maintaining flexibility at a time of economic uncertainty, the need to promote new approaches to skills and lifelong learning, and support for the idea of a European skills review.

The French also launched their idea of a "flexicurity mission". Its objective would be to explain flexicurity and what it meant in terms of reforms to European citizens. The mission would visit a few Member States before reporting back to the Council during the French presidency.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Bluetongue Disease, Avian Influenza and Foot and Mouth Disease

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Hilary Benn): I wish to report to the House on the latest developments on last year's outbreaks of Bluetongue and Foot and Mouth Disease, and the recent cases of Avian Influenza in Dorset.

BLUETONGUE

Following confirmation of Bluetongue on premises located within the then restricted zones, the Bluetongue protection and surveillance zones were extended on 8 and 13 February. After confirmation of the disease on premises in Cambridgeshire, Essex, Greater London, Surrey and Sussex, the protection zone has been expanded westwards and into Eastbourne. A further case in Dorset has required that a separate protection zone be established covering all of Dorset and the New Forest. The surveillance zone now extends into all of Somerset and Devon and into the south-east corner of Wales. We are currently consulting industry representatives as to whether Cornwall should be included in the surveillance zone. Bluetongue has now been confirmed on a total of 80 premises since the outbreak was first discovered last year.

All of the infected animals on the recently confirmed premises were found as a result of pre-movement testing, which is currently required before animals can be moved out of the surveillance and protection zones during the vector-free period, which was declared from 20 December. This requirement is proving to be useful surveillance and is helping to identify previously undisclosed infected premises. Some 40,000 livestock have been tested under pre-movement testing. All evidence suggests that the infected animals on the newly confirmed premises were infected before the vector-free period commenced; there is no evidence to suggest that virus is circulating in the UK at present.

Following the extensions of the surveillance and protection zones, a voicemail message was sent to known keepers in the zone extensions who are registered on Animal Health's database. Each of these premises were also issued a letter with accompanying leaflets on how to spot disease.

In agreement with the core group of industry stakeholders, the UK remains in Phase 1 of the UK

Bluetongue disease control strategy—that is, seeking to contain disease rather than living with it. At present, we are not intending to move to a zone covering the whole country in advance of vaccine being available. However, this situation remains under review as events develop.

BLUETONGUE VACCINATION PLANS

Yesterday, I announced the publication of the UK vaccination plan, which sets out the proposed approach to vaccination in the months ahead. The plan, which is publicly available on the Defra website, has been sent to the European Commission, alongside a request for EU co-funding, should such funding be available on acceptable terms.

As part of the plan, Defra has placed an order with the animal health company Intervet for 22.5 million doses of Bluetongue vaccine. 20 million doses are reserved for use in England and 2.5 million doses are reserved for potential use in Wales. In keeping with the principles of the Bluetongue control strategy, livestock keepers in the protection zone will be able to purchase vaccine from the bank through their private vets. Intervet has indicated that vaccine will begin to be available from May.

The UK is the first country dealing with the current outbreak of BTV-8 in Northern Europe to make an order for vaccine. This will ensure that vaccine will be available in England and Wales as soon as possible.

HIGHLY PATHOGENIC AVIAN INFLUENZA H5N1

Following confirmation on 10 January that the H5N1 strain of avian influenza had been isolated in three dead wild mute swans in the Chesil Beach area in Dorset, a wild bird control area and a monitoring area were established. The control area was larger than the minimum required under European rules and reflected expert ornithological advice about the movement of mute swans and other wild birds in the area.

Movement restrictions were introduced, including a requirement on bird keepers to house their birds or otherwise isolate them from contact with wild birds and a ban on bird gatherings. 10 dead mute swans submitted under the surveillance programme have been confirmed with the H5N1 virus, and the last positive sample was collected on 29 January and confirmed on 4 February. In addition we sampled 60 apparently healthy mute swans and faecal samples from other wild birds but with negative results.

Taking into account epidemiological evidence, a veterinary risk assessment and—as provided for under European rules—that it is now 21 days since the collection of the last positive case, I have today confirmed the lifting of the control area.

I have also reassessed the shape and size of the monitoring area, and have decided that this should not be changed at the moment. On the basis of advice from veterinary and ornithological experts I have concluded that the possibility of continuing undetected infection in wild birds other than swans cannot be ruled out and that retention of this wider monitoring area for a little longer would therefore be prudent. However, we will keep the situation under constant review. The European rules provide for the area to be lifted only when at least 30 days have elapsed since the last positive sample was collected. My aim is to return poultry keepers to normal business arrangements as quickly as possible.

Animal Health is contacting keepers in the area to advise them of how the changes will affect them. In addition we are reminding all keepers that the country remains at a constant, albeit low risk, from H5N1. Therefore it is vital that keepers remain vigilant and take precautionary measures to isolate kept birds from wild birds.

FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE

Finally, following last August's outbreak of Foot and Mouth Disease, Defra is continuing to work closely with the OIE to regain full FMD free status at the wider international level.

Offshore Oil and Gas Licensing (25th Round)

The Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (Mr. John Hutton): I am pleased to inform the House that I am today inviting applications for petroleum licences for unlicensed seaward blocks which will form the 25th round of offshore petroleum licensing. These blocks are located in the Strategic Environmental Assessment (SEA) areas 1-7. A map of the SEA areas can be found on the website indicated below, and copies have also been placed in the Libraries of the House.

BERR's draft plan to offer licences for offshore oil and gas exploration and production through a 25th licensing round was the subject of a strategic environmental assessment (SEA) initiated in 2005. The SEA is documented on a dedicated website—www.offshore-sea.org.uk—and includes commissioned reports on various components of the natural environment, cultural features and socio-economic considerations. In addition, as part of the SEA new information was collected, for example on selected seabed features through seafloor mapping, sampling and photography, and on the offshore distribution of small cetaceans. The draft plan for the 25th licensing round included offering blocks to the west of the Hebrides, and also in those areas that had been subject to earlier BERR SEAs—SEAs 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6—which covered the UK North sea exclusive economic zone and the UK EEZ in the Irish sea and to the north and west of Orkney and Shetland.

The potential implications of the exploration and production activities which could follow if the draft plan was adopted were considered at an expert assessment workshop and a stakeholder workshop. The results of these workshops were assessed further and documented in an environmental report which then formed the basis for consultation with the consultation bodies and the public. The initiation of a 3 month consultation period on BERR's draft plan and environmental report was advertised in a number of local and national newspapers and by email notification to a wide range of individuals and organisations.

All responses received from statutory and other consultees on the draft plan and the environmental report have been considered by BERR and a post-consultation report for SEA 7 prepared and placed on the SEA website. This summarises consultee comments and BERR responses to them. The full texts of consultee comments have also been placed on the SEA website.

In deciding to proceed with a 25th offshore licensing round BERR has considered the conclusions and recommendations of the SEA 7 environmental report together with feedback received from consultees. As a result of the SEA process, blocks west of 14 degrees west are being withheld from licensing for the present on environmental grounds.

A number of blocks excluded on the basis of recommendations of previous SEAs, or those currently in the process of appropriate assessment consultation will also not be offered.

The SEA recommended that the blocks in or overlapping with the boundaries of the Moray firth and Cardigan Bay SACs should also be withheld from licensing for the present whilst the further assessments initiated following the 24th Licensing Round applications are concluded. We have therefore excluded 11 blocks in the Cardigan bay area and 10 in the Moray firth.

In addition, 126 blocks will not be offered for licensing in the areas covered by SEAs 1-7 at the request of the Ministry of Defence due to them being intense military test areas.

Licensing of these blocks may be revisited in the future, for example as more information on the features of interest becomes available. In addition, a number of blocks may be licensed but with conditions attached restricting or prohibiting marine activities. It should be noted that the Offshore Petroleum Production and Pipelines (Assessment of Environmental Effects) Regulations 1999 and the Offshore Petroleum Activities (Conservation of Habitats) Regulations 2001 variously require that all major activities undertaken in connection with UK offshore hydrocarbon exploration and production include environmental assessment as part of consenting.

Before any licence awards are made, an appropriate assessment will be undertaken to assess whether exploration licences applied for in the 25th round will have any adverse effects on the integrity of Natura 2000 sites. This is required under EU Council Directive 79/409 EEC on "The conservation of wild birds" and Council Directive 92/43/EEC on "The conservation of natural habitats and wild fauna and flora', and UK implementing regulations.

BERR has, with industry and statutory environmental advisors, established an offshore oil and gas environmental monitoring committee which is charged with coordinating the strategic monitoring of potentially significant environmental effects of the industry, including those that could arise from the implementation of the plan to hold a 25th round of offshore licensing.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

47th Horserace Betting Levy Scheme

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (Mr. Gerry Sutcliffe): As the Horserace Betting Levy Board was unable to accept the Bookmakers' Committee's recommendations for the 47th levy scheme, covering the year commencing 1 April 2008, the matter was referred to me to determine under Section 1(2) of the Horserace Betting Levy Act 1969.

In considering the next scheme, I have taken into account submissions from the independent members of the Levy Board, the Bookmakers' Committee and the British Horseracing Authority. In the interests of fairness and openness, these bodies were given the opportunity to comment on each others' submissions. I have also noted submissions from the Remote Gambling Association, the Sporting Exchange Ltd (Betfair) and the Independent Bookmakers Association. I have taken account of independent advice from Organisation Consulting Partnership (OCP) on those submissions. I am depositing copies of OCP's report in the House Libraries and sending copies to those who provided submissions, and it is available on my Department's website. I have also considered carefully the many other representations that have been made to me on this subject by Members of Parliament and others with an interest in the racing and betting industries.

The criteria which have customarily applied to the setting of levy schemes include the needs of horseracing and the capacity of bookmakers to pay. I can confirm that I have taken account of these considerations, among other factors I consider relevant which I refer to below, in reaching a view about how much bookmakers should be required to contribute in order to enable the Horserace Betting Levy Board to give effect to the improvement of horseracing and its other statutory purposes.

The exercise of my responsibility to determine the 47th scheme has been made particularly difficult by new considerations introduced by both the British Horseracing Authority and the Bookmakers' Committee. These include the effect of the growth of betting exchanges, the concept of a fair return to racing given the cultural and economic importance of the sport, the increase in the number of racing fixtures and in integrity costs, and the potential impact on bookmakers' ability to pay the levy of Gambling Commission fees and subscriptions to the new Turf TV pictures provider.

I have been able to reach a view on some of these new considerations. First, I have concluded that it would not be appropriate to seek to impose the levy on the turnover of betting exchanges rather than on the commission charged on betting transactions. In reaching this conclusion, I was mindful of the Treasury's conclusion, when assessing whether to impose Gross Profits Tax on betting exchanges turnover, that it was correct to apply GPT on commission only because the commission is the operator's gross profit and the consumers' net spend. The Treasury concluded that there was no real justification for changing exchanges' tax base or tax rate, and I have taken the same view in relation to the levy. Furthermore I am satisfied that any move to broaden the scope of the levy scheme in this way would necessitate a full consultative process, which has not occurred.

Secondly, on the matter of a fair return to racing, I fully accept the cultural and economic value of racing to the life of the nation. However, I consider that this was implicit in the initial creation of a statutory levy scheme.

Thirdly, I have borne in mind the British Horseracing Authority's claim that the needs of racing have grown, principally due to a sharp increase in the number of fixtures. However, I note that this increase has not resulted in any commensurate growth in betting on horseraces. I am therefore not persuaded that I should make any adjustment in the level of the levy on the basis of the increase in fixtures.

Fourthly, on the matter of the betting industry's desire to offset the cost of Gambling Commission fees from the levy, I have concluded that to accede to this would be in effect to pass the regulatory costs of the Commission on to customers in betting shops. This would clearly not be within the spirit of the Gambling Act and I therefore reject this application.

Finally, turning to the issue of Turf TV, I accept that an argument can be put forward that bookmakers' subscriptions to the new service constitute a commercially based flow of money to racing, albeit only from certain bookmakers to certain racecourses. I therefore accept that it may have a material effect both on bookmakers' ability to pay and on the needs of racing. However, it is apparent from the failure of the Bookmakers' Committee and the levy board to agree, and from the OCP report, that bookmakers and the racing industry hold widely divergent views on the status of Turf TV and the impact that it should have on the level of the levy. In time its full economic impact on bookmakers, racecourses and on horse racing generally may become clearer. However, at this stage I consider that it would not be appropriate to take Turf TV into account in setting the level of the 47th levy.

Despite thorough consideration, I have not been wholly persuaded by the submissions of either the Bookmakers' Committee or the British Horseracing Authority, nor have I been able to reconcile their starkly contrasting approaches. It is therefore my decision on this occasion to revert to the 46th levy scheme, being the last occasion on which all parties achieved consensus, and to direct that this be rolled over, with adjustments for inflation where appropriate, into 2008-09. This decision is provided for in Section 1(3)(b) of the Horserace Betting Levy Act 1969, and in making it I have placed weight on the valuable advice of the independent members of the Horserace Betting Levy Board as a non-departmental public body of my Department.

Accordingly, for off-course betting through licensed betting offices or media platforms—cash, telephone or internet—showing a gross profit on British Horserace Betting Business (BHBB) of £85,700 or more per year, a flat percentage rate of 10 per cent. will apply. Abated charges will apply to any LBO or media platform with gross annual profits of less than £85,700. A minimum payment of £2,144 will apply. The levy for on-course betting will be charged at a flat fee of £188 plus a fixed ring charge of £4 for the silver or minor rings and £8 for all other rings for each racecourse attendance. On-course bookmakers who use and/or operate a betting exchange will also be liable to pay the levy at a rate of 10 per cent. on their gross profits derived from BHBB. The levy payable by bet brokers including betting exchanges will be charged on a basis equivalent to 10 per cent. of their gross profits, defined as commission on BHBB deducted from the winnings paid out to bettors and bet-takers. Spread betting business will be charged at 2 per cent. of gross profits, and bookmakers who conduct betting on point-to-point and/or harness racing and/or trotting events will pay a fixed levy contribution of £150.

The determination concluded, I wish to add that it is a matter of serious regret to the Government that we have again found ourselves in the position of having to make a determination when it would clearly have been more appropriate for the betting and racing industries to have agreed a suitable settlement between themselves.

We have repeatedly encouraged the two industries to develop a modern relationship as business partners and move away from an adversarial approach. Representatives of both sides now need to proceed to detailed commercial negotiations without delay. To this end I am convening a meeting, under the auspices of the all-party racing and bloodstock industries group, to initiate discussions on a wide range of issues.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Explanatory Memorandum on the Lisbon Treaty

The Minister for Europe (Mr. Jim Murphy): The Explanatory Memorandum on the Lisbon Treaty stated that the treaty extended qualified majority voting (QMV) in a total of 50 articles.

It should have stated that there were 51 articles, including the move to QMV on the statute, seat and operational rules of the European Defence Agency (EDA). My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Defence set out this move to QMV in a written answer to the hon. Member for Woodspring (Dr. Fox) on 28 January, reprinted below. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Defence has also provided oral and written evidence on the EDA to the Defence Select Committee.

We have provided the Vote Office with a corrigendum.

EU Defence Policy

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence in which areas of European Security and Defence Policy the Lisbon Treaty will introduce qualified majority voting; and if he will make a statement. [182335]

Des Browne: The Council will continue to act by unanimity among member states on all aspects of European Security and Defence Policy except for certain procedural items in respect of permanent structured co-operation and the European Defence Agency. The Council would act by qualified majority voting (QMV) when establishing permanent structured co-operation and when determining the list of participating member states, including when deciding on the participation of a member state that subsequently wishes to participate or suspending the participation of a member state which no longer fulfils the criteria or its commitments.

In the context of the European Defence Agency, although the treaty provides for the adoption of a decision on the Statute, seat and operational rules of the agency by QMV, these matters have already been decided upon under the joint action establishing the agency. We therefore do not anticipate any further need for decisions in this area. The "passerelle" clause, which allows the European Council unanimously to decide to adopt a decision by QMV does not apply to decisions having military or defence implications.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Correction to Written Answer

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Mr. James Plaskitt): I regret that the answer I gave to the hon. Member for South-West Bedfordshire (Andrew Selous) on 4 February 2008, Official Report, column 863W was incorrect, as it did not include a letter from Social Fund Commissioner, Sir Richard Tilt.

Letter from Sir Richard Tilt, dated 4 February 2008:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question about the average length of time for (a) a decision on and (b) a review of social fund claims from the Birmingham office in the most recent period for which figures are available.

As the Social Fund Commissioner, it falls to me to respond in relation to the work of the Independent Review Service (IRS). The statutory role of the IRS is to provide an independent second tier review of social fund decisions that have been made and reviewed by the Jobcentre Plus. Independent reviews are carried out by Social Fund Inspectors. The IRS does not deal with initial social fund decisions or first tier reviews, both of which are the responsibility of the Jobcentre Plus.

The average completion times for IRS reviews for the period from 1 April 2007 to 31 December 2007 are given in the table below.

IRS Reviews in Great Britain April - December 2007

| Application Type | Average Completion Time in Working Days |
|---|---|
| Community Care Grants | 11.8 |
| Budgeting Loans | 6.9 |
| Crisis Loans for Items | 10.2 |
| Crisis Loans for Living Expenses | 2.2 |

The average completion times for reviews in the IRS are measured in working days from the date a case is ready for review to the date the inspector issues the decision. A case is ready when the application for independent review is made correctly and the Jobcentre Plus has provided the relevant social fund papers. The figures are derived from all cases in which a full review was conducted and exclude cases outside the inspector's jurisdiction.

The overall completion times (excluding living expenses) outlined in the table above include a period during which applicants are given the opportunity to participate in their reviews. Before conducting the review, the inspector sets out the facts of the case, the issues to be decided, asks relevant questions and invites the applicant to comment. Around 85 per cent. of applicants participate in their review. The completion times also include all cases in which applicants or their legal advisers requested, and were given, additional time to respond to the inspector.

Economic Regulators

The Minister for Employment Relations and Postal Affairs (Mr. Pat McFadden): My noble Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Business and Competitiveness has made the following ministerial statement:

The Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform has today issued the Government's response to the House of Lords Select Committee on Regulators report into UK economic regulators.

The report is a helpful and useful addition to the regulatory debate and raises important issues for both Government and the economic regulators covered by the report.

Copies of the response have been deposited in the Libraries of both Houses and published on the BERR website.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

ContactPoint

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (Kevin Brennan): I am publishing today the findings of the independent review of the security procedures of ContactPoint, conducted by Deloitte, and the Government response. I acknowledge Deloitte's recognition that security is ingrained in the ContactPoint project team's work. The Government accept all the report's recommendations and will address them.

ContactPoint is a key element of the "Every Child Matters" programme to transform children's services by supporting more effective prevention and early intervention. Its goal is to improve outcomes and the experience of public services for all children, young people and families. ContactPoint will provide a tool to support better communication among practitioners across education, health, social care and youth offending. It will provide a quick way for those practitioners to find out who else is working with the same child or young person.

ContactPoint will be a simple basic online tool containing:

minimal identifying information for each child; name, address, date of birth, gender, and contact details for parents or carers. Each child will also have a unique identifying number;

contact details for the child's educational setting and GP practice and for other practitioners or services working with them; and an indication as to whether a service or practitioner holds an assessment under the common assessment framework or whether they are a lead professional for that child.

No case information will be held on ContactPoint.

Security is of paramount importance in the development of the ContactPoint. A number of measures will be in place to ensure security:

Access will be restricted to those who need it as part of their work and will be limited to that needed to fulfil each role.

Everyone with access to ContactPoint, including operators or administrators, will be subject to stringent security checks, including enhanced Criminal Records Bureau clearance and membership of the Independent Safeguarding Authority (ISA) scheme.

At least two-factor authentication will be used to access ContactPoint. Users will need a security token and a password.

All users will be trained in the importance of security and the importance of good security practice.

Every access to a child's record will be detailed in the ContactPoint audit trail. This will be regularly reviewed.

Sanctions will be in place for any misuse. These sanctions can include, if appropriate, prosecutions under the provisions of the Data Protection Act and Computer Misuse Act which may lead to fines or imprisonment.

The design and implementation of ContactPoint will continue to be reviewed by independent security experts during system build and before it is implemented. Security will of course be audited during operation.

These issues will be reflected in the guidance and staff training that will govern the operation of ContactPoint.

On 20 November, the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families decided to commission an independent review of ContactPoint's security procedures, and I announced this in a Written Ministerial Statement to Parliament on 27 November. The review was undertaken by Deloitte. The Secretary of State and I received Deloitte's confidential report in early February. I am today publishing the executive summary of this report, which includes Deloitte's recommendations. This statement includes the Government's response to the recommendations. Both this statement and the executive summary will be placed in the Libraries of the House for reference.

The main body of the report necessarily includes information about the security arrangements for ContactPoint. We will not, therefore, publish the full report in order to minimise the kind of security risk our procedures are designed to prevent.

CONTACTPOINT DATA SECURITY REVIEW

GOVERNMENT RESPONSE

Introduction

The Government welcome the report from Deloitte on the ContactPoint data security review. We acknowledge their recognition that security is ingrained in all aspects of the ContactPoint project team's work. We accept all the report's recommendations and will address them. The first task is to undertake an impact assessment of the detailed recommendations contained in the report. A statement outlining ContactPoint's security policy is available from www.everychildmatters.gov.uk/delivering services/contactpoint/security/. The statement will be updated to reflect changes as a result of ongoing work on security, including addressing the recommendations in this report.

The Report's Recommendations

Clear communication of responsibilities and accountabilities when the governance process is communicated to sponsors and partner organisations

We recognise the need for the Department to communicate clearly to local authorities and partner organisations, who will use ContactPoint, exactly what their responsibilities are and what is required of them. We are developing a comprehensive programme of training, readiness assessments and accreditation checks to ensure these organisations are properly prepared for these responsibilities. The review has identified a number of areas which will be critical to get right as these plans develop. We welcome this advice and will follow it as we finalise our plans.

Technical and procedural controls are subject to formal assurance under a recognised standard

In determining the security policy for ContactPoint, the project followed Government guidance on risk assessment and security controls set out in the manual of protective security. The manual was updated in August 2007. The design of ContactPoint is currently undergoing a re-baselining exercise. Once this is complete, we will fully update the risk assessment against the new criteria and initiate a formal, external assessment to ensure these risks are effectively controlled. The scope of this will include the self-certification and local data quality tool process issues highlighted by the review.

Further controls are introduced over the access to data by central system users such as database administrators and report programmers

The review has correctly identified that we have significant controls in place to ensure the security of the core database, but has identified some areas in which these could be further improved. The ContactPoint project will undertake a rapid impact assessment to determine the most effective approach in our specific context, and will build this into the deployment plan.

Temporary guidance was issued to ensure secure storage and/or disposal of media used for initial load of data into the database. This was effective at the time, and will be reviewed against latest Government-wide best practice to inform standards for production processes. These additional controls will be in place before any data are loaded into the user acceptance test or live systems. The live system will also be designed to minimise, and where possible eliminate, the use of physical media.

Clear guidance about information security matters is provided to all helpdesk staff on the production system

The Deloitte review has highlighted one occasion where helpdesk guidance did not reflect best security practice. Formal helpdesk training has not yet taken place, and training plans will be reviewed to ensure that helpdesk staff are aware of security best practice, including the areas highlighted by the review.

The project board should consider the appropriateness of obtaining formal independent assurance and accreditation of the supporting security operating procedures at connecting organisations before allowing connectivity or sponsorship

The Department is still preparing plans for accreditation of connecting organisations, and will take this recommendation into account as those plans are finalised.

The DCSF participate in Government-wide security initiatives

DCSF is already participating in these initiatives through our chief information officer, especially those focused on data security, privacy and strong user authentication. We will take into account all best practice guidelines arising from this work to keep ContactPoint at the leading edge of security practice.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Creative Economic Strategic Document

The Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (Andy Burnham): I will tomorrow launch a strategy for the Creative Economy, in partnership with my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform and the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills. Copies of the strategy, "Creative Britain: New Talents for the New Economy", will be deposited in the Libraries of both Houses.

Our creative industries have grown by 7.3 per cent. over the last decade—around twice the rate of the rest of the economy—and are in a strong position globally as demand for high quality media content in English grows. However, we need to ensure we remain competitive in a growing world market.

Following extensive consultation and discussion with industry, the strategy makes a series of commitments for Government and industry to secure the continuing success of this dynamic sector of the economy. This includes setting out the challenges for these industries, and measures to exploit British talent to the full through education and training, the removal of barriers to business growth, investment in research and innovation and protection of intellectual property.

The Department for Culture, Media and Sport will work closely with BERR, DIUS and other Government Departments to implement the strategy that we hope will adapt and evolve in response to a fast moving sector of our economy.

JUSTICE

Foreign National Prisoners

The Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (Mr. David Hanson): I have for some time been seeking more ways to remove foreign prisoners from our prisons, and to remove them earlier. I believe this will work to the benefit of our system, and today I can bring forward proposals that will help us to do this. The early removal scheme established under the provisions of the Criminal Justice Act 2003 enables the Government to remove foreign national prisoners liable to deportation or administrative removal up to 135 days before the halfway point of their sentence. Since its introduction in June 2004, over 3,000 prisoners have been removed under the scheme. This has made a significant contribution to reducing the number of foreign national criminals in our prisons and on our streets. Given this success, the Government now believe the scheme can contribute more.

As of December 2007 there were 11,310 foreign national prisoners within the prison system, representing 14 per cent. of the total prison population. Foreign national prisoners represent a significant proportion of the prison population, although at 14 per cent. it is low in comparison to most other European countries. Of 17 western European states, the UK's proportion is the third lowest. France has 21 per cent., Germany 28 per cent., Italy 34 per cent., Greece 42 per cent. and Austria 43 per cent.

The early removal scheme applies only to those foreign national prisoners who are able to be removed to their country of origin. Such prisoners only benefit from the scheme if their removal from the UK can be given immediate effect. We have been working to ensure that arrangements are in place so as to enable us to remove prisoners to their country of origin.

Prisoners serving a life or indeterminate sentence are not eligible to be considered for removal under the scheme. Determinate sentence prisoners serving a sentence of four years and over under the provisions of the Criminal Justice Act 1991 for a sexual or violent offence are removed under the scheme only if the parole board considers that they would present an acceptable risk to the community.

Details of prisoners removed under the scheme are placed on the Home Office's warnings index. Should they seek to return to the United Kingdom during their sentence they can be detected by the border control officer on arrival at the UK border and returned to prison custody until the point at which they would have been released had they not otherwise been removed.

Based on the successful experience of the last three and a half years, and in particular our increasing experience of and success in securing travel documents from overseas countries and making other arrangements with them that enable us to remove prisoners, I believe the scheme can make an even greater contribution to removing criminals from our shores. I have therefore decided to extend the early removal scheme so as to enable prisoners to be removed 270 days early rather than the current 135. I will be laying the appropriate draft Order, which is subject to the affirmative resolution procedure, and time will be found for a debate shortly.

The measure is entirely consistent with our strategy and with our earlier announcements, and I commend it to the House.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Decommissioning Programme (Draft Guidance)

The Minister for Energy (Malcolm Wicks): It was announced in the Nuclear White Paper 2008 that, in parallel with the energy Bill, the Government will publish for public consultation two sets of draft guidance on what an approvable funded decommissioning programme should contain.

I have today issued a consultation document which contains both sets of draft guidance. We want to hear from members of the public, industry, financial and other institutions that may be involved in the financing of new nuclear power stations, non-governmental organisations and any other organisation or body with an interest.

The consultation will close on Friday 16 May 2008. Copies of the draft guidance will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

TREASURY

Corporation Tax Bill

The Financial Secretary to the Treasury (Jane Kennedy): I am pleased to tell the House that Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs will shortly publish a draft of the tax law rewrite project's fifth Bill, the corporation tax Bill, which is the first of two Bills which will rewrite substantially the whole of the primary legislation relating to corporation tax. This Bill will cover the basic provisions relating to the charge to corporation tax and includes the main provisions used by companies in computing their income. It is planned to introduce the Bill in Parliament by the end of 2008. The project's four previous Bills were enacted as the Capital Allowances Act 2001, the Income Tax (Earnings and Pensions) Act 2003, the Income Tax (Trading and Other Income) Act 2005 and the Income Tax Act 2007.

The scope of this new Bill and the timing of consultation were agreed with the project's consultative and steering committees which together include the main representative bodies and other users. It benefits from a style and structure that has been developed as a result of consultation over the previous rewrite Bills. Earlier versions of the legislation in this new Bill have been revised in the light of comments and suggestions from tax professionals and others who engaged in the consultation process. There has been extensive dialogue on them between the project team and business interests, tax practitioners, the legal profession and HMRC specialists.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

General Affairs and External Relations Council

The Minister for Europe (Mr. Jim Murphy): My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and Kim Darroch (UK Permanent Representative to the EU) represented the UK at the General Affairs and External Relations Council (GAERC) in Brussels.

The agenda items covered were as follows:

GENERAL AFFAIRS

Preparation of the European Council

The Council discussed preparations for the European Council on 13-14 March. The European Council is expected to focus on the launch of a new three-year cycle of the EU's strategy for growth and jobs; an integrated climate and energy policy; and the stability of financial markets. The Government support the presidency's focus on delivering for the EU's citizens, and broadly agrees with the priorities identified for action.

EXTERNAL RELATIONS

Doha Development Agenda

Commissioner Mandelson briefed the Council on prospects for negotiations on the World Trade Organisation's Doha development agenda (DDA) negotiations, following the release of revised papers on agriculture, non-agricultural market access and services. Ministers agreed to return to the issue at a later date. The Government support the Commission's efforts to engage constructively in negotiating for an ambitious and pro-development conclusion to the DDA. Progress in the DDA would give the global economy a welcome boost.

Chad

The Government agreed Council conclusions firmly condemning the renewed attacks of armed groups against the Government of Chad, calling on all Chadian parties to renounce the use of force unconditionally and engage in a constructive dialogue aimed at finding a peaceful solution, and supporting the African Union's efforts to resolve the crisis.

The conclusions also underlined the EU's deep concern regarding the regional ramifications of the conflict in Darfur and attempts to overthrow the Chadian Government and fully backed the African Union and the United Nations' call for the respect of the sovereignty, national unity and territorial integrity of Chad. It called on the Governments of Sudan and Chad to stop supporting and equipping armed groups immediately and to improve their relations.

Kenya

Commissioner Michel briefed the Council on his recent visit.

The Government agreed Council conclusions adopted by the Council, expressing deep concern that the violence, uncertainty and instability in Kenya continues; reiterating the urgent need for Kenya's leaders to engage seriously and flexibly in order to bring an immediate end to the violence and to ensure security, stability and protection of human rights; strongly supporting the efforts by the panel of eminent African personalities, led by Kofi Annan; and reaffirming that the EU stands ready to assist those efforts.

European Neighbourhood Policy

Commissioner Ferrero-Waldner updated the Council on the European neighbourhood policy (ENP), stating that trade, increasing mobility and resolving regional conflicts would now be the EU's priorities. The Commission would publish progress reports on the ENP countries in April 2008. The Government strongly support the ENP as a policy that is distinct from EU enlargement but keep the door to EU membership open for eastern partners.

The Council adopted conclusions welcoming the Commission communication "A Strong European Neighbourhood Policy" as a useful basis for further reflection on making the ENP more effective and attractive to ENP partners, with the aim of making full use of the ENP's potential.

Burma

The Government agreed Council conclusions underlining that the EU remains deeply concerned by the situation in Burma and urging the authorities to take rapid steps to move to a democratically elected government. The conclusions noted the authorities' announcement on 9 February of a referendum on a new constitution in May 2008 and multi-party elections in 2010.

The Government strongly support the clear message in the conclusions that only a process that involves the full participation of the opposition and ethnic groups will lead to national reconciliation and stability. The conclusions reiterate the EU's call for the release of all political detainees, including Aung San Suu Kyi, the start of a substantial time-bound dialogue with all political stakeholders, and full respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms.

Middle East Peace Process

High representative Javier Solana briefed the Council on his recent visit to Egypt. The Commission gave Foreign Ministers an update on the humanitarian crisis in Gaza and next steps following the Paris donors' conference in December 2008.

The Government's view is that the EU must actively continue to support the reopening the crossings under Palestinian authority control. A controlled reopening of the crossings is vital for Palestinian welfare and Israeli security. The EU should therefore continue to explore how it can provide practical support.

Economic Partnership Agreements

Commissioners Mandelson and Michel briefed the Council on the state of play in the economic partnership agreement (EPA) negotiations with African, Caribbean and Pacific (ACP) countries. The key challenges would be to secure full signature of initialled agreements and to broaden and deepen those agreements that had been established. The Commission stood ready to have high-level talks in 2008 to achieve the goal of full regional EPAs. Delivering on development finance would be key. The Council will return to this issue in May, during a joint session with Development Ministers, prior to the June ACP-EC Council in Addis Ababa.

The Government welcome the Commission's progress in agreeing economic partnership agreements with 35 ACP countries and stands ready to support the Commission in concluding the remaining agreements.

Western Balkans

A separate Written Ministerial Statement laid before the House on 19 February 2008 (Official Report, columns 20-22 WS) reports Foreign Ministers' discussion of the western Balkans.

Immigration

The Minister for Borders and Immigration (Mr. Liam Byrne): Over the next year, the Government will deliver the biggest shake up of the immigration system for over 45 years. At the beginning of the year I said reform would include new measures to attack the cause of illegal immigration—illegal working.

To stop illegal journeys we must stop illegal jobs. For this reason I am bringing into force new powers to stop illegal migrant working. Employers who employ illegal migrants as a result of poor recruitment and employment practices from 29 February will face civil financial penalties of up to £10,000 per worker. Those who knowingly employ illegal migrants will face an unlimited fine and/or a maximum two year prison sentence.

Secondly, we will require businesses who want to employ skilled workers from outside the EEA to apply for a licence, to help safeguard against deliberate undercutting of UK wages and exploitation of migrant workers. We will begin accepting applications for these licences from 29 February. To earn and hold a licence businesses must satisfy us that they are trustworthy, and must agree to fulfil certain duties. We published a statement of intent setting out our detailed policy last November. We have carefully studied and taken account of responses to that statement in finalising the sponsorship rules, which I am publishing today. We are also publishing an assessment of the impact of sponsorship on employers and others affected. Copies of both documents have been placed in the Library of the House. Other prospective sponsors, including educational institutions, will be able to apply for a licence from the summer.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

EU Energy Council

The Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (Mr. John Hutton): BERR will be represented by the UK at the Energy Council in Brussels on 28 February.

There are three substantive items on the Council agenda: a policy debate on the key issues surrounding the third internal energy market package; approval of draft conclusions on the Strategic Energy Technology Plan (SET-Plan) before adoption at the European spring Council; and a policy debate on the climate change and energy legislative package.

The item on the internal energy market will focus on the Commission's third package of proposed legislation to improve the functioning of the internal market in electricity and gas. This comprises proposals to amend the existing directives on common rules for the internal electricity and natural gas markets and the existing regulations on conditions for access to gas and electricity networks. These include proposals to strengthen the powers and independence of national regulators and increase market transparency. There is also a proposal to establish an agency to facilitate the co-operation between national energy regulators. The debate at the Council is likely to focus on ownership unbundling and the proposed agency. The UK has welcomed the Commission's proposals as crucial for creating a properly functioning EU energy market but will be pressing for a stronger regulatory agency.

On the SET-Plan, Ministers will be asked to approve draft conclusions for use at the spring Council, where the SET-Plan will be formally adopted. The UK welcomes the plan, which should provide a useful basis for the development of new energy technology. The UK is content with the draft conclusions.

The Council will hold a policy debate on the climate change and energy package, particularly on the draft directive on the promotion of the use of energy from renewable sources. The presidency has proposed questions to focus the debate on aspects of the renewable energy proposal, including sustainability criteria for biofuels, providing stability for investments, and the transfer of guarantees of origin.

There will be an AOB agenda item on international energy relations, where the Commission are expected to report on Euro-Med co-operation, the MoU with Turkmenistan, G8 co-operation on energy efficiency, the energy community treaty and security of supply.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

National Strategy for Housing in an Ageing Society: Disabled Facilities Grant (Funding)

The Minister for Housing (Caroline Flint): Today the Government have launched "Lifetime Homes, Lifetime Neighbourhoods: A National Strategy for Housing an Ageing Society". This strategy addresses the challenge of ageing, and what it means for housing and planning in England.

In our Green Paper "Homes for the Future", we announced our vision for housing and an ambition to build 3 million more homes by 2020. In "Lifetime Homes, Lifetime Neighbourhoods" we outline how this housing programme will respond to one of the great challenges for housing in the 21st Century, an ageing population.

The cross-Government strategy explains why change is needed: the significant financial impacts on the country given demographic pressures and the quality of life for older people.

In "Lifetime Homes, Lifetime Neighbourhoods" the Government set out the need for planning for ageing, with a commitment to build all public housing to lifetime homes standards by 2011 and a new aspiration to build all homes to lifetime homes standards by 2013. It sets out a new vision for lifetime neighbourhoods and how this will be tested.

The strategy sets out the need for increased investment in repairs and adaptations services and improved housing advice and information, supported by an additional £35 million over two years from 2009-11.

"Lifetime Homes, Lifetime Neighbourhoods" also outlines our programme of investment and reform of the Government's disabled facilities grant programme, which currently helps nearly 35,000 live independently in their homes through the provision of major home adaptations. The work for which a disabled facilities grant may be made is wide ranging, providing for access to the property and access to the basic facilities within a home, such as walk-in showers and stair lifts.

Disabled facilities grants are predominantly received by older people and so are integral to this strategy. Our proposals for the modernisation and improvement of this important grant represent our response to the recommendations of the Bristol report published in 2005.

In response to rising demand we have already announced an increase in the disabled facilities grant which will take the national budget to £146 million in England for 2008-09. And today we are announcing the individual allocations for local authorities.

There will be further increases for the next two years which will bring the disabled facilities budget up to £166 million by 2010. This represents a significant investment by the Government in this important policy and will enable even more people to benefit from the programme. Changes being made to the programme include raising the limit on disabled facilities grant to £30,000.

Other changes to the means test will speed up the process and bring extra help for people working but on a low income. Changes to the rules of the scheme will also simplify and speed up the process of providing adaptations.

The full list of changes to the disabled facilities grant programme can viewed on the following link: http://www.communities.gov.uk/housing/housingmanagementcare/housingadaptations/

The strategy also makes it clear that housing plays a critical part in staying well and independent in later life. "Lifetime Homes, Lifetime Neighbourhoods" seeks to strengthen the links between housing and health. Key principles are to ensure the services for older people are joined up and personal to them. "Lifetime Homes, Lifetime Neighbourhoods" also sets out a new vision for specialised housing for older people with growing dependency supported by new investment of £80 million in extra care housing from the Department of Health.

The Government are also announcing today £190 million of funding for successful bids from the fifth housing private finance initiative (PFI) bidding round for schemes to deliver additional social rented housing.

Kent and Cheshire county councils and Stoke-on-Trent city council have been invited to work with Communities and Local Government to develop their proposals for schemes to deliver new extra care and supported housing. These new homes will include a range of assistive technology and allow for future adaptations enabling the elderly and the vulnerable to live independent lives and be part of their local communities.

This announcement follows a review of the capital build costs of delivering new build social rented housing through PFI, which demonstrates that the capital build costs for PFI procured units can be comparable with those for schemes funded through the Housing Corporation's social housing grant. Communities and Local Government will work with the new schemes to take forward the next stage of the review to examine other costs associated with housing PFI projects.

"Lifetime Homes, Lifetime Neighbourhoods" and the programme of change outlined above, sets a radical vision to turn the challenges of ageing into opportunities, to improve the lives of older people now and for future generations.

The publications "Lifetime Homes, Lifetime Neighbourhoods: A National Housing Strategy for an Ageing Society", "Disabled Facilities Grant—The Package of Change to Modernise the Programme" and "Disabled Facilities Grant 2008-09 Local Authority funding allocations" are all available in the Libraries of both Houses.

Draft Code of Practice (Non-compliance with Biometric Registration Regulations)

The Minister for Borders and Immigration (Mr. Liam Byrne): The 2007 UK Borders Act gave the Government powers to issue identity cards to foreign nationals subject to immigration control. These new cards will confirm both a person's immigration status and their entitlement to work and access to public funds in the United Kingdom.

We are today publishing on a "Draft Code of Practice", as required under the UK Borders Act 2007, before we seek the approval of both Houses of Parliament. The "Draft Code of Practice" covers the operation of the civil penalty regime and the other sanctions. Hard copies of the documents are available in the Houses of Parliament. In addition, copies of the "Draft Code or Practice" were placed in the Libraries of both Houses. Alternatively, copies of the documents can be downloaded from the Border and Immigration Agency website at: www.bia.homeoffice.gov.uk

Deaths in Custody

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Justice (Maria Eagle): In December last year I updated Parliament on the Government's review of the forum for preventing deaths in custody as one aspect of its continued commitment to bring about real changes and improvements to reduce deaths of people being held in our custodial care (Official Report, 13 December 2007, col. 65WS). The review was being conducted by Robert Fulton, a former Home Office director. I am pleased to inform the House that Ministers have now received his report and I am making it available today.

Mr Fulton has recommended significant changes to the existing arrangements. An advisory panel on deaths in custody, formed of experts in the subject matter from outside Government Departments and operational services, would become the principal source of advice to a ministerial board on deaths in custody. The advisory panel would be supported by a broadly based practitioner and stakeholder group comparable to the existing forum. The board, replacing the ministerial round table on suicide, would bring together decision makers responsible for deaths in custody issues in the Ministry of Justice, Home Office and Department of Health.

The Government welcome this report and will be giving it careful consideration, taking into account the views of forum and round table members and others in and out of Parliament with an interest in death in custody issues. In making final decisions, Ministers will be considering such factors as the likelihood of the proposed structural changes delivering effective reductions in deaths in custody and cost.

Copies of the review of the forum for preventing deaths in custody have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses, the Vote Office and the Printed Paper Office. Copies are also available on the internet at www.preventingcustodydeaths.org.uk.

Post-mortem Procedures (Nuclear Industry)

The Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (Mr. John Hutton): Further to the written ministerial statement by my right hon. Friend the then Secretary of State for Trade and Industry on Thursday 26 April 2007, Official Report, column 28WS, I wish to announce today slightly revised terms of reference for the inquiry currently being carried out by Michael Redfern QC. The revised terms of reference are as follows:

(a) Having regard to the provisions of the Human Tissue Act 1961, the Coroners' Rules 1984, the Coroners' Act 1988 and predecessor legislation, to enquire into the circumstances in which, from 1955, organs/tissue were removed from individuals at NHS or other facilities, and sent to and analysed at nuclear laboratory facilities.

(b) In particular, to establish so far as practicable:

(i) when, where, by whom and by what means the taking of organs/tissue was requested and authorised;

(ii) whether the taking of organs/tissue was based on informed consent by the family and/or surviving relatives;

(iii) the purpose to be achieved by the retention and analysis of the organs/tissue removed; the generic results of analysis; and the identity of all publications in which the results were presented and commented upon;

(iv) whether the families or surviving relatives were informed of the results of the analysis, or the identity of the relevant publications;

(v) when, where and by whom the retention, storage, transportation, analysis, reporting and disposal of the organs/tissue was authorised;

(vi) the circumstances in which the organs/tissue were retained, stored, transported, analysed, reported upon and disposed;

(vii) the general purpose to be served by such retention, storage, analysis and publication of results;

(viii) when this activity ceased, and the circumstances in which it ceased.

(c) To consider such other issues in connection with the above matters as the Secretary of State may direct.

(d) To report to the Secretary of State as soon as possible.

(e) To make recommendations.

Michael Redfern QC has requested these revised terms of reference in the light of the work that he and his inquiry team have undertaken so far.

TREASURY

Departmental Expenditure Limits

The Exchequer Secretary to the Treasury (Angela Eagle): Subject to parliamentary approval of any necessary supplementary estimate, HM Treasury's total DEL will be reduced by £73,000 from £229,448,000 to £229,375,000 and the Administration budget will be reduced by £2,670,000 from £173,851,000 to £171,181,000. The impact on resources and capital is set out in the following table:

| | Change | | NEW DEL | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Voted | Non-voted | Voted | Non-voted | Total |
| Resource | 6,572,000 | -6,572,000 | 210,547,000 | 21,240,000 | 231,787,000 |
| Of which | | | | | |
| Administration budget[1] | 3,902,000 | -6,572,000 | 170,331,000 | 850,000 | 171,181,000 |
| Near-cash in RDEL | 6,231,000 | -6,572,000 | 198,385,000 | 32,418,000 | 230,803,000 |
| Capital[2] | | - | 7,200,000 | - | 7,200,000 |
| Less Depreciation[3] | -73,000 | - | -9,612,000 | - | -9,612,000 |
| Total | 6,499,000 | -6,572,000 | 208,135,000 | 21,240,000 | 229,375,000 |

[1]The total of 'Administration budget' and 'Near-cash in resource DEL' figures may well be greater than total resource DEL due to the definitions overlapping.
[2]Capital DEL includes items treated as resource in Estimates and accounts but which are treated as Capital DEL in budgets.
[3]Depreciation, which forms part of resource DEL, is excluded from the total DEL, since capital DEL includes capital spending and to include depreciation of those assets would lead to double counting.

The resource and capital DELs remain unchanged while total DEL is reduced by £73,000 following an increase in depreciation. The reduction in the administration budget arises from the reclassification of Administration budget spending to other current to finance increased other current spending by HM Treasury to reflect a reduction of £390,000 in appropriations in aid and the Office of Government Commerce to fund the remaining costs associated with the OGC's voluntary early retirement and severance scheme costs arising from the Transforming Government Procurement review.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Blackpool Task Force Report

The Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (Hazel Blears): In March last year the then Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport, invited a taskforce to review the totality of economic, social and environmental development plans in the Blackpool area. The Blackpool taskforce comprised senior representation from Blackpool Council, ReBlackpool, English Partnerships, the North-West Regional Development Agency and Government Office North-West.

The taskforce reported in July 2007 and made a number of observations and recommendations. Since that date, the Government have been actively engaged in discussions with Blackpool and national and regional agencies about how best to take forward the recommendations. On 1 February, the Secretary of State for Transport announced a centrepiece of the Government's response to the taskforce, confirming a £85 million investment of public funds to renew Blackpool's trams. This and other announcements are contained in the response I am publishing today, which includes:

Education and Skills: Over £100 million will be spent on a complete overhaul of Blackpool's education facilities, including new schools, a new town centre further education campus, a new higher education facility and major investment in skills training. This investment is vital to produce the highly skilled and qualified workforce that Blackpool needs to diversify from its traditional but declining employment base.

Transport: A £100 million boost to local transport is underway, with an announcement earlier this month for a modernised tram system, together with investments to improve the airport and important studies to take forward rail and road improvements. Improved connectivity is vital to bring not just visitors but also new investors and jobs to Blackpool and its Fylde coast neighbours.

Resort: £82 million already committed to improve the beach and resort offer, with improved seafront defences, investment in events and a promise to respond constructively to bids from Blackpool for investment in the illuminations and further beachfront improvements.

Regeneration: The NWDA is investing, with ReBlackpool, to take forward major town centre regeneration including theTalbot gateway. This initiative, together with environmental improvements, will help restore Blackpool's position as a major shopping and sub-regional centre.

Housing and Accommodation: English Partnerships will be investing an initial £35 million in the South beach and North beach areas to help improve the housing mix and create more mixed communities. Housing investment will help reduce the surplus of unsuitable houses of multiple occupation and stimulate private sector investment in improved hotels and housing.

Working Across Administrative Boundaries: The Government applaud the co-operation between Blackpool and its Fylde coast neighbours on a multi-area agreement, and the recognition that economic regeneration needs joined-up work both within the town and with neighbouring authorities.

Other recommendations in the report will be the subject of feasibility studies and funding bids, and I am pleased to note the co-operation between the NWDA, English Partnerships, HEFCE, Government Office North-West and Blackpool in developing future plans.

The regional director, Government Office North-West, will report to me on progress on a quarterly basis for the next year, and I intend to visit Blackpool within a year to discuss progress on regeneration.

Regional Casino-led Regeneration (Alternative Approaches)

The Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (Hazel Blears): I am today announcing the publication of a review of the "Alternative Approaches to Regional Casino-led Regeneration" prepared by my officials. Copies will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

In July last year the Prime Minister asked me to undertake this review, in recognition of the lack of consensus in Parliament about regional casinos in light of the potential of a regional casino to increase problem gambling within the regional catchment area. The then Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport, my right hon. Friend the Member for Stalybridge and Hyde (James Purnell) in announcing the review on 16 July 2007 said:

"it would be prudent to examine afresh whether deprived areas can be equally well served by other forms of regeneration".

The aim of the review has been to examine the evidence of whether regional casinos are the best way to regenerate specific deprived areas. It has drawn heavily on evidence within the various documents submitted to the Casino Advisory Panel for the licensing of a regional casino, published literature on casinos specifically and the benefits of regeneration more generally. A list of these points of reference is included in the document.

Specifically the review examined:

What is the regeneration need which casinos are thought to meet and what is the nature of the market failures involved;

What are the economic benefits of casino-led regeneration;

What are the economic and social costs of casino-led regeneration; and

What are the alternatives to casino-led regeneration could be considered.

The review highlights the difficulty in establishing the evidence base for the generic benefits of casinos because the source material is strongly influenced by specific location factors, and by the underpinning purpose of individual pieces of research. In particular, there are uncertainties about the scale of the benefits of a regional casino for job creation; about the wider benefits to an area from multiplier effects; or about the degree of additionality a casino would bring to existing activities. Moreover, the leakage effects—where new jobs are filled by commuters not locals limiting the benefits to the immediate area of the casino—is potentially higher than other forms of regeneration because pay within casinos is relatively high and training opportunities make it attractive to people already in employment. Finally, the review concludes that, as with most regeneration projects, there are economic and social costs associated with casino-led regeneration. In the case of a regional casino there are potentially significant costs that would arise as a result of an increase in compulsive gambling.

The review does recognise that the unique nature of a regional casino, especially in terms of inward investment, would make it challenging for any one of the alternatives the review examines in isolation to achieve the scale of benefits that could be secured through a regional casino. However, when the potential economic and social costs are factored in alongside the uncertainties around the extent to which the benefits of a regional casino are truly additional then the difference could be much reduced or even eliminated if a number of alternative options are packaged together.

TRANSPORT

First Great Western Franchise

The Secretary of State for Transport (Ruth Kelly): The performance of First Great Western has persistently fallen short of its customers' expectations and has been unacceptable to both passengers and Government.

I can inform the House today that First Great Western has breached its franchise agreement by exceeding the limits on cancellations, and also by misreporting those cancellations.

I can now outline the measures I have taken, and the actions I have agreed with First Great Western, which were reported in an announcement by First plc to the Stock Exchange before the markets opened this morning.

First, I am today issuing First Great Western with a remedial plan notice for exceeding the threshold on cancellations which resulted in a breach of its franchise agreement. In response to this notice, First Great Western will submit a remedial plan for addressing this level of cancellations. Discussions are at an advanced stage on what the plan will contain.

Secondly, I am also today issuing First Great Western with a breach notice for misreporting its cancellations.

Thirdly, and importantly for those using First Great Western services, a substantial package of additional benefits for passengers has been agreed.

First Great Western's franchise contains strict limits on delays and cancellations; specifies the circumstances in which the franchise is in breach, and more seriously still, those circumstances that constitute an event of default; and it sets out the remedies for correcting poor performance.

Every four weeks, the company reports the number of cancellations, and may claim adjustments to the headline number in line with the provisions of the franchise. My Department tests any such claims, allowing only those we agree with. Typically we reach final agreement on performance within six weeks of the end of the reporting period.

For the period ending in mid-September 2007, there were a substantial number of claimed cancellation adjustments, which were then scrutinised by my Department. Early in November 2007, before a conclusion could be reached, First Great Western informed the Department that it had discovered that it had been miscalculating the base numbers of train cancellations. Over subsequent weeks it carried out an internal audit of its method of calculating cancellations that uncovered several errors in the methodology, which First Great Western has now corrected.

First Great Western now accept that they breached the franchise agreement from August to December 2007 in respect of cancellations. I will therefore be issuing later today a remedial plan notice.

This requires First Great Western to submit to me a remedial plan, to bring the standard of services back to acceptable levels, and it will be contractualised as a remedial agreement. Material non-compliance with the remedial agreement would be a default of the franchise agreement, which could lead to the Government terminating First Great Western's franchise

In order to prepare an acceptable remedial plan, First Great Western has committed to employ more drivers and other train crew, to deploy extra carriages and to implement a range of other measures to reduce the number of cancellations. First Great Western has already commenced implementation of several of the initiatives.

In addition to the remedial plan, First Great Western has offered a package of passenger benefits amounting to £29 million.

First Great Western has already announced that it has doubled passenger compensation for this year.

But First Great Western has also now committed to the following benefits, as described today to the Stock Exchange:

- further improved passenger compensation from 2009 to 2010;
- an additional 500,000 cheap off-peak tickets on some of the most popular routes from April of this year;
- additional carriages on the Cardiff-Portsmouth route from this summer, to provide extra capacity;
- new, and additional, high-quality information equipment to be installed at more stations than already committed in the franchise agreement; and
- refurbishment of Thames Valley commuter trains to a higher standard than committed in the franchise agreement to commence this year and to be completed by 2011.

It is also open to me to impose a monetary penalty on First Great Western for under-reporting their performance last year. Any penalty would be paid to central Government. Having considered this carefully, and given that a penalty would not, itself, help passengers, I have opted instead for passengers to receive a better benefits package as described above.

The franchising system has encouraged good performance from operators, with many train companies operating above target performance levels. However, in the light of the errors in self-reporting that First Great Western brought to light, I have asked my officials to audit reported performance on a risk basis, in particular for those train operating companies whose performance is close to their franchise benchmarks.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Employment, Social Policy, Health and Consumer Affairs Council

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Mr. James Plaskitt): The Employment, Social Policy, Health and Consumer Affairs Council will be held on 29 February in Brussels. There are no health or consumer affairs issues. I shall be representing the UK.

The first and main item is the preparation for the spring European Council which will be held on 13 and 14 March 2008. The key messages paper, prepared by the Employment Committee and the Social Protection Committee, identifies the key messages emerging from the various other reports for adoption and endorsement at the March Council. The key messages paper will be adopted following a policy debate on strengthening skills, the social dimension and the role of stakeholders.

The second item is an exchange of views in preparation for the Tripartite Social Summit. This will be held on 13 March in advance of the spring European Council to allow the European social partners time to feed in their views to the spring Council. The social summit will be attended by the current presidency, the two subsequent presidencies (France and the Czech Republic), the Commission and the social partners. It meets at least once a year, including before each annual spring Council.

The Council will also endorse an opinion by the Employment Committee and the Social Protection Committee on the single market review, which highlights that the single market makes an important contribution to jobs, growth and social cohesion under the Lisbon agenda. The UK supports this opinion.

The Council will also seek political agreement on the draft Council Resolution on the situation of disabled people in the European Union: the European action plan 2008-09, promoting human rights and the mainstreaming of disability issues. The UK supports the agreement of the resolution.

Under any other business, there will be a Commission presentation on the Mission for Flexicurity. Its objective will be to explain flexicurity and assist those member states who wish help with developing their own reforms, before reporting back to the Council during the French presidency.

In addition, the chairs of the Employment Committee and the Social Protection Committee will give an oral presentation to provide information on their 2008 work programmes.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Low-level Waste Repository (Drigg)

The Minister for Energy (Malcolm Wicks): I am announcing that I have, today, laid a departmental minute before the House regarding the granting of an indemnity related to nuclear occurrences forming part of new contracts for the LLWR at Drigg.

The NDA proposes to grant an indemnity against uninsurable claims from nuclear incidents that fall outside the regime offered by the Nuclear Installations Act 1965 and the Paris and Brussels conventions to the contractor (and limited specified affiliates) who will operate the LLWR site licence company. At present any such uninsurable claims are borne by the NDA. Given the low probability of a claim being brought the NDA has assessed that the benefits of engaging the contractor outweigh the small risk that the indemnity may be called.

A key element of the NDA's strategy has been to use competition to improve the management and operation of its sites. The LLWR contracts will be the first to be awarded as a result of competition

Copies of the departmental minute relating to this indemnity have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses and will be posted on the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform website at: www.berr.gov.uk.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Code for Sustainable Homes

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (Mr. Iain Wright): The Government are today confirming the timing of implementation of mandatory ratings against the code for sustainable homes (the code) for new homes in England. This will come into effect on 1 May 2008. All sellers of new homes that apply for building control approval for their development on or after this date will need to include in the home information pack either a code sustainability certificate (where the home has been designed and assessed against the code) or a nil-rated certificate (when a home has not been assessed against the code). We will shortly be laying regulations to bring this into effect. In all instances as a result of the mandatory rating policy the purchasers of new homes will be given clear information about the sustainability of their home and house builders will have a clear and consistent basis on which to compare and market their products.

Communities and Local Government is also publishing an updated document explaining what the code is, how it works and what the main categories are within it. This can be found on the Communities and Local Government website at: www.communities.gov.uk/thecode. A copy will also been placed in the Libraries of both Houses. The technical guidance which is used by industry to design and assess code homes is also available on the Communities and Local Government website. This is a "living document" that is updated—as necessary—at the beginning of April and October each year to take account of feedback from industry and in light of any changes in regulations.

The code was launched in December 2006 and came into effect in England on 10 April 2007 as a voluntary national sustainability standard, following extensive consultation with environmental groups and the home building and wider construction industries. It is a key part of our package of measures to reduce carbon dioxide emissions and tackle climate change. The code provides a framework for builders to go further and faster than building regulations, and mandatory ratings will provide a clear incentive for the house building industry to build more sustainable homes.

We are also seeking to establish the code in primary legislation through clauses in part 3 of the Housing and Regeneration Bill. This will enable the Department to set up the code on a similar basis to energy performance certificates including the ability to set up accreditation schemes, a register of certificates and to ensure that the sellers of all new homes, not just those that are marketed for sale, will be required to give buyers clear information about the sustainability of their new home. It will also ensure that those buyers who receive only interim—design stage—certificates before a sale is agreed will receive a final post-construction certificates once the home is finished.

The code complements the system of energy performance certificates for new homes, which will be introduced in April 2008 under the Energy Performance of Buildings Directive (EPBD).

HOME DEPARTMENT

Drugs Strategy

The Secretary of State for the Home Department (Jacqui Smith): My right hon. Friends the Secretary of State for Health, the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families and I have today published the new 10-year drug strategy, "Drugs: Protecting Families and Communities", which sets out the Government's objectives to tackle the harms caused by illegal drug use and actions that the Government and partners will take in meeting those objectives.

The strategy builds upon the existing 10-year strategy, which was published in 1998 and updated in 2002. In the 10 years since that strategy was published, we have seen some real success: drug-related crime has been cut by around 20 per cent., overall drug use, including young people's drug use, is at an 11-year low; an expanded treatment capacity has allowed us to exceed our target to double the number of users in treatment two years early—with over 195,000 users in treatment in 2006-07 compared to 85,000 in 1998; we have targeted those who commit crime to feed their addiction through compulsory drug testing on arrest; over 1,000 crack houses have been closed; and we have seized record amounts of drugs, disrupting and dismantling organised drug trafficking groups.

In common with the earlier strategy, the new strategy seeks to balance tough enforcement action to tackle dealers, reduce crime and antisocial behaviour and to reduce the supply of drugs, with interventions to prevent drug use, to educate and intervene early and to reduce the demand for illegal drugs. The overarching aims are to grip existing drug users more firmly in treatment, increase the number of drug users re-establishing their lives and reduce the number of new problem drug users. It is focused on the drugs which cause the greatest harm to communities.

The strategy places a new focus on protecting families and on strengthening communities and, to support this new focus, is arranged around four strategic themes:

protecting communities through robust enforcement to tackle drug supply, drug-related crime and antisocial behaviour; preventing harm to children, young people and families affected by drug misuse; delivering new approaches to drug treatment and social reintegration; and public information campaigns, communications and community engagement.

While the strategy will cover a 10-year period to 2018, its delivery will be underpinned by a series of three-year action plans, which will run concurrently with the spending review cycles. The first such action plan, for the period 2008-11 has been published alongside the strategy.

In reaching decisions that inform the actions the Government will take to tackle drug-related harm, we have taken into account responses to the public and stakeholder consultation conducted between July and October last year. Over a thousand written responses were received and interviews were conducted with a wide range of consultees. A report of the consultation and summary of responses is also published today.

Key actions that are featured in the new strategy include:

identifying and targeting the drug-misusing offenders causing the greatest harm to communities, improving prison treatment programmes and increasing the use of community sentences with a drug rehabilitation requirement; extending powers to seize the cash and assets of drug dealers, to demonstrate to communities that dealing does not pay; embedding action to tackle drugs within the neighbourhood policing approach, to gather community intelligence, engage with and increase community confidence;

strengthening and extending international agreements to intercept drugs being trafficked to the UK; focusing on families where parents misuse drugs, intervening early to prevent harm to children, prioritising parents' access to treatment where children are at risk, providing intensive parenting guidance and supporting family members, such as grandparents, who take on caring responsibilities; developing a package of support to help people in drug treatment to complete treatment and to re-establish their lives, including ensuring local arrangements are in place to refer people from jobcentres to sources of housing advice and advocacy and appropriate treatment;

using opportunities presented by the benefits system to support people in reintegrating into communities and gaining employment, while also exploring the case for providing more tailored support for people; and, in return putting the responsibility on claimants to move successfully through treatment and into employment; and piloting new approaches which allow more flexible and effective use of resources, including individual budgets to meet treatment and wider support needs.

Through this new drug strategy, and the work that will flow from it, we will continue to send a clear message that drug use is unacceptable; that we are on the side of communities; that we demand respect for the law and will not tolerate illegal or antisocial behaviour; but that we will provide help for those who are trying to turn their lives around, to get off drugs and into work, to ensure drug problems are not handed on to the next generation; and that we expect drug users themselves to take responsibility, and will help them to do so.

Copies of the strategy, its supporting action plan and of the consultation report are available in the House Library and on the Home Office website at: www.drugs.homeoffice.gov.uk.

Justice and Home Affairs Council

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Meg Hillier): The Justice and Home Affairs Council will be held on 28 February 2008 in Brussels. My right hon. Friend the Home Secretary, the Solicitor-General of Scotland Frank Mulholland and I will attend on behalf of the United Kingdom. As the provisional agenda stands, the following items will be discussed:

The Council will start with a discussion of the draft Europol Council decision, with the presidency aiming to gain consensus on a number of fundamental issues surrounding the funding of Europol and the application of privileges and immunities to Europol staff that are crucial to being able to adopt the Council decision by June. The Government have concerns with the proposal to grant privileges and immunities to Europol working in joint investigation teams and are working to resolve this.

There will follow a discussion on common standards and procedures for returning illegally staying third-country nationals. The UK has not opted-in to this instrument.

We expect that the presidency will give a state of play report on the proposal for a directive on the protection of the environment through criminal law and the Commission to set out their plans concerning the proposal for a directive on ship-source pollution.

There will be an update from the presidency on the ratification of EU-US agreements on extradition and mutual legal assistance. These measures were signed in 2003 but have yet to enter into force pending the completion of implementation measures in member states, including in the UK.

There will be a discussion of the draft framework decision on combating terrorism in relation to scope and proportionality. The Government are broadly happy with the instrument as it stands, however it has not yet cleared parliamentary scrutiny.

At the Mixed Committee with Norway, Iceland and Switzerland, the Commission will present a revised timetable for implementation of the second generation of the Schengen Information System (SIS). This follows the discussion at the informal JHA Council in January, where Ministers discussed the fact that more time for testing was needed. The Government are keen to ensure that the Commission timetable is robust and evidence-based.

This will be followed by a meeting of the Council in Mixed Committee with Liechtenstein, where the group will discuss the amendment of the rules of procedure of the Committee established between the European Union, the European Community and the Swiss Confederation concerning the latter's association in the implementation, application and development of the Schengen Acquis. An amendment to the rules of procedure is required to enable the Principality of Liechtenstein to also participate in the Mixed Committee following signature of the protocol concerning Liechtenstein's accession to the Schengen area.

Over lunch Ministers will discuss the Visa Waiver Memorandum of Understanding (MOU). In 2007, the US authorities proposed amendments to the criteria for the US Visa Waiver Program; the UK has participated in the program since its inception in 1986. The UK has a very significant interest in the proposed amendments because of the large amount of tourist and business traffic between the UK and the USA. The UK recognises and supports the need to improve the security of travel, but any amendments to the Visa Waiver Program should be managed to ensure as little impact on legitimate travel between the UK and the USA as possible. Candidate countries for the Visa Waiver Program have received a draft MOU from the US authorities that must be agreed and signed before they may join. Identical draft MOUs have been sent to other EU member states that currently participate in the program and we are studying this document carefully. All existing members (including the UK) will be asked to sign the MOU in order to continue to participate in the Visa Waiver Program.

Also over lunch, Interior Ministers will discuss SIS II, the High Level Contact Group with the US on data protection and sharing and relations with the European Parliament.

Justice Ministers will discuss the Commission's intention to create a forum for discussing EU justice policies and practice, for a first exchange of views. It is expected that they will also discuss the financing of E-justice projects and the need to give formal agreement to certain measures before the coming into force of the new treaty.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Housing Market Renewal Programme 2008-11

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (Mr. Iain Wright): The Housing Market Renewal Programme has made a major contribution to restoring confidence in some of the most disadvantaged areas of the country. I am therefore pleased to announce that we will be making a further £1.038 billion available to the programme over the period 2008-11.

Having considered business plans prepared by the 12 housing market renewal areas, I am today announcing allocations for individual areas as follows:

Proposed Distribution Across Individual Years

| Pathfinder | Total Allocation | 2008-09 | 2009-10 | 2010-11 |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Birmingham Sandwell | 53 | 25 | 17 | 11 |
| East Lancashire | 150 | 52 | 50 | 48 |
| Hull and East Riding | 87 | 30 | 29 | 28 |
| Manchester Salford | 140 | 52 | 46 | 42 |
| Merseyside | 152 | 54 | 51 | 47 |
| Newcastle Gateshead | 95 | 34 | 32 | 29 |
| North Staffordshire | 114 | 40 | 38 | 36 |
| Oldham Rochdale | 90 | 32 | 30 | 28 |
| South Yorkshire | 116 | 46 | 39 | 31 |
| Tees Valley | 35 | 13 | 12 | 10 |
| West Cumbria | 6 | 3 | 2 | 1 |
| Total | 1038 | 381 | 346 | 311 |

Note:
The allocation for South Yorkshire includes an allocation of £12 million over the three years for HMR activity in the South-East Wakefield housing market area of West Yorkshire.

This is substantial new funding, and, together with increasing investment from the private sector and support from local authorities and others, will help the market renewal areas take forward their ambitious programmes to bring real change to places that only five years ago were facing decline and abandonment.

Since the housing market renewal programme began in 2002, we have invested £1.2 billion, which has helped to refurbish over 40,000 homes, demolish 10,000 properties, and construct 1,100 new homes. As the National Audit Office recognised in its report on the programme published last year, all the pathfinders have succeeded in closing the gaps in prices with their regions, and housing markets in local authorities chosen for intervention have, on the whole, performed better than in other local authorities not chosen for intervention which had the most similar problems of low demand.

The new funding I am announcing today will help take forward this work. Three-year funding will provide greater certainty for the housing market renewal partnerships to address long-term market failure. At the same time, we also want the partnerships to ensure that they are making appropriate connections to wider housing strategies and making links with growth programmes where relevant.

Figures for year 1 (2008-09) are firm commitments, and for years 2 and 3 (2009-10 and 2010-11) are indicative, and may change by up to plus or minus 10 per cent. These numbers will be confirmed at a later point, and will be subject to a number of factors, including progress in working with the new Homes and Communities Agency; progress in making links with growth initiatives where relevant; and future changes in local markets.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Environment Council

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Hilary Benn): I will represent the UK at the Environment Council in Brussels on 3 March.

At this Council, the Slovenian presidency will be seeking to agree three sets of Council conclusions. First, the Council will discuss the Environment Council's contribution to the spring European Council. The conclusions will focus on the following key priorities: climate change and energy, in particular the legislative package recently proposed by the Commission, halting the loss of biodiversity, environmental technologies, and better regulation. The Council will also agree the EU's negotiating position ahead of the fourth COP serving as the meeting of the parties to the Cartagena protocol on biosafety and the conference of parties to the convention of biological diversity both to be held in May 2008.

The Council will also hold two policy debates. First, on the Commission's climate and energy package published on 23 January 2008, Ministers will be asked to consider the level of ambition contained in the package; whether the proposals put forward to ensure emission reductions are cost-effective and equitable; whether the proposed regulatory framework on carbon capture and storage is suitable; and the sustainability of the scheme. There will also be a policy debate on the Commission's proposal for setting emissions performance standards to reduce $CO_2$ emissions from passenger cars and light commercial vehicles. Ministers will be asked to consider whether the Commission's proposal respects the criteria put forward by the Council and what can be done to further improve the balance between the different elements of the proposal in order to meet its environmental objectives.

Under "any other business", the presidency will update the Council on the Euro VI regulations. Information on noise from military aircraft, emissions from shipping and the Danube-Black Sea Deep Navigation Canal have been requested by member states.

HEALTH

Tooke Inquiry (Government Response)

The Secretary of State for Health (Alan Johnson): On 16 April 2007, my right hon. Friend the former Secretary of State for Health, the Member for Kingston upon Hall, West and Hessle (Alan Johnson) announced an independent review to examine the processes underlying modernising medical careers and make recommendations to ensure that any necessary improvements could be implemented for 2008 and the future.

The review was chaired by Sir John Tooke, dean of the Peninsula medical school, chair of the Council of Heads of Medical Schools and chair of the UK Health Education Advisory Committee.

Today, the Department publishes its response to Sir John's interim and final reports. The response has been placed in the Library and copies are available to hon. Members from the Vote Office.

The review which he chaired was conducted independently of the four Health Departments and had its own independent secretariat. Its interim report was published on 8 October 2007. Following consultation with the medical profession and others involved, the final report of the review was published on 8 January this year.

Sir John and his colleagues have produced an excellent, wide-ranging review of the serious problems that arose within specialty training in 2007, the causes of those problems, and what needs to change as a result of them.

I would like to thank Sir John, his colleagues on the review, and all organisations and individuals who have given evidence to it and responded to its interim report. The Tooke review marks a significant step forward in ensuring excellence and high achievement remain at the heart of medical education and training in this country.

Progress has already been made. For example, one of the key lessons of 2007 was the need to develop policy and process in consultation with the medical profession, the NHS and others involved. That is why we have established the MMC programme board. Over half of the board's members are drawn from the medical profession. I have accepted all of the programme board's recommendations.

The complexity of this area of policy means that there are 47 separate sets of recommendations to consider within Sir John's interim and final reports.

While not all of them are the direct responsibility of the Department, we accept the overwhelming majority of Sir John's recommendations. For example, we accept Sir John's recommendation that the Postgraduate Medical Education and Training Board (PMETB) and the General Medical Council (GMC) should merge to establish a single organisation for standards in medical education and training.

A small number of Sir John's recommendations have implications that we need to consider very carefully. As Sir John's report itself makes clear, the reform of postgraduate medical training should proceed in an evidence-based way, in which structures of governance and accountability are made clear, and in which training is carefully dovetailed with the needs of patients and other policy considerations.

My noble Friend the Lord Darzi of Denham is currently leading a next stage review of the national health service. Workforce planning, education and the role of the doctor are crucial parts of my noble Friend's review. One of Sir John's most far-reaching recommendations—the establishment of a new organisation to oversee postgraduate medical education and training in England—will therefore need to be carefully considered alongside this work.

HOME DEPARTMENT

National DNA Database Ethics Group

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Meg Hillier): Further to my written ministerial statement on 25 July 2007, Official Report, column 78WS, I am pleased to announce the following additional appointments to the Ethics Group which provides Ministers with independent ethical advice on the operation and practice of the national DNA database (NDNAD):

Mr. Derek Campbell

Mrs. Julia Selman Ayetey

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Nanotechnologies

The Minister for Science and Innovation (Ian Pearson): I am today placing in the Libraries of the House copies of a statement by the UK Government about nanotechnologies.

Nanotechnologies offer potentially huge benefits to society, industry, health and the environment. They can help us improve our quality of life and respond to some of the key issues of the day such as climate change.

The Government's aim is for the UK to derive maximum benefit from these new technologies and their products. However, this must be done in a way that safeguards health, safety and the environment.

The statement describes what the Government are doing to deliver these objectives, in collaboration with a range of others including academia, industry, civil society groups and international organisations. It explains the steps that are being taken to:

- develop the UK's research community and understand the potential benefits and risks of nanotechnologies;
- encourage UK businesses to "pull-through" the ideas generated by the research base; and
- ensure proportionate control of risks to health, safety or the environment.

From the start the Government have wanted to understand and address public aspirations and concerns about nanotechnologies. They have funded a series of in-depth discussions between members of the public, scientists and others who are involved in developing and exploiting nanotechnologies.

One of the messages that emerged was a desire for a clear statement about the way in which new and emerging areas of science and technology, such as nanotechnologies, are funded and regulated. This statement provides that information for organisations across the public sector. It also sets out how the Government and others are responding to other aspirations and concerns aired through public dialogue.

I have established a ministerial group on nanotechnologies to review the situation regularly and make sure that the UK continues to play a leading role in the understanding, development and regulation of nanotechnologies.

JUSTICE

Cross-border Judgments

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Justice (Bridget Prentice): Today my right hon. and noble Friend the Attorney-General is publishing a consultation paper on new rules to clarify citizens' rights when faced with judgments reached in another EU member state in their absence.

The UK is sponsoring this initiative of the Slovenian presidency because we believe reform is needed to improve the delivery of justice in these cross-border cases.

The purpose of the proposal is to tighten up the regime applicable in cases of trials in absence in the main EU mutual recognition instruments, enhancing the procedural rights of defendants. Trials in absence will not increase as a result of the proposal.

The Slovenian presidency hopes to reach agreement on the proposal very quickly. We are therefore asking for responses to our consultation within six weeks.

Copies of the consultation paper will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses and are also available on the internet at: http://www.cjsonline.gov.uk/downloads/application/pdf/2008-02-28_TIA_consultation_paper.pdf

WORK AND PENSIONS

DWP Commissioning Strategy

The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (James Purnell): We have made clear progress over the past decade in tackling poverty and promoting social justice, but we need to do more. We are determined that we will continue to tackle child poverty and to drive for an 80 per cent. employment rate. We have become more ambitious about who we believe can work.

We will be focusing efforts on helping people on employment and support allowance to look at what they can do, not what they cannot. We will also be expecting single parents to look for work when their youngest child is seven rather than 16. Achieving fair life chances for all will mean opening up second chances, through opportunities to learn, develop new skills, enter employment and make progress at work.

The employability market is large and diverse. Every year, the Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) spends nearly £1 billion on partnerships with the private, public and voluntary sectors. In England, the European Social Fund (ESF) finances further provision commissioned by DWP. We need to spend that money cost-effectively to get the best result for every customer, to increase the number of people going into sustained work. To achieve this, we need to achieve a step change in the performance of employment provision.

That is why I am pleased, therefore, to announce to the House the publication today of a Command Paper entitled "DWP Commissioning Strategy".

The commissioning strategy's new approach to sourcing, procuring and managing employability provision will harness the innovation and expertise of the private, third and public sectors to support people into work. This strategy implements a key part of the radical vision outlined by David Freud in his report, "Reducing Dependency, Increasing Opportunity", published in March 2007.

The commissioning strategy is a major milestone in our welfare reform programme and provides a comprehensive and compelling vision of the way we will work with providers. It aligns clearly with the ambitions of other developments, such as: the Leitch review of skills; the report of the National Employment Panel's Business Commission on Race Equality in the Workplace; and the joint Communities and Local Government/Department for Work and Pensions paper on area-based strategies to reduce worklessness in England.

We are creating a market for the long-term—we are committed to this and want to help develop a critical mass of providers who will work with us in delivering personalised services for each individual that focus on work or work related activity for those clients who will benefit. The strategy takes us away from a mindset of top-down control and devolves initiative and innovation to the front-line. Furthermore, it sets out the high value we place on developing long-term relationships with partners who demonstrate they share our commitment, including those commitments in the public sector statutory duties, to promote equality through all we do.

We have consulted extensively with existing and potential providers, with other parts of Government, with representative groups, employer organisations and other stakeholders, as well as reviewing the responses to the consultation exercise. We have also sought to learn from best practice internationally: from the United States, Australia and the Netherlands. However, our ambition is to make our employability provision even more advanced and effective in its conception and delivery. We want our welfare provision to be a world leader in increasing skills and in tackling worklessness.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Housing Green Paper

The Minister for Housing (Caroline Flint): I am publishing today a summary of responses to the Government's Housing Green Paper, "Homes for the Future: More Affordable, More Sustainable". The document is being published on my Department's website as per the Government's commitment in the Green Paper and is at: http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/housing/responsegreenpaper.

Copies are also being placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

DEFENCE

Atomic Weapons Establishment (Pensions Scheme)

The Secretary of State for Defence (Des Browne): The MOD's responsibility for maintaining the UK's nuclear warhead capability is fulfilled through Atomic Weapons Establishment Management Limited (AWE ML) as the prime contractor. The Atomic Weapons Establishment, which was previously a directly employed business within the MOD, was contractorised in 1993 and affected MOD staff transferred to AWE plc under the Transfer of Undertakings (Protection of Employees) Regulations.

AWE plc operate a final salary pension scheme for their employees. This is a funded scheme administered under a trust and, as such, is exposed to the volatility of financial markets. The latest valuation in 2005 revealed a deficit of £73 million against total liabilities of some £589 million. Since then, AWE ML have been developing and consulting staff and trade unions on a range of proposed amendments which would address this deficit. AWE ML are determined to maintain the existing final salary scheme for both existing and new employees but this will require an increase in pension contributions. The alternative would be the closure of the scheme. The present annual value of the required additional contributions to the scheme is estimated to be some £9 million.

During the Committee stages of the Atomic Weapons Establishment Bill in 1991 (Official Report, 14 February 1991, column 223), the then Under-Secretary of State for Defence Procurement made an undertaking that any increase in employee contributions would be offset by a compensating adjustment to pay.

This undertaking was made in a very different context to the one in which occupational pension schemes now operate. Pension schemes both in the public and private sectors have undergone major changes in response to improving health and healthcare, longevity and returns on investments. Even if AWE employees had remained as civil servants, they would not have been unaffected by these dynamics; new pension arrangements were introduced for the civil service last year and final salary schemes are now closed.

While AWE ML will continue to fund the bulk of the pension costs through their employer contributions, AWE employees will also need to increase their contributions in today's circumstances. AWE ML will only implement any changes to the pension scheme following proper consultation with the trade unions and scheme members.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

EU Education Council

The Minister for Lifelong Learning, Further and Higher Education (Bill Rammell): I represented the UK at the Education Council, on behalf of DIUS and DCSF.

During the formal Council session, Ministers discussed the following two dossiers:

Joint Report on Progress Under the 'Education and Training 2010' Work Programme

This two-yearly progress report on implementing the 'Education and Training 2010' work programme was adopted. The report sets out areas where progress has been made against the five agreed benchmarks of the work programme, and highlights priority areas where further effort is needed, notably in the areas of literacy and early school leaving.

Key Messages to the Spring European Council in the Field of Education and Training

The Council adopted key messages to the spring European Council. These four messages included the UK proposal for a European skills review and a call for universities to be given the necessary autonomy to develop partnerships with the business community and attract private sector funding. I supported both of these messages.

As part of the discussion around these key messages, a Commission expert presented the initial conclusions arising from peer learning activity on early school leaving. The main points were: the importance of prevention, co-ordination between relevant agencies, quality assurance, teacher training and developing an ethos of respect in schools.

Ministers' responses to this presentation included praise for the open method of co-ordination. I thanked the presidency for linking the Council's discussions to the outcomes of peer learning activities, and spoke of raising the age of participation in education and training in the UK, particularly through the expansion of vocational and workplace learning.

Lunchtime Discussion: "Looking Beyond 2010—Developing the 'Education and Training 2010' Work Programme"

Ministers exchanged views on a post-2010 strategy for European co-operation in the field of education and training. I stressed that skills had to form a central part of Europe's response to globalisation, and that value could be added to areas of national competence at European level through peer exchange and identifying best practice.

AOB

The Commission presented information on the European universities/businesses forum, taking place on 28-29 February and in which the UK is participating. They also gave information about the proposal for 2009 as the European year of creativity and innovation, and about a Euroskills competition which will be held in Rotterdam in September 2008.

PRIME MINISTER

Committee on Standards in Public Life

The Prime Minister (Mr. Gordon Brown): I am pleased to announce that I have appointed Sir Derek Morris and Dame Denise Platt as members of the Committee on Standards in Public Life. The appointment of Sir Derek is effective from 1 March 2008 and the appointment of Dame Denise is effective from 1 July 2008. Both appointments are for three years in the first instance.

I have also appointed the hon. Member for North-East Hertfordshire (Oliver Heald) as the Conservative party nominee on the Committee with effect from 1 March 2008, also for a period of three years in the first instance.

TREASURY

ECOFIN (12 February 2008)

The Chancellor of the Exchequer (Mr. Alistair Darling): The Economic and Financial Affairs Council was held in Brussels on 12 February 2008. The Exchequer Secretary to the Treasury attended for the UK. The items on the agenda were as follows:

Implementation of the Stability and Growth Pact. Stability and Convergence Programmes: First Series of Member States

Ministers adopted Council opinions on the stability programmes of Germany, Italy, Finland, Luxembourg, France and the Netherlands and on the convergence programmes of the UK, Hungary, Sweden, Romania and Slovakia. The UK supports a prudent interpretation of the stability and growth pact (SGP) which takes into account the economic cycle, sustainability and the important role of public investment.

Preparation of the European Council (13-14 March)

(i) Contribution to the spring European Council conclusions: key issues paper

Ministers adopted a key issues paper ahead of the spring European Council. This paper is comprised of five sections: an overview of the economic situation; structural reform for growth and jobs; public finances; financial markets; and European monetary union. Annexed to the key issues paper is an opinion on the Community Lisbon programme—the proposed set of Community level actions to support the Lisbon strategy for jobs and growth. The UK endorses the paper and looks forward to discussion of these issues at spring Council.

(ii) Efficiency of economic instruments for energy and climate change

Ministers agreed a set of conclusions stressing the importance of the efficiency of economic instruments for energy and climate change, based on a report from the EPC working group on climate change. The UK strongly supports these conclusions and believes that it is crucial for Finance Ministers to engage with this important agenda. Work on the economic dimension of energy and climate change and on the international financing aspects of global action will now continue at working group level with a view to providing an update to ECOFIN in autumn 2008.

Better regulation

Ministers exchanged views on better regulation in view of the recent publication of the European Commission's second "strategic review". Ministers agreed that this was an important agenda that all Council formations should engage with. The UK supports the positive efforts of the Commission and welcomes the progress made both at member states and EU level towards reducing administrative burdens in the EU.

General Budget of the European Union—Discharge Procedure in respect of the Implementation of the Budget for 2006

Ministers adopted a recommendation for discharge of the 2006 EU budget, on which the European Court of Auditors presented its report to ECOFIN in November 2007. The UK particularly supported the emphasis put on the need for all actors involved in the implementation of EU expenditure to continue to improve the functioning of supervisory and control systems in order to make further progress towards achieving a positive statement of assurance in all areas of the EC budget.

ECOFIN (4 March 2008)

The Chancellor of the Exchequer (Mr. Alistair Darling): The Economic and Financial Affairs Council will be held in Brussels on 4 March 2008. The items on the agenda are as follows:

Implementation of the Stability and Growth Pact. Stability and Convergence Programmes: First Series of Member States

Ministers will be invited to adopt Council opinions on the stability programmes of Austria, Spain, Ireland, Portugal, Greece, Malta, Cyprus and Slovenia, and on the convergence programmes of the Czech Republic, Bulgaria, Estonia, Latvia, Denmark, and Lithuania. The UK supports a prudent interpretation of the stability and growth pact (SGP) which takes into account the economic cycle, sustainability and the important role of public investment.

Preparation of the European Council (13-14 March)

(i) Broad economic policy guidelines 2008-10/11 and country-specific integrated recommendations

This discussion follows the orientation debate on these documents at the January ECOFIN and further drafting amendments in the Economic Policy Committee and Economic and Financial Committee. Following Ministers' discussions, ECOFIN will send a report to the spring 2008 European Council with its reformulated draft texts for endorsement by heads, as part of the launch of the next three-year cycle of the Lisbon strategy.

(ii) Financial stability

Ministers will prepare the spring European Council's discussion on issues related to financial stability. Ministers will discuss the causes and possible policy responses to recent financial turbulence, and will prepare contribution for heads of state and Government on the matter.

(iii) Sovereign wealth funds

Ministers will prepare the spring European Council's discussion on sovereign wealth funds. This follows the publication of a communication by the European Commission, which discusses the framework for investments made by sovereign wealth funds.

General Budget of the European Union—Council Priorities for the 2009 budget

Ministers will be invited to adopt conclusions agreeing the Council's budget guidelines for the 2009 EC budget. These guidelines are a set of broad principles which are designed to inform the subsequent and more detailed discussions on the level of appropriations required for the different areas of the budget. The subsequent negotiations throughout 2008 will determine the amounts to be spent under each budget heading.

Taxation

The fight against tax fraud

Following discussion of the issue at ECOFIN in December 2007, Ministers will be asked to agree conclusions on work to improve arrangements to combat tax fraud, which have been prepared on the basis of a report by the Commission. The UK is strongly supportive of work that will help in the fight against missing trader intra-community (MTIC) and other VAT fraud, while remaining committed to minimising the burdens on legitimate businesses.

Taxation of savings

Ministers will hear an update from the European Commission on progress made in extending the framework of the EU savings directive to third countries. The savings directive enshrines the principle of exchange of information on taxation of savings and extends beyond the EU through agreements with third countries and territories.

DEFENCE

Armed Forces' Pay Review Body

The Secretary of State for Defence (Des Browne): I am pleased to announce that I have extended the appointment of Dr Anne Wright CBE as a member of the Armed Forces' Pay Review Body for a period of one year, commencing on 1 March 2008. The extension has been approved by the Office of the Commissioner for Public Appointments.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture and Fisheries Council (18 February)

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Hilary Benn): My noble Friend the Minister for Sustainable Food and Farming and Animal Health represented the United Kingdom at this month's Agriculture and Fisheries Council in Brussels.

The Council held a policy debate, based on a presidency questionnaire, on the Commission's communication on the CAP health check. The questionnaire asked Ministers to identify their three priorities for the health check and to present their objectives for dairy reform. The UK called for full decoupling, the dismantling of all market instruments, an increase in compulsory modulation to fund environmental challenges and we opposed limits on higher farm payments, due to the distortion and bureaucracy which that would entail. Member states expressed a wide range of views.

The Council failed to reach a qualified majority for or against on the five proposals to authorise the importation, processing and marketing of four types of GM maize for use in food and animal feed and also for the use of one type of GM potato for use in animal feed. The Commission will now take a decision under its own authority.

Under any other business, the Netherlands suggested the use of CITES—Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora—as an additional legislative option to combat the illegal timber trade. The UK intervened to support the principle but called for all possible tools to be used, as CITES was not the most effective instrument to combat illegal logging.

The Netherlands, supported by 13 member states, also drew the Commission's attention to the inadequate levels of co-financing available for funding the bluetongue vaccination programme.

Cyprus, supported by Greece, drew attention to the consequences of recent droughts on the domestic farming sector.

Sweden, supported by a few member states, expressed concerns following the European Court of Justice's ruling concerning the eligibility criteria for the bovine slaughter premium and asked the Commission to bring forward a proposal rectifying the situation. The Agriculture Commissioner said that a proposal was currently being drafted that would prevent the problem from 2008 onwards.

Germany, supported by a few member states, called for further relief measures in the form of private storage aid and export refunds to alleviate the difficulties currently being experienced in the pigmeat sector. The Agriculture Commissioner said that a proposal to extend private storage by a further three months would be submitted to the Pigmeat Management Committee on 21 February.

Belgium, supported by France, drew the Commission's attention to the level of economic damage caused by bluetongue and asked for the use of exceptional market support measures.

The Agriculture Commissioner updated the Council on the state of play on the WTO negotiations.

HEALTH

Camden and Islington Mental Health and Social Care Trust (Foundation Trust Authorisation)

The Minister for the South West (Mr. Ben Bradshaw): The chairman of Monitor—the statutory name of which is the Independent Regulator of NHS Foundation Trusts—announced last week that, in accordance with section 35 of the National Health Service Act 2006, Monitor has decided to authorise Camden and Islington mental health and social care trust as an NHS foundation trust from 1 March 2008.

Monitor's announcement brings the total number of NHS foundation trusts to 89. A copy of Monitor's press notice has been placed in the Library.

The Government remain committed to offering all NHS acute and mental health trusts the opportunity to apply for foundation status as soon as practicable. Monitor is now authorising trusts on a monthly basis, and further waves of NHS foundation trusts are set to follow.

TRANSPORT

Light Dues

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Jim Fitzpatrick): I am pleased to announce that light dues rates and the tonnage threshold will remain the same for 2008-09. As a result of continuing efficiency gains made by the general lighthouse authorities we were able to cut dues by 10 per cent. in 2006, which we held down at that level in 2007 and now will hold again in 2008. We shall continue to work closely with the general lighthouse authorities to streamline and improve services further to reduce costs where we can, while maintaining prudent funding to meet their liabilities and high standards of safety.

I also welcome the publication of the Irish lights evidence study today. The study sets out evidence on the funding of the provision of aids to navigation in the Republic of Ireland. It will provide the basis for negotiations between the UK and Irish Governments to find a long term funding solution for the Commissioners of Irish Lights. I am placing copies of the study in the Libraries of the House.

Road and Rail Capacity (East of England)

The Secretary of State for Transport (Ruth Kelly): I am today announcing plans for my Department to take forward work to consider the long-term capacity of the M11 motorway and the West Anglia main line. This is in recognition of the proposed growth in the draft East of England plan and the need to support this with effective and sustainable transport links. This work would also need to take account of potential expansion of Stansted airport.

Last year my predecessor announced publication of the Highways Agency's consultation on plans to widen the M11 between junction 6 and junction 8, and to improve the junction access from the M11 and the A120 to Stansted airport.

I consider that the form of capacity improvements to the M11 in the period before 2030 requires further assessment and as a result I have asked the Highways Agency to carry out further work to look into this. This work will take account of the forecast growth in the region and ensure that, in seeking to exploit the region's economic opportunities, we do so in a socially and environmentally sustainable way, considering a range of ways to provide the additional capacity that is needed.

If this work determines that widening the M11 is needed, it has been agreed that BAA would contribute to the overall costs, subject to the necessary referral to the economic regulator. My Department will announce shortly the results of the consultation on the schemes required to provide access from the M11 and A120 to an expanded Stansted airport, which BAA has agreed to fund in full.

I also recognise that growth in the region and the associated number of new houses will place additional pressures on the West Anglia main line between Liverpool Street station and Cambridge.

Therefore, to complement the Highways Agency's further work on the M11, I am also asking Network Rail to develop and bring forward proposals for enhancing the West Anglia main line. This work should examine the case for further enhancements, to provide for longer term capacity and service improvements, in the context of Network Rail's recent Greater Anglia route utilisation strategy (RUS).

Following recent feasibility work led by my Department, I confirm that this assessment should incorporate consideration of line and route improvements including a potential four-tracking option from Tottenham Hale to south of Cheshunt, and an assessment of what commitments would be needed to deliver this solution.

The anticipated timescales for this assessment are for necessary development work and powers to be completed within railway control period 4 (2009-14), with a view to targeting delivery in control period 5 (2014-19).

This would be in addition to the more immediate capacity enhancements I announced in my White Paper "Delivering a Sustainable Railway", and the High Level Output Specification (HLOS), which were published last year.

As with the M11, this work will draw on forecast demand from wider regional growth, as well as from the potential increase in passengers resulting from any expansion of Stansted airport.

Both the work on the M11 and the West Anglia main line will be led by my Department, engaging industry, developers and other key stakeholders as necessary.

I aim to report progress on both of these projects later this year.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Independent Living Strategy

The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (James Purnell): Today I am publishing the independent living strategy. This is a cross-Government strategy that will give disabled people more choice and control over the services they need.

The independent living review was launched in July 2006 to find imaginative and practical ways of supporting independent living for disabled people. The Office for Disability Issues has led the development of the strategy, bringing together the views and experience of disabled people, organisations of disabled people, service delivery organisations and central and local government officials. The strategy has been developed with and is jointly owned by the Departments of Health, Transport, Work and Pensions, Children, Schools and Families, Communities and Local Government, and Innovation, Universities and Skills.

The strategy marks a unique and radical approach to Government working. It has been developed in partnership with disabled people to ensure that it reflects their real life experiences of the barriers to independent living and has drawn on their expertise to identify how to address these barriers. An expert panel, chaired by Baroness Jane Campbell, has advised on the strategy's development and disabled people—including younger disabled people who are reaching adulthood, and older disabled people—have been involved in meetings and workshops during the development of the strategy.

The strategy draws together recent Government commitments to remove barriers to independent living and to improve access to services, including better support for older people in their current homes, improved support for disabled young people and their families, and additional investment to transform support to older and disabled people. The strategy also makes a series of new commitments including:

Demonstrating how to move resources from professional assessment and care management to user-led support, advocacy and brokerage to ensure people get the right support to make decisions for themselves.

A regional initiative to promote independent living for older disabled people with high support needs.

A national strategy to enable people to remain in employment when they acquire an impairment or their condition worsens.

An awareness campaign aimed at practitioners in social work, the National Health Service and elsewhere, and disabled people themselves to ensure that health, social care and other services are delivered in ways which enable disabled people to have choice and control over how their needs are met.

A new toolkit to assist the development of local independent living strategies for and with older disabled people.

Good practice guidance to enable people to have choice and control over their continuing health care.

The strategy is designed to make a real and measurable impact on the lives of disabled people and contains a commitment to monitor the impact of the strategy, year-on-year, in partnership with disabled people.

The Government are committed to equality for all disabled people by 2025. Today's independent living strategy is a major step towards achieving this aim.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

EU Competitiveness Council

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for International Development (Mr. Gareth Thomas): This statement provides a summary of the proceedings of the Competitiveness Council meeting held in Brussels on 25 February 2008.

The Council held an exchange of views on the Lisbon reform package and adopted its key issues paper "Turning Challenges into Opportunities", with a view to forwarding it to the spring European Council (SEC) in March 2008.

Areas of particular focus were the role of the Competitiveness Council in complementing the national reform programmes by meeting the Community level objectives laid down in the Community Lisbon programme, the broad-based innovation strategy and the improvement of the business environment for SMEs through measures like the small business act initiative, better regulation, simplification and the reduction of administrative burdens.

The UK intervened to support the Council's view that the integrated guidelines for 2008-10 were still valid and to support an evidence-based approach to the Community level objectives. We acknowledged the central role of the Competitiveness Council in pushing forward the Lisbon agenda but stressed the importance of empowering it to examine the impact of all major EU policies on competitiveness—for example, the climate change and energy package and the need to continue to open markets within the EU and beyond. On innovation, the UK pressed for the involvement of member states in the "lead markets" initiative. Finally, we welcomed Vice-President Verheugen's statement that the Small Business Act (SBA) initiative should be a combination of measures, not solely legislative, and emphasised the importance of better regulation, common commencement dates, longer consultation periods and exemptions for SMEs.

The Council adopted conclusions on the single market review to be forwarded to the SEC in March 2008. Commissioner McCreevy welcomed the positive endorsement and said the follow-up would focus mainly on improving the policy framework, better regulation, policy tools, market monitoring and partnership working, but also on some policy initiatives like the Small Business Act.

Any other business included a presentation by the Commission of its proposal to reduce the emissions of $CO_2$ from passenger cars and light commercial vehicles which will be discussed at the Environment Council meeting in March 2008. The UK intervened to welcome the proposals but also to highlight its concern about their impact on small and medium sized independent manufacturers and to support calls for further discussion at the Competitiveness Council in May 2008.

Under AOB items, the Council also took note of presentations from the Commission on the defence package, the goods package, the consumer and internal market scoreboards, the European clusters conference and memorandum, a strategic report on better regulation, and the climate energy legislative package.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Tackling Alcohol-Related Problems

The Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (Andy Burnham): I am today publishing the evidence gathered so far on the operation of the licensing laws introduced in England and Wales in November 2005, and setting out how we intend to monitor the licensing regime over the next few weeks and months, and the immediate action the Government are taking to tackle alcohol-related problems. Copies of the evaluation report are being placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

This first review of the Licensing Act 2003 reveals a mixed picture.

Its introduction has not led to the widespread problems some feared. Overall, crime and alcohol consumption are down. But alcohol-related violence has increased in the early hours of the morning and some communities have seen a rise in disorder.

Our main conclusion is that people are using the freedoms, but people are not sufficiently using the considerable powers granted by the Act to tackle problems, and that there is a need to rebalance action towards enforcement and crack down on irresponsible behaviour.

Some aspects of the Act have worked well.

Bringing together six previous licensing regimes into a single integrated scheme has resulted in a considerable reduction in red tape—estimated at £99 million per annum—with benefits not just for business, but for the third sector and non-profit making clubs too.

The Act has also delivered new powers and flexibilities enabling local authorities and police to work in partnership to significantly reduce crime and disorder in some areas.

At the same time, millions of people have been able to able to enjoy the convenience of shopping at a time that suits them and socialising in restaurants, bars and cafes beyond 11 pm.

Furthermore, contrary to popular expectations:

The average closing time across all on-licensed premises has increased by only 21 minutes since the Act came into effect; the overall volume of incidents of crime and disorder has remained stable and not risen; and alcohol consumption, rather than increasing, has instead fallen over this period.

In total, fewer than 4 per cent. of premises—some 5,100—have licences permitting them to open for up to 24 hours a day—many of which are hotels, stores and supermarkets. Only some 470 pubs, bars and nightclubs have 24-hour licences, but there is no evidence that more than a handful operate on that basis. The British Beer and Pub Association informed a Select Committee recently that there are only two traditional pubs in the entire country that operate for 24 hours.

But beneath these headline facts the picture is much more mixed.

Whilst crimes involving violence may have reduced over the evening and night time period, the evidence also points to increases in offences, including violent crimes, reported between 3 am and 6 am This represents 4 per cent. of night-time offences.

Similarly, whilst there is no clear picture of whether alcohol-related demands on A&E services and alcohol-related admissions have risen, some hospitals have seen a fall in demand, others have reported an increase.

It is also clear that the overall reduction in alcohol-related disorder we wanted to see across the country has not materialised consistently in all areas.

The Government remain determined to address these issues, and the report published today has helped us identify a number of ways we can go further to protect the public, both in terms of using all the flexibilities in the Act to crack down on irresponsible behaviour, including more caution and conditions when issuing licences and the withdrawal of licences in certain areas, but also introducing new initiatives to tackle antisocial behaviour associated with alcohol consumption.

The announcements today contain measures to target those businesses that continue to sell alcohol irresponsibly and cause harm within our communities.

To specifically address the small but unacceptable proportion of violent crimes occurring in the early hours of the morning, we will undertake further comprehensive research into post-midnight drinking patterns and their impact on crime and order, and will not hesitate to take the necessary action through new legislation and enforcement measures to tackle this.

But we will take immediate action now.

First, we will utilise existing powers to identify problem premises. We will make it easier to review premises where local intelligence suggests there is a problem.

Secondly, we will encourage the imposition of tougher sanctions on those found to be breaching their licensing conditions. This includes the stipulation that there be far more instant closures of pubs and clubs in an area where there has been a disorder and indefinite closure by the courts for any breach of licence conditions. We will develop a toolkit for local authorities and police, building on my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary's recently published "Guide for Dealing with Alcohol-Related Problems".

Thirdly, we will change the offence of "persistently selling alcohol to a person under 18" from "three strikes" to "two strikes" in three months. This means that any seller who twice sells to under-age drinkers and is caught doing so will immediately lose their licence.

Fourthly, we will support the police and local authorities to identify problem hotspots by ranking geographical areas and concentrations of premises on the basis of the risks they present to crime and disorder, public nuisance and children. This will allow licensing authorities the ability to exercise more caution and conditions when issuing licences, and wholesale withdrawal of licences in these areas, and permit local authorities and police to target enforcement resources more effectively at problem hotspots.

Finally, the message must be clear to all: breach your licensing conditions and you face severe and costly restrictions on your business—with a new "yellow card and red card" alert system, A yellow card will put the problem premises on immediate probation together with tough and uncompromising sanctions, and when the circumstances are right, it will be a straight red card leading to withdrawal of the licence.

To tackle wider antisocial behaviour associated with alcohol consumption, my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary will bring forward legislation to:

Increase the maximum fine for anyone not obeying an instruction to stop drinking, or to give up their drink in a designated public place from £500 to £2,500;

Make it easier for the police to disperse antisocial drinkers—both adults and children—from any location. If necessary, we will change the law to make this happen;

Extend the use of acceptable behaviour contracts for young people caught drinking in public, to require them and their parents to attend a session with a trained worker; and

In addition, we will be extending the alcohol arrest referral pilots that my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary announced last month, so that under-18s may also benefit from a brief intervention from a trained worker. This will help deal with young people drinking in public who are already involved in criminal activities.

I, together with my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary, will convene a summit of police and local authorities to explore how we can take these proposals forward.

The report published today is not the end of the story. The measures announced today are only part of the Government's comprehensive strategy for combating the problems associated with alcohol.

A significant programme of work is underway over the next six months.

We are working with the industry on alcohol advertising, and welcome industry consideration to give much more prominence to clear information about the dangers of alcohol, and to actively support Government campaigns to promote sensible drinking. We will strongly encourage them to press on with trials to test their effectiveness. If we need to, we will consider more restrictions.

Later in the year, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families will publish the Government's action plan on young people and alcohol containing further proposals for reducing drinking by young people specifically.

Later in the spring, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport will also set out measures for dealing with the relatively small number of people who continue to think it is acceptable behaviour to drink and drive.

The Department of Health will publish the results of the independent study commissioned from the university of Sheffield to look at the evidence on the relation between alcohol price, promotion and harm and in response will bring forward necessary action. The real cost of alcohol has fallen to historically low levels, and there is already an emerging consensus that more needs to be done to tackle irresponsible promotions and deep discounting that can lead to antisocial behaviour. The Government will begin immediate work with the licensing authorities and retailers, including the development of new codes on responsible sales and promotions which might be considered as a condition of an alcohol licence.

In conclusion, we are prepared to take action wherever the evidence suggests that it is necessary to tackle the problems associated with alcohol.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Heathrow and Gatwick (VIP Facilities)

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (David Miliband): The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) and BAA have agreed new arrangements for the use of VIP suites at Heathrow and Gatwick airports.

With effect from 1 April, BAA will operate the VIP suites in terminals 1-5 at Heathrow airport on a commercial basis and for a trial period of 12 months. Similar commercial arrangements will also apply to the VIP suite at Gatwick airport. The FCO's operational role and significant financial subsidy towards the use of these suites will end on 31 March. This will move the provision of this service onto a commercial basis, which accurately reflects the full economic cost of the VIP suites.

Under the new arrangements, the FCO will continue to pay for state visits and those officially invited as guests of the British Government. All existing users remain eligible to use the VIP suites. Diplomatic missions in London, who account for 90 per cent. of the suites' use, will still be able to use the VIP suites for other high-level overseas visitors, making the arrangements and payment direct with BAA.

The FCO will continue its operational control of the royal suite at Heathrow and meet the costs for state visits and official guests of the British Government. All other users of the royal suite will be subject to full economic recovery charges, made payable direct to the FCO.

As a result of these changes, the majority of current users of the VIP suites will see an increase to existing fees. The charges are necessary in bringing to an end the longstanding and considerable public subsidy. The FCO and BAA are writing to all current users to explain how the changes will affect them.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Independent Monitoring Commission

The Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (Mr. Shaun Woodward): I have today published and laid before Parliament my third annual report on the operation of the agreement between the British and Irish Governments which established the Independent Monitoring Commission (IMC). This report covers the period 18 September 2005 to 17 September 2006.

In line with a commitment made by my predecessor, this report also contains the audited accounts of the IMC for the twelve-month period ending 31 March 2006.

I remain grateful to the Commissioners of the IMC for their valuable contributions over this period, and for their contribution to promoting the transition to a peaceful society and a stable and inclusive devolved Government in Northern Ireland.

TRANSPORT

Road Congestion

The Secretary of State for Transport (Ruth Kelly): In a statement to the House on 5 July 2005 the then Secretary of State for Transport announced that we were prepared to ensure that up to £200 million a year would be available from the transport innovation fund to support the development of local packages of measures that combine demand management, including road pricing, and better public transport. He also announced that we would make £18 million of pump-priming development funding available to support scheme development.

So far, 10 areas have benefited from this funding. This has enabled them to analyse their current and emerging congestion issues and consider how demand management could form part of the solution. While we never expected every one of these areas to come forward with formal proposals straight away, I have been greatly encouraged by the work to date and thank those areas who have contributed to the debate. Already proposals have been submitted by Greater Manchester and Cambridgeshire, which we are currently assessing, and I understand that further proposals will be coming forward in the coming year or two.

We want to give more areas the opportunity to benefit from such packages. Therefore I am extending the commitment to make available up to £200 million a year out to 2018-19, in line with our long-term funding profile for transport. To support the development of business cases we shall be inviting authorities to bid for further pump-priming development funding for 2008 and 2009. We shall also make available development funding to areas that have submitted business cases to contribute to continued development during the assessment process and, where appropriate, for preparatory costs incurred after programme entry. Guidance on bidding for this funding is being published today. Copies of the guidance are available from the Department for Transport (DfT) web site and in the Library of the House.

Meanwhile, my officials are working closely with officials from Greater Manchester and Cambridgeshire and we will announce decisions on the proposals as soon as we can. Decisions on congestion TIF business cases will be the responsibility of the Minister of State, Department for Transport, my right hon. Friend the Member for Doncaster, Central (Rosie Winterton).

I am also publishing today to the Library of the House, and on the DfT website, the results of a feasibility study which explores where advanced signalling and traffic management systems could best be used on congested parts of the motorway network, and the associated environmental, safety and enforcement considerations.

National Minimum Wage

The Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (Mr. John Hutton): In June 2007 the Government asked the Low Pay Commission to produce their next report on the national minimum wage by the end of February 2008. The Government are today publishing the Commission's 2008 report. I would like to thank all the commissioners for their hard work. I would also like to take this opportunity to publish the terms of reference which Government are setting the Commission for the coming year.

The Low Pay Commission's 2008 report

The main recommendations put forward by the Commission concern the rates of the minimum wage. The Commission has recommended the adult hourly rate of the minimum wage should be increased from £5.52 to £5.73 in October 2008. The Commission has recommended increasing the development rate, which covers workers aged 18 to 21 years old, from the present £4.60 to £4.77 in October 2008, and the 16 to 17-year-old rate from £3.40 to £3.53, again from October 2008. The Commission has also recommended the accommodation offset should rise from £4.30 per day to £4.46 from October 2008.

In addition, the Government accept the Commission's recommendation that we should review the existing guidance on sleepovers and update guidance on work experience placements in the detailed guide to the minimum wage; and the Commission's recommendation that Government evaluate whether the fair piece rates arrangement is meeting its objective.

The Government note the Commission's recommendation that Government should take steps to reverse the cuts to the sample of the annual survey of hours and earnings and prevent further erosion of the quality of the key data provided by the Office for National Statistics.

The Government reject the recommendation that we should move 21-year-old workers onto the adult rate.

Government's Response to Individual Recommendations in the Low Pay Commission's 2008 Report

National Minimum Wage Rates

We recommend that the adult rate of the minimum wage should be increased from £5.52 to £5.73 in October 2008.

We recommend that the youth development rate should increase from £4.45 to £4.77 and the 16 to 17-year-old rate should increase from £3.30 to £3.53 in October 2008.

Accept.

We recommend again that 21-year-olds should be entitled to the adult rate of the national minimum wage. Should the Government maintain its opposition to this proposal, we would welcome an indication of the exact nature of its opposition and a specification of what would need to change for the Government to adopt a positive approach to this recommendation.

Reject. The Government believe that the "bite" of the minimum wage—the minimum wage as a per cent. of median wages—is a better guide than the employment level in determining the likelihood of any adverse impact from this policy change. While only around 10 per cent. of 21-year-olds are paid below the adult national minimum wage, the "bite" is very high for 21-year-olds and would increase to almost 89 per cent. if 21-year-olds were moved to the adult rate, compared to 77 per cent. and 79 per cent. for 20 and 22-year-olds respectively. This raises the concerns that the higher bite would increase the risk of:

employers substituting 21-year-olds for more experienced or cheaper younger workers and reducing employment rates; scarring effects from being out of the labour market when young, given the impact will be greatest on the most vulnerable 21-year-olds—these effects can have life-long consequences in terms of higher probability of worklessness and lower earnings power; and reducing investment in education and training by making work more attractive to those 20 per cent. of 21-year-olds with level 2 qualifications or below who are currently engaged in some sort of education or training.

The Data

We recommend that the Government take steps to reverse the cuts to the sample of the annual survey of hours and earnings and prevent further erosion of the quality of the key data provided by the Office for National Statistics.

Note: We recognise the value of good quality data. The ONS will be replaced by the independent UK Statistics Authority (UKSA) from 1 April 2008. We will meet with UKSA and other interested parties to discuss this matter.

Accommodation Offset

We recommend that the value of the accommodation offset should rise from £4.30 per day to £4.46 per day from October 2008.

Accept.

Guidance

We recommend that the Government reviews the existing official guidance on sleepovers as soon as practicable and updates the material concerning work experience placements in the official guide to the minimum wage.

Accept.

Fair Piece Rates

We recommend that the Government takes stock and evaluates whether the fair piece rates arrangement is meeting its objectives.

Accept.

The Low Pay Commission Terms of Reference for 2008-09

The Low Pay Commission is asked to:

Monitor, evaluate and review the national minimum wage and its impact, with particular reference to the effect on pay, employment and competitiveness in the low paying sectors and small firms; the effect on different groups of workers, including different age groups, ethnic minorities, women, people with disabilities, migrant workers; and the effect on pay structures.

Review the levels of each of the different minimum wage rates and make recommendations for October 2009. The Commission is also asked to make provisional rate recommendations as appropriate for October 2010.

Review the current apprentice exemptions and advise whether they are still appropriate. The Commission is asked to bear in mind the Government's ambition to increase the number of apprentices to 500,000 and the need to ensure that sufficient employed places are available when the education participation age is raised in 2013.

Report to the Prime Minister and Secretary of State for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform by the end of February 2009.

Copies of this statement, the report from the Low Pay Commission and the Government's individual response to the Commission's recommendations have been placed in the Libraries of the House.

EU Energy Council (28 February 2008)

The Minister for Energy (Malcolm Wicks): Due to conflicting parliamentary business, my noble Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Business and Competitiveness Baroness Vadera represented the UK at the Energy Council in Brussels on 28 February in place of my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform.

The Council was dominated by discussions of the internal market legislative package, in particular of energy unbundling. The Council also had a policy debate on the 2020 climate and energy legislative package and agreed conclusions on the strategic energy technology (SET) plan.

On the SET plan, Ministers agreed conclusions on the Commission communication on the long-term perspective for the development of low carbon energy technologies.

Following a Commission presentation on the climate change and energy 2020 package, Ministers' responses highlighted the following concerns:

Renewables targets

All member states supported these targets, although I and others noted their ambition. Several member states noted the need for flexibility to enable cost-effective delivery of the overall GHG target. Many emphasised energy efficiency. Detailed points were made by individual member states against rounding the targets; in favour of a 1990 base year, taking better account of efforts already made; and the need for a better balance between energy and environmental interests in large (hydro) projects.

Guarantee of Origin (GO) certificates

Most countries endorsed the need to allow cross-border trading of renewables in the EU, noting that considerable work would be needed to refine the practical arrangements. Smaller member states commented that GOs would be essential to meet their targets. I encouraged wider application of trading to cover non-EU countries. A number of member states expressed concern about the impact on their national renewables support schemes. The Commission said that they had tried to provide flexibility for those member states that wanted it, while allowing national schemes to continue.

Many member states referred to the letter signed by some member states advocating ED action to address the prospect of carbon leakage. They emphasised the global nature of the issue—including the risks of industry relocating outside the EU, EU competitiveness and price inflation. Some argued for a phased approach to tackling the problem.

Carbon capture and storage

Commissioner Piebalgs referred to the significance of CCS and mentioned the UK as a front-runner. He noted the Commission's openness to considering the possibility of member states providing finance under the revised environmental state aid guidelines.

The presidency concluded that most delegations welcomed the 2020 package and its ambitious nature and that political agreement of the package was possible by the end of the year. The presidency would take account of member states' comments in the next draft of the spring Council conclusions.

On the internal market legislative package, substantive discussion of unbundling was taken over lunch in closed session after introductions by the presidency and the Commission, during which the Commission noted the five principles that any alternative option would have to meet. The Commission emphasised that ownership unbundling was the most efficient option: any alternative would have to achieve equivalent effect.

In the formal session, the presidency proposed a simple procedural conclusion stating that the Commission's proposal, supplemented by all other contributions, would be the basis for continued discussion, with the aim of agreement in June. All member states accepted this. This was a positive outcome for the UK.

Under Any Other Business, the Commission reported on developments related to security of supply. A report on the energy security correspondents' network would be submitted to the June Council and energy security would feature heavily in the next strategic energy review, to be debated at the December Council. Ways to enhance solidarity, promote market access and infrastructure projects, and improve resilience against energy shocks would be addressed. One member state intervened to stress the importance of this issue in view of its specific circumstances: they would make proposals for the conclusions of the spring European Council.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Unlocking the Talent of our Communities

The Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (Hazel Blears): I am publishing a document entitled "Unlocking the Talent of our Communities" which includes our proposal to publish a White Paper. A copy of this document is available in the Library of the House. We will be developing a range of proposals over the coming months, and plan to publish a White Paper on putting communities in control of their local services and environment in England in summer 2008.

This White Paper will follow on from the achievements resulting from the 2006 local government White Paper "Strong and Prosperous Communities", copies of which are available in the Library of the House. It is anchored in the Government's conviction that our success as a nation in the twenty-first century is contingent on our capacity to unlock the talents of every citizen, community and region, so that the success of each of us contributes to the prosperity of all of us.

The White Paper will develop practical ways for local people to exercise power, influence and control over the services and agencies which have the most impact on their lives and neighbourhoods. People demand a greater say on the decisions which affect their lives, and an ever greater number are willing to serve their communities, given the right structures, support and encouragement. Our White Paper will unlock the talents, energy and innovation latent in local communities by creating new platforms, systems of redress and accountability, and mechanisms for making local change.

It will have four pillars:

encouraging more citizens to become active, renewing civil society, and building stronger local democracy using the power of citizens and consumers to improve local public services strengthening local accountability of local services and agencies sustainable regeneration of deprived neighbourhoods by engaging local people, supporting people into work, encouraging more enterprises and boosting the social enterprise and mutual sector.

We will want a wide range of people to contribute to the thinking that goes into the White Paper, including practitioners and community activists, local government, trade unions, and people in the public services.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Sale of the Tote

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (Mr. Gerry Sutcliffe): The Government took powers in the Horserace Betting and Olympic Lottery Act 2004 to enable them to sell the Horserace Totalisator Board ("The Tote") as part of their wider policy aim of removing themselves from detailed involvement in the affairs of the racing industry. Since then they have been in exclusive negotiation to sell the Tote to racing, in line with their manifesto commitments of 2001 and 2005. The Government's initial intention was to sell the Tote to a racing trust in 2005 at a fair price until it became clear that a sale on that basis risked being denied approval under European state aid and competition rules, because it would have been below open market value.

The Government subsequently appointed independent advisers to assess market value and sought unsuccessfully to achieve a sale on that basis to racing in 2006. Finally the Government, responding to representations from racing and the Tote itself, sought during the course of 2007 to achieve a sale to racing interests and the staff and management of the Tote. The Government received an offer for the Tote in January 2007 but the final offer subsequently received in September 2007 did not meet the independent assessment of the Tote's market value undertaken for the Government and which was necessary for a sale to proceed lawfully under EU state aid rules. The Government have therefore today, with great regret, declined the offer and, having exhausted all the practicable sale options, have decided to draw to a close the period of exclusive negotiation with racing.

The Government now intend to prepare for an open market sale, and will appoint advisers shortly to advise them on strategic options. The overriding criterion for the Tote's privatisation will be to maximise value for the taxpayer. Advisers will work closely with the board of the Tote. Meanwhile the Government stand fully behind their commitment during the passage of the Horserace Betting and Olympic Lottery Act 2004 to make available to racing half the net proceeds of any open market sale in the event that a sale to racing itself did not prove possible. We will now be considering urgently how best to give effect to that undertaking in ways which meet the needs of racing, do not add unnecessary bureaucracy and are consistent with European state aid and competition regulations.

The Government are also taking steps to appoint a chairman to oversee the process of preparing the Tote for sale, to work closely with the Government and their appointed advisers in assessing strategic options and in executing the sale process, and to manage the implications of the sale particularly as they affect the Tote's staff. The Government would like to place on record their gratitude to Ian Good, as the senior non-executive on the Tote's board, for agreeing to act as interim chairman of the Tote until that appointment is made.

Pending the appointment of sale advisers the Government are happy to receive any initial expressions of interest to acquire the Tote's businesses. Any such expressions of interest will then he evaluated by the Government's advisers as part of their wider strategic view of sale options.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Temporary 50:50 Police Recruitment Provisions

The Minister of State, Northern Ireland Office (Paul Goggins): During consideration of the Police (Northern Ireland) Act 2000 (Renewal of Temporary Provisions) Order 2007 the Government undertook to return to the House on an annual basis and report on progress towards our target of 30 per cent. Catholic composition within regular officers in the Police Service of Northern Ireland.

Since the introduction of the temporary provisions in 2001 tremendous progress has been made towards a more representative police service. The Catholic composition of police officers has increased from 8.3 per cent. at the time of the Patten report to 23.71 per cent. as of mid-February 2008. The number of Catholic applications to the PSNI has also been encouraging, with 44.4 per cent. of applicants in the last campaign being from the Catholic community.

In the first 13 competitions over 80,000 applications have been received from across the whole community. This figure reflects the fact that there is a new generation who are ready to commit to a career in PSNI and emphasises that confidence in our new policing structures is rising.

Female composition within PSNI has increased from 12 per cent. in 2001 to 22.1 per cent. and there are currently 28 officers from an ethnic minority background including Pakistani, Black Caribbean, Chinese and Indian. The PSNI ethnic minority background workforce composition is currently 0.43 per cent., broadly equating to the overall level (0.48 per cent.) of the working age ethnic minority population in Northern Ireland.

Catholic representation among civilian staff also continues to rise. The percentage of Catholic police support staff has increased from 12 per cent. at the time of the Patten report to 17.32 per cent. on 1 February 2008 with the composition among direct recruits now at 22.36 per cent. There are a number of initiatives ongoing that will continue to improve this over time.

The Government remain committed to addressing the religious imbalance within the police service and the St. Andrews agreement makes it clear that the temporary 50:50 recruitment arrangements to the PSNI will lapse when the Government's target of 30 per cent. Catholic officers has been achieved. We are on course to reach this target by 2010-11.

TREASURY

National Audit Office

The Exchequer Secretary to the Treasury (Angela Eagle): The Government welcome the fifteenth report of the Public Accounts Commission on the corporate governance of the National Audit Office that was published today (HC 402).

As public auditor, NAO must command the respect of both Parliament and the diverse public sector it audits. It must remain independent so that it can report to Parliament impartially.

These sensible reforms will place it at the forefront of good corporate governance in the unique position it plays in British public life. The Government agree that the reforms will bring the governance of the NAO into the twenty-first century, giving it the moral authority it needs for the important work it does.

In line with the Prime Minister's undertaking made in November 2007, the Government will now come forward with draft clauses to give effect to those parts of the Commission's conclusions which require legislation. These will then be put in the constitutional renewal Bill for introduction.

I should like to record the Government's appreciation of the Commission's work, and of John Tiner's valuable advice to them.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Home Information Packs

The Minister for Housing (Caroline Flint): As was announced on 27 February 2008 (Official Report, columns 77-78WS), I have now made a rating against the code for sustainable homes a required element of home information packs for all new homes. Regulations to be laid in the House today will amend the HIP regulations to bring mandatory code ratings into force from 1 May 2008.

The inclusion of information about the sustainability of new build properties adds to the information on environmental performance and energy efficiency already provided and will continue to enhance the value of the pack to all purchasers looking to buy a new home.

I will also be amending the regulations to extend the temporary provision, allowing the use of insurance cover where property searches data are unavailable, from 31 March to 31 December 2008.

This provision has played an important role in smoothing the introduction of HIPs. It has helped to ensure sufficient capacity in the searches market to cope with the surge in demand generated as a result of searches being required within HIPs at the front of the process. It has also helped to safeguard consumers in the event of missing data in their searches.

The Government are committed to open and fair competition in the delivery of property searches so that consumers benefit from good quality searches at competitive prices—we have already seen local authority search prices fall on average by £30. We have also published guidance for local authorities and personal searchers on access to search data, and we are consulting on future charging arrangements. Following this consultation, we will introduce new charging guidance which should fulfil the conditions for open access arrangements and the levelling of the playing field in the provision of searches. It will create the conditions for ending of the use of the insurance cover provision.

In extending the provision I expect private searchers to make every effort to obtain the necessary data, and only resort to insurance cover where access to required data is denied or data are otherwise unavailable. They should also plan ahead for the ending of the provision. From April, we will publish information on local authority access arrangements to help consumers know the areas that provide open access to searches data.

We are also publishing today the final report of the area trials—I shall be placing copies of the report in the Libraries of the House. This shows that most participants were satisfied with their HIP, and that buyers were beginning to act on energy ratings. The report also highlights that more buyers would have liked to have seen their HIP, but packs were not being shown by their agents in many cases. The Government have already taken action to raise awareness of the consumers' right to see their HIP and estate agents' responsibilities to make them readily available.

The implementation of HIPs has gone smoothly and they are making a difference. Our early monitoring and analysis continues to show that HIP delivery systems are working well, delivering the majority of HIPs within 14 days, and the average costs of a HIP has steadied between £300 and £350. Over 370,000 HIPs have now been prepared and over 440,000 energy performance certificates have been lodged.

Consumers are also beginning to benefit. First-time buyers of one and two-bedroom homes now get important information about their new home for free. With EPCs and the new rating against the code for sustainable homes, all home buyers will benefit from information about the costs of running their home and their environmental impact.

I am committed to realising the potential of HIPs in making consumers experience of the home buying and selling process faster, more transparent, less stressful and more sustainable. Over the coming months I will continue to engage widely with stakeholders in consolidating the implementation of HIPs.

Local Government

The Minister for Local Government (John Healey): On 18 December 2007 (Official Report, columns 104-105WS), when announcing the Secretary of State's decision to implement proposals for two unitary authorities in Cheshire, I explained that she also remained minded to implement the unitary proposal submitted by Bedford borough council, subject to there being a satisfactory proposal for the rest of Bedfordshire. I further explained that having previously invited the other councils in Bedfordshire to submit proposals for the remainder of the county area, and having received a joint proposal from Mid and South Bedfordshire district councils, the Secretary of State would be launching a consultation exercise on that proposal.

Having now considered all the information and representations available to her, including the material she received in response to the latest consultation, the Secretary of State considers that there is a reasonable likelihood that either the proposal for a single unitary council for the county or the proposals for two unitary authorities based on Bedford borough and central Bedfordshire (the area of Mid and South Bedfordshire district councils) would, if implemented, meet the outcomes specified by each of the criteria set out in the invitation of 26 October 2006.

In line with the process for selecting from alternative proposals set out in the consultation document "Means of Prioritising Proposals", issued in June 2007, the Secretary of State believes that, overall, the long-term outcomes around strategic leadership, neighbourhood empowerment and value for money and equity on public services, would be delivered to the greater extent by a two-unitary Bedfordshire. Accordingly, she intends to implement the proposals made by Bedford borough and jointly by Mid and South Bedfordshire district councils. I will today lay an order under section 7 of the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007 giving effect to that decision.

HEALTH

National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Dawn Primarolo): The Government have today laid before Parliament their response to the Health Select Committee's report on the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) (Cm 7331).

The Government have responded to the recommendations made by the Committee. The Committee's report makes a number of helpful recommendations relating to the way NICE operates in producing its guidance, how that guidance is implemented and how the Government can support NICE in its role. The Government welcome the Committee's support for and confidence in the work of NICE.

The Government's response has been placed in the Library and copies are available to hon. Members in the Vote Office.

Consultation on the Medical Profession (Miscellaneous Amendment) Order

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Mr. Ben Bradshaw): A consultation paper has been issued which asks for comments and views on a draft section 60 order which makes a number of changes to the Medical Act 1983 and to the General and Specialist Medical Practice (Education, Training and Qualifications) Order 2003. The changes proposed in the draft order would implement two of the reforms set out in the White Paper: "Trust Assurance and Safety—The Regulation of Health Professionals in the 21st Century". The draft order also provides an additional route to the specialist register for NHS consultants. All amendments relate to the functions of the General Medical Council (GMC).

The changes will take place under an order made under section 60 of the Health Act 1999. That section provides for the amendment of Acts of Parliament and secondary legislation related to the regulation of health care professions, by means of an Order in Council subject to affirmative resolution parliamentary procedures.

Matters relating to these amendments are reserved to the UK Parliament. The draft order will cover three reforms as follows:

Education Committee

The transfer of the statutory functions of oversight of medical education from the Education Committee of the GMC to the Council of the GMC with amendments to the Medical Act 1983 to give effect to that transfer.

Licence to Practise and Revalidation

The Medical Act 1983 (Amendment) Order 2002 put in part 3A of the Medical Act. However part 3A of the Medical Act has not yet been fully brought into force. Part 3A provides for the GMC to make regulations for the issue and withdrawal of licences to practise and for the revalidation of medical practitioners. This section 60 order would amend provisions relating to revalidation in the 1983 Medical Act to put in place a legislative framework that will support the commencement of revalidation, including the early piloting of the revalidation process. The provisions relating to licences to practise will then be commenced allowing the GMC to begin to issue such licences and enabling revalidation pilots to commence.

Specialist Register

Amendments to The General and Specialist Medical Practice (Education, Training and Qualifications) Order 2003 to allow the GMC to provide a mechanism to enable consultants who did not apply for inclusion in the specialist register at the time it was established to make a late application to the GMC. This will reinstate the powers the GMC previously had prior to September 2005.

This is an open consultation and we welcome all views and comments.

The document has been placed in the Library and copies are available to hon. Members from the Vote Office. It can also be seen at:

NHS Prescriptions and Appliances

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Dawn Primarolo): We will be laying regulations before Parliament to increase National Health Service charges in England from 1 April 2008. There will be an increase in the prescription charge of 25 pence from £6.85 to £7.10 for each quantity of a drug or appliance dispensed.

The cost of a prescription prepayment certificate (PPC) will rise to £27.85 for a 3 month certificate and to £102.50 for an annual certificate. PPCs offer savings for those needing more than three items in three months or 14 in one year.

Prescription charges are expected to raise some £435 million for the NHS in 2008-09. This figure excludes prescription charges collected by dispensing doctors, which is not collected centrally, but remains with primary care trusts.

Charges for elastic stockings and tights, wigs and fabric supports supplied through the hospitals will be increased similarly.

The increase is below the current level of inflation.

Details of the revised prescription and appliance increases are as follows:

Proposed Increases in Charges from April 2008

| Item | Current Charges | New Charge |
|---|---|---|
| Prescription | £6.85 | £7.10 |
| 12-month PPC | £98.70 | £102.50 |
| 3-month PPC | £26.85 | £27.85 |
| Surgical brassiere | £23.10 | £24.00 |
| Abdominal or spinal support | £34.95 | £36.30 |
| Stock modacrylic wig | £57.00 | £59.20 |
| Partial human hair wig | £150.75 | £156.60 |

GlaxoSmithKline (MHRA Investigation)

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Dawn Primarolo): The Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) is today announcing the outcome of its investigation into allegations that GlaxoSmithKline (GSK) withheld relevant information gathered in clinical trials on the use of Seroxat in children and adolescents. A report has been placed in the Library of the House and copies are available to hon. Members in the Vote Office.

The decision taken by Government prosecutors is that there is no realistic prospect of obtaining a conviction in this case, and that the case will therefore not proceed to prosecution.

The process of investigation has revealed weaknesses in EU legislation as it stood at the time, in terms of what safety information drugs companies were legally obliged to provide to the regulators. I have therefore asked that immediate steps are taken as follows:

to secure a strengthening of the law in this area; through changes to the EU Directive and, in the meantime, amending the law as it applies in the UK; to make it clear to all pharmaceutical companies that, notwithstanding the limitations that may exist in the law, they should disclose any information they have that would have a bearing on the protection of health. The MHRA is writing today both to GSK and to pharmaceutical industry bodies to stress this point. Copies of those letters have been placed in the Library of the House; and the MHRA will continue to monitor the risks and benefits of Seroxat and other Selective Serotonin Re-uptake Inhibitors (SSRIs) and provide advice to clinicians and patients. The outcome of this investigation does not affect existing advice on the safety of these medicines.

HOME DEPARTMENT

National Identity Scheme

The Secretary of State for the Home Department (Jacqui Smith): The House will wish to know that the Government is publishing today an updated "National Identity Scheme Delivery Plan 2008" and a document setting out our plans for introducing compulsory identity cards for foreign nationals. Copies of both documents have been placed in the Vote Office and the Libraries of both Houses.

JUSTICE

Cohabitation (Government Response to Law Commission Paper)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Justice (Bridget Prentice): Today we are announcing the Government's response to the Law Commission's paper on Cohabitation: The Financial Consequences of Relationship Breakdown.

The Law Commission published their very thorough and high quality report on 31 July 2007. It makes recommendations to Government on certain aspects of the law relating to cohabitants. It considers the financial consequences of cohabiting relationships ending either by separation or death. It follows two years of work by the Law Commission.

The report has been carefully considered and the Government have decided it wishes to seek research findings on the Family Law (Scotland) Act 2006, which came into effect last year. This Act has provisions which are similar in many respects to those which the Commission recommends.

The Scottish Executive intend to undertake research to discover the cost of such a scheme and its efficacy in resolving the issues faced by cohabitants when their relationships end.

The Government propose to await the outcome of this research and extrapolate from it the likely cost to this jurisdiction of bringing into effect the scheme proposed by the Law Commission and the likely benefits it will bring. For the time being, therefore, the Government will take no further action.

The decision has been reached because of the need for Government to obtain accurate estimates of the financial impact of any new legislation and the likelihood that we can obtain a view of financial impact by drawing on the Scottish experience of similar law reform.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Financial Assistance Scheme

The Minister for Pensions Reform (Mr. Mike O'Brien): On 17 December 2007 the Government announced a package of significant improvements to the financial assistance scheme (FAS). This statement is to inform the House of the significant progress being made in implementing those changes.

Consultation on Draft Regulations

We are today beginning consultation on a first set of draft regulations. These will increase the percentage covered by the FAS to 90 per cent. of each qualifying member's accrued pension and allow us to pay people from their normal retirement age, subject to a lower limit of age 60. This is the first key stage in aligning the calculation of FAS assistance to the calculation of compensation under the Pension Protection Fund.

The consultation will end on Maundy Thursday, 20 March. We have sought and obtained cross-party and key stakeholder agreement that a limited written consultation period is appropriate for these draft regulations. This will enable us to increase people's payments as soon as possible.

In addition we are consulting on proposed changes to the annuity factors used when we need to calculate the approximate annual rates of pension that could be secured by cash sums taken from their schemes by members, for instance as a lump sum. This is a technical area, but the revised factors we are proposing would result in an increase in FAS payments to individuals whose FAS payments are calculated by reference to these annuity factors.

The consultation documents are available on the Department's website at:

www.dwp.gov.uk/publications/dwp/2008/FinancialAssitanceScheme(MiscellaneousAmendments)Regulations2008.pdf; and www.dwp.gov.uk/publications/dwp/2008/revision-of-annuity-factors-in-FAS.pdf; or alternatively via the FAS website at: http://www.dwp.gov.uk/fas.

We will be issuing a second set of draft regulations later this month for a longer period of consultation. These will include provisions for early payment for those in ill health, the extension of the FAS to members of schemes wound up underfunded with a solvent employer, requirements on trustees to provide relevant data, and removal of the option to apply for reinstatement into the state additional pension for those eligible for FAS.

Reinstatement to the State Pension System

At present members of a qualifying FAS scheme may choose to use their remaining funds in their scheme to pay for reinstatement into the state additional pension (known as "Deemed Buy-Back"). Where this occurs the FAS calculates a notional pension to use as a base for the FAS payments.

The Young review made clear that the take up of "Deemed Buy-Back" has been low and its interaction with the FAS is potentially anomalous, and that removal of the ability to buy back into the state scheme could simplify the wind-up process.

We propose to remove the ability for FAS qualifying members to buy back into the state scheme by "Deemed Buy-Back". We will be seeking to make this change as part of the second set of FAS regulations that will come into force in July, subject to passage through Parliament.

Some trustees will already have received information on the costs of buying back (known as "Technical Amounts") from HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC). HMRC will continue to process any applications subsequently received in respect of members for whom that information has been supplied. However, from today, HMRC will suspend action on requests for "Technical Amounts" pending parliamentary consideration of the proposed regulations.

Trustee Guidance Note

Today we are also issuing the first in a series of updates to the trustees of schemes that qualify for FAS which will set out our expectations of them as we move to full implementation of the announced package of improvements to the FAS.

Compromise Agreement Schemes

Regulations made last December extended the FAS to schemes which wound up underfunded as a result of a compromise agreement made by the trustees to prevent the sponsoring employer's insolvency. Six schemes in this position have now qualified for the FAS and the FAS operational unit will be working with the trustees of those schemes to obtain the necessary data to ensure that payments can be made to their members as soon as possible. The schemes concerned are:

Dragon Cosmetics Pension Plan

Expamat International PLC Group Retirement & Life Assurance Scheme

Fredk H Burgess Ltd Pension & Life Assurance Scheme

J & D Wilkie Ltd Pension Scheme 1982

Lucas Yuasa Pension Scheme

Norman Butcher and Jones Holdings Ltd Retirement and Death Benefits Plan

The progress outlined above demonstrates the Government's commitment to the speedy implementation of the announced changes to the FAS.

Employment, Social Policy, Health and Consumer Affairs Council

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Mr. James Plaskitt): The Employment, Social Policy, Health and Consumer Affairs Council was held on 29 February 2008 in Brussels. I represented the UK. There were no health and consumer issues.

This was a straightforward Council with the main agenda item being Employment Ministers' input to the spring European Council. Ministers adopted key messages, the joint employment report 2007-08, the Council decision on guidelines for the employment policies of the member states, the recommendation on the 2008 update of the broad economic guidelines, the 2008 joint report on social protection and social inclusion and the 2008 report on equality between women and men.

The policy debate which followed called for a greater social dimension to Lisbon and a greater focus on labour market reform, highlighting the need to do more on social cohesion, child poverty and skills. In my intervention I stressed the need to ensure that workers' skills matched the requirements of a changing labour market and supported a European skills review. I pointed out that more needed to be done to increase labour market participation, highlighting that a job remained the best route out of poverty but that further targeted actions were still needed for some groups. I suggested that local partnerships and adapting local services to individual needs could provide some of the answers.

The presidency confirmed that the Tripartite Social Summit would discuss the Lisbon strategy and its new three year cycle, as well as the impact on employment of the energy and climate change package. The presidency also reported that the social partners would inform the Commission of the progress in their negotiations on work-life balance.

The Council also adopted a non-controversial joint Employment Committee and Social Protection Committee opinion on the Commission's communication on the single market review and a resolution on the situation of disabled people in the European Union.

Under other business, the Council noted the annual Work Programmes of the Employment Committee and the Social Protection Committee for 2008, and the Commission gave a presentation on the implementation of the Mission for Flexicurity.

The discussion over lunch covered the future European social agenda, focusing on the Commission's mid-term review of the 2005-10 social agenda and beyond. The review is due to be published in June. The Government position was clear, that the social agenda provides the EU with an opportunity to reconnect with its citizens and that the focus of the review should be on issues that mattered to them. EU activity should add value and act as a catalyst for change providing analysis and evidence to inform reform programmes in member states. Themes for the future should include skills, improving mobility, tackling disadvantage and the social economy.

TREASURY

Lloyd's

The Exchequer Secretary to the Treasury (Angela Eagle): I am today publishing "Proposals for a Legislative Reform Order to amend Lloyd's Act 1982". Copies have been deposited in the Libraries of the House. This consultation document sets out proposals to modernise the governance arrangements of the Society of Lloyd's, to remove administrative burdens, and to get rid of outdated restrictions which impede the efficient functioning of the market. The proposals complement the market-related reforms that Lloyd's is already pursuing, which the Government support, and which are geared to maintaining the competitiveness of Lloyd's in the global marketplace.

The Government's reforms are being proposed under the Legislative and Regulatory Reform Act 2006 and satisfy the pre-conditions and constraints of that Act. Chapter two of the consultation document provides the legal analysis for this. As required under the Act, the Government are now consulting widely on the reforms.

Government Banking Contracts (Procurement)

The Exchequer Secretary to the Treasury (Angela Eagle): HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) has awarded contracts to Citibank N.A. and Royal Bank of Scotland Group PLC to provide clearing bank services to the Department (including the Office of HM Paymaster General), and National Savings and Investments (NS&I). These services are currently provided by the Bank of England ("the Bank"). The Bank announced in July 2004 that it would withdraw from the provision of retail banking and clearing services to its commercial customers including Government Departments, building societies and other corporate customers.

Award of the contracts follows a procurement exercise as announced in the Official Journal of the European Union in July 2005.

The contracts are for five years with the option to extend on an annual basis for a further two years. Migration to the new banking suppliers will start later this year and is scheduled for completion by the end of 2009.

HOME DEPARTMENT

General Affairs and External Relations Council

The Minister for Europe (Mr. Jim Murphy): The General Affairs and External Relations Council (GAERC) will be held on 10-11 March in Brussels. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs and I will represent the UK.

The agenda items are as follows:

GENERAL AFFAIRS

The European Council will focus on the key issues that concern EU citizens: economic stability, jobs, and growth and climate change. The Government want the EU to build on the ambitious climate change targets set by the spring European Council in 2007, and to agree an outline for further work on the security implications following the report by the High Representative.

The Government would also welcome progress on the 2007 spring European Council's commitment to develop 12 carbon capture and storage demonstration plants by 2015. On jobs and growth the Government expect progress on delivering the next stage of the Lisbon process. This should include improved ambitions on building skills and entrepreneurship, through measures such as a skills review and continued reduction of the regulatory burdens on small business in particular.

The Government will be looking for strong European Council conclusions on opening up network markets, particularly in energy and telecoms. On financial stability and sovereign wealth funds, the Government will support a broad international approach.

The June 2007 European Council invited the High Representative and the Commission to produce a report on the impact of climate change on international security issues. This will be discussed at the spring European Council. The Government very much welcome the report as an important first step in understanding the implications of climate change for European foreign and security policy interests. The Government want the European Council to build on and amplify the conclusions of the report and ensure they lead to more detailed work, including through the development of action plans to mainstream climate change into security planning and policy making.

EXTERNAL RELATIONS

WTO/PDA

Discussion is likely to focus on the substance of the agriculture and non-agricultural market access texts issued on 8 February and the structure through which the negotiations will be taken forward. The Government support the new texts as a basis for further progress and is encouraging partners to continue to engage in the process led by Pascal Lamy, the WTO Director-General, on the basis of these texts. The Government's objective at the Council will be to encourage continued support for the Doha round, given its importance for both poverty reduction and the global economy

Middle East Peace Process

Council discussion is expected to focus on the recent escalation of violence in Gaza and southern Israel, and highlight the urgent need for progress on the political process.

The Government is committed to supporting the process initiated at Annapolis, which has put the Israelis and Palestinians on a path to real negotiations in 2008, leading to a final settlement of two states living side by side in peace and security. The Government's position is that Israeli security is absolutely fundamental to a just solution, and Palestinian hardship can only be tackled through a political process that creates an economically and socially viable Palestinian state at peace with Israel.

The Council is also likely to discuss Lebanon's ongoing political crisis. The Government remain deeply concerned by the continued lack of a President in Lebanon and Syria's role in obstructing a deal. The Government believe it is important that the EU continues to support the efforts of the Arab League to broker a solution and provide continued political and practical support to the Government of Lebanon. The Government will support conclusions that underline both the EU's continued strong support for the Arab League's mediation efforts and the urgent need to resolve the crisis.

Zimbabwe

The Government expect the Council to agree conclusions underlining the EU's concern at the humanitarian, political and economic situation in Zimbabwe and drawing attention to reports on conditions on the ground prior to elections. The Government remain deeply concerned about conditions in Zimbabwe, especially in the run-up to the elections, and will continue to closely monitor the situation.

Georgia

The Government expect the focus of the discussion on Georgia to be on providing assistance to the Georgians ahead of their parliamentary elections—expected in May— to ensure that they are an improvement on the standard achieved during Georgia's presidential election in January. We are supportive of this aim, and of good EU support to Georgia across a range of issues, including on conflict resolution.

Iran

Following the adoption of a new UN Security Council resolution (1803) on Iran on 3 March, the Government will press for progress at EU level as soon as possible. This includes EU implementation of the resolution by way of a common position and the consideration of further EU measures as signalled in the conclusions of the December European Council. The Government fully support strengthening EU sanctions against Iran in response to its refusal to comply with its international obligations and will press partners to continue to take a firm stand on this issue.

Western Balkans

Foreign Ministers will discuss developments in the western Balkans since the 18 February GAERC, particularly those following Kosovo's declaration of independence on 17 February. There are likely to be conclusions on Bosnia and Herzegovina and on the Regional Co-operation Council. On Bosnia and Herzegovina, the Government strongly support the decision by the Peace Implementation Council on 26-27 February to extend the mandate of the High Representative until key objectives and conditions are met, including a positive assessment of the situation in Bosnia based on full compliance with the Dayton peace agreement.

The UK supports the Regional Co-operation Council, which succeeded the international community-led stability pact in February 2008, because it will enable the countries of south-eastern Europe to play a greater role in fostering peace, democracy, respect for human rights and economic prosperity within the region.

The Government's position on Kosovo's independence was set out in my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs' Written Ministerial Statement of 19 February.

Justice and Home Affairs Council

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Meg Hillier): The Justice and Home Affairs (JHA) Council was held in Brussels on 28 February 2008. My right hon. Friend the Home Secretary, the Solicitor-General for Scotland and I attended on behalf of the United Kingdom. The following issues were discussed at the Council:

The Council opened with a discussion on the proposed move from member state to community financing for Europol. Two of the pre-conditions had already been met (bold posts/rotations/instructions and the question of immunities). Only the issue of budget neutrality remained. A number of member states, including the UK, continued to press for further clarification on the financial implications and maintained their parliamentary scrutiny reservations pending such clarification. The presidency reminded member states that it was one of their priorities to reach agreement on this Council decision by April 2008.

There were still differences between member states on the main issues relating to the returns directive such as re-entry bans, access to judicial review and upper limits on detention. The presidency stated that it was still aiming for a first reading deal by June. The UK has not opted in to this directive.

The presidency stressed the need to conclude ratification on the EU-US agreements on extradition and mutual legal assistance and asked the member states who have not yet completed their domestic and bilateral procedures to do so as soon as possible. The Commission supported this.

During the discussion on the framework decision for combating terrorism, the presidency introduced its proposals for a recital on proportionality and additional text on freedom of expression. The Commission supported this proposal and stressed the need to complete this instrument as soon as possible. The UK welcomed these changes while maintaining the parliamentary scrutiny reserve. The presidency indicated that it wished to reach a general approach at the April Council.

The Commission confirmed that it would shortly adopt its proposal on ship-source pollution, dealing with criminal sanctions to address ship-source pollution.

Under the Mixed Committee, the second generation Schengen Information System (SIS II) was discussed. The presidency stated that the central SIS roll-out is likely to be delayed. A revised timetable for the delay would be available in April, but it is expected that the central system go-live date will be pushed back from December 2008 to September 2009. The presidency established a SIS II Friends of the Presidency group to ensure ministerial oversight and political commitment to the programme. The group comprises of some those member states who will be migrating from SIS I and SISone4all to SIS II. These include Germany, Portugal, France, Czech Republic, Sweden, Italy, the Netherlands, Austria, Finland, Norway and Poland. The Commission will submit a revised timetable to the June Council.

The revised rules of procedure allowing for the participation of Liechtenstein in the Schengen Acquis Mixed Committee were passed unanimously.

At the Interior Ministers' lunch there was a discussion on the US Memoranda of Understandings (MoU) on visa waiver. A moratorium was agreed on further member states signing MoUs until the EU-US troika meeting in March. The High Level Contact Group and SIS II were also mentioned.

At the lunch for Justice Ministers the Commission's proposal to set up a forum for discussion of EU justice policy and practice was considered. The Commission stressed that the forum would not substitute for the role of other institutions. Discussion focused on who would participate and the extent to which the forum would, in practice, influence the development of policy. There were also exchanges on parliamentary scrutiny reserves maintained by some countries; these were blocking formal agreement to various third pillar measures which would have to be renegotiated if they could not be adopted before the coming into force of the Lisbon treaty.

OBSERVATIONS

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Misuse of Fireworks (Essex)

The Petition of residents of Castle Point and others,

Declares that freely available fireworks present danger and nuisance to people, property and animals and we believe that the suffering fireworks cause and the cost to emergency services and individuals are totally avoidable; whilst we believe this, we do not wish to prevent the enjoyment of traditional festivals and therefore we urge the Government to amend the firework bill.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Government to restrict fireworks to licensed organised displays only at fixed times of the year, to include garden parties in the restricted category, to reduce the decibel limit to a maximum of 85db for all fireworks and to make it illegal to use or possess fireworks without a licence.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by Bob Spink, Official Report, 29 January 2008; Vol. 471, c. 286.] [P000115]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform:

Although a number of people have called for a ban on the use of fireworks by the public, the Government believes that to do so would be regarded by the population at large as an undue restriction on the freedom to enjoy traditional celebrations and family firework parties (weddings and birthdays etc), the great majority of which are conducted in a safe and sensible manner.

However recognising concerns over the misuse of fireworks and their effects on animals, the Government introduced in 2004 a comprehensive package of measures designed to promote safety and tackle anti-social or inconsiderate use of fireworks.

They include:

banning the possession of fireworks in public places by the under 18 age group; making retailers responsible for ensuring that they do not sell fireworks to under 18s; introducing a curfew on the use of fireworks;

placing a maximum limit of 120 decibels on the largest fireworks available to consumers; and developing a licensing system to encourage seasonal-only sales (thereby reducing the frequency of noise in the approach to the November season).

We believe these measures have substantially reduced the effects of misuse of fireworks, and represent a reasonable compromise between enjoyment and safety.

Post Office Closures (Brighton and Hove)

The Petition of the residents of the Southern Cross neighbourhood,

Declares that Trafalgar Road Post Office in Portslade must be kept open.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Government and the Post Office Ltd. to stop the proposed closure of this Post Office, and other local Post Offices which provide a unique service.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by Ms Celia Barlow, Official Report, 18 December 2007; Vol. 469, c. 9P.] [P000098]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform:

The Government fully recognises the important social and economic role of post offices, particularly in rural and deprived urban communities. That is why it is determined to maintain a national post office network allowing people to have reasonable access across the whole country and has put in place a new policy and financial framework to achieve this. The Government has been investing substantial sums in the post office network, totalling £2 billion since 1999. That has, for example, paid for a computer link-up for every post office as well as support for non-commercial branches since 2003.

In its response to the consultation on the Post Office network the Government announced in May 2007 confirmation of its decision to extend funding of up to £1.7 billion to 2011, including provision of £150 million Social Network Payment to support the post office network up to 2011. The Government strategy includes provision for 2,500 compensated closures and 500 new Outreach services.

The 500 new and innovative Outreach locations, operated in partnership with other local services such as in pubs, village halls, churches or in mobile post offices, will mitigate closures, primarily in smaller and more remote communities. Nevertheless, to ensure sustainability, there will need to be up to 2,500 compensated post office closures within the defined access criteria.

Post Office Limited (POL) is responsible for implementing the network change programme at a local level. It is developing a rolling programme of some 50 local consultations on detailed area plans, based on groups of Parliamentary constituencies. The first area plans went out to local consultation on 2 October and these plans will continue to be rolled out at regular intervals until July with the whole programme scheduled to take around 15 months to complete. The consultation period for Sussex finished on 24 December 2007 and Post Office Ltd announced its final decisions on 31 January. POL have published their decision to close the Trafalgar Street Post Office in an Area Plan Decision Booklet for Sussex which is available on their website at: www.postoffice.co.uk/networkchange.

POL develops its proposals with the participation of sub-postmasters, local authorities and the consumer watchdog, Postwatch, and takes into account the numeric access criteria set out by Government as well as local factors affecting ease of access, such as local geography: rivers, mountains etc when drawing up its implementation plans. POL is also required to consider the availability of public transport and alternative access to key post office services, local demographics and the impact on the local economy. Local consultations provide the opportunity to raise any specific concerns over particular proposals.

The Government does not have a role in proposals or decisions for individual post offices. No decisions on individual Post Offices are taken until after local consultations. Those decisions are made by POL in light of the responses to the consultation while subject to a four-stage appeals process involving Postwatch. The Review Process for closure decisions after public consultation process applies where Postwatch shows that, for an individual branch:

> POL has not given due consideration to material evidence received during the public consultation in coming to its decision or; > where evidence emerges from the consultation that the proposal for the branch does not meet the Government's policy requirements.

The aim of the further review process is for POL and Postwatch to reach an agreed way forward by bilateral review with 3 stages available at increasing levels of seniority. A recent addition to the review process provides that for very difficult cases which remain unresolved after stage 3, Allan Leighton, Chairman of Royal Mail Group will review the issues and reach a final decision.

Post Office Closures (Fareham)

The Petition of those affected by the closure of Arundel Drive Post Office,

Declares that the closure of Arundel Drive Post Office will cause considerable difficulty and hardship.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform to make representations to Post Office Ltd. so that the Arundel Drive Post Office remains open.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by Mr. Mark Hoban, Official Report, 22 November 2007; Vol. 467, c. 1424.] [P000066]

Post Office Closures (Merseyside)

The Petition of those affected by the closure of the Daleacre Post Office in Bootle,

Declares that the relevant area plan proposal gives no reasons or justification for the closure of this Post Office and merely refers to sets of statistics i.e. population, car ownership etc., which on their own are meaningless. The Post Office Ltd. should extend the consultation period to allow for a proper consultation to take into account all the social factors of the area including the pensioner population and affects on local businesses compared to other Post Offices in the area, which there is no reference in the area plan proposal.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform to make representations to the Post Office Ltd. to extend the consultation period and hold a meeting with a delegation of representatives from the community.

The consultation period for Merseyside, Wirral, and Cheshire with Wigan, Leigh and Makerfield finished on 17 December 2007 and Post Office Ltd announced final decisions on 22 January 2008. POL has decided to retain a total of 372 branches across the Merseyside, Wirral and Cheshire with Wigan, Leigh and Makerfield area, and to proceed with 60 of the closures, including Daleacre Post Office, and all six of the replacement Outreach Services in the Area Plan Proposal. POL has decided not to proceed with three proposed closures as a result of feedback received during the local public consultation. These branches Brook Street, Railway Road and The University will now remain open.

Local consultations provide the opportunity to raise any specific concerns over particular proposals.

We recognise that there have been calls to extend the period of local consultation beyond the six-week period. The period used is the same as that used during the urban reinvention programme several years ago. We also need to be mindful of calls to minimise further uncertainty for customers and sub-postmasters. The early stages of the local process will involve detailed plan development discussions with Postwatch and input from local authorities in advance of formal public consultation. When combined with the subsequent six weeks of public consultation, we believe that this will enable sufficiently robust consultations to take place at a local area level whilst maintaining the necessary momentum. We do not therefore see any basis for pressing for these arrangements to be changed.

Post Office Closures (Northamptonshire)

The Humble Petition of residents of Great Doddington and surrounding areas,

Sheweth

That we oppose the closure of our Post Office in Great Doddington. Such a closure would cause an immense amount of hardship, especially for elderly, disabled and other vulnerable groups. It would require the numerous customers of Great Doddington Post Office to travel more than two miles along a major and busy road to the nearest Post Office

Wherefore your Petitioners pray that your Honourable House urges the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform to halt the closure of Great Doddington Post Office.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.—[Presented by Mr. Peter Bone, Official Report, 21 January 2008; Vol. 470, c. 1326.] [P000111]

Local consultations provide the opportunity to raise any specific concerns over particular proposals.

The Government does not have a role in proposals or decisions for individual post offices. No decisions on individual Post Offices are taken until after local consultations. Those decisions are made by POL in light of the responses to the consultation while subject to a four-stage appeals process involving Postwatch. The Review Process for closure decisions after public consultation process applies where Postwatch shows that, for an individual branch:

> POL has not given due consideration to material evidence received during the public consultation in coming to its decision or; > where evidence emerges from the consultation that the proposal for the branch does not meet the Government's policy requirements.

The aim of the further review process is for POL and Postwatch to reach an agreed way forward by bilateral review with 3 stages available at increasing levels of seniority. A recent addition to the review process provides that for very difficult cases which remain unresolved after stage 3, Allan Leighton, Chairman of Royal Mail Group will review the issues and reach a final decision.

Post Office Closures (Nottinghamshire)

The Petition of the users of Woodland Grove Post Office,

Declares that the closure of Woodland Grove Post Office would be detrimental to the local community and the viability of other shops in the vicinity.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urge the Government as the major shareholder in Post Office Ltd., to review the programme of planned Post Office closures with a view to keeping the Woodland Grove Post Office open.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by Mr. John Heppell, Official Report, 22 November 2007; Vol. 467, c. 1423.] [P000064]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform:

The Government fully recognises the important social and economic role of post offices, particularly in rural and deprived urban communities. That is why it is determined to maintain a national post office network allowing people to have reasonable access across the whole country and has put in place a new policy and financial framework to achieve this. The Government has been investing substantial sums in the post office network, totalling £2 billion since 1999. That has, for example, paid for a computer link-up for every post office as well as support for non-commercial branches since 2003. It has decided to extend that support to 2011 with the provision of up to another £1.7 billion additional funding.

In its response to the consultation on the Post Office network the Government announced in May 2007 confirmation of its decision to extend funding of up to £1.7 billion to 2011, including provision of £150 million Social Network Payment to support the post office network up to 2011. The Government strategy includes provision for 2,500 compensated closures and 500 new Outreach services.

The 500 new and innovative Outreach locations, operated in partnership with other local services such as in pubs, village halls, churches or in mobile post offices, will mitigate closures, primarily in smaller and more remote communities. Nevertheless, to ensure sustainability, there will need to be up to 2,500 compensated post office closures within the defined access criteria.

Post Office Limited (POL) is responsible for implementing the network change programme at a local level. It is developing a rolling programme of some 50 local consultations on detailed area plans, based on groups of Parliamentary constituencies. The first area plans went out to local consultation on 2 October 2007 and these plans will continue to be rolled out at regular intervals until next July with the whole programme scheduled to take around 15 months to complete. The consultation period for East Midlands finished on 12 November 2007and POL announced final decisions on 11 December 2007. Having considered all representations and the criteria for the network change programme POL have confirmed that the Post Office at Woodland Grove is to close. POL have published their decision in an Area Plan Decision Booklet for East Midlands which will be available on their website at: www.postoffice.co.uk/networkchange.

POL develops its proposals with the participation of sub-postmasters, local authorities and the consumer watchdog, Postwatch, and takes into account the numeric access criteria set out by Government as well as local factors affecting ease of access, such as local geography: rivers, mountains etc when drawing up its implementation plans. POL is also required to consider the availability of public transport and alternative access to key post office services, local demographics and the impact on the local economy. Local consultations provide the opportunity to raise any specific concerns over particular proposals.

The Government does not have a role in proposals or decisions for individual post offices. No decisions on individual Post Offices are taken until after local consultations. Those decisions are made by POL in light of the responses to the consultation while subject to a four-stage appeals process involving Postwatch. ## CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Nurseries (Code of Practice)

The Petition of professionals in the nursery sector, concerned parents and members of the public,

Declares that nurseries, pre-schools and daycare providers fulfil a vital role in the development of pre-school children and that the voluntary, private and independent nurseries provide the overwhelming majority of nursery care. The Government's new code of practice fundamentally changes the rules regarding the provision of free nursery places for three and four year olds. We are concerned that the new code of practice could cause insecurity and significant financial harm in the nursery sector and force existing, trusted nurseries to change and potentially go out of business, creating uncertainty for parents and children.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urge the Government to halt the implementation of this code of practice and undertake an urgent assessment of its impact on nurseries.

And the Petitioners remain, etc. [P000124]

Observations from the Minister for Children, Young People and Families:

Her Majesty's Government notes the views expressed in the petition and has the following observations.

The key principle underpinning the delivery of the early education entitlement for three and four year olds is that it should be completely free at the point of delivery for every child regardless of their parent's circumstances. Charging parents for access to the free entitlement would present an unacceptable financial barrier for some families, which may restrict their choice of provider and in some cases deny children access to the free early education entitlement.

The requirement not to charge parents any fee for the minimum free early education entitlement is not new. It has been made clear in previous versions of the Code of Practice since 2003 and the 2006 Code of Practice simply sets it out again explicitly. The single substantive change to the delivery of the free early education entitlement, set out in the 2006 Code of Practice, was the extension of the minimum free entitlement from 33 to 38 weeks. Following consultation the Government recognised that not all providers would be able to extend their provision to 38 weeks and that, at the relevant local authority's discretion, they could be funded for the provision they actually delivered. In addition, all local authorities received additional funding to support the extension to the free entitlement. As a result the Government concluded there should not be an impact on early education providers.

The Government invests £3 billion each year to support the delivery of the free entitlement - the highest level ever invested by any Government. This sum is sufficient to deliver high-quality early learning and care for all eligible 3 and 4 year olds in a range of settings in accordance with the Foundation Stage curriculum and daycare standards. Funding is provided to local authorities who are responsible for setting the rate at which they fund providers for delivery of the entitlement.

Some 39,000 providers deliver the free entitlement to nursery education for 3 and 4 year olds of which just over half are in the private, voluntary and independent sector.

The Government's position on the free entitlement has not had an adverse effect on the market so far. There are now 1.28 million childcare places, more than double the number in 1997, and the market remains stable. Closure rates in the PVI sector are low compared to national small business closure rates.

The provisions in section 8 of the Childcare Act which make local authorities the provider of last resort in the childcare market are designed to safeguard the interests of private, voluntary and independent providers. Our intention is not to undermine the flourishing childcare market, but to ensure that all children, irrespective of their parents' income or family circumstances, can reap the very real benefits of high-quality nursery education.

Post Office Closures (Harrogate)

The Petition of residents, employees in and visitors to the Borough of Harrogate and Knaresborough and all those seriously concerned about the decision of the Post Office to review the future of Cold Bath Road Sub Post Office at 109 Cold Bath Road, Harrogate HG2 0NU,

Declares that the importance of this Sub Post Office to thousands of people living, working in and visiting Cold Bath Road and surrounding areas, including the more elderly and disabled; recalls this Office was retained when the Harlow Hill Sub Post Office was closed; and reminds Members of Parliament of the number of closures of Local Sub Post Offices in the Harrogate and Knaresborough area over recent years.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform to make clear to the Post Office the importance of this Office continuing as a Sub-Post Office and the benefit of withdrawing as soon as possible any proposals which put at risk any of the existing services provided from this Office.

Smoking Ban (Rossendale)

The Petition of customers of the Swan Hotel, Bacup, Rossendale,

Declares that the smoking ban is having an adverse effect on the social structure and enjoyment within their local pub, the Swan Hotel; they consider it a valuable asset within the local community.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Government to introduce amending legislation to provide for the landlord of the Swan Hotel placing a sign on his door depicting the pub as a 'smoking establishment' giving customers the right to choose whether to enter or not.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by Janet Anderson, Official Report, 31 January 2008; Vol. 471, c. 548.] [P000113]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Health:

So far it would appear that the smoke-free legislation has been highly successful and indeed has been welcomed by the vast majority of the population. It is protecting people, particularly bar staff, from the harm done by exposure to tobacco smoke. We know that it will save thousands of lives. It has been heralded by many as the most significant public health intervention for a generation.

A report has been published on the impact of the smoke-free legislation during the first months following implementation on 1 July 2007. This is available on the Smokefree England website at: www.smokefreeengland.co.uk

This report summarises details of the public opinion research, business research and compliance data since smoke-free law was introduced on 1 July 2007.

Data indicate there has been a smooth transition to smoke-free public places and workplaces in England, with high levels of support from the general public and businesses. Three quarters of adults expressed their support for the law and 79 per cent. believe the new law will have a positive effect on people's health.

Specific surveys of businesses indicate that 98 per cent. of businesses are complying with the new law, 87 per cent. thought implementation had gone well and 91 per cent. believe the law will be obeyed.

It may be that some pubs are not as profitable as they used to be. This has been the case in this country for some decades as people's idea of a good night out changes with the generations. The hospitality sector has changed to reflect these changing tastes.

We have seen no significant evidence to suggest that smoke-free legislation either in this country, or in others where similar legislation has been in place for some years, will create any long-term economic problems for pubs or for the hospitality trade in general.

Evidence in fact suggests that it is likely to be prevailing economic, structural and cultural issues, rather than the introduction of smoke-free legislation, which will be primary cause of any significant decline in the pub sector.

In preparing the smoke-free legislation, we considered the wider economic and social impact of taking action on second hand smoke. A Regulatory Impact Assessment (RIA) was published alongside the Health Bill in 2005. The RIA contains estimates of costs and benefits of legislation to end smoking in enclosed public places and workplaces. A copy is available on the Department of Health website at: www.dh.gov.uk.

We will continue to monitor the impact of the smoke-free legislation, with a full review due to be completed within three years of July 2007.

Support for Armed Forces

The Petition of Residents of Castle Point and others,

Declares that members of HM Armed Forces in Iraq and Afghanistan are fighting and dying, and that they lack basic equipment to do their job and there is insufficient appreciation and support from the Government for them and their families, particularly when they return from active service, and, in welcoming the provision of limited free postage, feel that the Government should go much further to give help and recognition.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Government to adopt more generous policies for serving and returning members of HM Armed Forces, and to give them priority in housing, in recognition of the contribution made by these brave men and women.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by Bob Spink, Official Report, 7 January 2008; Vol. 470, c. 128.] [P000102]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Defence:

I am heartened by the recognition by the residents of Castle Point for the commitment, bravery and professionalism of our armed forces in all their operations. They will further recognise the enormous contribution made by Service families to the effectiveness of those forces and the debt owed by the nation to veterans. I would like to add that we announced on 13 December, that the Government has commissioned an independent study into how the British public can better express its support and gratitude for the nation's armed forces.

On provision of equipment, the Ministry of Defence (MOD) takes all the measures possible to ensure that the equipment issued to the armed forces is both right for the job and right for them. Its quality and versatility is higher than it has ever been, and we continually work to improve its range and reliability. The Equipment Programme is designed to deliver the long-term core capabilities our forces need, complemented by the Urgent Operational Requirement (UOR) process which provides the speed and flexibility needed to adapt and respond to specific operational environments and emerging threats. Over £1.5 billion of Force Protection UORs have been approved for Afghanistan and Iraq since 2003 in response to the specific conditions and changing threat.

The welfare of personnel and their families is core to MOD business, and there are comprehensive measures in place to ensure that we give the best possible support to all concerned. The highest priority is placed on supporting the families of those who have given their lives or have been injured in the service of their country, and robust procedures ensure that all concerned receive the help they require to come to terms with injury, or life without loved ones. Turning to the wider MOD Deployment Welfare Package, this is an extensive and integrated programme of welfare provision that includes: unlimited free Forces Aerogramme letter post, Electronic Aerogrammes (where available) and a free postal packet service, welfare telephones including satellite telephones in forward locations (30 minutes free calls per person per week to anywhere in the world) are also available, as is free e-mail and Internet access. Back home, concessionary travel allowances are provided for families to enable them to keep in touch with immediate relatives. On return from an operational tour, a leave of 20 working days for a six-month deployment is provided, A tax-free "Operational Allowance" of £2,320 for a six-month deployment is also payable.

On housing, personnel and their families deserve decent accommodation and we are committed to providing this. There is no quick fix and a legacy of decades of under-funding along with the size of the living accommodation estate means that tackling all shortcomings will take time. We plan to spend over £8 billion on accommodation over the next 10 years. Separately, Service personnel are encouraged to prepare for their return to civilian life by purchasing their own homes, and MOD has initiatives to assist. In areas where housing is more costly—such as London, MOD has negotiated Key Worker status. MOD also provides a Joint Service Housing Advice Office which offers advice and information in sourcing accommodation. The Government is amending housing legislation to ensure that Service personnel leaving the Services are placed on an equal footing with civilians when applying for social housing. Currently, under housing legislation, former Service personnel cannot establish a local connection with the area in which they have worked or lived while serving with the Armed Forces for the purposes of establishing priority for social housing. However, the Housing and Regeneration Bill which is currently before Parliament will rectify this and ensure that Servicemen and women looking for social housing are treated fairly.

JUSTICE

Prisoner Rights

The Petition of James Ryan Strudwick,

Declares that he has exhausted all the systems of complaints available to him to satisfactoraly resolve this complaint.

The Petitioner therefore requests that the House of Commons urges the Ministry of Justice to amend "Prison Service Order 4400" to include nieces and nephews in accordance with Article 8 of the Human Rights Act as per the case won by: Boyle V UK 1994, 19 E.H.R.R 179 Op Comm. and end the deprivation of family building relationships.

And the Petitioner remains, etc.—[Official Report, 15 January 2008; Vol. 470, c. 16P.] [P000106]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Justice:

Section 11 of the Children Act 2004 requires the Prison Service to ensure that protective measures are in place to safeguard the welfare of children. As part of its commitment to this duty, Prison Service Order 4400 (Chapter 1) was replaced in March 2004 with protocols for staff to follow in assessing whether prisoners should be permitted to have contact with children, while taking into consideration the individual needs and best interests of the child.

Mr Strudwick has asked for the policy to be widened to include nieces and nephews, in order to reflect the judgment in the European Court of Human Rights in the case of Boyle v UK 1994.

The policy focuses on prisoner contact with children who are close family members. For these purposes "close family" includes sons and daughters, brothers and sisters, grandchildren, stepchildren, adopted children and foster children. However, there is also sufficient flexibility to recognise the importance of relationships with other children which fall outside this definition. This includes relationships between a prisoner and a child for whom they had caring responsibilities prior to imprisonment. Prisoners may apply for contact with any child while in prison, and their case will be assessed on its merits, taking account of any risks the prisoner may pose to the particular child. The determining factor will be a judgment as to whether contact—through visits, by letter or by telephone—would be in the interests of the child. Mr Strudwick's application for contact is currently being assessed.

Queen Mary's Hospital (Sidcup)

The Petition of residents of the London Borough of Bexley and others, to save our services at Queen Mary's Hospital, Sidcup,

Declares the Petitioners great concern at the proposal of NHS London to close the Accident & Emergency and Maternity departments at Queen Mary's Hospital, Sidcup and that they believe these measures to be financially driven by factors at other hospitals in the region rather than the clinical excellence and cost-effectiveness of the services provided at this much valued local hospital.

The Petitioners further declares that the Maternity department has gained the highest clinical assessment in the region and that neighbouring hospitals refer to Sidcup because of lack of capacity and patient choice.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Secretary of State for Health to use his powers to reverse the proposed reduction in much needed and highly valued hospital services in Bexley.

HM Valuation Office Agency (Newport)

The Petition of employees and supporters of Her Majesty's Valuation Office Agency in Newport,

Declares that Her Majesty's Valuation Office Agency in Newport provides vital services in addition to providing important employment opportunities in Newport. Staff who work in this office have provided loyal and dedicated service to VOA over many years with a significant number of staff having served for a considerable period of time. That the threatened relocation of services from VOA Newport and the closure of this office will have a negative impact on the local economy, an environmental impact from additional travel and a devastating effect on the lives of the staff who currently work there.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons calls upon Her Majesty's Government to fully consider the case for retaining the VOA Newport Office and the possibility of co-locating with HMRC Newport.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by Jessica Morden, Official Report, 5 February 2008; Vol. 471, c. 930 .] [P000118]

All presentations will be taken into account before final decisions are made at the end of this financial year on the future of Newport and the other Valuation Office Agency locations announced fo potential closure in November 2007. The feasibility of retaining a presence in Newport by relocating to a HMRC building with spare capacity is being explored as one of the options.

European Treaty Referendum

The Petition of residents of Kent,

Declares that the proposed draft European reform treaty is similar in all but insignificant detail to the withdrawn European Constitution; and notes that this fact has been confirmed in the 35th Report of Session 2006-07 of the House of Commons European Scrutiny Committee, and notes that the Committee has found that the timetable for the adoption of the reform treaty now proposed "having regard to the sitting terms of national Parliaments could not have been better designed to marginalise their role".

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons calls upon the Government of the United Kingdom to put the proposals, in coherent form, for consideration by the British electorate in a binding referendum before ratifying any further proposed Reform Treaty or constitution by another name.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by Mr. Roger Gale, Official Report, 21 January 2008; Vol. 470, c. 1324.] [P000107]

There is a great deal of confusion about the Lisbon treaty. First and foremost, it is not a constitution—the 27 EU member states have agreed that the constitutional concept has been abandoned. Instead, the Lisbon treaty follows the precedents of previous amending EU treaties such as Maastricht, Nice and Amsterdam. Furthermore, the UK has moved further away from the old constitution than anyone else because of the unique set of arrangements—or red lines—which have been secured by the UK to protect our sovereignty.

No Government, Conservative or Labour, has ever held a referendum on an amending treaty. Both the Single European Act and the Maastricht treaty were more significant than the Lisbon treaty, but no referendum was held then. The UK Parliament is the proper place for debate and decision on the Lisbon treaty. As with all treaties, Parliament must be satisfied that it is in the national interest, before it can be implemented in national law.

Our membership of the EU has brought real benefits in jobs, peace and security. Through it, we belong to the world's biggest trading bloc. Half the UK's trade is now within the EU, with an estimated 3.5 million British jobs linked to our membership. The Union allows member states to co-operate effectively in tackling issues like organised crime and climate change which do not stop at national borders.

But Europe could achieve more if it was not operating under outdated rules drawn up for a different world and an organisation with less than half the members it has now. The Lisbon treaty updates the framework for co-operation and aims to help the European Union work more effectively for the people of this country and other member states.

Planning and Development (Okehampton)

The Humble Petition of the people of Okehampton and its surrounding area,

Sheweth

That Okehampton is a market town that already suffers from significant traffic congestion and associated pollution, notes that there exists a high level of local demand for primary school places and local healthcare, and is concerned that the current infrastructure is overwhelmed.

Wherefore your Petitioners pray that your honourable House impresses upon the Government and the Department for Communities and Local Government the acute strain on Okehampton's schools, hospital, and roads, and the need for any further development, particularly of housing, to be supported by adequate provision of new infrastructure, so that its problems are resolved, not exacerbated.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.—[Presented by Mr. Geoffrey Cox, Official Report, 28 November 2007; Vol. 468, c. 399 .] [P000048]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government:

There is a long established system of Town & Country Planning in England. The 'planning system' is a statutory system based in legislation. The latest piece of legislation is the Planning & Compulsory Purchase Act 2004, which requires those who exercise statutory planning functions to do so with the objective of contributing to the achievement of sustainable development.

The legislative framework for the planning system is supplemented by a number of national Planning Policy Statements (PPS) that are produced by the Government. PPSs advise Local Planning Authorities, in the preparation of plans for their areas and other users of the planning system, of the Government's policies on different aspects of land use planning.

It is the responsibility of the Local Planning Authorities to implement the planning system in order to achieve the appropriate planning for their area. In doing so Local Planning Authorities are required to work proactively with their communities to establish how development and physical change in an area should be accommodated.

PPS 1 (Delivering Sustainable Development) and PPS 12 (Local Development Frameworks) in particular expect that housing and other development should be brought forward taking into account infrastructure provision and that the plan-led system should ensure that the links between infrastructure provision and development are properly investigated as proposals are drawn up. The Government expects that the planning system should be operated so as to coordinate new development with the infrastructure it demands.

Provisions in the Housing and Regeneration Bill, currently before the House of Commons, will establish a new Homes and Communities Agency. One of the main objects of this agency will be

"to support in other ways the creation, regeneration or development of communities in England, or their continued well-being, with a view to meeting the needs of people living in England."

The Homes and Communities Agency will work in partnership with local authorities and other local agencies to identify the needs of the local communities and this will include determining the need for infrastructure in order to support any housing or regeneration activity. To ensure that this happens the Housing and Regeneration Bill also contains provisions that will allow the agency to facilitate the provision of infrastructure or to provide infrastructure directly if it needs to.

It is the responsibility of West Devon Borough Council and Devon County Council, in the exercise of their planning functions to ensure that new development is co-ordinated with the necessary infrastructure that it requires. The development proposals in the Adopted West Devon Borough Local Plan Review for Okehampton include requirements for various infrastructure items, including a primary school, community facilities and transport. The emerging, but yet to be adopted, Core Strategy for West Devon, which will replace the strategic elements of the Local Plan, includes a planning policy requiring new development to be serviced by adequate infrastructure.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government to protect their democratic rights for the future of their village to be planned through the proper process of the East of England Plan and not dictated by a neighbouring Region, the South East; and further urges the Secretary of State to instruct the Government Office for the South East to remove any proposed housing numbers for Aspley Guise in any future revision of the South East Plan and to make arrangements for a future review of the East of England Plan to include consideration of any new housing development in Aspley Guise.

And the Petitioners remain, etc—[Presented by Mrs. Nadine Dorries, Official Report, 23 January 2008; Vol. 470, c. 1591 .] [P000108]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government:

The Secretary of State acknowledges the concerns of the petitioners regarding the recommendations of the Panel Report into the South East Plan in relation to the future expansion of Milton Keynes.

As the process of producing the South East Plan is bound by regulation and propriety guidance, which seeks to put all interested parties on an even footing, I am unable to discuss the merits of the Panel's report, or take any representations or comments on board at this stage. I am sure you will understand that these propriety matters apply in particular to any comments related to particular localities or development proposals.

The position in respect of the South East Plan is that Government is currently considering its response to the recommendations in the Panel Report. The next stage in the process is the publication, for public consultation, of the Government's own Proposed Changes to the draft strategy. This will provide an opportunity for interested parties to make further representations—we are aiming at publishing the Proposed Changes in the summer.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what his official engagements were in December 2007. [182880]

Des Browne: Throughout the period 1 to 31 December, I had various meetings in London and Scotland, including with ministerial colleagues and officials from the MOD and Scotland Office. On 1 December, I visited the Longannet power station in Alloa and participated in the Scottish Interfaith Week Come and Play the Diversity Game event in Edinburgh. On 3 December, I answered oral Defence questions in the House of Commons. On 4 December, I met with service families about the Board of Inquiry findings into the crash of the RAF Nimrod XV230 before attending the House to make a statement about the same. On 5 December, I gave oral evidence to the AFPRB and in the evening I attended a Sailor, Soldier, Airmen and Families Association carol service at the Guards' Chapel, Wellington barracks. On 6 December, I met representatives from the services charity 'Forward Edge Battle Area'. Between December 7 and December 10, I was overseas visiting service personnel in Afghanistan. ### Sunbeds

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what discussions he has had with the Scottish Executive on regulation of (a) sunbed salons and (b) unsupervised sunbed salons and the use of each by persons under 18 years of age. [185445]

Regulation of the safety of UV tanning equipment provided in sunbed salons is reserved to the UK Government. The Department of Health has recently launched its Cancer Reform Strategy, which notes that the Department will be reviewing the options for regulation of the industry through consultation with stakeholders.

WALES

Legislation

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many members of staff at the Wales Office work mainly on the processing of requests for legislative competence orders. [184995]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Dealing with how legislation at Westminster should apply to Wales is and always has been a core activity of the Wales Office.

Many of the office's 55 staff will work on it from time to time. We do not assess staff effort on requests for legislative competence orders separately from other legislation which the Wales Office handles, such as England and Wales legislation, Wales only Bills, and other methods of conferring measure making powers on the Assembly under the Government of Wales Act 2006.

The office has re-structured to deal with new work flowing from the 2006 Act. It is still recruiting, but will have 10 people in branches dedicated to legislative business, with as many again likely to spend a varying but significant proportion of their time on it, alongside other activities.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Departmental Advertising

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what percentage of the Commission's expenditure was on advertising in each of the last 10 years. [182997]

| | Percentage |
|---|---|
| 2003-04 | 0.2 |
| 2004-05 | 0.1 |
| 2005-06 | 0.1 |
| 2006-07 | 0.2 |

Department of Finance and Administration

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what organisational changes have occurred in the Department of Finance and Administration in the last 20 years in (a) function, (b) work load and (c) use by hon. Members and required contact with hon. Members. [183013]

Nick Harvey: The information required is as follows:

History

The Department of Finance and Administration was created in 1991 following a review of the House of Commons Service by Sir Robin Ibbs. The Ibbs report recommended that the department should develop and offer to the Commission, committees and departments a range of financial services, including financial planning, monitoring and review and financial appraisal of new proposals. The department continued to provide personnel services to departments of the House, which had previously been provided by the Administration Department, and the payment of Members' pay and expenses which had been provided by the Fees Office.

Since 1991, demand for finance and administration services has grown, e.g. as a result of the need for better financial management, resource accounting and budgeting, and a range of regulatory compliance requirements. Additional services provided by this department include data protection, freedom of information, HR advice to Members, occupational health, safety and welfare, corporate learning and diversity and procurement. In 1997 the department was reorganised on functional lines. An organisational chart can be found on the Department of Resources intranet site. Following the Tebbit report, the department was renamed Department of Resources. On 1 January 2008 the internal audit and risk management function was transferred to the Office of the Chief Executive.

The Department's work load has grown considerably as the demand for services has grown. For example, the number of Members' allowance claims has risen from 27,044 in 1996-97 to 51,132 in 2006-07. The introduction of the communications allowance in April 2007 will increase this further. Other increases in work load are: for the period 1993-94, 11,429 payments (invoices) were processed; this has risen to 25,356 in 2006-07. Recruitment exercises have risen from 107 in 1993-94 to 270 in 2006-07. Data changes to staff payroll have increased from 30,882 in 1996-97 to 39,714 in 2006-07. Further information relating to the work loads of the department can be found in the Members Estimate Annual Reports and the Commission's Annual Reports.

(c) Use by Members

As for use of services by hon. Members and contact with hon. Members, the department has developed several services to help Members in carrying out their duties. This includes the setting up the personnel advice service in October 2001 and the enquiry and advice team (EAT) in March 2005. EAT provides a 'one stop shop' for Members and their staff on all allowance and payment matters. In 2006-07 EAT received 25,439 calls and has received 24,048 so far in 2007-08. The department runs a Members' advice surgery, where MPs are able to drop in and discuss any issues related to their allowances and staff. This service is located in Portcullis House and is run on a monthly basis when the House is sitting. The department has improved financial information that MPs receive and this includes the provision of monthly budget statements detailing spend to date for the previous month.

The 2007 survey of Members' services reported that 80 per cent. of all respondents said they were either extremely or very satisfied with the Department's handling of Parliamentary allowances queries.

Diplomatic Protection Group

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what health and safety assessment has been made of the accommodation available for the Diplomatic Protection Group of the police in those parts of the Palace of Westminster for which the Commission has responsibility. [184443]

Nick Harvey: A health and safety assessment of the accommodation available for the Diplomatic Protection Group has been carried out by the House of Commons Estate Safety Adviser. It highlighted a number of safety and environmental issues and the House authorities and the Metropolitan Police Service are working together to find solutions.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Ethiopia: Overseas Aid

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much international aid and development funding was given to Ethiopia in 2006-07; and if he will make a statement. [186389]

Gillian Merron: The forum for international aid reporting is the Development Assistance Committee (DAC) which publishes Official Development Assistance (ODA) figures on a calendar year basis. The international aid figures for Ethiopia for 2006 are shown in the following table:

Official development assistance for 2006, Ethiopia

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether he met (a) representatives of the UN World Food Programme and (b) President of the World Bank, Robert Zoellick, at the World Economic Forum, Davos, to discuss global supplies of essential food commodities; and what the outcome of that meeting was. [183795]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: At the World Economic Forum in Davos, I met with Josette Sheeran, Executive Director of the World Food Programme (WFP). We discussed a range of issues.

I did not meet with Robert Zoellick, as he is due to be visiting London in the coming weeks and I will meet with him then.

Kosovo: Overseas Aid

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much aid his Department allocated to Kosovo in each of the last three years; how much will be granted in the next three years; and if he will make a statement. [180830]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Details of the UK's bilateral assistance to Kosovo and imputed multilateral assistance to Serbia and Montenegro (including Kosovo) in each of the last three years are laid out in the following tables. When figures are available the imputed multilateral assistance to Serbia and Montenegro will be reported separately for 2006; however, Kosovo will continue to be reported as part of Serbia until Kosovo's status is resolved.

|---|---|
| 2004-05 | [1]2,458 |
| 2005-06 | [1]2,919 |
| 2006-07 | [1]3,188 |

| 2005 | 21,865 |

DFID is currently developing detailed plans for allocating its budget over the three-year period 2008-09 to 2010-11 following the outcome of the comprehensive spending review announced in October. Individual country and regional allocations will not be finalised until March 2008.

Middle East: Overseas Aid

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department takes to ensure that aid to the Palestinian territories is not used to fund propaganda against the West and Israel. [185023]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: UK aid to the Occupied Palestinian Territories is subject to the highest level of scrutiny. All projects are run by internationally respected organisations and are independently audited. Rigorous checks are performed for each payment and individual recipients are checked against up to five different international terrorist lists.

The UK does not fund Palestinian Authority (PA) education textbooks, nor do we provide funding to the Ministry of Education. The UK supports public services through the Temporary International Mechanism (TIM) but the TIM does not contribute to the production of educational materials.

World Economic Forum

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what meetings he (a) attended and (b) chaired during the World Economic Forum, Davos, from 23 to 28 January 2008. [183796]

[185533]

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Administration of Justice: Females

Mrs. May: To ask the Minister for Women and Equalities what discussions she has had since 1 December 2007 with the hon. Member for Liverpool, Garston in her role as the Ministry of Justice's Ministerial Champion for Women and Criminal Justice. [182738]

Barbara Follett: I take a close interest in women and criminal justice matters and have had regular discussions with my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State at the Ministry of Justice (Maria Eagle). I am also a member of the ministerial sub-group on women convened by her as the Ministry of Justice's Ministerial Champion for Women and Criminal Justice, and which held its first meeting on 23 January 2008.

Prostitution: Advertising

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what steps the Government plan to take on the offering of sexual services through personal advertisements in regional and local newspapers. [185374]

Barbara Follett [holding answer 7 February 2008]: Last week we published Women Not for Sale, which is a snapshot of one day's worth of this type of advertisements, as part of work to halt the growing vice trade of women trafficked into the UK for the purposes of prostitution.

We have also had constructive meetings with representatives from the newspaper and advertising industries on this issue. The Newspaper Society has agreed to examine the guidance it issues to publishers to ensure it fully reflects concerns about human trafficking for sexual exploitation.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Aggregates: Construction

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what discussions her officials have had with the construction industry on reducing the use of aggregates in the last three years. [185229]

Mr. Iain Wright: Officials held extensive discussions with stakeholders, including the construction and minerals industries, in developing the current planning policy for minerals, set out in Minerals Policy Statement 1, published in November 2006. This policy promotes a hierarchical approach to minerals supply, aiming first to reduce as far as practicable the quantity of material used.

Buildings: Energy

Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she plans to publish (a) details of the training and qualifications required to accredit energy assessors and (b) the approved method for calculating energy consumption as part of implementing requirements for display energy certificates. are being developed and delivered by approved awarding bodies. In addition, a route to accredit prior experience and learning have being developed by the approved accreditation schemes and approved by CLG.

[185604]

Caroline Flint: At my speech to the Fabian Society's conference on 5 February, which can be read at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/speeches/corporate/fabiansocietyaddress

I called for a wide ranging debate about how best to tackle the challenge of worklessness in social housing, examining the full range of options. Development of future policy proposals will be informed by this debate.

Professor John Hills' report, 'Ends and Means: the future roles of social housing in England', found that over half of social tenants of working age are without work. This represents a huge waste of potential and a challenge we must address.

Social housing has, and will continue to have, a crucial role as a safety net for the most vulnerable. But it should not only be a safety net. It should also provide a platform for people to get on with their lives, and improve their skills and prospects.

Council Tax: Debt Collection

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many local authorities have a policy of using bailiff services in pursuit of council tax arrears. [186234]

[186446]

John Healey: The Council Tax (Administration and Enforcement) Regulations 1992 (SI 1992/613) provide local authorities with a range of powers to enforce payment of council tax from those who refuse to pay. The Department does not issue guidance to local authorities on the issuing of bankruptcy orders or hold information on the number of orders issued by local authorities.

Departmental Carbon Emissions

Mr. Kemp: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps she has taken to reduce her Department's carbon dioxide emissions in 2008-09. [181844]

Mr. Dhanda: Communities and Local Government has undertaken various measures to reduce its carbon emissions in 2008-09.

These include fitting variable speed drives, installing a new boiler, and upgrading a building environmental management system. Automated meters are also being installed at our HQ building to facilitate improved energy monitoring.

We are actively rationalising our estate to reduce our total footprint. And to assist this programme, we are piloting a flexible desking initiative which ensures higher utilisation of available workstations therefore reducing the overall office space required.

We are also currently assessing the feasibility of installing voltage power optimisation equipment and we continue to investigate options for on-site micro-renewable technologies.

Numerous smaller projects are scheduled in 2008-09 to further reduce our carbon emissions, and surveys are being conducted to identify opportunities. All of these activities and opportunities will be fed into our energy efficiency action plan to help monitor progress against our reduction targets.

Departmental Freedom of Information

Mr. Denis Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many Freedom of Information requests her Department received in each year since 2005; and how many of those requests were refused. [183799]

Mr. Dhanda: The Government have published two annual reports that contain statistical information about how many requests have been received by monitored bodies (including central Government Departments) and how many have been refused. These reports can be found at the following address:

http://www.dca.gov.uk/foi/reference/statisticsAndReports.htm

Data are currently being collected across monitored bodies in order to produce the 2007 annual report and monitoring report for the fourth quarter of the year. However, monitoring reports for the first three quarters of 2007 can be found at the following address:

Mr. Dhanda: Communities and Local Government was created on 5 May 2006. The information in the table goes back to May 2002, and includes data for CLG's predecessor Department, the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister (which was formed on 29 May 2002) and its Agencies. The data requested prior to this date are not held centrally and therefore cannot be provided.

The official data on each of the laptops were not encrypted, because none of the information was classified. However, each laptop was password protected.

This answer does not include Government Office for the Region who carry out functions on behalf of 10 Government Departments.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many of her Department's personal digital assistants were (a) lost and (b) stolen in each of the last five years; and what the value of those items was. [185280]

Mr. Dhanda: There have been no digital assistants reported as lost or stolen.

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many (a) press and (b) communications officers her Department employed in each of the last 10 years. [182524]

The Department employed 22 press officers in FY 2006-07. There are currently 20 press officers in post.

Mr. Dhanda: The information requested is available on the Department's website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/corporate/about/freedom-of-information/disclosure-log/disclosurelog2008/publicrelationsfirms/

This is the reply to a recent freedom of information request seeking information about the Department's dealings with public relations and public affairs firms, since 2002.

Departmental Vehicles

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many vehicles were (a) owned and (b) purchased by her Department and its predecessor in each of the last 10 years. [178920]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department was formed in 2002 and information prior to this date could be provided only at disproportionate cost. The Department does not manage a fleet of motor vehicles for use by staff.

However, the Department has procured and owns vehicles in connection with the Fire and Resilience Division and in particular the New Dimensions Programme, for use in a major accident or disaster by emergency services personnel.

The Vehicles are listed as follows:

| Vehicle | Quantity | Description |
|---|---|---|
| MPVs (Multi Purpose Vehicles) | 20 | Urban Search and Rescue vehicles used to move rubble etc. in the event of a building collapse. |
| IRU Vehicles (Incident Response Units) | 80 | Incident Response Unit (IRUs), vehicles, each carrying two mass decontamination structures including gas tight suits, decontamination showers, equipment to dis-robe and re-robe casualties. |
| DIM Vehicles (Detection, Identification and Monitoring) | 19 | Vans that are kitted out with detection and monitoring equipment such as radiation dosimeters and survey meters. |
| Prime Mover Vehicles | 238 | Lorries that carry either Urban Search and Rescue (USAR) modules, Mass Decontamination modules or High Volume Pumps to incidents. |

Of these vehicles; the department transferred seven Incident Response Units and 11 Prime Mover Vehicles to Wales as part of the Machinery of Government Changes. The Department also sold eight Prime Mover Vehicles to Northern Ireland, one to Stafford Fire and Rescue Service and seven to Scotland.

Disabled Facilities Grants: Finance

Dr. Ladyman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much was provided to each local authority in England as disabled facilities grant in each of the last three years; and what proportion was claimed by registered social landlords and their tenants in each case. [183757]

Mr. Iain Wright: A table setting out the funding of disabled facilities grant to local authorities over the last three years has been deposited in the Library of the House.

The Department does not hold records on the share of disabled facilities grant claimed by registered social landlords and their tenants.

Electric Cables: Leukaemia

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will meet representatives of the construction industry to discuss the possible relationship between incidence of childhood leukaemia and the building of houses close to high voltage power lines. [185501]

Empty Property

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what definition of an empty home is used in relation to (a) council tax, (b) Empty Dwelling Management Orders and (c) for her Department's statistical purposes. [183224]

John Healey: The definition of an empty dwelling for council tax purposes is an unoccupied dwelling which is substantially unfurnished.

The definition for Empty Dwelling Management Orders is as set out in s132-s134 of the Housing Act 2004.

For statistical purposes, vacancy is defined as for council tax purposes, and divided between long and short term (where short term is for up to six months).

Energy: Inspections

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many energy inspectors will be required to meet the requirement for Energy Performance Certificates on (a) commercial property, (b) private rented accommodation and (c) social housing. [176452]

Caroline Flint: The number of assessors needed will depend on market conditions and on the level of demand for voluntary certificates ahead of time.

Environment Protection: Finance

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much of the £2 million budget under the auspices of eco risk assessment funding has been allocated to (a) climate change mitigation, (b) flood risk management, (c) energy efficiency and (d) water efficiency; and if she will make a statement. [184834]

Caroline Flint: No funding has yet been allocated from that budget which was announced in the Thames Gateway Delivery Plan published last November covering 2008-09 to 2010-11. We are discussing with stakeholders the arrangements for allocating this funding.

Mr. Dhanda: Communities and Local Government promotes sustainability in the procurement of its goods and services. Our contract specifications are drafted to allow our suppliers to provide fair or ethically traded products in (a) staff catering facilities and (b) official functions and meetings.

(4) what the greatest number of calls to any one fire control room in a 24 hour period was in the most recent period for which figures are available. [176809]

Mr. Dhanda: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Authorities record incidents differently (for example, where there are multiple calls about the same incident). Given the exceptional levels of demand on the FRS, appliances will not necessarily have been mobilised to all these incidents, for example those which were assessed by authorities as not presenting a risk to life.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the estimated cost to her Department of (a) rental, (b) VAT, (c) business rates and (d) other associated costs of the regional control centres in the (i) South West, (ii) East Midlands and (iii) North East was from their establishment until the date of the first fire and rescue service control room cutover in each region. [183462]

Mr. Dhanda: The following table gives the total rental and associated costs from the point that rent becomes payable on the relevant regional control centre until expected cutover of the first FRS in that region. During this period, the buildings will be fitted out by the IT suppliers. They will also be used by the regional project teams.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on what date she expects the (a) North East, (b) East Midlands and (c) South West regional fire control centres to open with a full operational capability. [186133]

Mr. Dhanda: The regional control centres (RCCs) in the North East, East Midlands and the South West are expected to begin operations on 5 October 2009 for the first Fire and Rescue Services to 'cut over'.

There will be a phased cut-over to the RCCs, with all Fire and Rescue Services in those regions using RCCs by January 2011.

The entire network of nine regional control centres will be fully operational by September 2011.

Fire Services: Cost-effectiveness

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what tests will be applied to determine whether the Fire Control project represents value for money for fire and rescue authorities. [183334]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answer 31 January 2008]: The Department published version 1.0 of the business case in June 2007. This set out at a high level why Fire Control is an essential part of the national fire resilience programme and how it will help to improve public safety in England. Once steady—state operating conditions are achieved, the cost of providing control services under the new, regional networked arrangements is estimated to be some 28 per cent. (£23 million) lower per annum than current operating costs. These figures are informed by assumptions which we continue to review with our partners including the fire and rescue authorities. We will publish these in an updated business case in due course.

Fire Services: Expenditure

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the total allocation for the Fire and Resilience Programme was in the last year for which figures are available, broken down by fire and rescue services in England and Wales; and if she will make a statement. [186433]

Mr. Dhanda: The following table shows total grants paid to Fire and Rescue Authorities in 2007-08 for the FiReControl, Firelink and New Dimension projects in England, which together constitute the Fire and Resilience Programme. A further grant for New Dimension is expected before the end of 2007-08, but this is still being finalised. Communities and Local Government deals only with fire and rescue authorities in England.

Fire Services: ICT

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the (a) total cost and (b) cost of information technology provision in respect of the FiReControl Project has been since 27 October 2005; and if she will make a statement. [186135]

Mr. Dhanda: The total expenditure on the FiReControl project since October 2005 is £61 million. This figure includes new burdens awards and payments to suppliers.

Since contract award in 2007, accrued expenditure with the IT supplier is £14 million.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what mechanisms are in place to monitor and evaluate the efficacy of EADS Defence and Security Systems in the provision of networked control systems in respect of the Fire Control Project; and if she will make a statement. [186877]

Mr. Dhanda: The Fire Control information systems contract was placed with EADS Defence and Security Systems Limited in March 2007. Progress against contractual milestones is monitored formally on a monthly basis and overall progress is reviewed regularly between the Senior Responsible Owner and the Managing Director of EADS.

Fire Services: Manpower

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many and what proportion of staff in the fire and rescue service were firefighters in each year since 1997. [185856]

Mr. Dhanda: Available information, based on returns provided by each Fire and Rescue Service, is shown in the following table:

Fire Services: Pay

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what criteria are used to determine bonus payments to senior fire officers. [184571]

Mr. Dhanda: The payment of bonuses to senior fire officers is a matter for individual fire and rescue authorities.

Fire Services: Pensions

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects the working party on firefighters' pensions announced on 22 January to (a) meet and (b) report; and if she will make a statement. [185855]

Mr. Dhanda: The Government's intentions for firefighters' pensions involve the provision of viable, affordable and good quality final salary pensions which, at the same time, must remain fair to taxpayers.

To help achieve that an ill health review group of national stakeholders, including the fire and rescue authority employers and trade unions, professional firelighter bodies and specialist work force advisers, is being established to examine urgently the issues and evidence surrounding the operation of current ill health pension awards, and to inform Ministers' consideration of the best way forward. Arrangements have already been made to hold a first meeting of the group on 20 February with further meetings planned for 4 March and 2 April.

Fire: Death

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many deaths attributed to fire were notified to her Department and its predecessors by fire and rescue services in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available; and how many such deaths were subsequently not recorded in the fire statistics as a fire death, broken down by (i) brigade and (ii) region. [184788]

Mr. Dhanda: Every fire death reported to the Department is regarded as provisional until the cause of death can be verified against death certificates, following a coroner's inquest. This verification exercise generally has the effect of reducing the number of fire deaths for a given year, as deaths originally attributed to fire may have other causes, for example: a road traffic accident where the cause of death was the impact rather than the subsequent fire, or where a person suffers a heart attack whilst cooking leading to a fire, or where fire has been used to cover up a homicide perpetrated by other means. The verification exercise will also detect where a casualty originally recorded by the fire service as injured subsequently died, so can result in additional deaths being recorded.

The following tables show, for 1997 to 2005, provisional and finalised fire death figures for Government region and for each fire and rescue service. Only provisional figures are currently available for 2006.

First-time Buyers

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what discussions she has had with Ministerial colleagues on steps to assist first-time buyers to purchase homes. [183944]

Mr. Iain Wright: From time to time, including, in the context of the comprehensive spending review, ministerial colleagues discuss Government plans and review progress. This includes policy proposals for increasing the supply of affordable housing and further steps to assist first-time buyers on to the property ladder, including expanding the low cost home ownership programme, as set out in the Government's Housing Green Paper, published in July last year.

Floods

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people have not yet returned to their homes following flooding in summer 2007. [185614]

John Healey: Around 48,000 households were affected by the June and July floods. As of 17 January, around 8,750 of these households remained wholly or partially displaced from their homes. This figure is based on the best available data provided by local authorities as part of the data collection for the January Flood Recovery Grant scheme.

On 31 January I announced that nine councils with the largest number of households still displaced would receive a share of a further £1 million in Flood Recovery Grant to support the most vulnerable people in their communities affected by the floods. This brings the total paid out in Flood Recovery Grant to £18.4 million.

Floods: Finance

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much funding has been allocated to local authorities under the extended Bellwin formula to provide 100 per cent. of the eligible costs arising from the floods in summer 2007; and if she will make a statement. [185113]

John Healey: To date, the Department has paid £8.8 million under the Bellwin scheme in respect of the 2007 floods. Under the standard 85 per cent. grant rate which usually applies for Bellwin schemes, £7.5 million would have been paid. More payments are expected shortly.

Mr. Wilshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much funding for flood relief and recovery in addition to that delivered through the local government settlement she will make available to Surrey County Council in 2008-09. [185173]

John Healey: In the aftermath of last summer's exceptional and widespread floods we have made available up to £71.8 million to date to assist the affected regions and help those in greatest need.

The Department for Communities and Local Government has no plans in place at present to make any further funding available to Surrey county council for flood relief and recovery in 2008-09 in addition to that delivered through the local government settlement. If and when future emergencies occur the Government make available financial assistance to help local authorities deal with the aftermath.

Floods: Homelessness

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how many central homelessness advisers are working with local authorities affected by flooding in 2007; and if she will make a statement; [185483]

(2) how much further funding is planned to be made available to local authorities in (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09 in respect of assistance for those residents currently in temporary accommodation due to flooding; and if she will make a statement. [185484]

John Healey: There are currently nine homelessness specialist advisers working with all local housing authorities. They are available to respond to requests from councils for support with their work to tackle and prevent homelessness effectively, including homelessness that has arisen due to flooding.

To date, £18.4 million of Flood Recovery Grant has been released to local authorities hardest hit by the 2007 summer floods, of which £17.4 million was paid out in the June and July schemes, with funds being allocated to reflect the relative number of households affected. An additional £1 million was allocated in January 2008 to those local authorities with over 200 households still displaced as of 17 January 2008.

Local authorities were able to decide how to best to use the Flood Recovery Grant based on their own local circumstances and needs.

There are no current plans to make any more payments under the Flood Recovery Scheme to the authorities affected by the June and July 2007 floods.

As part of our work on tackling homelessness, local housing authorities will receive homelessness grant of almost £100 million over the years 2007-08 and 2008-09 to support their strategies for tackling and preventing homelessness. This includes support to households who are in temporary accommodation.

Gravel

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what proportion of (a) gravel and (b) mineral demand she estimates will be met from (i) land, (ii) marine and (iii) recycled sources in the next (A) five, (B) 10 and (C) 20 years; [185177]

(2) what proportion of mineral extraction in the UK was from (a) land, (b) marine and (c) recycled sources in each of the last three years; [185215]

(3) how many sites are being used for gravel extraction; how many sites have been used and have not been restored to their former condition in the last five years; and what the Government's policy is in respect of land that has not been restored; [185219]

(4) what forecasts of gravel demand have been made by her Department for the next (a) five, (b) 10 and (c) 20 years; [185221]

(5) what the gravel extraction targets set for each local authority are for the next (a) five, (b) 10 and (c) 20 years. [185223]

Mr. Iain Wright: My Department collects mineral extraction data for Great Britain. Of the minerals extracted, only sand and gravel are extracted from both the land and marine environments and these are shown in the following table for 2004-06.

Land-won and marine dredged aggregates extraction in Great Britain

Million tonnes

| | Land-won | Marine |
|---|---|---|
| 2004 | 200,737 | 12,996 |
| 2005 | 191,228 | 13,025 |
| 2006 | 193,163 | 13,974 |

Annual Minerals Raised Inquiry (PA 1007), 2004, 2005, 2006, ONS

Land-won and marine-dredged aggregate supply is augmented by supply of aggregates from the recycling of construction, demolition and excavation waste, as well as secondary materials, largely by-products of industrial processes. Total arisings in the last survey year, 2005, were estimated for Great Britain as 67.2 million tonnes.

The current national forecasts for aggregates demand in England were published in 2003 as "National and Regional Guidelines for Aggregates Provision in England, 2001-16". Guidelines are published at the national and regional level. They are not targets, nor are they set for individual local authorities. The current national guidelines are given as follows.

National and Regional Guidelines for Aggregates Provision in England 2001-16

|---|---|
| Land-won sand and gravel | 1,068 |
| Land-won crushed rock | 1,618 |
| Marine sand and gravel | 230 |
| Alternative materials | 919 |
| Net imports to England | 169 |
| Total forecast demand | 4,004 |

These guidelines are currently under review; a consultation will be published shortly and I will ensure the hon. Member receives a copy.

There are 699 active sand and gravel extraction sites in the UK (British Geological Survey, 2008). We do not collect data on the number of sites that have been restored to their former condition. However, planning permissions for mineral working should contain conditions and legal agreements to ensure appropriate restoration, which are enforced by the mineral planning authority. Policy for the restoration of mineral working sites in England is set out in Minerals Policy Statement 1 "Planning and Minerals".

Home Information Packs

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many home information packs were subsidised, in whole or in part, under the scheme to provide £0.5 million funding for energy performance certificates in home information packs ordered prior to 1 August; and what was the outturn expenditure of the scheme. [171530]

Caroline Flint: I refer the hon. Member to the replies given to the hon. Member for Beckenham (Mrs. Lait) on 30 October 2007, Official Report, column 1163W and 10 October 2007, Official Report, column 663W.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which organisations received subsidy for the production of energy performance certificates in home information packs ordered prior to 1 August. [171635]

Caroline Flint: The organisations were HIPs Direct, HIPSYNC, Prohip Ltd, Simply HIP and Richards Gray.

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of (a) energy performance certification assessors and (b) energy performance certificates for non-dwellings that will be required in the first six months after the introduction of the scheme. [175512]

Caroline Flint: The number of assessors needed will depend on market conditions and on the level of demand for voluntary certificates ahead of time.

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the oral answer of 15 January 2008, Official Report, columns 780-1 on home information packs, if she will place in the Library copies of case studies of house purchases held by her Department which indicate that the purchase has been materially influenced by the content of a home information pack. [180424]

Caroline Flint: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) on 21 January 2008, Official Report, column 1526W.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether any (a) home owners and (b) estate agents have been fined for marketing a property without a home information pack. [182601]

Caroline Flint: No.

Home Information Packs: Pilot Schemes

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which companies were commissioned to undertake (a) qualitative and (b) quantitative research for the home information pack dry run; and at what cost. [176160]

Caroline Flint: I refer the hon. Member to the answers given on 21 January 2008, Official Report, column 1526W and 28 January 2008, Official Report, column 117W.

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the contractual deadline is for Ipsos-MORI to provide her Department with its research into the home information pack trials; and when she plans to publish this research. [183246]

Caroline Flint: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 21 January 2008, Official Report, column 1526-27W, to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles).

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many home sellers took part in each home information pack area trial. [183259]

Caroline Flint: I refer the hon. Member to the home information packs update written ministerial statement made on 22 November 2007, Official Report, columns 140-42WS.

IPSOS-MORI is still in the process of finalising its conclusions and a copy of the research report will be placed in the Library of the House once the project has been finalised.

Home Information Packs: Surveying

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many accredited surveyors for home information packs there were in each district and unitary council area on 1 January 2008. [178194]

Caroline Flint: The most recently published numbers of accredited assessors, broken down by region, are available on the dedicated home information pack website:

http://www.homeinformationpacks.gov.uk/industry/163_Assessorinspectornums.html

Regular updates are provided on this site

Homelessness

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many homeless people there were in (a) England, (b) each English region, (c) Tees Valley district and (d) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency in each of the last 10 years; and how many of these were under 25 years old. [185502]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information about local authorities' actions under homelessness legislation is collected quarterly at local authority level, in respect of households rather than people. This information includes the number of households accepted by local authorities as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need, and therefore owed a main homelessness duty. The duty owed to an accepted household is to secure suitable accommodation. If a settled home is not immediately available, the authority may secure temporary accommodation until a settled home becomes available.

National and regional data on acceptances and temporary accommodation over the last 10 years are published in our quarterly statistical release on Statutory Homelessness, in tables 3 and 7. Key data (including acceptances and temporary accommodation) are shown at local authority level in Supplementary Tables accompanying the release. These are also published on our website and placed in the Library each quarter. The latest release was published on 10 December 2007 and contains data for the period up to July to September 2007.

http://www.communities.gov.uk/housing/housingresearch/housingstatistics/housingstatisticsby/homelessnessstatistics/publicationshomelessness/

Since 1998, information has also been collected on the number of people who sleep rough—that is, those who are literally roofless on a single night—and these are also published on our website, nationally and by local authority:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/housing/homelessness/publicationsabouthomelessness/roughsleepingstatistics/

A table summarising homelessness figures for each local authority for the past 10 years, including (a) the total number of households accepted as owed the main homelessness duty, (b) the total number of households in temporary accommodation and (c) the mid-year estimates of the number of rough sleepers, was placed in the Library of the House on 8 October 2007, as part of the answer given to the hon. Member for South-East Cambridgeshire (Mr. Paice).

The local authorities comprising the Tees valley District are Darlington, Hartlepool, Middlesbrough, Redcar and Cleveland, and Stockton-on-Tees. The constituency of Middlesbrough, South and East Cleveland falls within two local authorities: Middlesbrough, and Redcar and Cleveland.

Data on acceptances by age-band of applicant are available from the April-June 2006 quarter onwards, and are provided in the Statistical Release at the national level (table 10(b)). The first age-band is those applicants who are aged between 16 and 24 years old (all applicants must be 16 or over).

A table showing acceptances by age-band of applicant by local authority and region has been deposited in the Library of the House.

No such age breakdown is collected for households in temporary accommodation, or the rough sleeper estimates.

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many households were assisted with securing private rented accommodation by homelessness units in (a) England, (b) each English region and (c) each London local authority area in each year since 2003-04. [185974]

Caroline Flint: This information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Homes and Communities Agency

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the proposed powers of the Homes and Communities Agency to enter and survey land will include powers to enter (a) domestic and (b) business premises. [171647]

Caroline Flint: Yes, the powers of the Homes and Communities Agency will include power for a person authorised by the Agency to enter and survey land, including domestic and business premises. However, this power may only be exercised within the statutory framework: the power arises only in connection with a proposal by the Agency to acquire land or a claim for compensation in respect of an acquisition of land by the Agency. Land may only be entered in order to survey it or to estimate the value of the land.

This proposed power mirrors a power of the current Urban Regeneration Agency (part of English Partnerships) that is set out in the Leasehold Reform, Housing and Urban Development Act 1993.

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether she plans to require a net return to the public purse from the regulatory work of the Homes and Communities Agency; what discussions she has had with the Treasury on the matter; and if she will make a statement. [184474]

Caroline Flint: The Homes and Communities Agency will be an investment body and will have no regulatory role.

Under the Housing and Regeneration Bill, all of the regulator functions of the Housing Corporation will pass to Oftenant—the new social housing regulator. The Bill gives the regulator no powers to make payments to central Government (except as repayment of loans) and the Secretary of State no power to require it to do so. The Bill also requires the regulator, when setting fees to registered providers, to ensure that:

fee income matches expenditure on the performance of functions;

each fee is reasonable and proportionate to the costs to which it relates; and actual or potential registered providers can see the relationship between the amount of a fee and the costs to which it relates.

Housing Renewal Areas: Private Sector

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether she plans to review the effect of private investor activity within housing renewal areas in the next 12 months; and if she will make a statement. [185485]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department and individual pathfinders have been responsible for evaluating the impact of the Housing Market Renewal Program (HMR) in designated areas across the UK. The HMR partnerships regularly assess the key drivers of local housing markets and the prevailing market conditions as a fundamental part of establishing strong housing markets across pathfinder areas.

An independent review to improve the private rented sector was also recently commissioned in January by the then Housing and Planning Minister, my right hon. Friend the Member for Pontefract and Castleford. The review will look at how the increasing number of buy to let accommodation and student tenants has impacted on the private rented sector, the quality of homes and who the users of the sector are. It will also examine the impact of demographic and social change on the future demand and supply in the sector. The Government will consider the review's recommendations to see what else can be done to improve the sector for both landlords and tenants. We expect the review to be presented to Ministers by October 2008.

Housing: Energy

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the (a) planned expenditure is and (b) expenditure to date has been on providing free energy performance certificates; how many have been subsidised to date; and what the target is for the number to be subsidised. [176190]

Caroline Flint: I refer the hon. Member to the replies given to the hon. Member for Beckenham (Mrs. Lait) on 30 October 2007, Official Report, column 1163W and 10 October 2007, Official Report, column 663 W.

Housing: Low Incomes

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many tenants in social housing were evicted in each of the last 10 years. [185907]

Caroline Flint: We do not have the information on how many tenants were evicted over the last 10 years. However, as part of the Housing Strategy and Statistical Appendix returns, Communities and Local Government have asked local authority landlords in England to submit data on tenants in social housing who were evicted. This was commenced for the period 2005-06. These data were considered not to be of a reliable quality. We are currently assessing the quality of the data returns for 2006-07.

The Housing Corporation collects data on evictions. According to its Regulatory and Statistical Returns for the periods 2004-05, 2005-06 and 2006-07, the number of evictions from registered social landlord properties are as follows:

| | Number |
|---|---|
| 2004-05 | 13,370 |
| 2005-06 | 12,145 |
| 2006-07 | 11,384 |

Housing: Overcrowding

Survey of English Housing

The figures shown have been averaged over three successive survey years. This is because the sample of overcrowded households in a single year is too small to provide reliable annual estimates. Separate estimates of overcrowding among households in council housing and RSL housing are not reliable—so a combined estimate covering all social renters is shown.

Comparable figures for 1990 are not available.

Estimates for individual local authorities are not routinely available because of sample size considerations. However, the results of a one-off model are available based on a combination of three years of data from both the Survey of English Housing and DWP's Family Resources Survey for 2000-01, 2001-02 and 2002-03. Based on this model, estimates of the percentages of households in each London borough that were overcrowded during the three-year period 2000-01 to 2002-03 are set out in the following table. These figures cover all tenures. Reliable estimates by tenure are not available. The publication from which the overcrowding estimates for London boroughs have been taken can be accessed at the following link:

Housing: Standards

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much has been spent on bringing homes up to the decent homes standard in each of the last 10 years; and if she will make a statement. [177730]

Mr. Iain Wright: In total over £23 billion has been invested in improving social housing since 1997. Annual figures are provided in the following table. The figures represent the estimated expenditure maintaining the housing stock condition at a sustainable level (including the Decent Homes standard) over the last nine years.

| | Total investment (LA + RSL) M (£ billion) |
|---|---|
| 1997-98 | 1.89 |

| 2005-06 | 3.65 |

We expect 2006-07 data on housing capital expenditure to be available shortly.

Housing: Thames Gateway

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many homes have been built in the Thames Gateway area since 2003. [184724]

Caroline Flint: The number of new build completions for local authorities that intersect the Thames Gateway is estimated as 44,700 dwellings between April 2003 until March 2007. It is estimated that 26,400 of these dwellings lie within the Thames Gateway boundary.

Source:

New build completions from P2 returns submitted by local authorities and National House Building Council (NHBC).

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many new homes built since 1 January 2003 in the Thames Gateway area have been located on brownfield land; and if she will make a statement. [184835]

Caroline Flint: It is estimated that approximately 23,000 dwellings were built on previously-developed ("brownfield") land in the Thames Gateway between 2003 and 2006. This is 87 per cent. of all new dwellings in the Thames Gateway. Data for 2007 and 2008 are not yet available.

This is based on analysis using land use change statistics and housebuilding completions figures.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the terms of reference are of the housing audit to be undertaken by the Commission for Architecture and the Built Environment in respect of the Thames Gateway area; and if she will make a statement. [184836]

Caroline Flint: Between 2004 and 2007 the Commission for Architecture and the Built Environment (CABE), completed a national audit of the design quality of new and private housing development in England. The criteria applied in the audit were based on those used by Building for Life, a joint initiative of the CABE, the House Builders Federation and the Civic Trust.

CLG will be asking CABE to repeat its audit for the Thames Gateway area in 2010 and 2015 to report on progress towards improving design quality. This work has not been formally commissioned from CABE yet.

Intimidation

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many cases of bullying have been reported in (a) her Department and (b) its agencies in each of the last 12 months. [182838]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department for Communities and Local Government have had no cases of bullying reported in the last 12 months. The Department's agencies have had four cases of bullying reported in this period.

We cannot further disaggregate that number by month or by Executive agency to protect the identity of the individuals concerned.

Kent

Dr. Ladyman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what funds in the form of (a) revenue payments, (b) capital grants and (c) supported borrowing for which her Department is responsible have been made available to (i) Kent County Council, (ii) Thanet District Council and (iii) Dover District Council in 2007-08. [183061]

John Healey: The following table sets out the amount of (a) revenue payments and (b) capital grants which this Department plans to make in 2007-08 to (i) Kent county council, (ii) Thanet district council and (iii) Dover district council.

| | Kent CC | Thanet DC | Dover DC | Total |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Revenue | | | | |
| Formula grants | 228.685 | 12.764 | 9.957 | 251.406 |
| Other grants and payments | 35.156 | 4.965 | 0.738 | 40.859 |
| Capital | 20.453 | 6.323 | 1.727 | 28.503 |

No supported borrowing has been offered by this Department.

Land: Southlands Hospital, Shoreham-by-Sea

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what discussions her Department has had with developers about the use of surplus land at Southlands hospital in Shoreham-by-Sea; [186799]

(2) what plans she has for the disposal of land at Southlands Hospital, Shoreham-by-Sea, deemed surplus for requirements. [186798]

Caroline Flint: English Partnerships acquired part of the Southlands hospital site (4.4ha) in 2006, one of a portfolio of 96 sites acquired by them from the Department of Health. The remainder of the site did not transfer to English Partnerships and remains in the ownership of the NHS Trust.

Approximately 0.6 ha of the site owned by English Partnerships has been reserved for West Sussex county council to accommodate a new 60-bed care home which is currently under construction. On the remainder of the site English Partnerships has undergone an intensive due diligence and competitive marketing process and is currently negotiating with a developer who will then acquire the site under a building license. A joint planning application will soon be submitted for a minimum of 200 homes with 35 per cent. affordable housing, as required by the local authority, and the subsequent development will achieve both English Partnerships' own quality standards and Level 3 of the code for sustainable homes. Buildings on the site which are deemed of architectural merit and are capable of conversion will be refurbished.

In addition to providing high-quality and affordable homes, English Partnerships is also working with Adur district council to ensure that community facilities are integrated into the overall scheme.

Landlords: Licensing

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which local authorities have designated areas where landlords must be licensed; and, in each case, what assessment has been made of the effectiveness of such designations. [185688]

Mr. Iain Wright: The following local authorities have been granted approval to administer selective licensing schemes under part 3 of the Housing Act 2004.

| Local authority | Designation | Date of commencement |
|---|---|---|
| Salford city council | Seedley and Langworthy renewal area | 25 May 2007 |
| Middlesbrough borough council | Gresham and part of Middlehaven wards | 5 June 2007 |
| Manchester city council | Harpurhey ward | 3 August 2007 |
| | Bradford ward | 3 August 2007 |
| | Gorton North and South wards | 2 November 2007 |
| Gateshead borough council | Sunderland Road Area | 25 September 2007 |
| Sedgefield borough council | Dean Bank and Chilton West | 7 February 2008 |

Implementation of the schemes is conducted at a local level, and local authorities are required to monitor and review the designations under section 84 of the 2004 Act.

Licensed Premises

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 17 December 2007, Official Report, column 1146W, on licensed premises, what the permitted hours are that the Eland Darts Club may supply alcohol; and how much was spent on the venue in the last year for which figures are available. [182043]

Mr. Dhanda: The Darts Club in Eland House, which is entirely self-financing, is licensed to sell alcohol between the hours of 12.30 pm to 11.00 pm Monday to Friday except bank holidays, although it only opens for a very small proportion of those hours. The club has run a bar since at least 1972. No money was spent on the venue in the last year.

Local Authorities: Public Participation

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether she is monitoring the expenditure of local authorities on local involvement networks. [185579]

John Healey: There are no plans to monitor the expenditure of local authorities on Local Involvement Networks (LIN).

LIN funding is part of the Department of Health's contribution to the Area Based Grant, payment of which is administered by Communities and Local Government.

Area Based Grant is a general (non-ring fenced) grant to local authorities without terms and conditions attached.

Local Authorities: Small Businesses

Lorely Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which local authorities had signed the Small Business Friendly Concordat by 31 January 2008; and what proportion of local authorities in England this represents. [186006]

John Healey: Records maintained by Communities and Local Government indicate that currently 163 local authorities in England have signed up to the Small Business Friendly Concordat, approximately 42 per cent. of councils. A list of local authorities that have adopted the Concordat is available at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/localgovernment/efficiencybetter/nationalprocurementprogramme/nationalprocurementstrategy/smallbusinessfriendly/authorieswhohave/

Local Government Finance

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much and what proportion of (a) aggregate external finance and (b) local authority revenue expenditure will be ring-fenced in (i) 2007-08 and (ii) 2008-09 (A) including and (B) excluding the dedicated schools grant element. [171633]

John Healey: Including dedicated schools grant (DSG), the level of ring-fencing of aggregate external finance (AEF) to local authorities is £36.0 billion or 53.9 per cent. in 2007-08 and will be £36.0 billion or 51.8 per cent. in 2008-09. Excluding DSG, the comparable levels are £7.9 billion or 20.4 per cent. and £6.9 billion or 17.1 per cent. respectively.

Information on local authority revenue expenditure for 2007-08 will not be available until towards the end of 2008 when revenue outturn statistics are published. Similarly local authority revenue expenditure outturn for 2008-09 will not be available until towards the end of 2009.

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the real terms change in Government grant for local authorities was (a) excluding ring fenced schools grants and the same proportion of the education standard spending assessment as the schools formula spending share represented in 2003-04 of the educational formula spending share in each of the years 1997-98 to 2002-03, (b) excluding ring fenced school grants and the schools formula spending share in each year from 2003-04 to 2005-06 and (c) (i) including and (ii) excluding ring fenced school grants in (A) 2006-07 and (B) 2007-08; and what the real terms change is expected to be (1) including and (2) excluding ring fenced school grants in (x) 2008-09, (y) 2009-10 and (z) 2010-11. [185385]

John Healey [holding answer 7 February 2008]: Standard spending assessments and formula spending shares were grant distribution mechanisms, and were not elements of Government grant. It is not therefore an appropriate basis on which to calculate grant in the manner suggested in relation to (a) and (b). It is also not possible to calculate the increase for 2006-07 for (c), because there is no comparable figure for 2005-06.

The real terms increase in Government grant for 2007-08 to 2010-11 including ring-fenced schools grants on a like for like basis is as follows:

| | Percentage |
|---|---|
| 2007-08 | 1.7 |
| 2008-09 | 1.2 |
| 2009-10 | 1.6 |
| 2010-11 | 1.6 |

The real terms increase in Government grant excluding ring-fenced schools grants on a like for like basis is as follows:

| | Percentage |
|---|---|
| 2007-08 | 1.7 |
| 2008-09 | 1.2 |
| 2009-10 | 1.9 |
| 2010-11 | 1.3 |

Local Government Finance: Cheshire

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what funding has been allocated by her Department, its associated agencies and non-departmental bodies to (a) Warrington and (b) Cheshire in each year since 1997; and for what purpose the funds have been allocated in each case. [185587]

John Healey [holding answer 7 February 2008]: The following tables set out the payments made by this Department to (a) Warrington borough council and (b) Cheshire county council since 2002. Information on funding prior to 2002-03 could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Local Government: Reorganisation

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for what reason the recent draft statutory instruments on local government restructuring were replaced with new ones in substitution; and what changes were made between the two versions. [183242]

John Healey: There are no differences of substance between the original orders laid on 17 December and the substitute versions. The differences are small textual changes for clarification purposes, and some cross references in essence to provide greater consistency between the orders.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the reasons are for the time taken to reply to the letter from the right hon. Member for Berwick-upon-Tweed of (a) 16 October and (b) 4 December 2007 relating to a freedom of information request from Mr. M. Maud of Ancroft, Berwick-upon-Tweed. [185812]

Mr. Dhanda: My right hon. Friend has now replied to the right hon. Member.

Minister for the West Midlands

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government at which high level events and with regard to which high level projects the Minister for the west midlands has championed the region as referred to in paragraph 118 of The Governance of Britain. [181651]

Mr. Dhanda: The regional Minister has undertaken a tour of the region where he set priorities and challenges for the region. He is now developing a programme of visits within the region over the next three months to take these forward. The high level projects the Minister has championed include:

the launch of the joint Regional Economic Strategy and draft Regional Spatial Strategy—the first UK region to do so;

the development of the regions first Skills strategy due to be launched in March 2008 and work to support proposals for the redevelopment of Birmingham New Street station;

the development of a set of regional transport priorities;

the development of proposals for academic health science centres in response to his challenge to the region's health leaders to join teaching, research and delivery of health services in a single effort;

the promotion of the west midlands as a trading partner including a high level visit to India; a set of regional challenges to improve the reputation and creative industries of the region.

Multiple Occupation: Fines

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many fines have been levied against landlords for breaches of licence provisions for houses in multiple occupation in the last 12 months; and what the value of all such fines was. [184183]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department for Communities and Local Government does not hold this information. The Ministry of Justice collects data on fines levied against landlords who fail to comply with the Houses in Multiple Occupation (HMO) Licensing provisions under the Housing Act 2004. Data for 2007 will be available in autumn 2008.

Multiple Occupation: Licensing

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what feedback she has received from enforcement authorities on the implementation of the National Licensing Scheme for Houses in Multiple Occupation. [182458]

Mr. Iain Wright [holding answer 28 January 2008]: The Department is satisfied, through its discussions with the Local Authorities Co-ordinators of Regulatory Services (LACORS), who co-ordinate and report on local authority implementation, that local authorities are making progress in implementing the mandatory HMO licensing provisions. For example, a recent survey conducted by LACORs concluded that 86 per cent. of councils were already using a range of tools to identify HMOs being operated illegally without a licence.

New Local Government Network

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what payments her Department and its predecessor made to the New Local Government Network since 2002. [182559]

John Healey: Our records show 10 payments have been made to the New Local Government Network by this Department or its predecessor since 2002. Total payments amounted to £33,152.70 and were in respect of small items of research, consultation events and attendance of officials at a conference organised by New Local Government Network.

Non-Profit Making Associations

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many contracts her Department has with social enterprises; and what the value of each of those contracts is. [186652]

Mr. Dhanda: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given by my hon. Friend the Minister for Local Government (John Healey) on 17 July 2007, Official Report, column 216W. Since that reply and in September 2007, a mechanism was implemented, enabling new departmental vendors to be identified as social enterprises. To date no new departmental vendors have been identified as social enterprises and consequently no new contracts can be identified.

Non-Profit Making Organisations

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her Department's (a) procurement and (b) tendering policy is in respect of social enterprises. [186651]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department's procurement policy and therefore guidance encourages the use of social enterprises.

The Department encourages the use of internet based websites (procurement portals) to ensure equality of opportunity to social enterprises and other similar groups.

The Department recognises the costs associated with tendering and how these can impact negatively on the capability of certain groups to participate equally in tendering.

By adopting the use of procurement portals, Government Departments are consolidating where procurement opportunities are advertised, so reducing suppliers costs associated with locating such opportunities, and therefore promoting the potential use of social enterprises and other similar groups.

Political Impartiality

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for what purpose her Department records the political opinions of (a) staff and (b) the public. [179319]

Mr. Dhanda: Civil servants in Communities and Local Government are required to act in accordance with the requirements of the "Civil Service Code", and section 4.4 of the "Civil Service Management Code".

Members of the public who apply for public appointments within the jurisdiction of the Commissioner for Public Appointments are asked to complete a declaration on political activity.

Preventing Violent Extremism Pathfinder Fund: Finance

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether she plans to increase levels of funding for the Preventing Violent Extremism Pathfinder Fund over the next three years. [174758]

Mr. Dhanda: On 31 October 2007, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State announced £45 million in funding for local partnerships' work to prevent violent extremism.

Property Information Systems Common Exchange Standard

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the annual cost is of her Department's membership of the Property Information Systems Common Exchange Standard; and for what purpose it is a member. [183213]

Mr. Dhanda: The cost to the Department for membership, in 2008, of the Property Information Systems Common Exchange Standard (PISCES) is £11,750. PISCES is an industry group that sets voluntary standards for exchange of data relating to the property industry. PISCES has been involved in developing the standards relating to the technical data requirements for the Home Condition Report and Energy Performance Certificate Register.

Property: Databases

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which organisation is the custodian of Valuebill schemes; and whether she has plans to review the arrangement. [183252]

John Healey: Lead responsibility for Valuebill now rests with London Connects and the Valuation Office Agency. The Government have no plans to review the scheme.

Public Bodies: Internet

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 18 December 2007, Official Report, column 1342W, on public bodies: internet, what each XML schema in use by her Department is. [183025]

Mr. Dhanda: We do not have a comprehensive, central record of XML schemas within the Department. However, CLG HQ has implemented a number of XML schemas to support direct, system to system interchange of data in connection with the following CLG policy areas:

Fire and Resilience: collection of fire incident records.

Housing: National Register of Social Housing; Register of Licensed Houses in Multiple Occupation; Electronic Survey of Empty Housing; and tenancy deposit schemes.

Planning: planning applications; and land use monitoring returns.

Quarrying: Public Participation

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many public inquiries concerning mineral extraction plans there have been in the last five years. [185234]

Mr. Iain Wright: Eight Local Plan Minerals Inquiries have taken place under the provisions of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 (as amended) since February 2003.

Nine Minerals Development Plan Documents (DPDs) have been submitted for Examination under the provisions of the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004. Examinations have been completed on two of these DPDs.

Regional Government: Public Participation

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 17 December 2007, Official Report, column 943W, on regional government: public participation, which (a) stakeholder events, (b) local projects and (c) other organisations the Minister for the west midlands has visited in his capacity as regional minister. [181701]

Mr. Dhanda: The regional Minister has undertaken the following stakeholder events, local projects and other engagements pursuant to the answer of 17 December 2007 on regional government:

a meeting with CBI members;

a meeting with the vice-chancellors of higher education institutes from across the region to discuss the transfer of science into wealth and the development of the region as a top student destination;

the launch of the region's manufacturing support strategy;

the keynote address to the West Midlands Regional Assembly Conference; and a meeting with leaders and chief executives of shire councils to discuss the progress of the sub-national review.

Regional Ministers

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will list each of the representations made by regional Ministers to other Departments relating to issues within the region for which they have responsibility; and if she will place copies of such representations in the Library. [184336]

Mr. Dhanda: Information relating to internal discussion and advice is not disclosed in order to protect its frankness and candour. This is in accord with Section 35 of the Freedom of Information Act exempting communications between Ministers and is aimed at protecting the government policy-making process.

Regional Ministers: Official Engagements

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what engagements the Minister for (a) the north-east, (b) the north-west, (c) Yorkshire and the Humber, (d) London, (e) the south-east, (f) the south-west, (g) the east midlands, (h) the west midlands and (i) the east of England plan to attend in their capacity as regional ministers in 2008. [181654]

Mr. Dhanda: Ministerial diaries have not yet been finalised and engagements are subject to parliamentary business. All regional Ministers have meetings and events planned with business leaders, local authorities, ministerial colleagues and other key stakeholders.

Regional Planning and Development: East Midlands

Members made formal submissions to the consultations on regional spatial strategies other than that relating to the East Midlands. [178621]

Regional Planning and Development: South West

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has issued to (a) local planning authorities in Gloucestershire and (b) planning appeals inspectorates determining large-scale housing planning applications before the Regional Spatial Strategy for the South West is finalised; and if she will make a statement. [185842]

Mr. Iain Wright: No guidance has been issued to local planning authorities in Gloucestershire or to the Planning Inspectorate on how they should determine housing applications before the Regional Spatial Strategy for the South West is finalised, above that contained in PPS3, paragraph 68 which states

"Local Planning Authorities should take into consideration the policies set out in Regional Spatial Strategies and Development Plan Documents, as the Development Plan, as well as other material considerations. When making planning decisions for housing developments after 1st April 2007, Local Planning Authorities should have regard to the policies in this statement as material considerations which may supersede the policies in existing Development Plans".

Sexual Harassment

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many complaints of (a) sexual harassment and (b) sexual discrimination have been made by staff in (i) her Department and (ii) its agencies in the most recent year for which figures are available. [184690]

Mr. Dhanda: As the number of formal complaints in either category is less than five, the Department for Communities and Local Government is unable to provide the information on the grounds of confidentiality.

Street Cleaning: Expenditure

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much was spent on street cleaning in each local authority in England in each of the last five years. [185460]

John Healey: I have placed in the Library of the House a table showing the information on street cleansing (not chargeable to highways) in each local authority in England in each of the last five years. Information for England has been published in Statistical Releases and editions of "Local Government Financial Statistics".

Sustainable Development: Urban Areas

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many eco-towns are to be built in each of the next 10 years. [184998]

Caroline Flint: Through the eco-towns programme we expect that there will be up to five eco-towns by 2016 and 10 by 2020.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps she proposes to take to manage the impact of eco-towns on local traffic networks. [184999]

Caroline Flint: As part of the current cross-government assessment of eco-town proposals we are assessing proposals against the criteria set out in the Eco-towns Prospectus, and this includes transport. As part of the transport criteria consideration must be given to the impact on roads and congestion when siting the eco-town, and planning for the public transport infrastructure requirements. We will want to see design that reduces the need to travel, promotes a high degree of sustainable transport usage and reduces car dependency, so as to minimise the impact on local transport networks.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much has been allocated for the construction of eco-towns; and from what budgets. [185000]

Caroline Flint: I refer the right hon. Member to the answer given on 6 December 2007, Official Report, column 1397W to the hon. Member for Banbury (Tony Baldry).

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will take steps to ensure that funding for the construction of eco-towns will not be taken from existing allocations for local projects. [185001]

Caroline Flint: I refer the right hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Banbury (Tony Baldry) on 6 December 2007, Official Report, column 1397W. As that answer sets out, funding has been provided to support the Growth Areas, the Thames Gateway, New Growth Points and eco-towns. This ensures that there will be provision of funding for eco-towns and it will not be taken from existing allocations for local projects.

Temporary Accommodation: Greater London

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many households were housed in temporary accommodation by each London local authority in each year since 1997. [186143]

Caroline Flint: Information about local authorities' actions under homelessness legislation is collected quarterly at local authority level. This information includes the number of households accepted by local authorities as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need, and therefore owed a main homelessness duty. The duty owed to an accepted household is to secure suitable accommodation. If a settled home is not immediately available, the authority may secure temporary accommodation until a settled home becomes available.

A table summarising homelessness figures for each local authority for the past 10 years, including the total number of households in temporary accommodation at the end of each year, was placed in the Library of the House on 8 October 2007, as part of the answer given to the hon. Member for South-East Cambridgeshire (Mr. Paice).

Data are also published in our quarterly statistical release on Statutory Homelessness, which includes a Supplementary Table showing the breakdown of key data, including temporary accommodation for each local authority. The Supplementary Tables are published on our website and placed in the Library each quarter. The latest release was published on 10 December 2007 and contains data for the period July to September 2007:

Temporary Accommodation: Unemployed

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what proportion of households living in temporary accommodation had someone in work in each of the last 10 years. [185897]

Caroline Flint: This information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

However, Communities and Local Government and Department for Work and Pensions are supporting the working future pilot to test the effect that reduced rents and increased access to employment services have on incentivising housing benefit claimants in expensive temporary accommodation to find work.

The pilot was set up to run for two years starting from 2005. It was running in the East London boroughs of Newham, Redbridge and Waltham Forest and led by the GLA and the East Thames Group. We are currently in the process of evaluating the outcomes of the pilot.

Thames Gateway: Finance

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which publicly funded organisations are in receipt of monies in respect of the Thames Gateway project; and if she will make a statement. [184831]

Caroline Flint: The Thames Gateway Growth Fund has provided funding to the following organisations:

Barts and The London Hospital Trust
Basildon District Council

Castle Point Borough Council
Dartford Borough Council
East England Development Agency (EEDA)
English Partnerships
Environment Agency
Essex County Council
Forestry Commission
Gateway for London
Gravesham Borough Council Housing Corporation
Kent County Council
Land Restoration Trust
LB Barking and Dagenham
LB Bexley
LB Greenwich
LB Havering
LB Lewisham
LB Newham
LB Tower Hamlets
Learning and Skills Councils
Locate in Kent
London Development Agency (LDA)
London Thames Gateway Development Corporation
Medway Council (Unitary)
Renaissance Southend
Rochford District Council
South East Development Agency (SEEDA)
Southend-on-Sea Borough Council (Unitary)
Swale Borough Council
Thurrock Council
Thurrock Thames Gateway Development Corporation
Tourism South East
Transport for London

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what projects have been identified for funding under the auspices of the Thames Gateway Economic Development Investment Plan; at what indicative cost and over what period of time; and if she will make a statement. [184833]

Caroline Flint: No projects have yet been identified under the auspices of the Thames Gateway Economic Development Plan (EDIP). The three Regional Development Agencies that cover the Thames Gateway area have not yet completed the EDIP. It is expected to be signed off by the end of March.

Travelling People

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the cost to the public purse was of each of her Department's five annual conferences on developing services for Gypsies and Travellers. [186206]

Mr. Iain Wright: Communities and Local Government does not hold an annual conference on developing services for Gypsies and Travellers. Ministers and officials support an annual conference on this topic arranged by the private sector by attending as speakers. A delegate fee of £390 (plus VAT) was paid by the Housing Corporation to enable attendance in 2005.

Travelling People: Caravan Sites

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate her Department has made of trends in the demand for authorised traveller sites from migrant travellers from (a) Romania and (b) the Republic of Ireland. [183241]

Mr. Iain Wright: Under the Housing Act 2004 local authorities are required to assess the accommodation needs of Gypsies and Travellers living in their areas. All accommodation needs assessments should by now have been completed. Regional Assemblies are responsible for determining need for pitches for Gypsies and Travellers across the region and revising regional spatial strategies to allocate pitch numbers to individual local authorities.

Waste Management

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what stage each local authority's minerals and waste development proposals has reached. [185654]

Mr. Iain Wright: Hampshire county council have adopted a minerals and waste core strategy.

The following local authorities have submitted waste and/or minerals development plan documents to the Secretary of State:

Hertfordshire county council
Milton Keynes
Surrey county council
Plymouth
Telford and the Wrekin
Worcestershire county council
North Yorkshire county council
Lancashire county council
Suffolk county council
Kent county council
Shropshire county council

64 other planning authorities preparing waste and minerals development Plan Documents are yet to submit them to the Secretary of State.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Drugs

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the policy of (a) UK and (b) US forces is on spraying drug crops in Afghanistan in order to destroy them. [185350]

Des Browne: Troops deployed as part of the NATO-led International Security Assistance Force (ISAF) are authorised to support the Government of Afghanistan's counter-narcotics effort as part of the NATO operational plan. The operational plan stipulates that military personnel will not be involved in the eradication of poppy.

Afghanistan: Medical Services

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what training medical locums serving in Afghanistan received to prepare for operations; [183130]

(2) what proportion of medical locums serving in Afghanistan have prior military experience. [183132]

Derek Twigg: The Defence Medical Services deploys small numbers of civilian medical staff on operations in specialties where there are currently shortfalls, such as neurosurgery and ITU and A&E nursing. Individuals are recruited through the specialist agency "Frontier Medical". Before deployment to Afghanistan, medical locums undergo similar Operational Training and Advisory Group (OPTAG) training and pre-deployment briefs as their military colleagues. They are fully briefed on security issues and what to do if involved in the vicinity of aggressive military action. They are issued personal protective equipment (PPE) and receive constant advice and supervision before and during an operational tour. Most of them will not have prior military service (other than possible prior deployment with the military in a similar locum role).

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many members of staff in his Department (a) speak Pashtun and (b) are training to speak Pashtun. [176084]

Des Browne: Records held by the Ministry of Defence as at 5 February 2008 indicate that there are 130 personnel who can speak Pashtun, with a further 92 people studying the language.

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the order of battle of 16 Air Assault Brigade will be on its deployment to Afghanistan. [185642]

Des Browne: I refer the hon. Member to my written ministerial statement on 6 February 2008, Official Report, column 68WS, outlining the force package that we currently plan to deploy in the next roulement of UK forces to Afghanistan.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) required and (b) actual expected strength is of each unit deploying to Afghanistan in spring 2008. [186283]

Des Browne: All units deploying with 16 Air Assault Brigade will do so with the numbers required to meet the operational requirement. This may require some units to be backfilled with augmentees, in line with established practice. I am withholding information on deployed strengths as its disclosure would, or would be likely to prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the armed forces.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many helicopters will be operating in Afghanistan after the next roulement. [186284]

Des Browne: I am withholding the information as its disclosure would, or would be likely to prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the armed forces deployed in Afghanistan.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many extra helicopters will be sent to Afghanistan as part of the spring roulement. [186285]

Des Browne: I am withholding details of the numbers of helicopters that will be sent to Afghanistan as it would, or would be likely to, prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of NATO forces.

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many troops deployed in Afghanistan will have tours lasting for longer than six months. [186884]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The overwhelming majority of tours in Afghanistan are six months or less. However, individuals may deploy to Afghanistan for longer than six months in two different sets of circumstances.

First, when brigades rotate in and out of theatre, some individuals or units may have their tours slightly extended beyond the standard period of six months in order to ensure continuity of operations. These short extensions can be a matter of days or weeks and are agreed between the incoming and outgoing headquarters. Detailed figures on the number of individuals who may be required to extend in this way are not held centrally and could be established only at disproportionate cost.

Second, it has been decided that for important reasons of campaign continuity, a small number of posts should be filled by individuals undertaking nine or 12 month tours. Some 20 posts are currently established in this way, broken down as follows:

| Post | Number of individuals |
|---|---|
| HQ ISAF | 9 |
| Combined Security Transition Command Afghanistan | 2 |
| HQ Regional Command (South) | 6 |
| HQ Task Force Helmand | 1 |
| Total | 20 |

Circumstances may on occasions dictate, however, that it is not possible for a particular officer to deploy for a full extended tour.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for what reasons NATO leaflets advised Afghan civilians to stay in their homes before the bombing of Musa Qala. [181909]

Des Browne: There was no bombing of the urban area of Musa Qala during the recent operation to restore Government of Afghanistan control of the area. Indeed, great care was taken to avoid aerial bombardment of the town. A small number of precision attacks were made against Taliban forces identified in the surrounding area.

Leaflet drops warned the civilian population to remain indoors if fighting occurred in their area. This advice was given in order to avoid civilians being caught in crossfire.

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much fresh fruit and vegetables was delivered to UK forces in (a) Afghanistan and (b) Helmand Province in each year since 2001. [184312]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The detailed information is not held centrally in the format requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Purple Foodservice Solutions, which has held the MOD Food Supply contract since October 2006, does maintain data on the total amount of fruit and vegetables shipped to Afghanistan since they took over the contract. From January 2007 to January 2008 this was 1,163,000 kg. This is not a comprehensive picture of fresh fruit and vegetables shipped to UK forces in Afghanistan however, since it excludes UK forces fed under contracts let by other nations and includes civilians or troops from other nations who are embedded in locations supplied by the MOD contract.

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will hold discussions with NATO allies on providing Pashtun linguists for non-kinetic operations in Afghanistan. [185203]

Des Browne: I meet regularly with my NATO counterparts to discuss issues of mutual interest, including Afghanistan.

The majority of Pashtun speakers employed by ISAF forces are hired within Afghanistan.

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will hold discussions with his German counterpart about the provision of German troop transport support for OP Herrick 7 and OP Herrick 8. [185205]

Des Browne: I meet regularly with my NATO and EU counterparts, including the German Defence Minister to discuss Afghanistan and other issues of mutual interest.

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what reports he has received of the nationalities of Taliban fighters killed in Afghanistan since the conflict began; and if he will make a statement. [185207]

Des Browne: I have nothing further to add to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for North Devon (Nick Harvey) on 1 November 2006, Official Report, column 423W.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) name and (b) age at death was of each British serviceman and woman (i) killed and (ii) severely injured in Afghanistan since 2001; and what the (A) location and (B) date of each death or injury was. [185264]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 7 February 2008]: Information on fatalities in Iraq and Afghanistan is published and updated regularly on the Ministry of Defence website at:

http://www.mod.uk/DefenceInternet/FactSheets/OperationsFactsheets/OperationsInAfghanistanBritishfatalities.htm

For reasons of confidentiality we are unable to release specific details of casualties without their explicit consent, or that of their family. Aggregated data on casualties is also included on the Ministry of Defence website at:

http://www.mod.uk/DefenceInternet/AboutDefence/CorporatePublications/DoctrineOperationsandDiplomacyPublications/OperationsInAfghanistan/OpHerrickCasualtyAndFatalityTables.htm

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will hold discussions with his French counterpart on France increasing its air assets in Afghanistan. [185346]

Des Browne: I meet regularly with my NATO and EU counterparts, including the French Defence Minister, to discuss Afghanistan and other issues of mutual interest.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent representations he has received from his US counterpart on military (a) force levels and (b) strategy in Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement. [185377]

Des Browne [holding answer 7 February 2008]: I meet regularly with my NATO counterparts, including the US Defence Secretary, to discuss issues of mutual interest, including Afghanistan. NATO Defence Ministers last met on 7-8 February to discuss Afghanistan and other issues.

Afghanistan: Postal Services

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what increase in forces mail to Afghanistan there has been since troops were allowed a free 2kg package. [186885]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Since the introduction of the free mail service for members of HM armed forces deployed to Iraq and Afghanistan began on 3 September 2007, the volume of mail to Afghanistan has increased by 95 per cent. compared to the same period in 2006-07.

Afghanistan: Unarmed Air Vehicles

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many tactical unarmed air vehicle image analysts are deployed in Afghanistan; and what plans he has to increase that number. [186943]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I am withholding the number of imagery analysts deployed in theatre as its disclosure would, or would be likely to prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the armed forces. However, the number of analysts required in theatre is kept under regular review by the Permanent Joint Headquarters and the Ministry of Defence.

Air Force: Manpower

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library copies of his Department's annual Royal Air Force (a) manpower strength planning assumptions, (b) manning and training margins, (c) baseline strength projection and (d) aircrew sustainability assessment for financial years 1997-98 to 2006-07. [184858]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The reports requested contain large amounts of unrounded data. The unrounded data would need to be rounded in line with National Statistics protocols, and the forecast assumptions would need to be redacted, prior to the documents being placed in the Library, both of which actions could be done only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library copies of his Department's quarterly forecast of Royal Air Force manpower for each quarter since the beginning of 1997-98. [184859]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The reports showing the quarterly forecasts of RAF manpower contain large amounts of unrounded data. This data would need to be rounded prior to the documents being placed in the Library, in line with National Statistics protocols, and could be done only at disproportionate cost.

Aircraft Carriers

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what airframes will be deployed on the new generation of Royal Navy aircraft carriers; and if he will make a statement. [185453]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The future aircraft carriers have been designed to support a Joint Force Air Group including the Joint Combat Aircraft (JCA) and a mix of helicopters which we expect will initially include Sea King Mk 7 and Merlin. We will set the in-service date for the JCA capability when the programme reaches sufficient maturity and we make the main investment decision, and we will continue to manage carefully the transition from Harrier to JCA.

Aircraft Carriers: Procurement

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the opportunities for small and medium-sized enterprises in the north east arising from the ordering of the two aircraft carriers. [185469]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: BAE Systems Submarine Solutions has recently selected two north east companies, McNulty and A&P, to form the Tyne Carrier Association, which will make a significant contribution to the manufacturing phase of the Future Carrier project (CVF). In addition, we would expect there to be extensive opportunities for further sub-contracts arising from CVF, both in the north east and throughout the UK.

Aircraft Carriers: Shipbuilding

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the effects of the placing of the order for two aircraft carriers on the skills base of the UK maritime industry; and if he will make a statement. [185610]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: We expect current programmes, including the future aircraft carrier programme, to ensure the retention of key skills and capabilities in the UK maritime industry in the short to medium term. The Defence Industrial Strategy defined the key maritime industrial skills and capabilities we need to retain on shore to support the needs of the Royal Navy in the longer term. We are therefore working with the shipbuilding industry to agree the core work load required to sustain these high-end design, systems engineering and combat systems integration skills across the maritime sector.

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the value of the work share on the two new aircraft carriers to the North East economy. [185611]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: There are no estimates of the value of such work to the North East economy. However, industry in the North East is expected to be involved in the carrier project through the Tyne Carrier Association which BAE Systems Submarine Solutions intends to form with McNulty and A&P. In addition, we would expect there to be opportunities for further subcontracts and involvement of the supply chain, both in the North East and throughout the UK.

Armed Forces

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department plans to spend on improving (a) accommodation and (b) training facilities for armed forces personnel in Northern Ireland in 2008-09. [185840]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: We plan to spend the following on constructing new and upgrading existing accommodation and training facilities in Northern Ireland in 2008-09. It should be noted that these are estimated figures only at this stage.

| Development type | Amount to be spent |
|---|---|
| Service accommodation | £19.42 million |
| Training facilities | £100,000 |

Armed Forces Compensation Scheme

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many former service personnel who served in Northern Ireland have received compensation from the Armed Forces Compensation Scheme in the last 10 years. [185839]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 18 February 2008]: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Armed Forces Compensation Scheme: World War II

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence in relation to the compensation scheme for former civilian internees of the Japanese during the second world war, on what grounds applications from British nationals whose births were registered in British consulates abroad or on board British ships may be rejected; where the original birth certificates are lodged in the UK birth registers; and if he will make a statement. [186106]

Derek Twigg: The eligibility requirements for former civilian internees under the Government's ex-gratia payment scheme for former far east prisoners of war and civilian internees are that the applicant was British at the time of internment, that they were interned by the Japanese in a specifically designated camp and that they have a close link with the UK. A close-link has, since July 2005, been determined by residence-based criteria. We do not consider that the place at which a birth was registered or at which the birth certificate is held establishes a close link to the UK. The hon. Member will be aware that a criterion based on birthlink to the UK, where there was no residence link to the UK, has already been found unlawful on the basis of indirect racial discrimination.

Armed Forces: Ammunition

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the supply of munitions from UK produced supplies to UK forces. [185467]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Security of supply and the availability of sufficient high quality ammunition to frontline commands remains a top priority. The majority of the UK general munitions requirement is secured through a Framework Partnering Agreement with BAES Land Systems Munitions. This agreement is due to end in 2010 and we are currently working with industry to develop the future solution that will ensure continuing security of supply and deliver value for money to the taxpayer beyond 2010. We expect to make an investment decision in spring 2008.

As a result of the pace of current operations, we have seen a large increase in the demand for munitions, both for operations and for training in preparation for operations. Despite this significant challenge, we have consistently supplied sufficient volumes of ammunition to meet these commitments. Industry, both in the UK and overseas, has shown great commitment and flexibility in rising successfully to this challenge.

Armed Forces: Children

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what (a) financial support and (b) child care provision his Department provides for the families of service personnel deployed on operations. [182323]

Derek Twigg: Service personnel deployed on operations benefit from a variety of allowances including Longer Separation Allowance, Operational Allowance and Council Tax Relief; which are clearly of benefit to their families too. The Deployment Welfare Package also includes support for the families of those deployed through the Families Welfare Grant. In addition, the immediate family of an accompanied Regular Service person who is deployed on operations is entitled to travel at public expense to allow the family to benefit from support of their close relatives during extended periods of deployment by their Service spouse or civil partner.

The financial package for mobilised Reservists ensures that they will not be financially disadvantaged as a result of their service.

With reference to child care, I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 17 December 2007, Official Report, columns 1022-23W.

The Government announced on 8 November 2007 work to develop the first-ever cross-Government Strategy for supporting our service personnel, their families and veterans. The Command Paper will outline steps taken so far and future initiatives to enhance the Government's support.

Armed Forces: Coeliac Disease

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many people with coeliac disease were discharged from the (a) Royal Air Force, (b) Army and (c) Royal Navy in each of the last five years; [184732]

(2) what policies are in place to assist those who are serving in the (a) Royal Air Force and (b) Royal Navy who have been diagnosed with coeliac disease. [184733]

Derek Twigg: The Defence Analytical Services Agency is currently validating its 2006 and 2007 discharge data and as such no figures are available for this time period. In 2003-05, there was one medical discharge where the principal disability leading to discharge was coeliac disease.

The armed forces as far as possible aim to meet the needs of those personnel who, during their service, develop medical conditions such as coeliac disease which require careful dietary management. Should an individual develop a medical condition which may require special dietary management during service, their condition would be catered for wherever practicable and the necessary foodstuffs and/or medication provided. Specific advice is also provided to personnel with special dietary requirements by dieticians, via their medical officer.

Armed Forces: Compensation

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many payments under the Armed Forces Compensation scheme to claimants living in the London region there have been since 2005. [185769]

Derek Twigg: Between 6 April 2005 and 31 December 2007, the following payments have been made under the Armed Forces Compensation Scheme to claimants recorded on the Compensation and Pension System Database as living in the London region:

Thirty-five payments have been made as a result of injury claims.

Less than five payments have been made as a result of survivors' claims.

In order to protect the identity of claimants, figures presented have been rounded to the nearest five.

Armed Forces: Corneal Ulcers

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the incidence of corneal ulcers is among (a) contact lens wearing and (b) all British service personnel serving in Iraq and Afghanistan; and what steps his Department is taking to reduce this rate. [186634]

Derek Twigg: The Defence Medical Services have treated a total of 30 cases of corneal ulcers in personnel who have served in the Iraq and Afghanistan theatres of operation, all of whom are contact lens wearers. 28 of these served in Iraq, and two in Afghanistan.

The Defence Medical Services (DMS) are always looking at ways in which cases of corneal ulcers can be reduced in service personnel. There is evidence of improving safety and efficacy of laser eye surgery and DMS specialists are currently engaged in reviewing this evidence in the military context.

Armed Forces: Deployment

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the adequacy of the (a) free and (b) fee paying communication facilities for service personnel on operational tours. [162262]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The ratio of internet access points to personnel was originally set when it was expected that the provision would be used for little more than email. Ratios of internet provision have since been improved to reflect the greater demand on the service in line with increased popularity. The ratio of access points to individuals is currently 1:50 which is assessed to be sufficient for welfare purposes in accordance with current patterns of usage. Options to improve ratios further are under consideration as part of the process of continuous improvement. There is no fee-paying aspect to the MOD provided welfare internet service.

Personnel are provided with an allocation of 30 minutes of free telephone calls per week. The Department is increasing the number of welfare telephones by 20 per cent. which is assessed to be adequate based on current demand.

In total, an additional £4 million will be spent on improvements to welfare communications in Iraq and Afghanistan over Financial Year 2007-08.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of the (a) armed forces, (b) Army, (c) Navy and (d) Royal Air Force are (i) deployed on operations and (ii) conducting other military tasks. [185772]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The percentage of each service deployed on operations or undertaking other military tasks in the second quarter of 2007-08 (the latest period for which validated data is available) is as follows:

| | Percentage | |
|---|---|---|
| | Operations | Other military tasks |
| Royal Navy | 4 | 11 |
| Army | 12 | 7 |
| Royal Air Force | 7 | 8 |
| Overall | 9 | 8 |

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on how many occasions the armed forces in Northern Ireland offered assistance in non-military situations other than those involving civil disturbance in 2007. [185841]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: It is not the policy of the Ministry of Defence to offer assistance in non-military situations. Any assistance is provided in response to a specific request from the civil authorities, and in light of an assessment of the available capabilities and the appropriateness of the task. Examples of such assistance in Northern Ireland in the last twelve months include assistance in sandbagging in response to summer flooding at Comber and Downpatrick and helicopter support for the coastguard in a search for missing persons in Castlewellan Lake.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many UK personnel were deployed on operations at each location at the most recent date for which figures are available. [186299]

Des Browne: The following table shows the number of UK service personnel deployed on operations by location at 4 February 2008. The number of personnel in theatre will naturally fluctuate on a daily basis for a variety of reasons, including leave (rest and recuperation), temporary absence for training, evacuation for medical reasons, the roulement of forces and other factors. Numbers have been rounded to the nearest 10, apart from Iraq and Afghanistan which have been rounded to the nearest hundred.

Number of personnel deployed by location[1]

| Location | Number |
|---|---|
| Afghanistan | 7,000 |
| Iraq | 4,200 |
| At sea | 600 |
| Qatar | 420 |
| Kuwait | 390 |
| Cyprus | 280 |
| Oman | 190 |
| Kosovo | 120 |
| Bahrain | 60 |
| Bosnia | 10 |
| Other | 30 |
| Total | 13,280 |

[1] Countries with 10 or more personnel are shown separately. Other countries with fewer than 10 personnel per country include Georgia, Nepal, Sudan, Sierra Leone, Democratic Republic of Congo and Liberia.

Armed Forces: Desertion

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many service personnel are recorded as absent without leave, broken down by (a) unit and (b) nationality. [182429]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 25 January 2008]: An individual who goes absent without leave (AWOL) will be recorded as such until they have been arrested, their death certificate is produced, or they have surrendered themself.

For the Army and Royal Air Force, information on the unit of individuals and on their nationality is not held centrally and could therefore be provided only at disproportionate cost. Of the incidents of reported AWOL between 1 January 1997 and 29 January 2008, there are 1,201 Army and 17 RAF personnel who remain AWOL. A comprehensive figure, including those who went AWOL prior to 1 January 1997 and who have not been arrested, their death certificate produced, or have surrendered themself, cannot be provided because of the unreliability of some historical data.

The Royal Navy has a continuous run of data on individuals who remain AWOL. As at 25 January 2008 there are 11 Navy personnel AWOL:

| AWOL | Unit | Nationality |
|---|---|---|
| 1 | HMS Bulwark | British |
| 1 | HMS Cumberland | British |
| 3 | HMS Illustrious | British |
| 1 | HMS Kent | British |
| 1 | HMS Liverpool | British |
| 2 | HMS Nelson | British |
| 1 | HMS Sovereign | British |
| 1 | HMS York | Fijian |

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many service personnel were disciplined for going absent without leave in each of the last 10 years, broken down by service. [184314]

Derek Twigg: Data relating to those found guilty of being absent without leave (AWOL) are shown in the following tables. Data are recorded differently by each of the three services; therefore the given figures are not directly comparable on a tri-service basis. All numbers are rounded to the nearest five.

Royal Navy

| | Summary dealing | Court martial |
|---|---|---|
| 1998 | — | 5 |
| 1999 | — | [1]— |
| 2000 | — | [1]— |

| 2002 | 1,085 | 5 |
| 2003 | 1,345 | 10 |
| 2004 | 1,105 | 5 |
| 2005 | 985 | 20 |
| 2006 | 1,100 | 5 |
| 2007 | 625 | 10 |

[1] Denotes fewer than five.

Notes:

1. Formal absenteeism (AWOL) is recorded by the Royal Navy once an individual has been absent for more than 24 hours. The figures provided for summary dealings include minor offences where an individual is absent for less than 24 hours (e.g. late for a parade). To separate out this data would incur disproportionate cost.
2. Information on summary dealings prior to 1 January 2001 is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.
3. Figures provided for 2007 are as at 4 February 2008 and may be subject to change.

Army

| 1998 | — | 90 |

| 2005 | 1,975 | 185 |
| 2006 | 1,540 | 295 |
| 2007 | 1,400 | 270 |

Notes:
1. The figures provided for summary dealing give the number of charges of AWOL, not the number of individuals. The figures could therefore include repeat offenders.
2. Information on summary dealings prior to 2 October 2000 is not recorded centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Royal Air Force

| | Summary dealing (officers only) | Court martial (all ranks) |

| 2005 | 0 | 0 |
| 2007 | 0 | [1] |

[1] Denotes fewer than five.

Notes:
1. Information prior to 1 January 2000 is not recorded centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.
2. Instances of AWOL by other ranks which were dealt with summarily are not recorded centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Armed Forces: Foreign Workers

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many non-UK nationals served in the armed forces in each of the last 10 years, broken down by nationality. [182430]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 25 January 2008]: The following table shows the number of full-time non-UK nationals serving in the UK armed forces[1,2,3,4] by nationality as at 1 April each year.

[1] Full Time Personnel comprises UK Regular Forces, Gurkhas and FTRS personnel. It does not include the Home Service Battalions of the Royal Irish Regiment or mobilised reservists.
[2] Information on FTRS personnel is not included pre 1999 as this scheme was introduced in August 1998 under Section 24 of the Reserve Forces Act 1996.
[3] The information in the table above is for Army personnel only in 1998-2005; for Army and RAF personnel in 2006 and for all services in 2007. This is because information on nationality for Navy personnel is only available post Joint Personal Administration implementation (October 2006 for Navy) and information on nationality for RAF personnel pre Joint Personnel Administration (April 2006 for RAF) can be provided only at a disproportionate cost.
All 2006 and 2007 information is marked as provisional due to the ongoing validation of Joint Personnel Administration data.
[4] Nationality figures are based on those with a known Nationality only.

Armed Forces: Foreigners

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what procedures are used in recruiting non-UK citizens to the armed forces; and if he will make a statement; [180046]

(2) what printed documents are used to recruit non-UK citizens to the armed forces; and if he will place copies in the Library. [180047]

Derek Twigg: All applicants to the UK regular armed forces, regardless of whether they are UK or Commonwealth citizens or Republic of Ireland nationals, are given equal consideration; all have to meet the same basic entry standards and go through an identical recruit selection process.

Apart from our long standing arrangements with the Government of Nepal to recruit Gurkhas, the armed forces do not actively recruit overseas. However, in recent years, the Army has sent selection teams to a few countries (mainly Fiji) at the specific request of the government concerned, but only when evidence suggests that there is sufficient interest among the local population to merit a visit. The selection teams screen out those who are not thought capable of meeting the full entry standards to save them the cost of an abortive trip to the UK where they undergo the recruitment process.

The recruitment documentation used is identical regardless of the nationality of the applicant. A copy of the armed forces application form, AFCO form 4, and its accompanying information and guidance booklet, AFCO form 5, will be placed in the Library of the House.

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what entitlements non-UK citizens have on discharge from the armed forces (a) before they have completed basic training, (b) on leaving before the end of their engagement and (c) leaving at the end of their engagement. [180048]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Non-UK citizens receive the same pay and allowances as their UK counterparts while they are serving in the armed forces and these cease on discharge. They also receive the same entitlements to pension benefits and resettlement grants as their UK counterparts on discharge.

With regard to travel arrangements, I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 1 February 2008, Official Report, column 700W.

Armed Forces: Hospitals

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many and what percentage of wounded military personnel are being cared for in military hospitals. [173850]

Derek Twigg: In answering this question I have taken wounded to mean UK Service battle casualties from operations in Afghanistan and Iraq.

There are no longer any military hospitals in the UK, with secondary medical care for service personnel now provided within the NHS. Since 2001, the Royal Centre for Defence Medicine (RCDM), based at the University Hospital Birmingham Foundation Trust (UHBFT), has been the main receiving unit for military casualties evacuated from an operational theatre. In the Birmingham area, military patients can benefit from the concentration of five specialist hospitals (including Selly Oak hospital) to receive a very high standard of care. Indeed, Selly Oak is at the leading edge in the medical care of the most common types of injuries (e.g. polytrauma) our casualties sustain.

As at 1 February 2008, there were a total of 15 military in-patients being treated at RCDM, of whom eight were battle casualties from Iraq and Afghanistan.

Armed Forces: Housing

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many units of (a) married and (b) single accommodation are provided at each barracks in (i) the United Kingdom and (ii) Germany; and what percentage of that accommodation is (A) in use, (B) subject to repair and refurbishment and (C) empty. [168171]

Derek Twigg: The requested information is not held centrally and it will take time to determine what can be provided without incurring disproportionate cost. I will therefore write to my hon. Friend and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Substantive answer from Derek Twigg to David Drew:

I undertook to write to you in answer to your parliamentary question on 28 November 2007, Official Report, column 449W about the number of units of married and single accommodation provided at each barracks in the United Kingdom and Germany; and what percentage of that accommodation is in use, subject to repair and refurbishment and empty.

I regret that as stated the information regarding Single Living Accommodation is not held centrally. To collate the detail necessary would necessitate direct contact with every individual unit of all three Services and would incur disproportionate costs.

Information on Service Families Accommodation (SFA in the UK), together with numbers of voids at each location, is set out in Annex A. Currently some 81 per cent. of UK SFA properties are occupied with 19 per cent void (not in use). Properties are void for various reasons, including:

to allow for modernisation work, disposal or demolition to be carried out, when the SFA property is under offer to applicants, to allow for routine movements of personnel,

the property is held pending operational deployments or unit moves, to allow for release to AHL for sale.

It is not possible to identify the exact number of void properties undergoing repair as in most cases where property is void for a short period of time between occupants some form of repair is undertaken.

For SLA and SFA in Germany, the situation is as follows:

SLA Unit

| | In use | Percentage in use | Subject to refurbishment |
|---|---|---|---|
| Rheindahlen | 148 | 100 | 0 |
| Paderborn | 113 | 98 | 2 |
| Gutersloh | 102 | 100 | 0 |
| Hohne | 124 | 91 | 9 |
| Osnabruck | 25 | 100 | 0 |

SFA Unit

| | In use | Percentage in use | Subject to refurbishment |
|---|---|---|---|
| Rheindahlen | 2,911 | 74 | n/a |
| Paderborn | 2,593 | 79 | n/a |
| Gutersloh | 2,838 | 86 | n/a |
| Hohne | 2,405 | 83 | n/a |
| Osnabruck | 2,105 | 86 | n/a |

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of his Department's housing stock is void or uninhabited. [171003]

Derek Twigg: 12,240 (17 per cent.) of the some 71,000 service family accommodation held worldwide are void. Void stock includes accommodation being held for planned moves of service units, or awaiting planned upgrades, sale or release, modernisation or demolition.

Work is ongoing to further reduce the numbers of voids. Since March 2007, the number of void SFA properties has reduced from 13,336 to 12,240.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the total number of void (a) single living accommodation and (b) service family accommodation is in (i) the UK and (ii) overseas. [177534]

Derek Twigg: Of the 165,000 single living accommodation (SLA) bed-spaces and the 71,000 service family accommodation (SFA) worldwide, the number of voids in the UK and overseas is broken down as follows:

| Accommodation type | Single living accommodation | Service family accommodation |
|---|---|---|
| UK | 22,022 | 9,390 |
| Overseas | 12,291 | 2,850 |
| Total | 34,293 | 12,240 |

Note:
Figures dated 22 January 2008

Void stock includes accommodation being held for planned moves of service units, or awaiting planned upgrades, sale or release, modernisation or demolition.

Work is ongoing to further reduce the numbers of voids. Since March 2007, the total number of void SLA bed-spaces has reduced from 46,325 to 34,293 and in the same period, void SFA has reduced from 13,336 to 12,240 properties.

Armed Forces: Leave

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) average and (b) highest percentage of annual leave lost by personnel in the (i) Army, (ii) Navy, (iii) RAF and (iv) all services has been in the last 12 months. [182327]

Derek Twigg: The information requested is not held centrally. However, the Defence Analytical Services Agency (DASA) undertake an annual Survey of Leave which captures the number of lost leave days for each respondent. Overall estimates for the Army and RAF for the 2006-07 leave year are shown in the following table.

It is not possible to provide reliable 2006-07 estimates for the Navy (including Royal Marines) due to low response rates, caused by their migration to the new joint personnel administration system during the 2006-07 leave year.

Table of estimated average percentage and average number of annual leave days not taken and not carried forward in 2006-07

|---|---|---|
| RAF | 6 | 2.6 |

Since the survey of leave is a sample survey it cannot be used to identify the highest value in the population as a whole. The survey excludes personnel of Major General rank and above (or equivalents).

Historical copies of the Survey of Leave report are available in the Library of the House and the 2006-07 report will be available shortly.

Armed Forces: Manpower

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the peace establishment was of the (a) Royal Dragoon Guards, (b) 1st Battalion Scots Guards, (c) Royal Scots Borderers, 1st Battalion The Royal Regiment of Scotland, (d) 1st Battalion The Duke of Lancaster's Regiment, (e) 1st Battalion The Mercian Regiment, (f) D Battery, 3rd Regiment Royal Horse Artillery and (g) K Battery, 5th Regiment Royal Artillery prior to deployment to Iraq; what the deployable strength of each battalion is; and how many of all ranks are physically unfit to deploy. [184723]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The information requested is shown in the following table. The relevant units are currently deployed and as the disclosure of exact numbers would, or would be likely to, prejudice the capability, effectiveness and security of our armed forces, numbers have been rounded to the nearest 100 or where less than 100 to the nearest 10, as appropriate.

|---|---|---|---|
| 1 Royal Dragoon Guards | 500 | 500 | 60 |
| 1 Battalion Scots Guards | 700 | 600 | 70 |
| 1 Royal Scots Borderers | 600 | 500 | 40 |
| 1 Lancaster Regiment | 700 | 600 | 80 |
| 1 Mercian Regiment (Cheshire) | 600 | 500 | 60 |

3rd Regiment Royal Horse Artillery are providing an enduring commitment to operations in Iraq at sub unit level. K Battery 5th Regiment Royal Artillery is also providing a bespoke force element to meet current operational requirements. The combined deployment figure for both units is less than 100 personnel. The peace establishment for both forces prior to deployment is around 100 personnel each. However, I am withholding the actual figures as their disclosure would, or would be likely to, prejudice the capability, effectiveness and security of our armed forces.

Armed Forces: Medical Records

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many requests have been made for medical records of (a) serving and (b) veteran service personnel by (i) GPs, (ii) hospital consultants and (iii) individual service personnel and veterans, in each of the last five years; how many of those records were unable to be retrieved; and if he will make a statement. [170212]

Derek Twigg: In the Royal Navy and the Army, medical records of serving personnel are mostly held at individual unit level. Details of the number of requests could be obtained only by contacting each of them individually, which could be done only at disproportionate cost. The RAF primary health care directorate holds its records centrally, although an annual breakdown of requests is not available without a manual analysis of the records.

The medical records for those who have left the armed forces may be held either by the MOD central health records library (CHRL) or by the three single services. The Service Personnel and Veterans Agency (SPVA) also holds some records, but in the majority of cases these will be on loan from the other organisations. When the SPVA receives requests for copies of records, it will in most cases obtain them from CHRL or the single services, thus itself accounting for a significant number of the requests recorded.

Each organisation collates its figures in the way that best meets its own business needs. Only the Army has been able to break down the number of requests by the type of requester; in other organisations, this detail is not recorded centrally. Also, not all of them record the number of requests made where records are not held. Furthermore, these numbers will inevitably include instances of double-counting. For example, when a request for records has been made of more than one organisation, (CHRL, SPVA and the single services) this will usually result in a "record not held" tally in one of them.

The information that can be provided is as follows,

CHRL

| | Number of requests for medical records of veterans | Number of requests where records not held |
|---|---|---|
| 2003 | 1,523 | n/k |
| 2004 | 1,800 | 287 |
| 2005 | 1,721 | 462 |

| 2007 (to end September) | 1,551 | 357 |

Royal Navy

John Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to introduce electronic medical records within the armed forces; and when they will be introduced. [185991]

Derek Twigg: The health records of members of the armed forces are already held electronically, but until recently records could only be accessed at an individual's local medical centre. As I announced in Colchester on 1 August 2007, the defence medical information capability Programme will improve this capability by providing a single integrated record for each member of the armed forces, which will be accessible at any armed forces medical and dental centre worldwide, and which will also eventually be linked to NHS IT systems. The implementation of this programme is under way, beginning with two pilot sites in February 2007. The system has now been rolled out to 140 medical centres in the Army and the RAF in the UK. Roll-out to all remaining medical and dental centres, including the Royal Navy and Defence sites overseas, is due to be complete by early 2009. Roll-out to deployed operational facilities, both on land and on HM ships, is due to begin in late 2008 and should be complete by the end of 2009.

Armed Forces: Offices

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how officers OF 1 to 10 and other ranks OR 1 to 9 relate to 2nd lieutenant through to general and private to warrant officer on the rank structure section of the Defence Analytical Services Agency TSP 09. [170020]

Derek Twigg: The information requested is available on page 3 of TSP 9. A copy of this is available at http://www.dasa.mod.uk/natstats/tsp9/tsp9tab4.html.

Armed Forces: Pay

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library a copy of the latest edition of his Department's Local Overseas Allowances Survey report. [185713]

Derek Twigg: Analysis of the most recent survey is currently in progress so figures are not yet available.

No formal report has previously been produced.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library copies of his Department's (a) main manning evidence and (b) mid-year update manning evidence supplied to the Armed Forces' Pay Review Body for each financial year from 1997-98. [185716]

Derek Twigg: All available information on the manning evidence supplied to the Armed Forces' Pay Review Body from 1997-98 is being collated and will be placed in the Library in due course.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library a copy of each of the tables containing data on (a) medical officers and dentists, (b) nursing staff and (c) allied health professionals supplied to the Armed Forces' Pay Review Body in respect of each financial year from 1997-98. [185717]

Derek Twigg: All available information on medical officers and dentists, nursing staff and allied health professionals supplied to the Armed Forces' Pay Review Body from 1997-98 is being collated and will be placed in the Library in due course.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence in which years his Department has staged implementation of the recommendations of the Armed Forces' Pay Review Body since 1977. [185950]

Derek Twigg: Since 1977, the Government have staged the implementation of the Armed Forces' Pay Review Body (AFPRB) recommendations on seven occasions, but when this has occurred they have always been effected within the same financial year. Staging occurred in 1984, 1986, 1990, 1994, 1996, 1997 and 1998.

Armed Forces: Personnel Management

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will hold discussions with those responsible for the operation of the Joint Personnel Administration system on marrying Territorial records with mobilised records. [185452]

Derek Twigg: There are no known systemic problems with the Joint Personnel Administration (JPA) system affecting reservists. However, there are two issues that are currently being addressed.

At present, there is no provision via the JPA system for pension contributions to be paid by the MOD to the private or occupational pension schemes of volunteer reservists while they are mobilised. The facility to do this will be incorporated in the next major release of JPA software scheduled for March 2008. Until the automated solution is delivered in March, a manual process is in place.

The second issue relates to a failure in some instances for action to be taken to inform the JPA system that a reservist has been mobilised. The implications of this are that any deductions that need to be made while reservists are mobilised may be taken in error from their "attendance-based" pay account, rather than their full-time pay account that becomes active while they are mobilised. Instances of this are rare, and I am confident that ongoing education and training of Human Resources administrators will eradicate the problem.

Armed Forces: Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder

John Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the evaluation of the trauma risk management pilot programme will be (a) completed and (b) published. [185988]

Derek Twigg: The trauma risk management (TRiM) study was conducted by the King's Centre for Military Health Research and the Academic Centre for Defence Mental Health on behalf of (and funded by) the MOD. The study is currently being written up for submission to peer-reviewed academic journals.

Armed Forces: Protective Clothing

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether weight-dispersion boots are available to British forces in theatres where mines are prevalent; and to which armed forces personnel they are made available. [181789]

Des Browne: Generally, UK armed forces only remove unexploded ordnance and mines that are a direct threat to operations, and they are provided with the equipment they need in order to do so safely. Weight-dispersion boots are not made available as these are best suited to use in humanitarian de-mining operations. While there were experiments of a similar capability in 2000, the boots were assessed as unsuitable for high-intensity operations where soldiers require the ability to breach minefields quickly and then revert immediately to normal combat operations.

Armed Forces: Recruitment

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) Army, (b) Royal Navy, (c) Royal Air Force and (d) Royal Marines recruitment targets were in each of the last 10 years; and what the actual recruitment to each service was in each year in that period. [186779]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The following table shows the actual recruitment to the UK regular forces[1] from civilian life as a percentage of recruitment targets for financial years 1997-98 to 2006-07.

Armed Forces: Training

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many and what proportion of armed forces training exercises were cancelled in 2007; and if he will list each such exercise and the reason for cancellation in each case. [185770]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: During 2007, a total of 727 training events were scheduled on the Defence Exercise Programme, of which 76 (10.5 per cent.) were cancelled or, in the case of some multinational exercises, UK assets were withdrawn. In detail, 18 exercises were cancelled owing to operational commitments, 29 were removed as savings measures and seven were cancelled by other nations. ## Armed Forces: Working Hours

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) average and (b) highest number of working hours for personnel in the (i) Army, (ii) Navy, (iii) RAF and (iv) all services was in the last 12 months. [182329]

Derek Twigg: The information requested is not held centrally on administration systems. However, the Defence Analytical Services Agency (DASA) carries out a continuous survey of working patterns which is used to provide estimates of average hours[1] worked by each service. This information is contained in the following table.

Table of estimated average hours worked[1] per week by service personnel[2] in 2006-07

| Service | Average number of hours worked per week |
|---|---|
| Naval Service[3] | 52.7 |
| Tri-Service | 48.0 |

[1] Hours worked includes time spent carrying out normal work, secondary duties, compulsory fitness training, organised sports and representational activities, but excludes annual leave, meal and tea breaks and time spent on call.
[2] Survey excludes personnel of Major General rank and above (or equivalents).
[3] Naval Service includes the Royal Navy and the Royal Marines.

Because the continuous survey of working patterns is a sample survey, it cannot be used to identify the highest value in the population as a whole.

The 2006-07 copy of the continuous survey of working patterns report will be available in the Library of the House shortly.

Armoured Fighting Vehicles

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 10 December 2007, Official Report, column 55W, on armoured fighting vehicles, what key user requirements the Cheetah vehicle did not meet; and what the key user requirements will be for future (a) protected and (b) unprotected military vehicles. [175209]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Cheetah vehicle did not meet the minimum internal space requirement. With regard to future protected/unprotected military vehicles, I am withholding information about the key user requirements, as disclosure would, or would be likely to, prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the armed forces.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much expenditure his Department has incurred repairing armoured vehicles damaged as a result of operations in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan since 2001. [186036]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 13 December 2007, Official Report, column 777W.

Army: Commonwealth

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Commonwealth citizens were recruited to the British Army in the last 12 months, broken down by nationality. [183149]

Derek Twigg: The following table shows the intake from civilian life to the UK Regular Army of officers and soldiers who have a Commonwealth nationality recorded. The intake is for the period 1 March 2006 to 28 February 2007 as flows for the last 12 months are currently unavailable.

| Total | 740 |

Notes:
1. Due to the ongoing validation of the new Joint Personnel Administration System DASA are unable at this time to provide any information for intake and nationality since April 2007.
2. Figures show trained and untrained intake from civilian life including rejoined reservists and re-enlistments.
3. UK Regular Army includes Nursing Services and excludes Full Time Reserve Service personnel, Gurkhas, the Home Service Battalions of the Royal Irish Regiments and mobilised reservists.
4. The nationality above is that recorded on intake and not necessarily the same as nationality at birth.
5. Although DASA are currently unable to provide the latest figures on intake, the strengths figure as at 1 November 2007 show a net increase of 130 in the number with Commonwealth nationality.
6. Figures have been rounded to the nearest 5 to limit disclosure and ensure confidentiality. Totals have been rounded separately and so may not appear to be the sum of their parts.
7. Data less than 5 has been suppressed and replaced with '—'.

Army: Dogs

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will hold discussions with the Kennel Club on increasing the supply of working dogs entering into service with the Royal Veterinary Corps of the British Army. [185246]

Derek Twigg: Any individuals or breeders, including members of the Kennel Club, are welcome to approach the dog procurement section at the Defence Animal Centre if they feel they have suitable dogs to supply to the Ministry of Defence. However, there is currently no shortage in supply of military working dogs.

Army: Manpower

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library a copy of each of his Department's (a) Army monthly manning report and (b) Army cascade returns for each month since 2005-06. [185722]

Derek Twigg: Copies of the Defence Analytical Services Agency Army monthly manning report since April 2005 will be placed in the Library in due course. The last monthly manning report was produced in March 2007.

I am withholding the Army cascade returns because their release would disclose personal information, and preparing them for disclosure would incur disproportionate cost.

Army: Northern Ireland

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people from Northern Ireland joined the British Army in 2007. [185673]

Derek Twigg: In 2007, 257 people from Northern Ireland, who applied through one of the four Armed Forces Careers or Army Careers Information Offices in Northern Ireland, joined the Army.

Army: Recruitment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the recruitment (a) requirement and (b) actual number achieved for the (i) infantry, (ii) Royal Artillery, (iii) Royal Logistic Corps and (iv) Royal Signals was in each month in 2007. [186041]

Derek Twigg: Recruiting targets are set against an annual, not monthly, requirement across financial years. Officers are not recruited against arm or corps targets but against a whole army requirement. The annual enlistment targets for soldiers for the arms and corps requested are shown below, together with the figures actually achieved.

| | 2006-07 | | 2007-08 | |
| Arm or corps | Enlistment achievemgnt | Annual target | Enlistment achievement to 31 December | Annual target |

| Royal Signals | 750 | 870 | 360 | 880 |
| Royal Logistic Corps | 2,100 | 2,410 | 1,090 | 2,080 |
| Infantry | 4,310 | 4,260 | 2,800 | 4,940 |

Statistics have been rounded to the nearest 10, and numbers ending in five have been rounded to the nearest multiple of 20 to prevent systematic bias.

Ballistic Missile Defence: RAF Menwith Hill

Mr. Kilfoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what date the Government received the formal request from the United States administration for Menwith Hill to be used in the US Missile Defence System. [185849]

Des Browne: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 7 January 2008, Official Report, column 30W, to the hon. Member for Lewes (Norman Baker).

Chad: EC Defence Policy

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the status of the European Security and Defence Policy mission to Chad. [186300]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Deployment of the ESDP mission to Chad/Central African Republic had been temporarily suspended owing to the internal security situation in Chad. However, following the operation commander's assessment of the prevailing situation in Chad and discussions in the EU Political and Security Committee on 8 February, deployment has now resumed. Initial operating capability is still expected to be achieved by the end of March as previously planned.

Chelsea Barracks

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress has been made on the sale of Chelsea Barracks; what his most recent estimate is of the capital to be realised from the sale; and whether the receipts will be hypothecated as funding additional to current provision for new and improved accommodation for service personnel. [184498]

Derek Twigg: On 31 January 2008, the Ministry of Defence (MOD) completed the sale of Chelsea Barracks to Project Blue (Guernsey) Ltd for £959 million. Exchange of contracts took place in April 2007, and the receipts from the sale were anticipated as part of the MOD's plans for investment in service accommodation both in 2007-08 and as part of the comprehensive spending review. More than £200 million will be spent on service accommodation in the current financial year, and £550 million will be spent between 2008-09 and 2010-11 as announced in the comprehensive spending review White Paper. The balance of the proceeds will also be allocated for service accommodation as part of the next spending review. In addition, the Department has made available a further £80 million for investment in single living accommodation over the next three years.

Christmas Cards

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department spent on (a) Christmas cards and (b) postage of Christmas cards in 2007. [176919]

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department has spent on (a) Christmas cards and (b) postage of Christmas cards in 2007-08. [179548]

Derek Twigg: MOD expenditure on Christmas cards and postage of Christmas cards for 2007 is £500 and £200 respectively.

These figures include printing, purchase and postage, but exclude a small amount spent by Defence Attachés (for permitted representational purposes) which could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department's agencies spent on (a) Christmas cards and (b) postage of Christmas cards in each year since 1997. [182443]

Derek Twigg: In 2005, £1,100 was spent on Christmas cards and postage and £200 was spent in 2006. No money was spent by the Department's agencies on Christmas cards or postage in 2007. The information for previous years could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Trading funds' expenditure is not included in this response, as they are outside the MOD's departmental boundary for financial reporting purposes.

Commonwealth: Armed Forces

Colin Challen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many members of the UK armed forces who are citizens of other Commonwealth countries served in (a) each of the services and (b) operational theatres in each of the last 10 years. [179797]

Derek Twigg: The following table shows the number of other (non-UK) Commonwealth citizens (based on nationality) in the UK armed forces[1,2,3], at 1 April in each year.

| | Service | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Navy | Army | RAF | UK armed forces[3] |

n/a = Data not available. Numbers have been rounded to the nearest 10.

[1] Data are for UK Regular forces (trained and untrained), including Nursing Services and excluding Full Time Reserve Service personnel, Gurkhas, the Home Service battalions of the Royal Irish Regiment and mobilised reservists.

[2] Information by country of origin for Navy personnel is only available post Joint Personnel Administration implementation (October 2006 for Navy). Information by country of origin for RAF personnel pre Joint Personnel Administration (April 2006 for RAF) can be provided only at a disproportionate cost. Information in the table above is for Army personnel only in 1998-2005; for Army and RAF personnel in 2006 and for all services in 2007. All 2007 information and 2006 RAF information is marked as provisional due to the ongoing validation of Army Joint Personnel Administration data.

[3] Figures include personnel from Fiji and Pakistan which were suspended from the Commonwealth in December 2006 and November 2007 respectively and Zimbabwe which withdrew from the Commonwealth in December 2003.

CPS21 Publication

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library copies of the quarterly CPS21 publication for each quarter since the third quarter of 2006-07. [185765]

Derek Twigg: Yes.

Defence Aviation Repair Agency

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, with reference to the proposed sale of the Defence Aviation Repair Agency (DARA) to Vector Aerospace, how many members of the DARA workforce will transfer to a new pension scheme; how many will remain in the current Crown Service scheme; and how much he has agreed to transfer to the new scheme. [186308]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: There are currently 797 MOD employees at DARA's Rotary Wing Business Unit at Fleetlands, Hampshire and 295 at the Components Business Unit in Almondbank, Perthshire who will transfer to the new Vector Aerospace pension scheme on sale completion, unless they choose to opt out. In accordance with the Government's "Fair Deal for Staff Pensions" (2004) guidance, they will not be able to remain members of the Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme (PCSPS) after sale completion. However, they will be entitled to three months' notice to decide whether to retain their accrued pension contributions in the PCSPS until retirement age or transfer the benefits to the new Vector Aerospace scheme.

The MOD will not know how many employees will elect to retain their accrued benefits in the PCSPS until the three-month options exercise has been completed. The PCSPS actuaries will then be able to calculate the bulk transfer payment that will be transferred to the new Vector Aerospace scheme.

Defence: Procurement

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects to publish the next phase of the Defence Industrial Policy. [185433]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Defence Industrial Policy was published in 2002 and there is no current intention to update it. It has been taken forward by the White Paper Defence Industrial Strategy (CM 6697), published in 2005. We are currently reviewing the timetable for the publication of the updated Defence Industrial Strategy. I will inform the House of the publication date in due course.

Departmental Conditions of Employment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library copies of his Department's reports on (a) the working patterns survey, (b) the leave survey and (c) pay analysis—current and future pay for the financial years 2005-06 and 2007-08. [185764]

Derek Twigg: Copies of the continuous working patterns survey and leave survey reports for 2005-06 are already available in the Library of the House. The 2006-07 copies will be available in the Library shortly. The 2007-08 reports will not be produced until summer 2008.

The outputs from the pay analyses—current and future pay report are purely unrounded numerical data held in spreadsheet format. As such, no accessible reports are available for publication and could be produced only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Data Protection

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his Department's policy is on the (a) classification and (b) electronic storage of sensitive information. [182385]

Des Browne [holding answer 25 January 2008]: The Ministry of Defence follows Government policy on the classification and electronic storage of sensitive information.

The value of the information determines its classification. Only the originator of the information can apply a protective marking and this cannot be changed without the originator's consent. Personnel are required to take account of the protective marking of the information and to apply the standard of encryption appropriate to the protective marking.

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what steps he has taken on (a) informing and (b) advising those whose personal data was contained in the missing laptops; and if he will make a statement; [185361]

(2) what advice has been given to those whose data was contained on the missing departmental laptops. [185362]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 7 February 2008]: As my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State said in his statement of 21 January 2008, Official Report, column 1225, we have written to the 3,702 personnel on the database whose bank details have been potentially compromised. In that letter, recipients were informed that the MOD had arranged for their bank or building society to be contacted about the theft, and those banks and building societies will monitor their accounts for signs of any unauthorised activity.

The banks and building societies have assured the MOD that they have the appropriate safeguards in place and that there is no need for people to ask for a new account. Under the Banking Code, when accounts are used fraudulently by a third party the account holder is not liable.

We also advised that individuals might wish to take steps to protect themselves. For example, they should contact their bank or building society immediately in the event of any unexpected activity on their accounts. We reminded recipients that they should not give out personal details if anyone contacted them unexpectedly. We advised them to take a note of the caller's name and telephone number and, if they were suspicious, to contact their bank or building society. Lastly, if any of the passwords they used to access their accounts were based on their personal data, we advised that they should consider changing those passwords.

In addition, the Department has written to a further 147,823 people whose personal details have been lost, and similar advice was provided.

Finally, for those who wished to make further inquiries we have established a freephone helpline, an e-mail address and a freepost address for people seeking clarification on what personal data has been lost.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his Department's policy is on the use of universal serial bus flash memory data storage devices to store (a) restricted, (b) confidential, (c) secret and (d) top secret data. [186050]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Only MOD universal serial bus memory data storage devices, which have been approved by the systems accreditor, are to be used.

All such devices, regardless of the protective marking of the data, are to be registered and issued to named individuals, who remain responsible for the device. With the exception of unclassified material, the data on the device must be encrypted, and the device must be securely destroyed when no longer needed.

Departmental Freedom of Information

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of Freedom of Information requests received from (a) parliamentarians, (b) businesses, (c) academics and (d) media sources have been agreed to by his Department since the Freedom of Information Act 2000 came into force. [180191]

Derek Twigg: It should be noted that the statistics contained within this answer refer only to requests for information in which applicants have declared their occupation. This is not necessary for the Department to process a request.

| | Percentage of total FOI requests from these sources and answered in full or part | Percentage of FOI requests from these sources answered in full or part | Percentage of total FOI requests, which where from these sources and were refused in full | Percentage of FOI requests from these sources refused in full |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Parliament | 0.5 | 34.2 | 0.1 | 1.9 |
| Business | 5.8 | 57.0 | 0.4 | 4.1 |
| Academia | 2.5 | 56.3 | 0.2 | 4.3 |
| Media | 6.6 | 37.0 | 1.0 | 5.6 |

When requests are refused in full, it is either because the information was considered exempt under the FOI Act or because answering them would incur a cost to the Department which would exceed the 'appropriate limit', set at £600.

The status of the remaining requests known to be from these sectors, is currently defined as 'other', which means that they have been withdrawn by the requester; that they are subject to a permitted extension under the FOI Act; that they are 'open', i.e. their status cannot currently be determined; or that the requested information was not held by the Department.

Departmental ICT

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) mobile telephones, (b) personal digital assistants and (c) laptop computers issued to departmental staff were reported (i) lost, (ii) missing and (iii) stolen in each year since 2001. [184322]

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many universal serial bus flash memory data storage devices used to store (a) restricted, (b) confidential, (c) secret and (d) top secret data have been lost by or stolen from his Department in each year since 2001. [186051]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: As a result of the recent theft of a laptop, the Ministry of Defence has initiated an investigation into the details of all lost or stolen electronic media since 2003. This investigation involves the collation and examination of reports from across the Department including final disposal action where available. While every effort is being made to gather the information as quickly and accurately as possible, not all the details are currently available. In addition, it should be noted that details of such incidents were not collated centrally before 2003 and therefore will not be available.

I will write to the hon. Members when the information has been collated, and will place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many of his Department's personal digital assistants have been (a) lost and (b) stolen in each of the last five years; and what the value of those items was. [185276]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: As a result of the recent theft of a laptop, the Ministry of Defence has initiated an investigation into the details of all lost or stolen electronic media, including PDAs, since 2003. This process involves examining and collating reports from across the Ministry of Defence including final disposal action.

While every effort is being made to gather the information expeditiously, not all the details are currently available.

I will write to the hon. Member when the information is available, and will arrange for a copy to be placed in the Library of the House.

Departmental Leadership

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the outcomes have been of steps taken to improve corporate leadership in his Department following the findings of his Department's capability review. [185256]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: We are approaching the halfway stage of a two-year plan to strengthen corporate leadership in the Department and the other three areas identified by the capability review. This includes a continued effort by the senior leadership team to provide the Department with strong and visible corporate leadership, supported by changes in board structures which will be fully implemented by 1 April. These include the replacement of a large number of subordinate boards and committees with a single operating board to ensure that the Defence board's strategic direction is carried through into action.

Departmental Manpower

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of his Department's authorised civilian work force in the financial years (a) 2008-09 and (b) 2010-11. [185766]

Derek Twigg: The MOD is currently undertaking a number of programmes that will ultimately result in a smaller civilian work force. Estimates of the number of civilians have not been finalised.

Departmental Marketing

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many branded plastic bags his Department has purchased in the last 24 months for which figures are available; and at what cost. [176505]

Derek Twigg: The information is not held centrally and could be provided at disproportionate cost only.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the special advisers employed in his Department since 6 May 1997; and what the (a) start and (b) end date of employment was in each case. [184365]

Des Browne: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my hon. Friend the Under-Secretary of State for Defence on 14 January 2008, Official Report, column 884W, to the hon. Member for Brent, East (Sarah Teather).

Departmental Pay

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) net pay bill cost and (b) net percentage increase to the pay bill was of implementing his Department's civilian pay rises in each financial year from 1996-97 to 2007-08. [180298]

Derek Twigg: The civilian staff pay bill costs are as follows:

| | Total pay costs (£ billion) |
|---|---|
| 1997-98 | 2.0 |
| 1998-99 | 2.0 |
| 1999-2000 | 2.1 |
| 2000-01 | 2.1 |
| 2001-02 | 2.1 |
| 2002-03 | 2.1 |
| 2003-04 | 2.1 |
| 2004-05 | 2.2 |
| 2005-06 | 2.4 |
| 2006-07 | 2.4 |

Note:
This table shows the total civilian paybill costs for all industrial and non-industrial civil servants employed by MOD, excluding trading funds and locally engaged civilians. The costs include pay, employer's ERNIC and pension contributions. They also include an element of pay allowances such as Recruitment and Retention Allowances (both locational and functional).

The MOD civilian work force consists of myriad groups of staff which are subject to different pay bargaining processes and different annual pay settlements. The information requested could therefore be provided only at disproportionate cost. Pay settlements are implemented in accordance with Government pay policy.

Departmental Public Relations

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many external contracts his Department held with public relations companies in each of the last 10 years; and what the total cost of those contracts was. [183198]

Derek Twigg: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Reports

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what reports Ministers in his Department have received from (a) civil servants and (b) military personnel in the last three months. [186053]

Derek Twigg: Ministers routinely receive reports, oral and written, from civil servants and military personnel on a wide range of subjects. Information on the total number of reports and the subjects they have covered is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what reports have been commissioned by Ministers in his Department in the last three months. [186056]

Des Browne: Ministers routinely commission reports, oral and written, on a wide range of subjects. Information on the total number of reports and the subjects they have covered is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Sick Leave

John Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when his Department plans to undertake an evaluation of its new sickness absence management programme. [185989]

Derek Twigg: A full post-project evaluation of the sickness absence management (SAM) programme was conducted in October 2007. As a consequence, the SAM policy has been rewritten in order to make it more explanatory and to include the interaction with the newly introduced patient care pathway. The policy is kept under constant review to ensure that it remains effective.

Employment Agencies

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department paid to recruitment agencies in relation to departmental appointments in each year since 1997. [184916]

Derek Twigg: Decisions on the appointment of recruitment agencies to assist with external recruitment are delegated to many different parts of the Department, and therefore the information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

All recruitment of civil servants to the Department complies with the code for recruitment provided by the Civil Service Commissioners. A management area may employ a recruitment agency when it judges that this is necessary to attract the best candidates for the post.

Estonia: Hacking

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent discussions he has had with his NATO counterparts on the distributed denial of service attack on Estonian critical infrastructure in May 2007. [185953]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The disruption that Estonia faced in May 2007 underlines the importance of the work that NATO is carrying out on cyber defence and the protection of critical infrastructure. Cyber defence is discussed by NATO Defence Ministers on a regular basis, most recently at their meeting in Vilnius which the Secretary of State for Defence attended on 7-8 February.

EU Battlegroups

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether non-NATO European Union member states providing EU battlegroups in support of the EU's battlegroup concept train to NATO common standards. [186054]

Des Browne: The EU battlegroup concept directs that whenever it is possible and applicable to do so, battlegroup packages must be trained to and able to meet the same standards and criteria required for similar formations assigned to the NATO Response Force.

Fort Halstead: Manpower

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the greatest number of people employed at Fort Halstead in Kent has been; and in which year that number of people were employed. [176277]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 7 January 2008]: Prior to 2001 the site at Fort Halstead was operated by DERA, the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency. Following the split of DERA in July 2001 the site has been owned and managed by the privatised company QinetiQ, but has retained an enclave of staff from the Defence Science and Technology Laboratory (Dstl), via a formal 99 year lease.

Dstl only has accurate figures from 1 July 2001, vesting day. On this date Dstl had 529 employees based at Fort Halstead, over the years this has increased to a maximum of 716 on 1 February 2008.

France

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions his Department has had with the French commission undertaking a review of French defence and national security; and if he will make a statement. [186709]

Des Browne: UK and French officials meet regularly to discuss defence and security issues, both bilaterally and in the context of NATO and the EU. In addition, senior officials in the Ministry of Defence, the Cabinet Office and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office held discussions with Mr. Mallet, the Head of the French commission, during his visit to the UK in October 2007.

Future Rapid Effect System

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what the planned in-service date is of the future rapid effect system; and if he will make a statement; [185470]

(2) if he will make a statement on the Future Rapid Effect System. [185471]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Future Rapid Effect System (FRES) will deliver a fleet of wheeled and tracked armoured vehicles capable of operating across the spectrum of operations and protecting against the most likely threats. We are making significant progress with FRES, and I announced the successful completion of the utility vehicle design trials at the end of November. We have undertaken further work and will make a definitive announcement on a preferred design to be taken forward in due course.

In service dates are not normally set until the main investment decision.

Gurkhas

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) if he will put in place measures to (a) reduce the number of serving Royal Gurkha Rifles personnel who are leaving the British Army in order to apply for indefinite leave to remain (ILR) in the United Kingdom and (b) extend ILR status to such personnel; [185249]

(2) if he will extend home student status to the children of serving Royal Gurkha Rifles personnel. [185251]

Derek Twigg: Gurkha service in the British Army is enabled through an agreement made between the Governments of the UK, Nepal and India in 1947—the Tripartite Agreement. Gurkhas are recruited in Nepal and remain Nepalese citizens throughout their service in the Brigade of Gurkhas. This is in line with the wishes of the Government of Nepal.

There is no evidence to suggest that significant numbers of Gurkha personnel are applying to leave the British Army early in order to seek indefinite leave to remain in the United Kingdom. Under their new terms and conditions of service, introduced last year, Gurkhas now have the opportunity to transfer to the wider Army after five years, where they would cease to be Gurkhas and serve as Nepalese Service Personnel. They would then be entitled to apply for naturalisation under the normal immigration rules for Her Majesty's forces.

Government policy on eligibility for home student status is the responsibility of the Department of Innovation, Universities and Skills (DIUS). Under current arrangements, dependents of Gurkha soldiers are ineligible for home student status while their parents remain Nepalese citizens. The Ministry of Defence is currently working with the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills to address this issue.

Gurkhas: Higher Education

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will assess the merits of helping serving Gurkhas who apply for indefinite leave to remain in the UK with the payment of university fees for their children. [186969]

Derek Twigg: Serving Gurkhas cannot apply for indefinite leave to remain in the UK. Gurkha service in the British Army is enabled through an agreement made between the Governments of the UK, Nepal and India in 1947—the Tripartite Agreement. Gurkhas are recruited in Nepal and remain Nepalese citizens throughout their service in the Brigade of Gurkhas. This is in line with the wishes of the Government of Nepal.

Under their new terms and conditions of service, introduced last year, Gurkhas now have the opportunity to apply to transfer to the wider Army after five years, where they would cease to be Gurkhas and serve as Nepalese Service Personnel. They would then be entitled to apply for naturalisation under the normal immigration rules for Her Majesty's Forces.

Under current arrangements, dependants of Gurkha soldiers are ineligible for home student status while their parents remain Nepalese citizens. The Ministry of Defence is currently working on this issue with the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills, which has responsibility for Government policy in this area.

Individual Resettlement Training Costs Grant

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his Department's budget is for the individual resettlement training costs grant in financial years (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10 and (c) 2010-11. [179674]

Derek Twigg: The information is not held in the format requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. The three single services operate different budgetary regimes which, in the case of the RAF, means that individual resettlement training costs grant budgetary costs are not separately identified but are subsumed into wider training costs budgets, which are then devolved down to station level.

I am able to provide the following details for the Royal Navy and Army:

| | £ million |
|---|---|
| 2008-09 | 4.5 |
| 2009-10 | 4.6 |
| 2010-11 | 4.7 |

Intimidation

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many cases of bullying have been reported in (a) his Department and (b) its agencies in each of the last 12 months. [182835]

Derek Twigg: For the MOD civil service the number of bullying cases in the Ministry of Defence and its agencies is as follows:

|---|---|
| January 2007 | 2 |
| February 2007 | 2 |
| March 2007 | 0 |
| April 2007 | 5 |
| May 2007 | 2 |
| June 2007 | 7 |
| July 2007 | 8 |
| August 2007 | 2 |
| September 2007 | 2 |
| October 2007 | 2 |
| November 2007 | 2 |
| December 2007 | 6 |

[1] The figures show the number of formal complaints raised through the Department's harassment and bullying complaints procedure where investigation by a harassment investigation officer has been requested. Figures for complaints raised informally or resolved locally are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

For the armed forces, monthly information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. However, the total number of cases reported over the latest available 12-month period (1 October 2006 to 31 September 2007) is summarised in the following table.

|---|---|
| Royal Navy | 16 |
| Army | 31 |
| Royal Air Force | 29 |

[1] This column records the number of formal complaints of bullying reported within each service. This number includes ongoing cases and complaints which were later withdrawn

The Department's unified diversity strategy makes clear that bullying and harassment are not tolerated in the Ministry of Defence or the armed forces. Revised complaints procedures were published in January 2007.

Iraq: Detainees

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the total cost to date to the public purse has been of prosecutions, trial proceedings and internal military investigations and proceedings concerned with the death of Mr. Baha Musa in Iraq in British custody. [186370]

Des Browne: It has not been possible to collate all the necessary information within the required timescale. The following figures are for those costings available to date, though they are not final sums.

Army Criminal Legal Aid Authority costs for all defence teams are £8,140,696.91. The Military Court Service costs, including costs for witnesses, transcription, hotel bills, catering, interpreters and miscellaneous items, are £363,800. The Army Prosecuting Authority costs, including those for the judicial review, are £1,231,240.

I will write to the hon. Member once the costings for other areas have been received.

Iraq: Interpreters

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent steps his Department has taken on the (a) safety of and (b) support for Iraqi interpreters working with British forces in Iraq. [183062]

Des Browne: We take our responsibilities to the Iraqi interpreters working with UK armed forces in Iraq extremely seriously, and have in place various measures for their protection and support. If a direct threat is made against any of our locally employed civilians we will take action to provide them with extra security, which may include bringing them into the contingency operating base. If an interpreter is required for a particularly sensitive issue, which would place an Iraqi in a difficult situation, then we will use a third-country national to translate instead.

As my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister announced on 8 October 2007, Official Report, columns 23-24, we have introduced a policy to provide additional assistance to recognise more fully the unique contribution made by our Iraqi staff who have completed their work with us. This policy was detailed in written statements to the House by my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary on 9 October 2007, Official Report, column 27WS, and 30 October 2007, Official Report, column 30WS, and is now in the process of being implemented.

Iraq: Military Equipment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 21 January 2008, Official Report, columns 1601-03W, on military equipment: Iraq, what types of body armour were gifted by the UK to the Iraqi government in 2005; and what the origin of the body armour so gifted was. [183554]

Des Browne: The UK gifted 25,058 sets of body armour in 2005. These sets are made up of two elements, a bullet/fragmentation vest and a ballistic plate. The body armour was purchased from a commercial contractor specifically for gifting to the Iraqi authorities as part of the UK's efforts to prepare the Iraqi security forces to be self-sufficient in the management of their own security.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the number of civilian (a) women and (b) children killed in Iraq since March 2003; and how many of these died as a result of UK armed forces activity. [185810]

Des Browne: I have nothing to add to the answer given by the Minister of State, Foreign and Commonwealth Office, my hon. Friend the Member for Pontypridd (Dr. Howells), on 9 October 2007, Official Report, column 545W, to the hon. Member for Bristol, West (Stephen Williams). The UK Government do not collate these figures.

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence with which of his foreign counterparts he has held discussions on the withdrawal of UK forces from Iraq. [185813]

Des Browne: I have regular discussions with my counterparts from coalition countries, including the United States and our partners in Multi-National Division (South-East), on issues of mutual interest, including the situation in Iraq.

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his plans are for the withdrawal of British troops from Iraq. [185814]

Des Browne: I have nothing further to add to the statement made by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 8 October 2007, Official Report, columns 21-25.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many attacks have been made on British forces stationed at Basra airbase in each of the last 12 months; [183135]

(2) what the average number of daily attacks against Basra airbase was in the last three months, broken down by day of the week; [183136]

(3) what type of munitions are being used against British forces stationed at Basra airbase. [183137]

Des Browne: The number of attacks on British forces stationed at Basra airbase in each of the last 12 months for which data is available is shown as follows:

| | Attack | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Mortar | Other | Rocket | Shoot | Grand total |
| January 2007 | — | — | 18 | — | 18 |
| February 2007 | — | 1 | 12 | — | 13 |
| March 2007 | 1 | — | 10 | — | 11 |
| April 2007 | — | — | 64 | 1 | 65 |
| May 2007 | — | — | 77 | 1 | 78 |
| June 2007 | — | — | 76 | — | 76 |
| July 2007 | — | — | 74 | — | 74 |
| August 2007 | — | — | 32 | — | 32 |
| September 2007 | — | — | 5 | — | 5 |
| October 2007 | — | — | 9 | — | 9 |
| November 2007 | — | — | 11 | 2 | 13 |
| December 2007 | — | — | 12 | — | 12 |
| | 1 | 1 | 400 | 4 | 406 |

The average number of daily attacks against Basra airbase in the last three months, broken down by day of the week, is shown in the following table.

| | Attack—rocket |
|---|---|
| Monday | 8 |
| Tuesday | 5 |
| Wednesday | 6 |
| Thursday | 4 |
| Friday | 8 |
| Saturday | 6 |
| Sunday | 3 |

The vast majority of munitions employed against British forces stationed at Basra airbase are 107mm, 122mm and 240mm rockets. One 120mm rocket was fired over the last year.

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the Finance Director of his Department has visited (a) Operation Telic and (b) Operation Herrick to view existing operations. [185257]

Des Browne: Non-essential visits to operational theatres are kept to the absolute minimum. The MOD's finance director visited Operation Telic when working for Commander-in-Chief, Land Command, but has not visited Operation Telic or Operation Herrick in his capacity as finance director.

John Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the next report on health surveillance research on personnel deployed on Operation Herrick and Operation Telic will be made; and whether the research will continue until the end of all troop deployments in Iraq and Afghanistan. [185987]

Derek Twigg: A second three-year phase of research on the physical and psychological health of Operations Telic and Herrick personnel is currently being conducted by King's College London; it is contracted to provide the Ministry of Defence with an interim report by the end of February 2009 and a final report by the end of August 2009. I would expect to make a statement on receipt of the final report, and will do so on receipt of the interim report if any clear issues of significance have emerged at that point.

With regard to findings from the first phase of this research, 12 papers have been published in the scientific literature to date, and more will follow. The timing of such publications, in accordance with academic practice, is a matter for the researchers and the scientific journals concerned. No decision has yet been made about continuing the research beyond 2009.

Marines: Deployment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the most recent tour interval is for each unit in the Royal Marines. [183516]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The most recent tour intervals for each major unit of the Royal Marines were as follows:

| | Months |
|---|---|
| 40 Commando Royal Marines | 32 |
| 42 Commando Royal Marines | 41 |
| 45 Commando Royal Marines | 28 |
| HQ 3 Commando Brigade Royal Marines | 41 |
| Commando Logistics Regiment Royal Marines | 41 |
| Command Support Group | 41 |

Between these major unit deployments, elements of some of these units have also been deployed in support of other units and operations.

Military Bases: Helicopters

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the commencement date of Project Belvedere is. [186887]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Project Belvedere, now known as Programme Belvedere, commenced in June 2005.

Military Equipment

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the application of the harmony guidelines to REME Metalsmiths Class 1. [186886]

Derek Twigg: The harmony guidelines are designed to ensure that the armed forces can perform the tasks that the Government require of them, without expecting our people to bear an excessive burden. They are applied to all trades in the Royal Electrical and Mechanical Engineers (REME) in a similar manner to other specialist trades (for example the Corps of Royal Engineers).

Military Equipment: Finance

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his Department's planned expenditure is on (a) new armoured vehicles for the Army and (b) new escort ships for the Royal Navy in each of the next five years. [183732]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: It has been assumed that 'new armoured vehicles' refers to the future rapid effect system (FRES), and that 'new escorts' refers to the Type 45 destroyer.

FRES has not yet reached the main gate approval point and actual costs for design and manufacture have yet to be set. The forecast cost of Type 45 in the National Audit Office Major Projects Report 2007 is £6,464 million for six ships. Detailed spending plans are kept under review and exposure of more detailed budgeting profiles would prejudice the ongoing commercial negotiations of the projects.

Ministry of Defence Police and Guarding Agency: Colchester

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the authorised strength of the Ministry of Defence police force at the Colchester Garrison was in (a) May 1997, (b) May 2001 and (c) May 2005; and what the authorised strength now is. [183466]

Derek Twigg: The term 'authorised strength' is interpreted to be the staff complement as agreed between Land Command and the MDP. As such the authorised strength of the Ministry of Defence Police (MDP) at the Colchester Garrison in May 1997, May 2001, May 2005 and January 2008 was as follows:

| | Authorised strength |
|---|---|
| May 1997 | 32 |
| May 2001 | 33 |
| May 2005 | 20 |
| January 2008 | 9 |

The MDP provides a community policing role at the Colchester Garrison and does not provide security for the establishment. Security is provided by the Army unit stationed at the garrison.

These figures do not include Criminal Investigation Department Officers who are not part of the MDP complement at the Colchester Garrison and not funded by Land Command. They are based in Colchester for administrative convenience and are responsible for investigating crime on defence estates in East Anglia.

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Ministry of Defence police officers were employed at the Colchester Garrison in (a) May 1997, (b) May 2001, (c) May 2005, (d) May 2006 and (e) May 2007; and how many are now employed there. [183467]

Derek Twigg: The number of Ministry of Defence police officers employed at Colchester in (a) May 1997, (b) May 2001, (c) May 2005, (d) May 2006, (e) May 2007 and January 2008 is as follows:

| | Total |
|---|---|
| May 1997 | 32 |
| May 2001 | 33 |
| May 2005 | 20 |
| May 2006 | 20 |
| May 2007 | 12 |
| January 2008 | 9 |

The MDP provides a community policing role at the Colchester Garrison and does not provide security for the establishment. Security is provided by the Army unit stationed at the garrison.

These figures do not include Criminal Investigation Department officers who are not part of the MDP complement at the Colchester Garrison and are not funded by Land Command. They are based in Colchester for administrative convenience, and are responsible for investigating crime on defence estates in East Anglia.

Ministry of Defence Police and Guarding Agency: Manpower

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Ministry of Defence Guarding Agency officers there were in each year since 1997. [182320]

Derek Twigg: The Ministry of Defence Guard Service (MGS) is the uniformed, unarmed element forming part of the larger Ministry of Defence Police and Guarding Agency. The Ministry of Defence Guard Service was formed into a corporate structure as part of the Ministry of Defence Police and Guarding Agency in April 2004.

The information requested is provided in the following table.

| | Number of MGS |
|---|---|
| 1997 | 4,109 |
| 1998 | 4,141 |
| 1999 | 4,230 |
| 2000 | 4,101 |
| 2001 | 3,743 |
| 2002 | 3,626 |
| 2003 | 3,659 |
| 2004 | 3,621 |
| 2005 | 3,883 |
| 2006 | 3,923 |
| 2007 | 3,990 |

Ministry of Defence Police and Guarding Agency: Recruitment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Ministry of Defence Guarding Agency officers were recruited in each year since 1997. [182315]

Derek Twigg: The information requested is provided in the following table. Full records do not exist for the years prior to April 2004, when the Ministry of Defence Guard Service was formed into a corporate structure as part of the Ministry of Defence Police and Guarding Agency.

| | Recruited |
|---|---|
| 1997 | Unknown |
| 1998 | Unknown |
| 1999 | Unknown |
| 2000 | Unknown |
| 2001 | Unknown |
| 2002 | Unknown |
| 2003 | Unknown |
| 2004 | 302 |
| 2005 | 359 |
| 2006 | 317 |

Navy

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library a copy of his Department's (a) Navy sitrep—main version and (b) Navy sitrep—Royal Marine version for each month since 2005-06. [185723]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Naval Monthly Sitreps (Situation Reports) are designed for internal circulation to Navy branch managers, giving a range of statistics about strengths, inflows and outflows of Navy staff by various dimensions such as specialisation and rank.

The numbers in the reports are not fully rounded, with numbers under 10 being unrounded. Because this might allow personally disclosive information to be revealed, only fully rounded versions can be placed in the Library of the House.

A fully rounded version of the main Sitrep for September 2006 is available in the Library of the House. I will place a fully rounded version of the latest editions (December 2007), in the Library of the House. Previous editions could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Navy: Manpower

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library a copy of each of the Royal Navy's (a) Manpower Planning Assumptions, (b) Rating Planning Model, (c) Officers Planning Model, (d) Officers Strategic Planning Model and (e) Naval Manpower Brief for the financial years 2006-07 and 2007-08. [185724]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I will place a copy of the latest editions of the Navy Manpower Planning Assumptions for 2007 in the Library of the House. It has been edited to remove some personal names, and details of future recruiting assumptions and transfer numbers by specialisation, as this information would, or would be likely to, prejudice the capability, effectiveness and security of the armed forces. Where this has been done it has been indicated in the document. The edition for runs in 2006 is already available in the Library of the House. The next edition, for planning runs to be run in 2008, has not yet been finalised.

I am withholding the models themselves as their release would, or would be likely to, prejudice the capability, effectiveness and security of the armed forces and they contain personal information.

I am also withholding the Naval Manpower Brief, as its release would or would be likely to prejudice the capability, effectiveness and security of the armed forces.

Nimrod Aircraft

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many times a Government Minister has travelled in an RAF Nimrod aircraft in each of the last five years. [172852]

Des Browne: Records show that no Government Minister has travelled in a Nimrod during the past five years. The Nimrod is a reconnaissance aircraft and it would not be used as a mode of transport.

However, MOD Ministers have visited RAF Kinloss and RAF Waddington, where Nimrod aircraft are based, on eight separate occasions in the past five years, as well as visiting Nimrod crews deployed on operations.

Nuclear Disarmament

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what consideration he gave to inviting (a) Israel, (b) India and (c) Pakistan when planning the technical conference involving the laboratories of nuclear weapon-states in collaborative work on confidence building in nuclear disarmament, as announced in his speech to the conference on disarmament in Geneva on 5 February. [186450]

Des Browne: The UK has offered to host a conference between the nuclear laboratories of the five nuclear-weapon states recognised under the terms of the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty (China, France, Russia, the UK and the United States). The aim of the Conference will be to address some of the difficult technical issues related to the verification of nuclear disarmament as we work toward a world free from nuclear weapons. It will examine ways of furthering the disarmament goals of Article VI of the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty, to which Israel, India and Pakistan are not state parties.

Nuclear Warhead Capability Sustainment Programme: Finance

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the projected expenditure on the Nuclear Warhead Capability Sustainment Programme is (a) in each year from 2008-09 to 2010-11 and (b) in the life of the programme from 2005 to 2015. [181443]

Des Browne: I refer the hon. Member to the reply that I gave him on 11 December 2007, Official Report, column 400W.

Nuclear Weapons: Decommissioning

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what funding his Department has supplied to the Atomic Weapons Establishment at Aldermaston for research on the verification of the dismantlement of nuclear warheads since 1997; and what provision has been made for such research in the next three years. [186374]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The MOD's arms control verification research (ACVR) programme commenced in April 2000, following the Strategic Defence Review. A small amount of work was undertaken prior to this to develop the forward programme, but detailed costs, cannot be extracted from the overall 'nuclear test limitation' programme which existed at the time. Costs incurred directly against the ACVR programme for the period 2000-01 to 2006-07, inclusive, were approximately £2 million. In addition to this, indirect support has been provided from other AWE programme areas.

For the financial year 2007-08, the ACVR budget is £420,000. The MOD is currently reviewing the ACVR programme's future resource allocation to ensure it is commensurate with meeting policy objectives.

Reserve Forces: Manpower

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the latest figure is for the (a) required and (b) actual total training strength of the (i) Territorial Army, (ii) Royal Navy Reserve, (iii) Royal Marines Reserve and (iv) Royal Auxiliary Air Force. [185771]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The latest figures for the Volunteer Reserves are as follows:

| | Required trained strength | Actual trained strength | As a percentage |
|---|---|---|---|
| Royal Naval Reserve | 1,784 | 1,652 | 93 |
| Royal Marines Reserve | 582 | 519 | 89 |
| Territorial Army | 30,274 | 21,069 | 70 |
| Royal Auxiliary Air Force | 2,011 | 1,264 | 63 |

Figures for the Royal Naval Reserve and Royal Marines Reserve are as at 31 January 2008. Figures for the Territorial Army are the latest available, and are as at 1 March 2007, when joint personnel administration went live for the Army. Figures for the Royal Auxiliary Air Force are as at 31 December 2007. In all cases the numbers are based on those who have successfully completed their required training.

Royal Engineers: Deployment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the average tour intervals were for each unit of the (a) Royal Engineers and (b) Royal Electrical and Mechanical Engineers in the latest period for which figures are available. [186034]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 26 November 2007, Official Report, column 3W.

Service Personnel and Veterans Agency: RAF Innsworth

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the reasons are for moving the Service Personnel and Veterans Agency from RAF Innsworth; and if he will make a statement. [177863]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 14 January 2008]: I am currently considering the business case in support of the recent study of the future accommodation requirements of the Service Personnel and Veterans Agency. The decision will be announced in due course, and I shall write to the hon. Member.

Space Technology

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for what UK assets in space his Department is responsible; and what the purpose is of each. [186348]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I have placed a copy of the current UK Registry of Space Objects in the Library of the House. This document includes details of the owner/operator and general function of all space objects licensed by the UK including those that are, or have been, owned or operated by the Ministry of Defence. The UK Registry of Space Objects is maintained by the British National Space Centre.

Territorial Army: Pensions

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what consideration he has given to making the remuneration of serving members of the Territorial Army pensionable on the same terms as those serving in the armed forces. [186783]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: There are arrangements in place to ensure that reservists who are mobilised for permanent service with the armed forces are not disadvantaged in pension terms. Individuals may have a number of pension options depending on their personal circumstances. Also, reservists who undertake service under sections 24 and 25 of the Reserve Forces Act 1996 (full-time reserve service and additional duties commitments) receive a pension under the Reserve Forces Pension Scheme.

The terms and conditions of volunteer Territorial Army (TA) reservists serving on man training days, voluntary training or other duties are such that they do not attract entitlement to an armed forces pension. Typically the service is short and intermittent, unlike regular service, and would produce trivial pensions under an occupational pension scheme.

An employment tribunal held in June 2007 accepted that the MOD had justifiable reasons for excluding reservists serving on man training days, voluntary training or other duties from the armed forces pension schemes. It affirmed that the Department's long-standing approach of paying an annual bounty for volunteer reserve service, in recognition of the different terms and conditions, remains valid.

Terrorism: Ethiopia

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will ensure that the British defence attaché in Addis Ababa is given the necessary resources to provide security training advice in support of the Ethiopian Government's action against international terrorism. [186390]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Ministry of Defence co-ordinates its overseas training programmes with other Departments, and resources are allocated according to overall Government priorities on counter-terrorism. It is not the practice of the Government to make public the details of such assistance to individual countries as this would, or would be likely to, prejudice international relations.

Trident

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to his answer of 21 January 2008, Official Report, column 1605W, on Trident, how much highly enriched uranium the UK had on the latest date for which data are available. [185356]

Des Browne: The most recent published figure for the Department's holdings of highly enriched uranium is 21.86 tonnes held as at March 2002. This figure was published in the "Historical Accounting for UK Defence Highly Enriched Uranium" report, published in March 2006, which is available via the MOD website:

http://www.mod.uk/DefenceInternet/AboutDefence/CorporatePublications/HealthandSafetyPublications/Uranium/HistoricalAccountingForUkDefenceHighlyEnrichedUranium.htm

Unmanned Aerial Vehicles

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what contingency arrangements are in place for the operation by civilian contractors of unmanned aerial vehicles in the event of their unavoidable unavailability. [185431]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The civilian contractors providing support for Hermes 450 Unmanned Air Vehicle operations in theatre maintain a team of five trained individuals for this role, although only one is deployed to theatre at any one time. This provides some contingency should any one individual become unavailable.

Other work is in hand to develop additional contingency support, including for the unlikely eventuality that all civilian contractor support become unavailable. This includes the planned introduction of an automatic global positioning system take-off and landing system.

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the watchkeeper unmanned aerial vehicle (UAV) will come into service; and when the contracts of the Hermes 450 UAV end. [186728]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Watchkeeper unmanned aerial vehicle (UAV) has an approved in-service date of February 2011, but it is currently expected to enter into service in 2010. The existing contract for the Hermes 450 UAV runs until July 2009 and allows for extensions as necessary to meet operational requirements.

Veterans Day

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans his Department has to mark Veterans day 2008. [182328]

Derek Twigg: The date 27 June 2008 marks the third annual Veterans day event. As in the last two years, the MOD has allocated substantial funding to support community Veterans day events across the UK. Further details of the criteria and how to apply for funding are on the Department's veterans' website at www.veterans-uk.info

All MPs were invited to a Veterans day reception at Portcullis House on 16 January, at which I encouraged all MPs to support Veterans day events in their own constituencies. An important way in which MPs can become involved in Veterans day is through a presentation of the HM armed forces veterans badge. This provides a clear opportunity to celebrate the achievements of veterans by showcasing their individual stories and demonstrating how they personify the qualities we respect in our armed forces.

I announced on 29 January that Blackpool would host the national Veterans day event in 2008. To date we are aware of around 30 other UK towns and cities which will be hosting large Veterans day events on or around 27 June, with many other smaller events around the country. I will be in a better position to advise on the overall level of funding support that we will provide after the closing date for funding applications, which is 31 May. Advice is being promulgated to the armed forces to encourage senior staff and units to support Veterans day events where operational commitments allow it. We are also working closely with ex-service organisations to facilitate their involvement. Consideration is being given to a number of other ways of promoting Veterans day 2008, but I cannot give details at this time.

I will make a statement to the House in due course.

Warships: Devonport

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects final decisions on the base-porting of ships at Devonport Naval Base to be made. [186103]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: A number of maritime change programmes are currently in progress that will impact on all three HM naval bases. These include work resulting from the Naval Base Review decision to retain and optimise all three naval bases, changes to equipment and platform support arrangements, and our evolving strategic partnership with industry. Each is designed to ensure that waterfront activity is delivered in an efficient and sustainable manner.

No decisions on changes to base-porting of ships at Devonport, or the other two naval bases, will be taken until these programmes are sufficiently mature and the full impact is known.

Written Questions: Government Responses

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he will answer question 170212 tabled by the hon. Member for Portsmouth, South on 29 November 2007. [185016]

Derek Twigg: I replied to the hon. Member today.

OLYMPICS

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Salmond: To ask the Minister for the Olympics when she plans to reply to the letter dated 19 September 2007 from the right hon. Member for Banff and Buchan about his constituent W. J. Wood of Longside. [183939]

Tessa Jowell: The letter from the right hon. Member for Banff and Buchan has been forwarded to the Department for Culture, Media and Sport, which is the Department with responsibility for this matter.

A response to the right hon. Member from the Minister for Sport was sent on 7 February 2008.

Olympic Games 2012: Construction

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how many (a) fatalities and (b) serious injuries incurred in the construction of the Olympic precinct for the 2012 Olympic Games have been recorded to date. [186777]

Tessa Jowell: Since work started at the Olympic Park site in the autumn of 2005, there have been no fatalities on site. The Olympic Delivery Authority has also just marked its second period of 1,000,000 worker hours without a reportable incident.

Since 2005, there have been 11 personnel accidents reportable to the HSE under the Reporting of Injuries, Diseases and Dangerous Occurrences Regulations 1995 (RIDDOR). One of these incidents is classified as major, but the individual who sustained a major injury, as classified under RIDDOR, has now returned to work.

The ODA's current accident frequency rate (reportable accidents measured against working hours) is 0.17, compared with an estimated average construction industry AFR (accident frequency rate) of 1.2.

Olympic Games 2012: Disabled

Mr. Harper: To ask the Minister for the Olympics pursuant to the answer of 4 February 2008, Official Report, column 746W, on Olympic Games 2012: Disabled, what barriers there are to building all Olympic village units to the lifetime homes standard. [185741]

Tessa Jowell: In my previous answer of 4 February 2008, Official Report, column 746W, to the hon. Member for Forest of Dean, I stated that as many of the Village units as is practicable would be built to Lifetime Homes Standards. This commitment is reflected in the Section 106 agreement (clause 13.10.1) to, the Planning Permission for the Village site.

Lifetime Homes incorporate 16 design features that apply to both the interior and exterior of a home, ranging from socket positions to the structural capacity to install hoists. There are challenges in meeting all these features in the nearly 4,000 residential dwellings that will form the Olympic Village legacy. For example, the Lifetime Homes requirement for parking, proximity to the home and space width, may not be achievable for all residential dwellings in the Village given the nature of the build as multi-level blocks in an urban environment.

Despite these constraints, the ODA's vision for the accessibility of the Village is ambitious. It is working to ensure that the Village project not only meets all legal requirements on accessibility, but places the needs of future residents at its core. The Access and Inclusion Forum and Access Panels (Transport and Built Environment) play a key role in the ODA's consultation and assurance process. Each stage of the build is subject to rigorous review, and the principal access officer works alongside the Village project team to advise on specific inclusive design features.

Olympic Games 2012: Facilities

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what involvement the London Fire Brigade has in the design and construction of Olympic facilities. [184809]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 5 February 2008]: The London Fire Brigade is fully engaged with the London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games and Paralympic Games and the Olympic Delivery Authority in planning for the Olympics. A fire engineer seconded to the ODA from the brigade has been in post since September 2006. He provides on-site fire safety and risk assessment advice and ensures that the design and construction of facilities meets regulatory requirements.

The London Fire Brigade also works on Olympic planning with relevant Government Departments, with the Metropolitan police and with other partners, and is a key part of the Olympic Security Directorate which co-ordinates security issues for the games.

Olympic Games 2012: Fairtrade Initiative

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what discussions she has had with (a) Cabinet members, (b) representatives of other Government departments, (c) the London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games 2012 and (d) the Olympic Development Agency on (i) ethical and fair trade issues and (ii) the use of child labour in the manufacturing of merchandise for the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games; and on which dates such discussions took place. [185661]

Tessa Jowell: The London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games and Paralympic Games (LOCOG) and the Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA) are committed to promoting ethical principles consistent with the Olympic Charter.

Following correspondence with Ministers from the Department for International Development, a meeting of officials from the Government Olympic Executive and DFID will discuss how to encourage fair and ethical practices as an integral part of delivering the Olympic programme. The letter of invitation was copied to Cabinet Office, CLG, DEFRA, FCO and HMT.

As a result, on 23 October, officials from the Government Olympic Executive met officials from the Cabinet Office, DFID, the Foreign Office, the ODA and LOCOG to discuss ODA and LOCOG commitment to the ethical and fair trade agenda.

The ODA seeks to work with suppliers who have a good track record in human rights and use goods and materials produced ethically. This includes seeking suppliers who do not have discriminatory practices and who do not use child or bonded labour. Officials from DFID are also discussing with ODA officials whether it can play a role in the Construction Sector Transparency Initiative's (CoST) development and implementation, which aims to increase transparency and accountability in construction procurement.

On 27 November 2007, I helped to launch the London 2012 Sustainability Plan, 'Towards a One Planet Olympics'. This sets out that LOCOG suppliers, sponsors and licensees are required to comply with the Ethical Trading Initiative (ETI) Base Code, which addresses child labour as well as broader labour conditions, trade union membership, and non-discrimination issues and will be applied to all appropriate contracts.

Olympic Games 2012: Visits Abroad

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how many working days have been spent to date by people employed in connection with hosting the London 2012 Olympics on study visits to (a) former Olympic venues and (b) China. [178226]

Tessa Jowell: The experience of past Olympic host cities and that of the organisers of the forthcoming Games in Beijing is invaluable in informing our preparations for the London 2012 Games.

Since London won the bid on 6 July 2005, in my role as Minister for the Olympics at the DCMS and now at Cabinet Office, my right hon. Friend the Member for Sheffield, Central (Mr. Caborn), officials and I have been on six Olympic study visits to Beijing, Turin and Barcelona. Relevant staff accompanied Ministers on these visits, and records indicate that officials (including press officers and a special adviser) have spent a total of around 57 working days in these cities.

According to ODA records, it is estimated that around 40 working days to date have been spent on study visits by employees, focusing in particular on transport, security and legacy.

In addition LOCOG, the London Organising Committee for the Olympic Games and Paralympic Games, which is a private company, also regularly undertakes visits to former host cities. These are not publicly funded.

Olympic Games 2012: Warrington

Helen Southworth: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what steps she is taking to ensure that the benefits of the London Olympics are shared by the people of (a) Warrington and (b) the north-west. [184333]

Tessa Jowell: The Government and the London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games and Paralympic Games are working hard to ensure that the benefits of 2012 reach across the UK, and have established a nation and regions group to oversee this work chaired by Charles Allen.

The north-west steering group is represented on the nations and regions group, and leads the work of the region in delivering benefits in sport, culture, volunteering, business and tourism. The steering group includes representation from organisations such as the Northwest regional development agency, Sport England and Culture Northwest, alongside representatives from the five sub-regions. Cheshire and Warrington has established its own 2012 steering group, which mirrors the regional structure and reports directly to the north-west group. Warrington borough council is represented on this group.

On 16 January 2008, the Olympic Family launched the London 2012 business network in Manchester, helping businesses across the country to access and compete for 2012-related contracts. The challenge is now for businesses to sign up and get support. To date, 17 contracts have been won by businesses registered in the north-west.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Admiralty House

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster on what dates the (a) right hon. Member for Ashfield and (b) right hon. Member for Kingston upon Hull, East vacated official Ministerial residences in Admiralty House. [183523]

Mr. Watson: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Member for North-West Durham (Hilary Armstrong) to the hon. Member for North-East Hertfordshire (Mr. Heald) on 6 November 2006, Official Report, column 860W.

My right hon. Friend the Member for Kingston upon Hull, East (Mr. Prescott) vacated the official residence in Admiralty House on 31 July 2007.

Capita

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much was paid by his Department to Capita Group plc and its subsidiaries in each financial year since 2000; which contracts were awarded by his Department to Capita Group plc in each year since 2000-01 to the most recent available date; what the cost was of each contract; what penalties for default were imposed in contract provisions; what the length was of each contract; whether the contract was advertised; how many companies applied for the contract; how many were short-listed; what criteria were used for choosing a company; what provision was made for renewal without re-tender in each case; and if he will make a statement. [180690]

Mr. Watson: This information requested for the Cabinet Office is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Committee on Business Appointments

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what definition of lobbying is used by the Advisory Committee on Business Appointments; and if he will make a statement; [181080]

(2) on how many occasions the Advisory Committee on Business Appointments has interviewed an ex-Minister on the nature of an appointment that he or she proposes to take up while still serving as an hon. Member in the last five years; and if he will make a statement; [183615]

(3) whether the Advisory Committee on Business Appointments requires former Ministers who are still hon. Members to submit a detailed description of their responsibilities and duties in proposed outside employment before considering whether to impose any conditions on them before they take up such employment. [184094]

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Crown Prosecution Service

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Solicitor-General how many and what proportion of cases in each Crown Prosecution Service area were discontinued (a) in the interests of justice and (b) by reason of evidential insufficiency in the most recent period for which figures are available. [186175]

The Solicitor-General: Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) records show that, during the year ending December 2007, proceedings in respect of 25,743 defendants were discontinued or withdrawn at court because pursuing the cases was deemed not to be in the public interest. That figure represents 2.4 per cent. of defendant cases referred for prosecution during that period.

During the same period, proceedings against 53,541 defendants were discontinued or withdrawn at court because the evidential test contained in the Code for Crown Prosecutors was not satisfied. That figure represents 5 per cent. of defendant cases referred for prosecution.

All cases are reviewed in accordance with the Code, and a prosecution can only proceed if the two tests set out in the Code are met. First, a Crown prosecutor must be satisfied that there is enough evidence to provide a realistic prospect of conviction. This is an objective test which means that a jury or bench of magistrates or judge hearing a case alone, properly directed in accordance with the law, is more likely than not to convict the defendant of the charge alleged.

If the case passes the evidential test, the Crown prosecutor then has to consider whether a prosecution is required in the public interest. A prosecution will usually take place unless there are public interest factors tending against prosecution that clearly outweigh those tending in favour.

The review of a case is a continuing process, and Crown prosecutors must take account of any change in circumstances. This may mean that a case is either discontinued or withdrawn at court if there is no longer a realistic prospect of conviction or if it is not in the public interest to continue.

The tables at annex A outline the volume and proportion of cases discontinued or withdrawn at court in comparison to other outcomes, and provide data in respect of each CPS area for the years ending December 2007 and December 2006. Table 1 shows the volume and proportion of cases recorded as having been dropped as against all outcomes. CPS records disaggregate prosecutions dropped into four broad categories: evidential; public interest; unable to proceed; and other reasons. Table 2 compares total prosecution dropped outcomes with total unsuccessful outcomes, convictions and all outcomes.

The tables at annex B show the reasons for dropped prosecutions in each of the four broad categories.

All tables have been placed in the Library.

Crown Prosecution Service: Finance

Revenue and Customs Prosecutions Office: Fees and Charges

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Solicitor-General what the reasons are for the fee structure introduced by HM Revenue and Customs Prosecutions Office in September 2006; and if she will make a statement. [185194]

The Solicitor-General: The Revenue and Customs Prosecutions Office (RCPO) was established as an independent prosecuting authority in April 2005, and is superintended by the Attorney-General. It prosecutes cases referred to it by Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs and the Serious Organised Crime Agency.

The RCPO introduced new arrangements for counsel fees in September 2006 to standardise rates paid to counsel in all its cases, to encourage prompt billing and to bring certainty and clarity to the amounts owing to counsel at any point in time. The system is based on published fixed fee rates and is more transparent than the previous system, which involved a negotiation between both parties after the fee notes had been sent by counsel to the Department.

The new arrangements were commended by the Comptroller and Auditor General in his report on RCPO's 2006-07 accounts. He noted that "The new processes for agreeing counsel fee expenditure and estimating all related accrued liabilities has significantly enhanced the Department's ability to manage this key element of its expenditure".

The RCPO continues to apply the new arrangements and has witnessed a further improvement of control over counsel fees in 2007-08. The great majority of fee notes are now submitted within one month of the date on which the work was performed, and the number of fees relating to cases that pre-date the introduction of the new arrangements has diminished significantly.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Solicitor-General how much was paid in fees to legal counsel by HM Revenue and Customs Prosecutions Office in 2006-07; and what proportion of the Office's expenditure for that year this represented. [185201]

The Solicitor-General: The Revenue and Customs Prosecutions Office (RCPO) was established as an independent prosecuting authority in April 2005, and is superintended by the Attorney-General. It prosecutes cases referred to it by Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs and the Serious Organised Crime Agency. It does not conduct investigations.

In 2006-07, RCPO paid £14,954,084 in fees to barristers. This represented 41 per cent. of the Office's gross expenditure.

Revenue and Customs Prosecutions Office: Finance

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Solicitor-General what the budget of the HM Revenue and Customs Prosecutions Office (a) has been in each year since its creation and (b) will be in each year of the spending review period. [185191]

The Solicitor-General: The Revenue and Customs Prosecutions Office (RCPO) was established as an independent prosecuting authority in April 2005, and is superintended by the Attorney-General. It is a separate Government Department from HM Revenue and Customs.

The budget of RCPO (in £000) in each financial year (a) since its creation has been as follows.

| | Budget of RCPO (£000) |
|---|---|
| 2005-06 | 37,885 |
| 2006-07 | 36,366 |
| 2007-08 | 36,726 |

and (b) in each financial year of the spending review period

Revenue and Customs Prosecutions Office: Publications

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Solicitor-General whether HM Revenue and Customs Prosecutions Office produces an internal staff magazine. [185253]

The Solicitor-General: Revenue and Customs Prosecutions Office has produced a bi-monthly internal staff magazine since March 2007.

Revenue and Customs: Finance

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Solicitor-General whether the rates for legal fees paid for HM Revenue and Customs prosecutions have changed since HM Revenue and Customs Prosecutions Office was established. [185656]

The Solicitor-General: The Revenue and Customs Prosecutions Office (RCPO) was established as an independent prosecuting authority in April 2005, and is superintended by the Attorney-General. It prosecutes cases referred to it by Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs and the Serious Organised Crime Agency.

RCPO introduced new arrangements for counsel fees in September 2006. Key features of the new arrangements were the introduction of standard rates that eliminated the need for negotiation between the RCPO and chambers, raised transparency and increased the accuracy of the RCPO's accounts.

The standard rates introduced reflected those prevailing at the time, with some small adjustments to ensure consistency. Following their introduction, the rates were reviewed in the final quarter of 2007 and some further small adjustments were made.

Smuggling: Animal Products

Mr. Paice: To ask the Solicitor-General how many successful prosecutions were made by HM Revenue and Customs for illegal importation of products of animal origin into the UK in each year since 2001. [185620]

It prosecutes cases referred to it by Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs (HMRC) and the Serious Organised Crime Agency. It does not conduct investigations.

HMRC has been responsible for investigating breaches of the products of animal origin regulations since April 2003.

Since April 2003, there have been 11 successful prosecutions.

Central records of prosecutions undertaken by enforcement agencies prior to April 2003 are not maintained.

Sudan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Cameron: To ask the Prime Minister (1) what sanctions he plans to impose on the Government of Sudan in light of the failure to deploy the UNAMID force in full and on time; and if he will make a statement; [186362]

(2) whether he plans to encourage the imposition of a no-fly zone over Darfur in 2008; [186364]

(3) what steps he is taking to encourage the development of a UN arms embargo on Sudan; and if he will make a statement. [186365]

The Prime Minister: I welcome UN Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon's 5 February agreement with President Bashir to accelerate the deployment of UNAMID. UNAMID is already behind schedule and the sooner the United Nations and the African Union secure prompt and effective deployment, the sooner the situation on the ground can stabilise. President Bashir must honour these commitments.

In considering additional measures, beyond UNAMID, we would need to assess the logistical challenges of implementation and their impact on humanitarian efforts. We have not ruled anything out including the imposition of no-fly zones. UNAMID is mandated to monitor military activity, including flights prohibited by UN Security Council resolution 1591.

The prospect of further United Nations sanctions, as advocated by the United Kingdom and the United States, combined with persistent persuasion by the UN Secretary-General among others, helped bring the Government of Sudan to agree to UNAMID in 2007. So I will continue to be clear that we will pursue further targeted sanctions against any party that undermines resolution of the crisis in Darfur, including by impeding UNAMID deployment. This was a key element of my discussion with Premier Wen when I visited China in January, and I will continue to make the case with other members of the Security Council that sanctions must be one of a range of measures to bring resolution of the crisis in Darfur.

I continue to believe that the UN arms embargo on Darfur should be extended to the whole of Sudan. The United Kingdom delegation to the United Nations, most recently in the UN Sanctions Committee meeting of 6 November 2007, is pursuing this initiative. We have the support of our United States and European allies, but we do not have the consent of all members of the Security Council. That is why we continue to make the case, especially to permanent members of the Security Council, that extending the arms embargo should be part of a range of measures to bring resolution of the crisis in Darfur.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Community Relations

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent progress has been made on reconciliation in Northern Ireland. [185682]

Mr. Woodward: A Consultative Group on the Past, chaired by Lord Eames and Denis Bradley, was set up by the then Secretary of State, the right hon. Member for Neath (Mr. Hain), in June 2007 to seek consensus across the community in Northern Ireland on the best way to deal with the legacy of the past 40 years, and to make recommendations, as appropriate, on any steps that might be taken by Northern Ireland society in building a shared future that is not overshadowed by the events of the past.

The group completed its public consultation on 25 January 2008, and is currently reflecting on the responses received. I look forward to receiving its report this summer.

Consultative Group on the Past

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many written responses have been received by the independent Consultative Group on the past in Northern Ireland. [186326]

Mr. Woodward: I am informed that in response to its public consultation, which ended on 25 January 2008, the Consultative Group on the Past received 245 written submissions. In addition to these, the group received 2,061 similarly worded letters which it believes to have been part of a co-ordinated campaign.

Crime: Victims

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps he is taking to ensure that the families of victims of serious crimes are informed that those convicted of these crimes are being transferred between prisons in Northern Ireland and others (a) within the UK and (b) in the Republic of Ireland; and if he will make a statement. [186441]

Paul Goggins: I have instructed that the prisoner release victim information scheme includes an undertaking that the Northern Ireland Prison Service will inform registered victims if the perpetrator of the crime is transferred to a prison in another jurisdiction. This arrangement will also provide victims with a contact in that jurisdiction for further information.

Crimes of Violence: Offensive Weapons

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the merits of bringing forward proposals to create specific offences of (a) carrying and using a knife in a violent attack and (b) carrying a knife in a violent attack in Northern Ireland. [184727]

Paul Goggins: These situations would be covered by existing legislation on possession of a bladed or offensive weapon. However, my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister has recently emphasised the seriousness with which the Government regard knife crime. I shall shortly lay before Parliament proposals to increase the penalties for the carrying, manufacturing and selling of knives in Northern Ireland to a maximum of four years in prison. I have also increased the age at which knives can be purchased from 16 to 18.

Departmental Databases

Mr. Woodward: The Department has approximately 300 databases ranging in size from the most sophisticated (SAP and Oracle) to the simplest (MS Access). The Department is currently in the process of rationalising these databases and it is therefore likely that many will be retired within the next 12 to 18 months. It is not possible to distinguish between those owned and maintained by the Department without incurring disproportionate cost.

Departmental ICT

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many (a) mobile telephones, (b) personal digital assistants and (c) laptop computers issued to departmental staff were reported (i) lost, (ii) missing and (iii) stolen in each year since 2001. [184323]

Departmental Internet

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many Wikipedia entries have been (a) created and (b) amended (i) by (A) special advisers, (B) Ministers and (C) communications officials and (ii) from IP addresses of (1) special advisers, (2) Ministers and (3) communications officials in (x) his Department and (y) its agencies since August 2005. [185525]

Mr. Woodward: The Northern Ireland Office does not maintain records of this type and is not aware of any entries submitted by Ministers, special advisers or officials.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will list the special advisers employed in his Department since 6 May 1997; and what the (a) start and (b) end date of employment was in each case. [184373]

Mr. Woodward: Since 2003, the Government have published on an annual basis the names and numbers of special advisers in each pay band. For the most recent information I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 22 November 2007, Official Report, columns 147-150WS. Since publication of that statement, Oonagh Blackman has also been appointed as a special adviser in the Northern Ireland Office.

Information on the employment of special advisers prior to 2003 was provided at regular intervals and is available in the Library of the House.

Departmental Vehicles

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many vehicles were (a) owned and (b) purchased by his Department in each of the last 10 years. [183296]

Mr. Woodward: The available details of vehicles owned and purchased by the Northern Ireland Office are set out in the following table. The numbers are made up of cars, delivery vans and tractors.

| | Owned | Purchased |
|---|---|---|
| 2002-03 | 7 | 0 |
| 2003-04 | 5 | 0 |
| 2004-05 | 5 | 0 |
| 2005-06 | 5 | 0 |
| 2006-07 | 2 | 0 |
| 2007-08 | 2 | 0 |

Information for 1998-99, 1999-2000, 2000-01 and 2001-02 is not available.

Economic Performance

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent assessment he has made of the economic performance of Northern Ireland. [185655]

Mr. Woodward: The Government published their assessment of the UK economy in the pre-Budget report, which will be updated in the Budget. The Government have not published a separate assessment of the Northern Ireland economy, as this is a devolved matter for the Northern Ireland Executive.

Sir David Varney's review of tax policy in Northern Ireland published in December 2007 found that Northern Ireland's recent economic performance has been good and that it has the lowest unemployment rate of any region in the UK. He found, however, that this promising growth masks some significant structural concerns, which he will address in his second review of competitiveness in Northern Ireland, announced in December 2007.

Fair Trade Initiative

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what his Department's policy is on the use of fair trade goods (a) in staff catering facilities and (b) at official departmental functions and meetings; and if he will make a statement. [183877]

Mr. Woodward: The Government are committed to improving market access to producers in developing countries through increased participation in fair and sustainable supply chains. Each Department is responsible for making its own decisions on such products, against the background of the Government's value for money policy, the EC procurement rules and the Department's objectives.

My Department does use a range of Fair Trade produce.

Northern Ireland Government: Irish Language

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps the Government is taking to implement the provisions of the (a) Good Friday and (b) St Andrews agreement in relation to the Irish language. [185304]

Mr. Woodward: The Irish language is primarily a matter for the devolved administration.

Following the Belfast agreement, the Government signed up to the European Charter for Regional or Minority Languages, under which 36 provisions representing measures to promote the use of Irish in public life have been adopted. In addition a statutory duty to encourage and facilitate the development of Irish-medium education was placed on the Northern Ireland Department of Education by the Education (Northern Ireland) Order 1998.

The Government have also taken steps to increase access to Irish language broadcasting, with TG4 (formerly known as Teilifis na Gaelige) now available in 90 per cent. of households. Plans are in place to ensure that these levels are maintained following digital switchover in 2012. The Government also established an Irish Language Broadcast Fund to provide financial support for Irish language film and television production.

Following the St Andrews agreement, the Government introduced the Northern Ireland (St Andrews Agreement) Act 2006, section 15 of which puts the Northern Ireland Executive under a duty to adopt a strategy setting out how it proposes to enhance and protect the development of the Irish language. The Government also published two consultation papers on Irish language legislation, the first on 13 December 2006 and the second, containing draft clauses for such legislation, on 13 March 2007. The responsibility for this passed to the devolved Administration following the restoration of the Northern Ireland Assembly on 8 May 2007.

Northern Ireland Prison Service: Crimes of Violence

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many incidents of assault against staff have been reported (a) at prisons and (b) at the Woodlands Juvenile Justice Centre in Northern Ireland in each of the last 12 months; of those incidents, how many have resulted in (i) prosecutions and (ii) convictions; and if he will make a statement. [186154]

Paul Goggins: The information is as follows:

(a) In the majority of cases prisoners who assault prison officers will be charged under prison rules and will be subject to an adjudication before a Governor. Either the matter is concluded at the adjudication or the adjudication is postponed pending referral to the police for investigation with a view to prosecution. This does not preclude a governor from deciding to call in the police in the immediate aftermath of an assault occurring, whether prisoner on prisoner or prisoner on staff.

| Month | Number of staff assaulted | Comments |
|---|---|---|
| February 2007 | 1 at Maghaberry | Still awaiting prosecution decision |
| March 2007 | 2 Maghaberry escort officers at court | Still awaiting prosecution decision |
| April 2007 | 1 Maghaberry escort officer at court | Involved a male juvenile at court. He was transferred to a Juvenile Justice Centre before charges under Prison and Young Offender Rules could be preferred. |
| May 2007 | 2 Maghaberry officers | Still awaiting prosecution decision |
| June 2007 | 3 (1 Maghaberry officer, 2 Magilligan officers) | Still awaiting prosecution decision in the Maghaberry case. The police have forwarded a file on the 2 Magilligan cases to the PPS to determine if prosecution will follow. Result awaited. |

| August 2007 | 0 | — |
| September 2007 | 6 (4 Maghaberry escort officers at court, 2 Magilligan officers) | 4 Maghaberry staff were assaulted by a 15-year-old juvenile at Laganside court. Of the 2 Magilligan cases, one prison adjudication charge was withdrawn. Prosecution decision is still awaited in the other case. |
| October 2007 | 4 (3 Maghaberry escort officers at court, and 1 at the prison) | Still awaiting prosecution decision in these cases. |
| November 2007 | 1 Maghaberry escort officer at court | The prisoner who caused the injury was released at court before charges under prison rules could be preferred. |
| December 2007 | 2 Magilligan officers | Still awaiting prosecution decision in these cases. |
| January 2008 | 2 Maghaberry officers | In both cases the adjudication has been adjourned. |

(b) The information provided by Woodlands Juvenile Justice Centre is set out as follows. In the majority of cases young people who are involved in assaults on staff will be subject to the consequences of the progressive regime (an incentivised behaviour management programme whereby young people can earn additional privileges through good behaviour) and will suffer loss of privileges earned. When the matter is deemed to be an unprovoked assault or when the intervention of staff during physical control in care procedures develops into a serious incident and staff are injured, these are deemed assaults. Those of a serious nature will be reported to the police for investigation with a view to prosecution. The outcome of the police investigations is not known at this time.

Police

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many police officers per capita there are in Northern Ireland. [185680]

Paul Goggins: There are currently 4.6 full-time police officers per 1,000 population in Northern Ireland.

Police: Finance

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the annual cost per head is of policing in Northern Ireland. [185671]

Paul Goggins: The current annual cost of policing in Northern Ireland is approximately £550 per person.

Prisoners' Transfers

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps he is taking to prevent the exploitation by prisoners in Northern Ireland of the system of transfer to other prisons in the rest of the UK; and if he will make a statement. [186443]

Paul Goggins: The transfer of prisoners between UK jurisdictions is governed by Schedule 1 to the Crime (Sentences) Act 1997. Each application is assessed on its individual merits, taking into consideration:

1. the purpose for which the transfer is requested;

2. whether the prisoner was ordinarily resident in the jurisdiction to which transfer is sought prior to the imposition of the current sentence; or whether members of the prisoner's close family are resident in that jurisdiction and there are reasonable grounds for believing that the prisoner will receive regular visits from them; or whether the prisoner has demonstrated through preparations that he has made for his life following release from prison that he intends to reside in the receiving jurisdictions upon release and he is in the later stages of his sentence;

3. whether there are grounds for believing that the prisoner may disrupt or attempt to disrupt any prison establishment, or pose an unacceptable risk to security; and

4. any compelling or compassionate circumstances.

Prisoners are only transferred from Northern Ireland to serve their sentences in England and Wales if they meet these criteria.

I have instructed the Director of the Prison Service to refer any request for a transfer to England and Wales by a prisoner serving a sentence in Northern Ireland, to me.

Prisoners transferred to England and Wales could potentially benefit from the 18-day end of custody licence scheme if they met the criteria for that scheme which includes the provision that the sentence must be less than four years.

If it is clear that the sole purpose of the transfer application is to gain advantage from the ECL, that application would be refused.

Proscribed Organisations: Arrests

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many suspected members of dissident Republican terrorist organisations have been arrested in Northern Ireland since 1 September 2002; how many of those arrested have been (a) charged and (b) convicted of offences; how many of those arrested were released as a result of charges being withdrawn or otherwise abandoned; and what were the reasons in each case. [183313]

Paul Goggins: The PSNI does not maintain statistics that attribute incidents to individual paramilitary groupings. However the following table provides information on those arrested and those subsequently charged with terrorist offences. The other information requested would necessitate a manual trawl which would incur a disproportionate cost.

Number of persons arrested under section 41 of the Terrorism Act by attribution[1]: 1 September 2002 to 31 December 2007

|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Loyalist | Republican | Other | Total | Loyalist | Republican | Other | Total |
| 1 September 2002 to 31 March 2003 | 126 | 58 | — | 184 | 57 | 22 | — | 79 |
| 1 April 2003 to 31 March 2004 | 203 | 133 | 3 | 339 | 70 | 30 | 2 | 102 |
| 1 April 2004 to 31 March 2005 | 150 | 81 | — | 231 | 42 | 35 | — | 77 |
| 1 April 2005 to 31 March 2006 | 198 | 71 | 4 | 273 | 61 | 11 | — | 72 |
| 1 April 2006 to 31 March 2007 | 84 | 92 | 1 | 177 | 21 | 35 | 1 | 57 |
| 1 April 2007 to 31 December 2007 | 44 | 62 | 2 | 108 | 20 | 9 | — | 29 |

[1] Attribution is as perceived by PSNI based on the information available at the time of arrest and does not necessarily indicate the involvement of a paramilitary organisation. Note: Statistics are provisional and may be subject to minor amendment.

Thomas Purcell

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland for what length of time Thomas Purcell had been in Maghaberry prison before being transferred to a young offenders centre in England; what age he had been during his time at Maghaberry; and whether he had been attacked while at Maghaberry prison. [186437]

Paul Goggins: Thomas Purcell was in Maghaberry prison for six weeks prior to his transfer on 27 February 2007. He was 19 years of age and there are no reported incidents of him being attacked while at Maghaberry.

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland for what reasons Thomas Purcell was transferred from Maghaberry prison in Northern Ireland to the young offenders centre at Aylesbury. [186445]

Paul Goggins: Thomas Purcell applied for a transfer to serve the remainder of his sentence in England. The transfer of prisoners between UK jurisdictions is governed by Schedule 1 to the Crime (Sentences) Act 1997, as set out in PQ UIN 186443, also answered today.

Tourism

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many tourists visited Northern Ireland in 2007; and what steps the Government plan to take to increase the number of such tourists. [185670]

Mr. Woodward: Following the restoration of devolution on 8 May 2007, Ministers in the Northern Ireland Executive became responsible for the running of the Northern Ireland Departments. Tourism policy and promotion is the responsibility of the Department of Enterprise, Trade and Investment and its partner agencies.

I am advised that an estimated 2,051,000 tourists visited Northern Ireland in 2007.

Woodlands Juvenile Justice Centre: Crimes of Violence

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what measures are to be introduced to give better protection to staff working at the Woodlands Juvenile Justice Centre following the recent attack on three staff members. [186156]

Paul Goggins: Woodlands Juvenile Justice Centre operates a risk management strategy to protect both staff and young people in its care. Individual risk assessments are carried out on all young people in the centre and these are constantly reviewed and updated as required.

All operational staff must make themselves aware of the individual crisis management plan (ICMP) and any other risk assessment for each young person in their care. They also carry a Blick personal alarm at all times. They are trained in therapeutic crisis intervention (TCI) and physical control in care (PCC) techniques, and suitable protective equipment is available to staff during PCC operations.

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what additional funding and training is to be given to staff working at the Woodlands Juvenile Justice Centre following the recent attack on three members of staff and whether self-defence training will be provided; and if he will make a statement. [186157]

Paul Goggins: Mandatory therapeutic crisis intervention (TCI) and physical control in care (PCC) training is provided to all operational staff within the Woodlands Juvenile Justice Centre, and this includes suitable refresher training as appropriate. "Breakaway technique" is a specific element of the PCC training which provides guidance to staff on how to safely remove themselves from dangerous situations.

The existing TCI and PCC training programmes are considered appropriate to meet current requirements. However, further training in relation to mental health is presently being explored.

Local management constantly review and update the risk assessments posed by the young people in the Centre, and should additional training requirements be identified, that will be addressed.

TRANSPORT

A38: Plymouth

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 25 January 2008, Official Report, column 2318W, on A38: Plymouth, what the collision rate was for each month in the last five years for trunk roads similar to the A38 in Devon. [186147]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Highways Agency assesses the relative safety of sections of trunk road on the basis of the number of collisions per 100 million vehicle-km. The figure enables valid comparisons to be made, allowing the collision figures for any section of road irrespective of length, to be viewed in perspective. For shorter lengths of road it is advisable to assess collisions as an average over a period significantly longer than a month, usually at least three years, to minimise the effects of year-on-year variations.

The following table gives collision rates for dual carriageway sections of trunk road in Devon and Cornwall similar to the A38 near Plymouth. The figures are based on the most recent five-year period for which relevant data are available.

Devon and Cornwall collision data using latest available five-year data, 1 October 2002 to 30 September 2007

| Road section | Collisions per 100 million vehicle-kms |
|---|---|
| A30 Camborne-Chiverton Cross | 16.08 |
| A30 Garland Cross-Indian Queens | 14.74 |
| A30 Innis Downs to Higher Carblake | 11.77 |
| A30 Temple to Dunheved | 14.71 |
| A30 Dunheved to J31 | 7.71 |
| A38 Moorswater to Trerulefoot | 19.21 |
| A38 toll booths to J31 | 12.28 |
| A38 Marsh Mills to Ivybridge | 12.57 |

For comparison purposes, the national injury collision rate for all types of trunk road is 14.9 per 100 million vehicle-km.

A47

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether the Trans-European Network classification of the A47 road between Great Yarmouth and Peterborough has been amended by the European Commission. [182708]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 30 January 2008]: The Trans-European Network classification of the A47 between Great Yarmouth and the A1 near Peterborough has not been amended by the European Commission.

A628

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of the safety of the A628; and what instructions she (a) has given and (b) plans to give the Highways Agency to implement safety measures on the route before 2012. [180963]

Mr. Tom Harris: Selected safety improvements schemes have been programmed to be carried out at locations on the A628 where high rates of incidents occur. There are four phases to these schemes, three of which have been completed. The final phase will start in April 2008 and is programmed to be completed in summer 2008.

Safety studies have also been undertaken for the A628 as part of the A57/A628 Mottram-Tintwistle bypass project. The results have been published and are part of the information provided at the public inquiry into the bypass proposals.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much has been spent by her Department's agencies (a) in preparation for the A628 Mottram to Tintwistle bypass public inquiry and (b) in total to date. [181973]

Mr. Tom Harris: The A57/A628 Mottram-Tintwistle bypass public inquiry started in June 2007. It has taken three years of preparation to get to this stage. Cost of approximately £11.8 million have been incurred by the Highways Agency in the preparation for the public inquiry of the scheme.

The total cost to date including the public inquiry related costs is approximately £13.7 million.

Air Routes: Felixstowe

Mr. Gummer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) for what reasons the decision was taken to increase the number of flights flying over Felixstowe; and what factors were taken into consideration before making the decision; [185030]

(2) who took the decision to increase the number of flights over the Felixstowe peninsula and A12 corridor into Essex. [185032]

Jim Fitzpatrick: There has been no recent change to airspace arrangements over Felixstowe. The number of flights results from traffic demand from airports in the area and overflying requirements. This is an operational matter for NATS, the air navigation services provider, and I suggest the hon. Member direct his inquiries to the Chief Executive of NATS.

Ashbourne Bypass

Mr. McLoughlin: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps she is taking to allocate adequate funding and support for the construction of a bypass route around the town of Ashbourne in the West Derbyshire constituency. [178595]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Responsibility for a bypass of Ashbourne rests with Derbyshire county council, the local highway authority. It is for the county council to determine its priorities for local transport investment and to make bids for funding to the Department through the regional funding allocations process—the regional statement of priorities. The county council has yet to make such a bid for a bypass of Ashbourne.

Aviation: EU Emissions Trading Scheme

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what consideration she has given to exemptions from the EU emissions trading scheme in circumstances in which overall emissions from aircraft are lower than those of alternative forms of transport for comparable routes. [178654]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Government have a commitment to ensure that aviation reflects the cost of its climate change impacts. The question of emissions from other modes of transport does not directly impact on this. Including aviation in the EU emissions trading scheme (ETS) forms a crucial part of our climate change strategy, but as part of the negotiations on the inclusion of aviation in the EU ETS, member states agreed in December to exempt all flights operating under a public service obligation with an annual capacity threshold of less than 30,000 seats.

Aviation: Pollution

Mr. Gummer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent research her Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the effects of aircraft (i) air pollution and (ii) noise on populations underneath a flight path. [185020]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport has not, in recent years, commissioned research on air pollution or noise under flight paths that are some distance from airports. Air quality impacts from aviation are believed to be quite localised, with limited ground level effect from emissions above 100 m.

The Secretary of State announced the conclusions of the 'Attitudes to Noise from Aviation Sources' in England (ANASE) study (commissioned in 2001) on 2 November 2007, including a letter of explanation to all MPs. The full report and related papers are available in the Library of the House, and on the Department's website at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/aviation/environmentalissues/Anase/

The Secretary of State launched the consultation 'Adding Capacity at Heathrow Airport' on 22 November 2007. It runs until 27 February 2008. This reports on the outcome of a three-year programme of assessment of the environmental impacts in the Heathrow area.

Aviation: Public Participation

Mr. Gummer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what arrangements are in place by which members of the public who are affected by the decisions of the Civil Aviation Authority and National Air Traffic Services concerning overflying and air safety measures may hold those bodies to account. [185450]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Civil Aviation Authority (CAA) has a clear process for deciding upon airspace changes, as set out in the Airspace Charter (CAP724) and Guidance on the Airspace Change Process (CAP725).

Sponsors of airspace changes, mostly NATS, the air navigation services provider, or airports, are responsible for developing and consulting upon proposals. Detailed guidance is given on what impacts are to be taken into account, how they should be measured and who should be consulted. Informed by the consultation, the sponsor submits the proposal to the CAA's Directorate of Airspace Policy for assessment. In determining whether to accept or reject a proposal, the CAA's process reflects the Secretary of State's directions and guidance to the CAA on the exercise of its statutory duties and environmental objectives.

There is no direct statutory right of appeal against the Director of Airspace Policy's decision. However, the Airspace change process requires that the CAA review an airspace change 12 months after implementation to determine whether the airspace change, as approved, has been implemented and whether the anticipated safety, capacity, efficiency and environmental benefits have materialised.

Aviation: Suffolk

Mr. Gummer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of the likely effect of expansion of (a) Heathrow and (b) Stansted airport on the height at which planes fly over Suffolk. [185031]

Jim Fitzpatrick: It is not for the Secretary of State for Transport to assess the effect of expansion at (a) Heathrow and (b) Stansted on the height at which planes fly over Suffolk.

Subject to Government policy support for expansion at Heathrow and Stansted, it is a commercial decision for the airport operator, BAA, to determine whether to pursue expansion plans.

If it did so, BAA would seek the support of NATS, the air navigation services provider, to develop a detailed airspace change proposal in accordance with arrangements under the Civil Aviation Authority (CAA)'s independent Airspace Change Process. CAA Guidance on the Application of the Airspace Change Process (CAP725) provides detailed advice on the process. It would be for the CAA's Director of Airspace Policy to assess any airspace change proposal against regulatory requirements and determine whether any such change should be approved.

Aviation: Turkey

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what progress she has made in contacting the Turkish director general of Civil Aviation on behalf of the hon. Member for Forest of Dean. [178817]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department is still awaiting a substantive response from the Turkish directorate general of Civil Aviation regarding an incident on 7 September involving Onur Air. It is actively pursuing this matter with the Turkish authorities. In the meantime, Onur Air is subject to safety inspections from the Civil Aviation Authority.

Biofuels: Garages and Petrol Stations

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many UK petrol stations sell ethanol fuels. [185062]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 6 February 2008]: Petrol containing small amounts of ethanol is widely available at a large number of UK filling stations and is suitable for use in any petrol-engined vehicle. This type of petrol is sometimes referred to as "E5 fuel", because it contains less than 5 per cent. ethanol by volume. Petrol pumps dispensing E5 fuel do not need to be labelled any differently from regular petrol pumps, and the Government do not keep data on the number of petrol stations selling E5 fuel at any given time. Information on the total amount of ethanol sold in the UK is, however, available via the HMRC website at http://www.uktradeinfo.com. This shows that in 2007, for example, around 150 million litres of ethanol were blended into UK petrol (some 0.6 per cent. of total UK petrol sales).

Certain types of vehicle, sometimes referred to as "flex-fuel" vehicles, can run on much higher blends of ethanol. There are around 20 filling stations in the UK selling petrol containing up to 85 per cent. ethanol by volume ("E85 fuels"). Details of the location of these filling stations are available via the Energy Saving Trust's website at:

http://www.energysavingtrust.org.uk

Bull Bars: Regulation

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what regulations cover the driving of a vehicle fitted with bull bars that was imported as such; and if she will make a statement. [183631]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Vehicles that are imported into the UK have to meet the requirements of the single vehicle approval scheme, which currently does not cover bull bars. The Department will be consulting shortly on amending the scheme to require all bull bars on imported vehicles to meet the technical requirements contained within Directive 2005/66/EC.

Concessionary Fares Scheme

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 22 January 2008, Official Report, column 1352W, on the concessionary fares scheme, if she will break down by main budget heading the £1 billion spent by Government annually on the scheme. [184421]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Between 2000 and 31 March 2006 the statutory minimum bus concession was half fare off-peak local bus travel within an eligible resident's local authority area. During this period funding to local authorities for the statutory minimum concession through formula grant was not separately identified. However, local authority spending on concessionary travel at the end of this period was almost £500 million per year and a significant proportion of this expenditure would have been sourced from formula grant funding.

From 1 April 2006, with the improvement to the statutory minimum concession to free off-peak local bus travel within a resident's local authority area, the Government provided an extra £350 million in 2006-07 and a further £367.5 million in 2007-08. This was accompanied by allocations of £69 million and £72 million in those two years to the devolved administrations under the Barnett formula.

For the further improvement to the statutory minimum concession to England-wide travel from 1 April this year, the Government are providing an additional £212 million special grant funding in 2008-09. This equates to £250 million when allocations to the devolved administrations under the Barnett formula are included. This takes our best estimate of total central Government funding for statutory concessionary travel in 2008-09 to around £1 billion.

Cycling: Road Traffic Offences

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps she (a) has taken and (b) plans to take in each of the next two years to raise awareness of the consequences of cyclists going through a red traffic light; and if she will make a statement. [186290]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Highway Code details the legal responsibilities of all road users and was revised last year. There is no excuse for any road user to ignore red traffic lights. It puts both the perpetrator and other road users in danger. All road users should obey all road traffic laws and treat others with respect. Enforcement of the law is a matter for the police, and the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO) has written to all chief police officers asking them to take action against cyclists going through red lights.

We are supporting Bikeability the new national standard for cycle training. We have made funds available to Cycling England to train 500,000 children by 2012. We believe better training of children will lead to better behaviour by cyclists on the road as well as encouraging children to continue to cycle as adults.

Driver and Vehicle Licence Agency: Correspondence

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people have claimed that letters sent to the DVLA register changes of ownership had been lost in the post in the last two years; what discussions she has had with Royal Mail and the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency on this issue; and if she will make a statement. [180597]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The information is not held in the form requested.

Under the terms of its contract with the Royal Mail, the DVLA monitors its performance in the distribution of mail from Swansea. Mail sent by customers to the DVLA is not covered by this contract. Customers sending letters to the DVLA make their own arrangements with the Royal Mail. Nevertheless, in exceptional circumstances, the DVLA does ask Royal Mail to search for items that have been reported as lost on their way to the agency.

Driving Tests

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to her statement of 17 December 2007, Official Report, column 624, on Department for Transport data storage, what internal rules are used by Pearson Driving Assessments to ensure compliance with UK data protection law. [176274]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The contract between the Department for Transport and Pearson Driving Assessments Ltd requires the latter to comply with obligations equivalent to those imposed on the Department, as a data controller, as stated by the seventh principle of the Data Protection Act 1998. This principle requires that appropriate technical and organisational measures be taken against unauthorised or unlawful processing of personal data and against accidental loss or destruction of, or damage to, personal data.

Pearson Driving Assessments Ltd is ISO 27001 accredited. Pearson has appointed an independent internal auditor to annually review the design and operation of the control procedures performed by Pearson Driving Assessments Ltd.

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what guidance she has issued to the Driving Standards Agency on factors to be taken into account when deciding on the location of driving test centres. [185996]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Ministers have agreed the Driving Standards Agency's published 'Code of Practice on Written Consultations—Driving Test Centres'. This was revised in July 2005 and is available on the DSA website at:

http://www.dsa.gov.uk/Consultation.asp?id=SXBAF2A7825C59&cat=418

The DSA needs to provide a safe environment for staff and customers, and to fulfil the demand for services in a cost-efficient manner. With these aims in mind, the DSA considers the following factors when deciding on the location of driving test centres:

a network that enables demand for tests and average waiting time targets to be met; that most customers should only have to travel a reasonable distance to take their test in relation to where they live; that theory test centres should be centrally located on public transport routes; practical test centres must be in an area where a sufficient number of suitable test routes can be provided. Adequate parking for candidates is needed in close proximity to the test centre; the facilities available in all workplaces must satisfy health and safety and other statutory requirements. Local factors including propensity for assaults, vandalism and break-ins should also be considered; the cost of the test centre including rent, rates and running costs must be viable and the terms of the lease or other property agreement must be acceptable and sufficiently flexible to satisfy DSA's future requirements; and ideally full-time, permanent test centres should provide off-road car parking, waiting areas and toilets for the use of candidates and be fully DDA compliant.

Driving Tests: Warrington

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will ensure that the chief executive of the Driving Standards Agency responds to representations from Warrington residents about the proposed relocation of the Warrington driving test centre. [185997]

Jim Fitzpatrick: All representations to the chief executive of the Driving Standards Agency received from Warrington residents about the proposed relocation of Warrington driving test centre will receive a response from her.

Driving Under Influence: Accidents

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how many road accidents involving young people caused by drivers found to be impaired by drugs there were (a) in total and (b) in each police authority in each year since 1997; [185820]

(2) how many young people subsequently found to be under the influence of drugs died as a result of road traffic accidents (a) in total and (b) in each police authority area in each year since 1997. [185821]

| | Number of accidents |
|---|---|
| 2006 | 189 |

The number of young driver/rider (aged 17 to 24) fatalities resulting from reported road accidents in which the driver/rider had impairment by drugs (illicit or medicinal) as a contributory factor in 2005 and 2006 in Great Britain is shown in the following table.

| | Number of fatalities |
|---|---|
| 2005 | 6 |
| 2006 | 9 |

Information on contributory factors is not available for years prior to 2005, and is not available at police authority level.

The contributory factor "impairment by drugs" applies to illicit drugs as well as all medicines, whether prescription or 'over the counter'. It is not possible to separate the factor into illicit and medicinal drugs.

This factor is recorded in accidents in which the police officer's opinion at the time of reporting is that the driver/rider was affected by drugs and behaved in a way which caused, or contributed to, the accident. This may not be the result of a drug screening test.

Durham Green Developments Limited

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what meetings (a) Ministers, (b) special advisers and (c) civil servants in her Department have had with representatives of Durham Green Developments Ltd in the last 36 months. [176368]

Mr. Tom Harris: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to his question on 22 January 2008, Official Report, column 819W, in respect of Durham Green Business Park. There have been no other meetings with representatives of Durham Green Developments Ltd.

Electric Vehicles

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) if she will meet representatives of the electric personal assistive mobility devices industry to discuss the role of their products in transport policy; [185869]

(2) what discussions she has had with the Secretary of State for the Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on the potential impact of electric personal assistive mobility devices on UK climate change and carbon emissions targets; and if she will make a statement; [185870]

(3) what discussions she has had with her European counterparts on the role of electric personal assistive mobility devices in transport policy; and if she will make a statement. [185871]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Secretary of State for Transport has no current plans to meet representatives of electric personal assistive mobility device manufacturers or promoters, nor has she had discussions on this subject with the Secretary of State for DEFRA or with her European counterparts.

If, as we understand, the use of such devices is likely to be primarily as an alternative to walking or cycling, their potential in terms of greenhouse gas and local pollution reduction is at best negligible.

However, officials will be considering available reports on trials and usage of some of these machines in other countries.

Fares: Non-payment

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will estimate the loss of revenue from fare evasion on the railways in each of the last five years. [183649]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Department does not hold such information, although, as we made clear in our Rail White Paper last summer we believe the industry's reported figure of 5 per cent. to be an underestimate. For this reason we have required operators to implement a structured revenue protection strategy as part of all franchise agreements entered into since 2004.

Further steps were outlined to support revenue protection in the White Paper published last summer, including reviewing the role of gating schemes. Among recent franchises, the Department is securing commitments to gating schemes such as those for Birmingham New Street and London Waterloo.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many on-the-spot fines were issued for fare evasion and possession of an incorrect ticket on trains in each of the last five years; and how much revenue this has generated. [183650]

Mr. Tom Harris: The train operators do not impose "on the spot fines" for either fare evasion or incorrect tickets. When a passenger has no ticket and is travelling in a penalty fare area, he or she will be charged £20 or double the fare for the journey, whichever is greater. This is not a fine—that is, it is not additional to the fare, but is a penalty rate for the journey. Outside penalty fare areas passengers may be charged for a full standard fare without the right to discounts available before boarding. This does not apply to some local services where "pay on the train" applies.

The railways also issue excess fares. A person who has the wrong ticket is charged the difference between the ticket held and the correct one when, for instance, travelling between two points along a route that is not allowed by the ticket.

The DfT does not hold information on these categories of fares.

First Great Western: Standards

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps she is taking to improve (a) seating comfort and (b) capacity on services provided by First Great Western. [184070]

Mr. Tom Harris: The White Paper published in the summer included a commitment to 1,300 extra carriages. They will be targeted at the most congested routes on the network.

On 30 January the Department for Transport published its rolling stock plan. This shows indicative numbers of rolling stock per train operating company, and 52 additional vehicles are shown for First Great Western. The rolling stock plan explains that these numbers are not intended to be prescriptive or to limit the development process with the industry, and could therefore be subject to change in the final outcome.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) complaints and (b) representations on the (i) provision of services and (ii) performance by First Great Western services in Hampshire were received by her Department in each month since May 2005; and if she will make a statement. [184071]

Mr. Tom Harris: In the last 12 months, Ministers and officials at the Department for Transport have received many representations regarding various aspects of First Greater Western operations. Ministers remain very concerned about First Great Western's performance, and want to see improvements matching those seen elsewhere in the industry.

Freight: Foreigners

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what action the Government have taken to ensure that foreign-registered haulage vehicles on British roads comply with the requirements of EU legislation. [185630]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) has a specific responsibility to help ensure that all commercial vehicles and drivers comply with the law, irrespective of whether their operating base is in the UK or elsewhere. Additionally, VOSA has significantly stepped up the level of enforcement activity in respect of commercial vehicles undertaking international journeys since the beginning of 2006-07.

The Government have also introduced new provisions in the Road Safety Act 2006 so that—in addition to prohibiting vehicles and drivers for various offences—both VOSA and the police will be able to issue fixed penalties to offenders, regardless of nationality. The Department is aiming to make all the necessary secondary legislation to implement these provisions as soon as possible.

Freight: Roads

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what action the Government have taken to assist the British haulage industry since 1997. [185629]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The most significant actions that the Government have taken have been announced in Budget and pre-Budget reports (PBRs), and the highlights of these are the focus of this response.

The Government announced in 1999 their intention to engage more fully with hauliers when they announced the creation of the Road Haulage Forum. This forum offered the industry, through representative organisations such as the Freight Transport Association (FTA), Road Haulage Association (RHA) and the Transport and General Workers' Union (TGWU), the opportunity to meet Ministers regularly to explore any industry problems and discuss possible solutions.

The setting up of the forum was followed by the PBR 2000 announcement of the Road Haulage Modernisation Fund, which offered £100 million to the UK trucking industry. The modernisation fund was part of a package including a £220 million VED rebate and a freeze on fuel duties.

PBR 2005 saw the creation of the Haulage Industry Task Group (HITG). The group's aim was to develop a stronger evidence base to inform the Government's future policy decisions. The RHA and FTA were represented on this group, and the HITG reported its findings at PBR 2006. PBR 2005 also saw the Government announce £2 million for new enforcement equipment for VOSA.

PBR 2006 announced that the Government would undertake a feasibility study of options for better enforcement against foreign hauliers including a time-based charging system for use of UK roads (a vignette). A progress report was published last November.

Following last year's Budget announcement that there had been a significant increase in targeted checks by VOSA of vehicles on international journeys, PBR 2007 announced that an extra £2 million a year would be dedicated to the Government's ongoing drive to enforce road safety law for hauliers, with the focus particularly on those undertaking international journeys.

The Department also operates a Freight Best Practice programme which aims to reduce the environmental impact of the freight industry through improved operational efficiency. The industry benefit over the last two years has shown savings of £83 million. The free advice that the programme offers is available at www.freightbestpractice.org.uk, and further information on other actions the Government have taken to assist hauliers is available at www.dft.gov.uk

Galileo

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what account was taken of the Transport Committee's recommendations (First Report, Session 2007-08, HC 53) on the Galileo project in the Government's subsequent position in European Union decisions on Galileo; whether any changes were made to the Government's position as a result of the Committee's report; how much the UK is committed to contribute to this project; and what discussions she has had with the Chairman of the Select Committee on this matter. [178810]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Government welcomed the report of the Transport Committee, which agreed with much of our analysis on both the significant potential benefits of the programme and the questions giving cause for concern.

The Government's negotiating position at ECOFIN and the Transport councils was endorsed by Parliament following a debate in European Standing Committee on 26 November 2007. We worked with other member states to meet our concerns, and successfully reached agreement on the need for robust control of costs, clear and transparent governance, and maximum competition in procurement.

The UK has directly committed funds of €142 million as an ESA member state for the ESA element of the design and development phase of the programme. As EU member states contribute to the EC budget as a whole, rather than to individual spending programmes within it, there is no specific UK contribution to the EC budget-funded element of the development and subsequent deployment costs for Galileo.

There have been no specific discussions between departmental Ministers and the Chairman of the committee on Galileo since publication of the report, but the subject was raised at the Transport Committee hearing on 30 January 2008.

Heathrow Airport

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport in relation to the "Adding capacity at Heathrow airport" public consultation document what is (a) the current proportion of twin-engined aircraft to four-engined aircraft using Heathrow airport and (b) the assumed proportion of twin-engined aircraft to four-engined aircraft used in projecting future noise and environmental modelling contained in the consultation document; and if she will make a statement. [182435]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 25 January 2008]: Four-engined aircraft are estimated to account for some 15 per cent. of the fleet at Heathrow in 2005. The noise and environmental modelling reported in the Heathrow consultation documents assume an increase in the proportion of twin-engined aircraft over time, with the proportion of four-engined aircraft declining to around 12 per cent. in a mixed-mode scenario (2015) and 6 per cent. in a third runway scenario (2020). These forecasts are informed by current, known airline fleet replacement plans and discussions with airlines on likely future trends. More detail on the fleet composition is set out in the two supporting technical reports, ERCD Report 0705 on noise exposure estimates and AEA report on emission summaries, both available on the DFT website:

www.dft.gov.uk

Heathrow Airport: Safety

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate her Department has made of the number of missed approaches made by planes landing at Heathrow in each of the last four years; and if she will make a statement. [182434]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 25 January 2008]: This is an operational matter for NATS, the air navigation services provider at Heathrow airport. I suggest the hon. Member directs her inquiries to the chief executive of NATS.

Intimidation

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many cases of bullying were reported in (a) her Department and (b) its agencies in each of the last 12 months. [182845]

Jim Fitzpatrick: A total of 38 formal cases of bullying were reported in the Department for Transport and its agencies between January 2007 and December 2007.

Lorries

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) when the study commissioned by her Department in December 2005 of longer heavier vehicles will report; and whether the full report will be published; [180127]

(2) what consultants have been employed by her Department in relation to the study commissioned in December 2005 of longer heavier vehicles. [180128]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The study was commissioned in October 2006 following a decision in December 2005 by the then Minister of State, Department for Transport, my hon. Friend the Member for South Thanet (Dr. Ladyman), to refuse applications from two hauliers each wishing to trial a goods vehicle longer and heavier than those currently permitted. This updates information provided in my answer of 17 December 2007, Official Report, columns 1117-8W.

A freight transport consultant from Faber Maunsell was appointed to manage the study, with the research work being undertaken by the Transport Research Laboratory (TRL) and Heriot-Watt university. The full report should be published by the end of February.

Lorries: Environment

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment her Department has made of the environmental impact of allowing trucks of over 60 tonnes on the roads; and if she will make a statement. [178650]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 5 February 2008]: The environmental impact of such vehicles is currently being assessed in a study, the report of which should be published in full shortly.

Maritime and Coastguard Agency: Emergency Calls

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many 999 calls the Maritime and Coastguard Agency has answered in each of the last five years. [183341]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Maritime and Coastguard Agency has collected statistics about the total number of reported incidents to coastguard rescue co-ordination centres for many years, but more precise information on the number of 999 calls received has only been collected reliably since April 2006. From April to December 2006 coastguard rescue co-ordination centres received 18,066 calls and in 2007 they received 21,321 calls to the end of November (the latest period for which information is available).

Maritime and Coastguard Agency: False Alarms

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many hoax calls the Maritime and Coastguard Agency received in each year since 2000; and how many people were convicted for making such calls in each year. [185704]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Maritime and Coastguard Agency (MCA) has responded in some way to the following number of incidents, by year, which were found to be hoax.

| | Number |
|---|---|
| 2000 | 221 |
| 2001 | 206 |
| 2002 | 260 |
| 2003 | 232 |
| 2004 | 301 |
| 2005 | 406 |
| 2006 | 529 |
| 2007 | [1]691 |

[1] Provisional figure.

Information on hoax calls are passed to the police and the MCA is not always aware of the outcome.

Motor Vehicles: Excise Duties

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate she has made of the number of (a) motor cars and (b) motorcycles being used on the road without the payment of vehicle excise duty in each region in each year since 2001. [181622]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Estimates of the number of unlicensed vehicles being used on the road in each region are not available.

However, the estimated rate of unlicensed vehicles seen in traffic is available for each region. These estimates represent evasion among vehicles travelling in each region, which may be different from the region in which each vehicle's keeper lives. Owing to small sample sizes estimates are not available for motorcycles, but they are available for vehicles in the private and light goods tax class, as follows:

Rate of unlicensed vehicles in traffic

|---|---|---|---|---|
| East of England | 3.1 | 1.8 | 2.2 | 2.1 |
| East midlands | 2.2 | 1.5 | 1.6 | 1.7 |
| Greater London | 4.5 | 2.1 | 1.8 | 2.1 |
| North-east | 2.4 | 1.3 | 1.3 | 1.3 |
| North-west | 2.8 | 2.0 | 1.7 | 2.5 |
| Scotland | 1.6 | 2.3 | 1.9 | 2.3 |
| South-east | 2.8 | 1.8 | 2.0 | 1.9 |
| South-west | 2.6 | 1.4 | 1.5 | 1.7 |
| Wales | 2.8 | 1.9 | 2.9 | 2.7 |
| West midlands | 2.3 | 1.8 | 2.2 | 1.5 |
| Yorkshire and the Humber | 2.4 | 1.8 | 1.6 | 2.2 |

Roadside surveys were not conducted in either 2001 or 2003, and estimates are therefore unavailable for these years.

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many motorists failed to pay vehicle excise duty in each of the last 10 years. [184957]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The estimated numbers of unlicensed vehicles in use in Great Britain are as follows.

Thousand

| | Estimated number of unlicensed vehicles in use | Of which, number liable for vehicle excise duty | Of which, number exempt from vehicle excise duty |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1999 | 1,337 | 1,277 | 60 |
| 2002 | 1,905 | 1,770 | 135 |
| 2004 | 1,240 | 1,168 | 72 |
| 2005 | 1,549 | 1,459 | 90 |
| 2006 | 2,170 | 2,089 | 81 |

Roadside surveys were not conducted in 2000, 2001 or 2003, and estimates are therefore unavailable for those years.

Motor Vehicles: Insurance

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate she has made of the number of (a) motorcars and (b) motorcycles being used on the road without insurance in each region in each year since 2001. [181623]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Our latest estimate (2005) for uninsured driving is based on a comparison of the vehicle register, maintained by the Driver and Vehicle Licensing agency and the Motor Insurance Database. The estimate is that about 2.1 million licensed vehicles (about 6.5 per cent. of the UK fleet) are being driven by uninsured drivers. There is no similar comparison for earlier years and no separate information for motorcars and motorcycles or by region.

Motor Vehicles: Testing

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans she has to review the future use of the MOT vehicle testing scheme. [186310]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department will be consulting later this year on the frequency of MOT testing.

Network Rail

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will publish the reports on the west coast route modernisation submitted to the Office of Rail Regulation in (a) 2005, (b) 2006 and (c) 2007 by its regulatory reporters appointed under Condition 23 of Network Rail's network licence. [180875]

Mr. Tom Harris: This is a matter for the ORR. The ORR informs me that its views on the programme, based directly on the reports, are published in ORR's quarterly 'Network Rail Monitor' and in the 'Annual Assessment of Network Rail 2006-07'. Copies of these publications are available on ORR's website at:

http://www.rail-reg.gov.uk.

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport under what conditions (a) train operators and (b) other persons are entitled to have access to the asset register established by Network Rail under Condition 24 of its network licence. [180878]

Mr. Tom Harris: This is a matter for Network Rail, as the owner and operator of the national rail network. The hon. Member should contact Network Rail's chief executive at the following address for a response to her questions.

Iain Coucher
Chief Executive
Network Rail
40 Melton Street
London
NW1 2EE

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what proposals (a) she and (b) the Office of Rail Regulation have for enhancing the accountability of Network Rail to its train operator customers. [180879]

Mr. Tom Harris: Network Rail is accountable through its network licence and to its customers through its contracts and industry codes. The ORR keeps these under review.

Network Rail: Finance

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much has been spent by Network Rail in each region in each year since its establishment; and what its projected spend in each region is in each of the next three years. [183545]

Mr. Tom Harris: This is a matter for Network Rail as the owner and operator of the national rail network. The hon. Member should contact Network Rail's Chief Executive at the following address for a response to his question.

Iain Coucher
Chief Executive
Network Rail
40 Melton Street
London NW12EE

Network Rail: Pay

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will take steps to arrange the method of bonus calculation for Network Rail directors so as to incentivise growth of the network. [182540]

Mr. Tom Harris: Decisions on bonuses are a matter for Network Rail's independent remuneration committee, not for Government. The level of bonuses is determined by the degree of achievement of key performance indicator regulatory targets under Network Rail's annual management incentive plan, produced in accordance with a licence requirement of the independent Office of Rail Regulation.

Official Cars: Carbon Emissions

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what volume of carbon dioxide was emitted from ministerial vehicles in each year for which information is available. [181919]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The information requested is not recorded and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. The figure for the ministerial fleet is currently 147.62 grams per kilometre (g/km). However, the average $CO_2$ emission profile for all new cars purchased since April 2006 is currently 130 g/km.

Official Cars: Excise Duties

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what proportion of the Government's ministerial car fleet is in each of the vehicle excise duty bands. [181918]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Of the 85 cars currently in the ministerial fleet provided by the Government Car and Despatch agency, 53 (62.3 per cent.) are vehicle excise duty (VED) band B, one (1.2 per cent.) is in VED band C, 30 (35.3 per cent.) are in VED band F and one (1.2 per cent.) is in VED band G.

Pollution

Nick Ainger: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when she expects the Government to ratify the (a) convention on hazardous and noxious substances 1996, (b) convention on oil pollution preparedness and co-operation/hazardous and noxious substances 2000, (c) anti-fouling convention and (d) ballast and water management convention; and if she will make a statement. [185786]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The United Kingdom, together with many other EU and third country states, has not yet ratified the International convention on liability and compensation for damage in connection with the carriage of hazardous and noxious substances by Sea (HNS), 1996, because of a number of technical and legal difficulties with the current text. To overcome these difficulties the International Maritime Organisation's legal committee will consider the text of a new draft legal instrument at its meeting in October 2008. This legal instrument is likely to be in the form of a protocol. Once new text has been agreed at IMO, the UK will take the necessary steps to ratify the convention, as amended by the protocol.

The UK intends to accede to the oil pollution preparedness, response and co-operation (OPRC) Convention Protocol 2000" as soon as possible, following the introduction of secondary legislation later this year.

Legislation to implement the international convention on the control of harmful anti-fouling systems on ships 2001 (anti-fouling convention) is currently in draft, and will be issued for public consultation later this year. The Government will ratify the convention once this consultation has been satisfactorily completed and the legislation is in place.

The Government intend to begin work on implementing and ratifying the international convention for the control and management of ships ballast water and sediments 2004 ("Ballast Water Convention"), once outstanding issues relating to the availability of treatment systems and the associated guidance are resolved through the International Maritime Organisation.

Railway Stations: Bicycles

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions her Department has had with Network Rail and train operating companies on the provision of secure bicycle parking at stations; and if she will make a statement. [183654]

Mr. Tom Harris: The rail White Paper "Delivering a Sustainable Railway" announced the setting up of a Cycle and Rail Task Force (CRIT) to look into how bike and rail journeys can be better integrated. The task force includes the Association of Train Operating Companies, Network Rail, Passenger Focus, Cycling England and the Department for Transport. Secure bicycle parking is one of the issues that the task force will be considering.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether her Department has considered setting minimum standards for the provision of secure bicycle parking at major railway stations. [183655]

Mr. Tom Harris: Guidance on the provision of secure bicycle parking is contained in the "DFT Bike and Rail Policy" document published by the former Strategic Rail Authority (SRA) in 2004 and since adopted by the Department for Transport. This can be found on the Department's website at:

www.dft.gov.uk

This guidance was referenced in the invitations to tender for the recent rail franchise awards when directing bidders to submit proposals for improving facilities at stations for cyclists.

The new Cycle and Rail Task Force was created to help the Government get right the detail of the franchising regime with respect to the integration of bike and rail.

Railways: Concessions

Martin Salter: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of the effects of the terms of the young persons railcard on the purchase of rail passes and season tickets; and what representations she has received on extending the use of such railcards for peak time travel. [185844]

Mr. Tom Harris: The young persons railcard is a product targeted at promoting leisure travel. The terms and conditions of use are such that it should not affect the purchase or demand for rail passes and season tickets.

No formal representations have been received in respect of the extension of use of young persons railcards to embrace commuter travel, although it allows peak time travel subject to minimum fare levels.

Railways: Fares

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will take steps to limit the increases in rail fares for rail users without season tickets. [183929]

Mr. Tom Harris [holding answer 1 February 2008]: In addition to most season tickets, fares regulation encompasses standard day singles and returns in urban commuter areas and saver fares for long-distance travel (or a standard day return for long-distance journeys for which there was no saver). Regulated fares are usually limited to average fares increases of RPI+1, though operators are free to raise individual fares up to RPI+6 per cent. as long as this is matched by decreases in other regulated fares on their network.

Other fares are unregulated: train operators are free to set prices as they wish subject to competition from coach, air travel and car.

The Department continues to listen to the representations of Passenger Focus, and has invited it to take a greater role in commenting on the specification of future franchises.

Railways: Fines

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many complaints were made following on-the-spot fines on the railways in each of the last five years; and how many of these were upheld. [183651]

Mr. Tom Harris: The train operators on the National Rail network do not issue on-the-spot fines and therefore there have been no complaints about them. In areas where a penalty fares scheme is in place, passengers travelling without tickets, or who for other approved reasons are liable to be issued with a penalty fare notice, are subsequently entitled to make an appeal. The approved appeals bodies themselves keep records of all such appeals.

Railways: Freedom of Information

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans her Department has to bring forward measures to make (a) train operating companies and (b) Network Rail subject to the provisions of the Freedom of Information Act 2000. [183643]

Jim Fitzpatrick: None at this stage. The Government keep the Freedom of Information Act under continuous review and a consultation period on the extension of its scope has recently ended.

Railways: Portsmouth

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what specifications requested by her Department were written into the franchise documents for mainline express journeys from Portsmouth to London via Basingstoke for (a) seating and (b) stand alone tables prior to the franchise being won by South West Trains. [184073]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Department did not specify the internal specification of the rolling stock on the South Western Franchise.

Railways: Repairs and Maintenance

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how many timetabled engineering projects Network Rail has carried out in each of the last five years; [180260]

(2) how many timetabled engineering projects run by Network Rail have overrun their timetable in each of the last five years; and what percentage of works this represents. [180261]

Mr. Tom Harris: These are operational matters for Network Rail, as the owner and operator of the national rail network. The hon. Member should contact Network Rail's chief executive at the following address for a response to his questions.

Iain Coucher
Chief Executive
Network Rail
40 Melton Street
London
NW1 2EE

Office of Rail Regulation

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what capacity measurement tools are used by the Office of Rail Regulation in relation to (a) track, (b) stations and (c) light maintenance depots. [180884]

Mr. Tom Harris: This is a matter for the Office of Rail Regulation (ORR). ORR informs me that it makes use of industry standard models as appropriate. It can also require Network Rail and other stakeholders to carry out capacity modelling or commission its own.

ORR also requires Network Rail to report on specific capacity metrics in its annual return. ORR uses this data in its annual assessment of Network Rail. The "Annual Assessment of Network Rail 2006-07" is available on ORR's website at:

Roads

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what research (a) has been conducted since 1997 and (b) is planned by her Department comparing forecast and actual traffic levels for (i) the building of new roads and motorways and (ii) the widening of existing roads and motorways; and if she will place in the Library copies of reports of such research. [181620]

Mr. Tom Harris: Since 2002 the Highways Agency has retrospectively analysed the accuracy of the traffic flow forecasts for all major trunk road improvement schemes, including the widening of existing roads and motorways. A preliminary analysis is undertaken of some schemes immediately after opening, but all schemes over £5 million are evaluated one year and five years after scheme opening. A table giving carbon dioxide, traffic, and road traffic accident data of major Highways Agency schemes, opened since 1997 and completed before December 2006, is in the House of Commons Library.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) if she will publish on her Department's website lists of road schemes approved and funded by the Department, providing (a) the costs at approval, (b) the latest ministerially approved cost and (c) the estimated carbon dioxide emissions impact; [185867]

(2) if she will publish on her Department's website the appraisal summary tables of the road schemes she has approved. [185868]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 4 February 2008, Official Report, columns 790-91W.

Roads: Accidents

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) injuries and (b) deaths there were on roads in (i) Peterborough constituency and (ii) the Peterborough city council area in each of the last 10 years. [186314]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The numbers of people (a) injured and (b) killed resulting from reported personal injury road accidents in (i) Peterborough constituency and (ii) Peterborough city council in 1997 to 2006 are shown in the table.

Number of casualties

| | Peterborough constituency[1] | | Peterborough city council | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Injured[2] | Killed | Injured[2] | Killed |
| 1997 | 618 | 4 | 1,188 | 7 |
| 1998 | 611 | 4 | 1,148 | 10 |
| 1999 | 556 | 4 | 1,030 | 13 |
| 2000 | 603 | 5 | 1,215 | 16 |
| 2001 | 602 | 1 | 1,161 | 10 |
| 2002 | 639 | 3 | 1,184 | 11 |

| | Number of casualties | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Peterborough constituency[1] | | Peterborough city council | |
| | Injured[2] | Killed | Injured[2] | Killed |
| 2003 | 683 | 2 | 1,222 | 12 |
| 2004 | 672 | 4 | 1,253 | 17 |
| 2005 | 679 | 2 | 1,273 | 11 |
| 2006 | 583 | 4 | 1,100 | 8 |

[1] Based on 2004 parliamentary constituency boundaries.
[2] Serious or slightly injured.

Roads: Death

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many deaths there were in motor accidents in which a contributory factor was (a) consumption of illegal drugs, (b) consumption of alcohol and (c) tiredness of the driver during December in each year since 1997. [183652]

Mr. Tom Harris: The number of fatalities resulting from reported road accidents in which a driver/rider had impairment by alcohol, impairment by drugs (illicit or medicinal) or fatigue as a contributory factor during December for 2005 and 2006 is shown in the table.

| | Number of fatalities | |
|---|---|---|
| Driver contributory factor | 2005 | 2006 |
| Impaired by alcohol | 38 | 35 |
| Impaired by drugs (illicit or medicinal) | 5 | 7 |
| Fatigue | 13 | 7 |

Information on contributory factors is not available prior to 2005.

The contributory factor "impairment by drugs" applies to illicit drugs as well as all medicines, whether prescription or 'over the counter'. It is not possible to separate the factor into illicit and medicinal drugs.

The contributory factor "impaired by alcohol" is recorded in accidents in which the police officer's opinion at the time of reporting is that the driver/rider was affected by alcohol and behaved in a way which caused, or contributed to, the accident—whether or not they were above the legal limit. This may not be the result of a breath or blood test.

Roads: East Anglia

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent discussions her Department has had with officials in the European Commission on the prioritisation of funding for the Trans European Road Network in East Anglia; and if she will make a statement. [181495]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 24 January 2008]: The Department put forward a bid under the TEN-T multi-annual bidding round. The UK bid package included two East Anglia road schemes on the A14, funding for works on the A14 between Ellington and Fen Ditton, and between Haughley to Stowmarket. The EC awarded a TEN-T grant of €80.7 million (£60.1 million) on 27 November. We are now in talks with the Commission to finalise how this award will be divided between the different schemes within our bid package.

Rolling Stock

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport for what reason the rolling stock plan does not include new diesel rolling stock for the SouthCentral franchise; and what assessment she has made of the adequacy of the complement of such stock on the (a) Brighton-Ashford and (b) Uckfield-London line. [186496]

Mr. Tom Harris: Bidders for the replacement South Central franchise, for which invitations to tender will be issued later this year, will be required to demonstrate how they plan to match capacity to demand for all the routes in the franchise, including the Uckfield and Ashford lines.

Rolling Stock: Standards

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) if she will bring forward proposals to meet the criticisms recorded in the Rail Passengers Council report of March 2005 in relation to the standard of stock on the Portsmouth mainline express service; and if she will make a statement; [186663]

(2) if she will remit the report of March 2005 from the Rail Passengers Council back to the council requesting that it bring forward specific recommendations to address the views of passengers expressed in the report. [186664]

Mr. Tom Harris: The disposition of rolling stock is a matter not for Government, but for Stagecoach South Western Trains (SSWT).

Severn Bridge: Tolls

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 4 February 2008, Official Report, column 719W, on Severn Bridge: tolls, when the working group is expected to present its findings. [185742]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The working group is expecting to submit a report of its findings and recommendations by early autumn.

Shipping: Climate Change

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment her Department has made of the implications of climate change for the UK marine shipping industry. [185774]

Jim Fitzpatrick: It is important to place UK shipping firmly in context as part of an industry which operates worldwide and is best regulated on a global basis. The Government recognise that shipping generates greenhouse gas emissions which contribute to climate change. Consequently, the Government are working actively within the International Maritime Organisation (IMO) to limit greenhouse gas emissions and other atmospheric emissions from ships. At the IMO's Marine Environment Protection Committee meeting held in July 2007, the UK argued strongly for the IMO to be both swift and bold in bringing forward measures. The July 2007 Marine Environment Protection Committee meeting considered control measures for greenhouse gas emissions from ships, and set up a correspondence group with a remit to examine possible technical, operational and market-based measures to address greenhouse gas emissions from ships. The correspondence group will report to the next meeting of the Marine Environment Protection Committee, which is from 31 March to 4 April 2008. It is the aim of the IMO to agree on recommendations to reduce greenhouse gas emissions from ships at their assembly in the autumn of 2009.

As regards solutions, market-based measures such as emissions trading are one important area, while in the medium to long term technological improvements may also deliver savings in carbon emissions. For example, the IMO have estimated that technical measures for ship design have significant potential to reduce greenhouse gas emissions, which could account for up to 30 per cent. in new ships and 20 per cent. in existing ships.

Shipping: Examinations

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps her Department plans to take to develop the seafaring skills base. [185707]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Government provide support for seafarer training through the tonnage tax core training commitment and through the support for maritime training (SMarT) scheme, which funds about half of seafarer training costs. These two initiatives have contributed greatly to the seafaring skills base.

In addition to this we support the excellent work of the Merchant Navy Training Board and SeaVision in promoting maritime careers around the country.

The number of new officer trainees claiming SMarT has increased from 480 in 1999-2000 to 650 in 2006-07. We expect final numbers for 2007-08 to be in excess of 800.

We are also currently looking into the practicalities of the joint proposals for increased support for training and employment received from our social partners.

Shipping: Freight

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what targets she has set for the diversion of freight from roads to coastal shipping; and what steps her Department has taken to encourage use of coastal shipping for freight transport. [185737]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department seeks to encourage the modal shift of freight from roads to water in order to secure the environmental benefits that this mode can provide. We operate a Freight Facility Grant to help with the capital cost of providing water freight handling facilities and a Waterborne Freight Grant to assist companies with the operating costs associated with running water freight transport where road is the cheaper option. These schemes are open to inland waterways transport, coastal and short sea shipping.

We also provide support to Sea and Water, an organisation which promotes the shipping of freight on coastal and inland waterways.

Shipping: Registration

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what her policy is on acceptance of ships onto the UK register, which do not meet the health and safety standards set by the International Safety of Life at Sea Convention. [186417]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Ships joining the UK register must comply with the health and safety standards set by the International Safety of Life at Sea (SOLAS) Convention.

Shipping: Working Conditions

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps her Department plans to take to improve health and safety for workers in the shipping industry. [185705]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Primary responsibility for the health and safety of workers in the shipping industry rests with their employers. The Maritime and Coastguard Agency has a responsibility for enforcement of the relevant health and safety legislation and also issues guidance on a wide range of health and safety matters. For the future, the UK is committed to implementing the provisions of the Maritime Labour Convention, including those relating to the health and safety of seafarers.

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of the safety implications for seafarers of exposure to emissions from ships' fuel. [185773]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Assessment of safety implications of shipboard operations is broadly a matter for the employer under the existing health and safety regime.

In the particular case of emissions from ships fuel, the issue is currently being considered internationally through the International Maritime Organisation review of existing air pollution controls for ships. The UK is taking an active role in the review group.

Southeastern Railway: Access

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what applications were received from Southeastern Railway for Access For All (a) Small Schemes and (b) Main Schemes for 2008-09. [186139]

Mr. Tom Harris: We have received no applications for funding from Southeastern Railway for 2008-09.

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much funding has been given to Southeastern Railway under the Access For All Scheme since its introduction. [186140]

Mr. Tom Harris: Southeastern Trains has been offered £764,185 of Access for All Small Schemes funding since 2006. Projects worth £174,361 have been completed and the remainder are on-going.

Traffic Accidents

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how many traffic accidents involving at least one pedestrian casualty there were in each year since 1997, broken down by the smallest geographical unit by which this information is collected; [186850]

(2) how many traffic accidents involving at least one pedestrian casualty and road freight there were in each year since 1997, broken down by the smallest geographical unit by which this information is collected; [186851]

(3) how many fatal traffic accidents there were in each year since 1997, broken down by the smallest geographical unit by which this information is collected. [186852]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Tables showing information on reported personal injury road accidents involving (a) at least one pedestrian casualty, (b) at least one pedestrian casualty and HGV and (c) the number of fatal road accidents in each local authority in GB for 1997 to 2006 have been deposited in the Libraries of the House.

Transport Innovation Fund

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when her Department expects to announce which Transport Innovation Fund bids will be granted programme entry. [183653]

Ms Rosie Winterton: We have received Transport Innovation Fund proposals from Greater Manchester and Cambridgeshire which we are currently considering. We expect to announce the first decisions later this year.

Transport: Disabled

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what measures of support are in place to help those with temporary disabilities gain increased mobility and access to essential facilities. [182555]

Ms Rosie Winterton: There has been significant progress in making public transport accessible through regulations made under the Disability Discrimination Act 1995. For a number of years all new buses, coaches and trains have had to meet accessibility standards and 58 per cent. of buses and over 40 per cent. of trains now do so. The entire national fleet of buses must meet accessibility standards by 2017, and trains must meet them by 2020. People with temporary disabilities will benefit equally from these improvements.

In addition, transport providers are required by the Disability Discrimination Act to make reasonable adjustments to their services to make them accessible to disabled people. The Department of Transport has published best practice guidance on access to pedestrian and transport infrastructure. Designs that satisfy disabled people's requirements will also meet the needs of many other people, including those with temporary disabilities.

As part of the Government's Railways for All strategy we have made available £370 million to Network Rail to improve station accessibility by 2015, with over 90 stations already identified for improvement by 2011.

Recent European legislation concerning air transport and international rail transport creates new rights for disabled people and people with reduced mobility to improve the accessibility of these modes. The definition of reduced mobility would encompass temporary disabilities. The Commission plans to propose similar legislation in the areas of maritime transport and international bus and coach transport.

We are also currently consulting on proposals to extend the blue badge scheme to people with temporary disabilities.

Transport: Finance

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much (a) revenue support and (b) capital allocations for (i) Hampshire, (ii) Portsmouth and (iii) Southampton for (A) urban bus challenge, (B) kick start, (C) rural safety grant and (D) detrunked roads (1) there were in each year since 2005 and (2) are planned for each of the next three years. [185434]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The following tables sets out the revenue and capital support for these four specific funding lines that the Department has provided from 2005-06 onwards and what is planned for the next three years for Hampshire, Portsmouth and Southampton.

No funds have been granted, or are currently planned to be awarded to any of the three authorities in the period specified for rural road safety grant, but the tables includes figures for the similarly named specific road safety grant.

From 2008-09 onwards, the revenue support for detrunked roads and specific road safety grant will be incorporated within the general area-based grant, administered by the Department for Communities and Local Government.

Transport: Sustainable Development

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether the project on the sustainability of land use and transport in outer neighbourhoods has been completed. [184647]

Ms Rosie Winterton: No. This project is expected to complete in September 2008.

Transport: Tickets

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 29 November 2007, Official Report, columns 607-8W, on transport: tickets, what progress has been made to ensure smartcard readers in London are ITSO/Oyster dual-operable. [186414]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department for Transport continues to work closely with Transport for London to deliver the May 2006 agreement to make the Oyster estate interoperable with the ITSO smartcard standard, and to make Oyster Pay As You Go available on national rail in London. The detailed design and scoping study is still on target to deliver a fixed price and delivery schedule in April 2008 for the roll-out of ITSO/Oyster dual-operable smartcard readers.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what aims and objectives he has set for British policy in Afghanistan. [185645]

Dr. Howells: As my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister set out in his statement to the House on 12 December 2007, Official Report, columns 303-07, there are four key areas of our long-term commitment in Afghanistan, including greater Afghan ownership; localisation and reconciliation; reconstruction; and greater burden sharing. This is a long-term effort: there are no quick wins.

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the outcome was of his recent discussions with the US Secretary of State on Afghanistan. [186387]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary had, in his own words "excellent" and "intensive" discussions with the US Secretary of State, followed by a joint visit to Afghanistan. As he noted, during his joint press conference with the US Secretary of State, in London on 6 February:

> "Both of our countries are committed to our work in Afghanistan for the long term, we are committed to bring together the economic, social and military aspects of our work. We are committed to active support of the Afghan government as it strives to build a decent society in that very poor country, and we are committed to rallying an international alliance of many countries to effectively support the Afghan government."

Afghanistan: Asylum

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what procedures there are for processing asylum applications from locally-employed staff in Afghanistan. [185044]

Mr. Byrne: I have been asked to reply.

The 1951 United Nations Convention relating to the Status of Refugees defines a refugee as a person who is, among other things, > "outside the country of his nationality".

An individual who remains in the country of nationality is not, by definition, a refugee and cannot seek asylum. A person who is outside the country of nationality should approach the local authorities in the third country or the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees.

Afghanistan: Detainees

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the Answer of 4 February 2008, Official Report, column 759W, on Afghanistan: detainees, if he will place in the Library copies of the exchange of letters between the Afghan and UK governments on access to detainees by UK officials and human rights organisations. [186705]

David Miliband: The exchange of letters is publicly available on the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's Afghanistan website (www.fco.gov.uk/ukandafghanistan). I have arranged for copies to be placed in the Library of the House.

Afghanistan: Drugs

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much funding the UK allocated to (a) the Counter Narcotics Police of Afghanistan, (b) the Afghan Special Narcotics Force and (c) the Counter Narcotics Criminal Justice Task Force in each of the last three years. [186721]

Dr. Howells: The information requested by the hon. Member is as follows:

| | 2005-06 | 2006-07 | 2007-08 |
|---|---|---|---|
| Counter Narcotics Police of Afghanistan | 8.9 million | 12.1 million | 8.4 million |
| Afghan Special Narcotics Force | 6.23 million | 9.4 million | 32.5 million |
| Counter Narcotics Criminal Justice Task Force | 572,000 | 1.1 million | 1 million |

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the division of responsibilities is between (a) the Counter Narcotics Police of Afghanistan, (b) the Afghan Special Narcotics Force and (c) the Counter Narcotics Criminal Justice Task Force. [186723]

Dr. Howells: The Counter Narcotics Police of Afghanistan is the leading agency for counter narcotics law enforcement in Afghanistan.

The Afghan Special Narcotics Force's primary purpose is to assist the interdiction effort against trafficking networks throughout Afghanistan.

The primary purpose of the counter-narcotics Criminal Justice Task Force and the Central Narcotics Tribunal is to investigate and try those arrested on drugs-related charges, based on the processes defined in the Counter-Narcotics Law of Afghanistan (2006). Article 34 of the Counter Narcotics law defines the mandate of the Counter Narcotics Tribunal under the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of Afghanistan.

Arms Trade

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information his Department has received on alleged breaches of (a) arms embargos and (b) sanctions regimes by Michael Harridine; and if he will make a statement. [186321]

Dr. Howells: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office received the following information in December 2000 in relation to the possible involvement of Michael Harridine in alleged breaches of sanctions.

December 2000 Report of the Panel of Experts appointed pursuant to UN Security Council Resolution 1306, in relation to Sierra Leone (paragraph 227); and December 2000 Final report of the Monitoring Mechanism on Angola Sanctions established pursuant to UN Security Council Resolution 1295 (paragraphs 142-143).

This information was passed to the relevant UK authorities.

Bangladesh: Elections

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the progress made on voter list assembly and electoral reform in Bangladesh. [186726]

Dr. Howells: When my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary visited Bangladesh last week, he heard from the Chief Election Commissioner of Bangladesh that 36 million voters out of a total of approximately 80 million have now been registered. It is expected that the draft voter list will be ready by late June/July. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary stressed to the Chief Adviser of the caretaker Government, and in his public comments, the absolute necessity of holding free and fair elections by December 2008, in accordance with the caretaker Government's roadmap to elections.

Bangladesh: Human Rights

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the (a) imprisonment of journalists and (b) other human rights violations in Bangladesh. [186725]

Dr. Howells: There have been reports from Bangladesh of the arrest of journalists, including Jahangir Alam Akash. Our High Commissioner raised his case when EU Heads of Mission in Dhaka met the Foreign Affairs Adviser in December 2007. Mr. Akash is currently on bail. When my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary visited Bangladesh last week, he spoke publicly of the need for adherence to basic standards of human rights. He reiterated the importance that Britain attaches to strong democratic institutions, including a free press.

Bangladesh: Trade Unions

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations he has made to the Government of Bangladesh on its treatment of trade unionists, with particular reference to Mehodi Hasan; and if he will make a statement. [185017]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not made representations to the caretaker Government of Bangladesh on the specific issue of the treatment of trade unionists. We consistently emphasise to the caretaker Government the need to balance concerns for stability and security with respect for individuals' rights and freedoms, democratic processes and the rule of law.

We are aware that Mr. Hasan was arrested on 24 January in connection with demonstrations by garment workers in the Mirpur area of Dhaka on 14 to 15 January and of reports of 100-150 people injured. Mr. Hasan was released on 3 February and all charges against him have been dropped.

Chad: Politics and Government

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the political situation in Chad; and if he will make a statement. [185051]

Meg Munn [holding answer 7 February 2008]: The security situation in Chad remains unstable following rebel incursions into the capital, N'Djamena, on 2 February. As of 15 February, the security situation in Chad is calmer, with Chadian rebel groups having retreated from N'Djamena. However, conditions on the ground have been changing rapidly. The UN estimates that over 30,000 people were forced to flee into neighbouring Cameroon as a result of the fighting, though many are now returning. There have been eye-witness reports of widespread looting in N'Djamena.

The UK has supported the UN in condemning attempts to seize power by force in Chad and in urging all regional states to abide by previous agreements with regard to respect for and securing of their common borders. The UN also supported the African Union in demanding an immediate end to the violence and in appointing Libyan and Congolese mediators to initiate efforts aimed at seeking a lasting solution.

EU Ministers at the General Affairs and External Relations Council on 28 January urged:

> "the Chadian and the Sudanese governments to abstain from any action that could further destabilise the current situation whilst exercising the utmost restraint and settling differences through dialogue and diplomatic channels".

The UK has taken every opportunity to underline the need for re-establishing political dialogue, for example in my noble Friend the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN's, the right hon. Lord Malloch-Brown, contacts at the African Union Summit with African and other interlocutors including President Bashir of Sudan.

Chevening Scholarship Programme

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 22 January 2008, Official Report, columns 1850-51W, on the Chevening scholarship programme, whether he plans to reduce the number of Chevening scholarships available. [185981]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The allocation of Chevening scholarships for 2008-09 is still under consideration. The House will be informed once a decision is taken.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many Wikipedia entries have been (a) created and (b) amended (i) by (A) special advisers, (B) Ministers and (C) communications officials and (ii) from IP addresses of (1) special advisers, (2) Ministers and (3) communications officials in (x) his Department and (y) its agencies since August 2005. [185524]

Meg Munn: No Wikipedia entries have been created or amended by Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) Special Advisers; FCO Ministers; or FCO communications officials, whether from IP addresses of Special Advisers; Ministers or communications officials in the FCO or its agencies, since August 2005.

If the FCO should in future decide to create or alter Wikipedia entries, any input to such websites would be done in accordance with the civil service code. This states that civil servants should:

> "use resources only for the authorised public purposes for which they are provided" and > "make sure public money and other resources are used properly and efficiently".

Developing Countries: Elections

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government are taking to support the International Foundation for Election Systems in relation into the standards of electoral practice and democracy in other countries. [185684]

Meg Munn: The UK is committed to promoting democratic principles around the world. Our approach is grounded in our upholding universal human rights standards, to which all countries are bound, giving firm support to democratic institutions, good governance and the rule of law.

We welcome and support the work the Hansard electoral society is doing to improve standards of electoral practices abroad. We work closely with the Westminster Foundation for Democracy and the Electoral Reform International Services who are also active in this field.

The UK participates most actively in international observation activities organised by the EU and the Organisation for Security and Co-operation in Europe. We also participate in Election Observation Missions organised by the UN, Commonwealth and other groups. We frequently provide technical and administrative expertise to the organisers of these observation missions, as well as sending UK observers.

Deploying election observers supports democratic processes and assists host countries to hold genuinely democratic elections.

Further information on the Government's work on human rights, democracy and governance can be found in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's (FCO) Annual Report on Human Rights, which is available at www.fco.gov.uk

Copies of the report are also available in the Library of the House. In addition, the FCO and the Department for International Development (DFID) jointly launched a DFID publication last summer, entitled "Governance, Development and Democratic Politics" which highlighted the value we jointly place on democratic politics as a set of principles and values which ensure that differences can be negotiated peacefully and the views of all heard.

Entry Clearances: Personation

Mr. Godsiff: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many visa applications were made with the use of a false identity in the last two years for which data are available, broken down by nationality of applicant. [185200]

Dr. Howells: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office does not record such data. Information could be obtained only by comparing individual visa application forms with Home Office records and this would incur disproportionate cost.

EU Internal Relations

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what (a) representations and (b) discussions he has had on a solidarity clause on mutual assistance between EU member states in the event of terrorist attacks or natural disasters; and if he will make a statement. [184453]

Mr. Jim Murphy: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has had no representations or discussions on the solidarity clause with other EU member states.

EU Law

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the powers which the European Public Prosecutor would have in respect of UK citizens. [186479]

Mr. Jim Murphy: A European Public Prosecutor would have no power in the UK unless we opted-in to a proposal to establish one, and we have no plans to do so. If other member states decide there is a case for a European Public Prosecutor, they are free to go ahead by enhanced co-operation, but the Prosecutor would have no role in the UK.

European Commission: Diplomatic Service

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many members of HM Diplomatic Service were seconded to the European Commission in each of the last 10 years. [183960]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 1 February 2008]: There is currently one Diplomatic Service officer seconded to the European Commission.

There are in addition three Diplomatic Service officers seconded to the General Secretariat of the Council and one to the European Parliament. Other Government Departments also second staff to the European Commission.

Figures for Diplomatic Service staff seconded to the European Commission in each of the previous 10 years could be collated only at disproportionate cost.

Gaza: Electricity

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the adequacy of electricity supply into Gaza; and if he will make a statement. [185082]

David Miliband: The Government remain deeply concerned by the humanitarian situation in Gaza. In the current season the Gaza strip requires at least 230 megawatts (MW) of power daily. The total it currently receives, when fuel supplies to the Gaza power station are not interrupted, is around 192 MW, of which approximately 55 MW is provided by the Gaza Power Generating Company (GPGC), 120 MW by Israel and 17 MW by Egypt.

The electricity and fuel supply in recent weeks has been erratic, primarily because of the decision by the Government of Israel on 17 January to suspend all fuel deliveries into Gaza. On 20 January, the GPGC stopped producing power when its reserves became too low to continue. The UN's Office for the Co-ordination of Humanitarian Affairs has stated that during this time, the majority of the Gaza strip had no electricity for at least eight hours per day. Many areas suffered power cuts of up to 16 hours. Electricity cuts in the Gaza strip remain at an average of eight hours daily.

Gaza: Frontiers

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the composition and role of the EU border monitoring mission at Rafah is; and whether changes are planned to that role following recent breaches of the border crossing from Gaza. [185084]

David Miliband: The EU Border Assistance Mission was established on the basis of 15 November 2005 agreement on movement and access reached between Israel and the Palestinian Authority (PA). Its role is to provide a third party presence at the Rafah crossing point.

On 13 June 2007, and following Hamas's take over of Gaza, the mission declared a temporary suspension of operations at the Rafah crossing point. It has, however, maintained its full operational capability and remained ready to monitor, verify and evaluate handling of the border crossing as soon as agreement can be reached to re-open it.

The mission is also training PA personnel in all aspects of border control and customs operation.

The mission includes about 41 police officers and personnel, 29 of them internationally seconded from 15 EU member states, three internationally contracted, and eight locally contracted in addition to the Head of Mission.

Homosexuality

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will support the introduction of an international convention which explicitly recognises gay rights as essential human rights; and if he will make a statement. [185507]

Meg Munn: The Government have a strong record on promoting the rights of lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender people and will continue to work with both foreign partners and domestic organisations to protect the human rights of lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender people throughout the world. The Government judge that there is not sufficient consensus globally to justify pursuing an international convention at present; though it is willing to work for the engagement of countries which would produce a worthwhile such instrument.

In the meantime, the Government consider that it can pursue equality and non-discrimination through existing human rights mechanisms, through multilateral action with like-minded partners and bilaterally. The Government consider engaging positively in any mechanism which promote these rights.

Indian Subcontinent: Official Visits

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he last visited (a) India and (b) Sri Lanka; and when he plans next to visit (i) India, (ii) Pakistan and (iii) Sri Lanka. [185776]

Dr. Howells: Since his appointment, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not visited India or Sri Lanka. Foreign engagements for my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and other Ministers are kept under constant review. It is not our practice to announce such visits until they are firm. Because of the unpredictable nature of world events, final decisions on overseas visits are often not possible until very shortly before the day of travel.

Iran: Females

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Iranian Government on the penalty to be imposed on sisters found guilty of adultery for being in the company of men other than their husbands in Iran. [186776]

Dr. Howells: We are deeply concerned that Ms Zohreh Kabir and Ms Azar Kabiri from Shahriar in Tehran province and Mr. Abdollah Farivar from Sari in Mazandaran province in Iran have been charged with adultery and sentenced to death by stoning. The EU presidency, on behalf of all EU member states, issued a public declaration on 7 February condemning these sentences. In this statement, the EU reiterated its opposition to the death penalty in all circumstances and urged the Iranian Government

> "to abolish immediately, in law and in practice, the use of stoning as a method of execution—as called for in the most recent UN General Assembly resolution on the situation of human rights in the Islamic Republic of Iran, adopted by the UN General Assembly in December 2007".

We will continue to press the Iranian authorities to uphold its international human rights commitments as described in the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights and to abolish cruel and degrading punishments such as stoning, flogging and amputations once and for all.

Iran: Human Rights

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations he has made to the Government of Iran on human rights. [186775]

Dr. Howells: We generally raise human rights issues with the Government of Iran through the EU, in order to maximise impact and emphasise that the concerns we have are shared across a range of countries. In 2007, the EU raised human rights issues with the Iranian authorities in Tehran on 28 occasions, through meetings and statements. So far this year, the EU has raised human rights issues with the Iranian authorities five times, most recently in two statements on 7 February about death sentences and the deteriorating situation of Baha'is in Iran.

We also discuss human rights issues bilaterally with Iranian officials in London and Tehran. In 2007, the UK raised human rights issues bilaterally on eight occasions, on issues of particular concern including the rise in the use of the death penalty, the execution of juveniles and the use of amputation.

Iran: Nuclear Power

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what meetings are planned between EU High Representative Javier Solana and Iranian government representatives on Iran's nuclear programme; and if he will make a statement. [185083]

David Miliband: At present there are no meetings scheduled. We have been clear with Iran that our offer of dialogue remains open, and that Javier Solana will continue to make himself available for a meeting at any time when the Iranians wish to discuss both that offer and their willingness to comply with their international obligations.

Iran: Sanctions

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what EU sanctions the UK is proposing should be imposed on (a) the Iranian financial sector and (b) investment in Iranian oil and gas as set out in the Prime Minister's speech at the Lord Mayor's Banquet on 12 November 2007; and if he will make a statement. [185077]

David Miliband: We are working with our EU partners on further sanctions to support a new UN Security Council Resolution. Proposals under consideration will include a range of measures and I will inform the House of the outcome of those negotiations as soon as I am able to do so.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his policy is on whether the EU Common Position on Iran should include new sanctions. [185128]

David Miliband: We will be pressing for further EU measures both in the form of a new Common Position and additional listings of entities and individuals that meet the criteria set out in the existing Common Positions, in parallel with work on another UN Security Council Resolution.

Iraq: Asylum

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many Iraqi citizens have been (a) admitted to the UK and (b) awarded financial assistance under the scheme of assistance for locally engaged Iraqi staff announced by the Prime Minister on 8 October 2007. [178911]

David Miliband: No former locally-engaged Iraqi staff have yet been resettled in the UK through the Gateway programme. Following the initial assessment of eligibility, individuals need to move to a third country, register with and be recognised by the Office of the UN High Commissioner for Refugees as refugees in need of resettlement, undergo further screening by the Border and Immigration Agency (BIA) and have suitable housing identified for them in the UK. This process takes several months, which is why we have promised financial assistance to former staff to allow them to support themselves in a third country during this process. We believe the timeframes for Gateway are comparable to similar timeframes for other countries' resettlement programmes.

No current locally-engaged Iraqi staff have yet been granted Independent Leave to Enter. Many are still in the process of being assessed for eligibility and some already assessed as eligible have yet to express a preference about which option they wish to take. Many of those already assessed as eligible have indicated they want the financial package. Those that choose resettlement in the UK will undergo screening by BIA. Measures are in place to ensure that eligible staff are fully assisted through the scheme without unnecessary delays.

We have already paid 34 staff the financial package in accordance with the scheme. Further awards will be made on an ongoing basis.

Iraq: Oil

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has received on Iraq's contribution to global oil pollution; and if he will make a statement. [186346]

Dr. Howells: We have not received any recent representations on Iraq's contribution to global oil pollution.

Kenya: Violence

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has received on the causes of the recent violence in Kenya. [186490]

Meg Munn: We have received reports of the violence in Kenya from political parties, the media, civil society groups and non-governmental organisations highlighting the post-election situation, ethnic factors and criminality among other causes. The Government's priority is to end the violence and reduce the tension. Clearly any violence is unacceptable. A solution to the crisis needs to be found that reflects the democratic will of the Kenyan people.

Nuclear Fuels

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he next plans to discuss the proposal for an International Atomic Energy Agency-administered mechanism for reliable access to nuclear fuel with his (a) US, (b) EU and (c) UN Security Council counterparts; and if he will make a statement. [185105]

David Miliband: The UK supports efforts to develop a viable regime of nuclear fuel assurances under the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) auspices that supports states' rights to safe, secure and peaceful use of nuclear technology. The UK Enrichment Bond is one such proposal. We are pursuing this agenda through a variety of bilateral and multilateral channels, including within the IAEA, with the US and our EU partners, and with a number of members of the United Nations Security Council.

Nuclear Non-proliferation Treaty

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the UK objectives are for the second meeting of the Preparatory Committee for the 2010 Review Conference of the parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons. [185078]

David Miliband: The UK will use the Non-Proliferation Treaty 2008 Preparatory Committee to take forward work to strengthen the treaty. We will promote consensus around key measures encompassing the treaty's three pillars—zero tolerance of proliferation; safe, secure and peaceful use of nuclear technology; and a reinvigorated commitment to a world free from nuclear weapons.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the UK is taking in preparation for the 2010 Non-Proliferation Review Conference on the adoption of measures governing withdrawal from the Non-Proliferation Treaty; and if he will make a statement. [185085]

David Miliband: The United Kingdom is working with partners to build consensus around measures to raise the cost of withdrawal from the Non-Proliferation Treaty (NPT) at the 2010 review conference. These measures include automatic referral of the case of any state party seeking to withdraw from the NPT to the UN Security Council, a requirement that all material, equipment, technology and facilities acquired under NPT membership be restricted to peaceful uses and remain subject to safeguards; and that use of facilities, equipment and material supplied prior to withdrawal by third countries be frozen with a view to dismantlement and return. They are set out in full in the EU Working Paper (NPT/CONF.2010/PC.I/WP.25* available at http://www.un.org/NPT2010/documents.html) submitted at the 2007 Preparatory Committee.

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which (a) Ministers and (b) officials will represent the United Kingdom at the Seven Country Initiative seminar on the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty in Norway, on 26 to 27 February; and if he will post on his Department's website the United Kingdom's contribution to the seminar. [186819]

Dr. Howells: The UK will take part in a seminar on nuclear disarmament to be hosted by the Government of Norway in Oslo on 26-27 February 2008, represented by two officials from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office: the Director of Defence and Strategic Threats and the Head of the Nuclear Missile Defence Policy Team. The UK has not been invited to make a presentation at the seminar.

Nuclear Weapons

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, what recent progress has been made towards securing agreement of a treaty banning the production of fissile material for nuclear weapons and other nuclear explosive devices; and if he will make a statement. [185076]

David Miliband: The UK will continue to push for the start of negotiations without pre-conditions on a Fissile Material Cut-off Treaty (FMCT) and at the Conference on Disarmament (CD). My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Defence spoke to the conference on 5 February and highlighted the urgent need for the conference to redouble their efforts to move forward on an FMCT.

As the holder of one of the six CD presidencies in 2008, we will work with like- minded countries to bring on board those states unable to agree to the start of negotiations in 2007. We will also continue to lobby these states directly.

Pakistan: Politics and Government

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the political situation in Pakistan. [186177]

Dr. Howells: I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary on 7 January 2008, Official Report, columns 21-22, in which he set out the importance that the Government attach to free and fair elections today (18 February). A contested election result could have serious consequences for the stability and long-term democratic trajectory of Pakistan. We have therefore been calling on the Government of Pakistan to ensure full transparency in terms of election processes, media freedom and no state interference. We continue to monitor the situation closely, including through the EU Election Observer Mission, in which we are participating.

Pipelines: Natural Gas

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the viability of the Nabucco pipeline project; and if he will make a statement. [186282]

Meg Munn: At last year's Spring European Council, EU leaders agreed that the Nabucco project was a project of European significance as it would increase the EU's diversity of routes and sources of supply, thus improving Europe's resilience to supply disruptions.

The UK believes that energy infrastructure projects (including pipelines, electricity/gas interconnectors and liquified natural gas terminals) should only be built where there is a sound economic and business case. It is not the job of Governments to build pipelines or other import infrastructure, but of the private sector, on the basis of commercial viability. The main function of a Government in this context is to set the right regulatory framework and to remove any unnecessary regulatory barriers, in order to facilitate energy transit and trade.

Russia: Prisoners

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will hold discussions with the Russian Government over access to prison medical care for Vasily Alexanyan. [185607]

Mr. Jim Murphy: We welcome reports that the Russian Federal Penal Service has finally responded positively to the concerns expressed by the European Court of Human Rights, the Russian Human Rights Ombudsman and to demands that Vasily Aleksanyan be moved out of prison to a specialised clinic where he can receive vital treatment for his condition. The UK regularly raises its concerns over ongoing human rights violations, including individual cases, both bilaterally and through the EU. The next EU/Russia human rights consultations will be held on 17 April.

Serbia: EU External Relations

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether it is the Government's policy to support the signing of a Stabilisation and Association Agreement between Serbia and the EU. [183382]

David Miliband: The Government and the EU are committed to signing a Stabilisation and Association agreement with Serbia. This would depend on Serbia's full co-operation with the International Criminal Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia. The EU has agreed to establish a task force to examine ways of delivering rapid progress on this.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the Government's policy is on the signing of a Stabilisation and Association Agreement between Serbia and the EU prior to the extradition of Ratko Mladic by the Serbian authorities to the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia. [183383]

David Miliband: The Serbian Government have made clear their intention to fully co-operate with the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia (ICTY), including through the arrest of all four remaining ICTY indictees.

The Government and the EU are committed to signing a Stabilisation and Association Agreement with Serbia. This would depend on Serbia's full co-operation with the ICTY. The EU has agreed to establish a Task Force to examine ways of delivering rapid progress on this.

Sexual Harassment

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many complaints of (a) sexual harassment and (b) sexual discrimination have been made by staff in (i) his Department and (ii) its agencies in the most recent year for which figures are available. [184385]

Meg Munn: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) and its executive agency, FCO Services, had a very small number of formal complaints of sexual harassment/discrimination made in 2007. No further details can be provided due to the need to protect the confidentiality of those involved.

Simon Mann

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the apparent abduction to Equatorial Guinea of Simon Mann by the authorities in Zimbabwe; what representations the Government have made to both countries on his behalf; and what action it plans to take to secure his safe return. [185902]

Meg Munn: While Simon Mann was in Zimbabwe our embassy in Harare made representations at the highest level to the Zimbabwean authorities that due legal process should be followed, and received assurances that this would be the case. In the event, Simon Mann was removed from Zimbabwe without a further appeal being heard.

Once it was confirmed that Mr. Mann had been extradited to Equatorial Guinea, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office contacted the Equatorial Guinean embassy in London on 5 February to request consular access. My noble Friend the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN, the right hon. Lord Malloch-Brown, met with the Equatorial Guinean ambassador to the UK, Mr. Agustin Nze Nfumu, on 7 February, and telephoned the ambassador on 11 February to once again request consular access to Mr. Mann.

Consular assistance to British nationals in Equatorial Guinea is provided by our deputy high commission in Lagos. In addition to my noble Friend the right hon. Lord Malloch-Brown's actions, our consul in Lagos travelled to the capital, Malabo, on 5 February to seek immediate access to Simon Mann and made contact with the appropriate authorities. Access was granted on 12 February.

In seeking consular access to Simon Mann, the Government have reminded Equatorial Guinea of his right to a fair trial and of its obligation to ensure that all persons deprived of liberty shall be treated humanely and with respect for their dignity. We have received assurances to this effect.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will summon the ambassadors of Equatorial Guinea and Zimbabwe to discuss the apparent abduction of Simon Mann from Zimbabwe to Equatorial Guinea. [185903]

Meg Munn: My noble Friend the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN, the right hon. Lord Malloch-Brown, met with the Equatorial Guinean ambassador to the UK, Mr. Agustin Nze Nfumu, on 7 February to discuss Mr. Mann's case and request immediate consular access. He then telephoned the ambassador on 11 February to reiterate this request and stress the need for UK officials to be granted access to Mr. Mann. Consular access was granted on 12 February. UK officials will be in touch with the ambassador of Equatorial Guinea as the need arises.

Our concerns were conveyed to the Zimbabwean ambassador prior to Mr. Mann's removal. Our primary concern at this point must be for Mr. Mann's immediate welfare.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what sanctions the Government have considered taking against (a) Equatorial Guinea and (b) Zimbabwe to ensure the safe return of Simon Mann. [185904]

Meg Munn: The Government have no plans to apply sanctions on the Governments of Equatorial Guinea or Zimbabwe in response to Simon Mann's removal. Our main concern must be for Mr. Mann's immediate welfare.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make representations to the United States Administration requesting it to exert its influence on Equatorial Guinea to secure the safe return of Simon Mann. [185905]

Meg Munn: The Government have no plans to make representations to the United States in relation to Simon Mann.

United States officials visited Simon Mann in Black Beach Prison on 6 February 2008, at the invitation of the Equatorial Guinean authorities. While the visit by the United States afforded an opportunity to check on Mr. Mann's welfare and safety, we nevertheless made clear to the government of Equatorial Guinea that such a visit was not a substitute for UK consular access.

UK consular access to Mr. Mann was granted on 12 February. We will continue to visit Mr. Mann in prison in line with our consular policy.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assurances were given by Zimbabwe to Her Majesty's Ambassador that Simon Mann would not be transferred to Equatorial Guinea before the conclusion of his appeal process. [185906]

Meg Munn: Our embassy in Harare received assurances from the Zimbabwean Ministry of Foreign Affairs, including from the Acting Permanent Secretary, that due process would be followed regarding Mr. Mann's extradition. We understand from Mr. Mann's lawyer that he had indicated an intention to further appeal his extradition. In the event, Mr. Mann was removed from Zimbabwe without a further appeal being heard.

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on Simon Mann and his treatment in (a) Zimbabwe and (b) Equatorial Guinea. [186480]

Meg Munn: British consular officials were allowed regular access to Simon Mann during his imprisonment in Harare and any concerns about his conditions were raised directly with the Zimbabwean authorities.

British consular officials visited Mr. Mann in prison in Malabo on 12 February. We have no reason to believe he has been mistreated in Equatorial Guinea. We will nevertheless seek to ensure that his treatment is in line with international standards.

In seeking consular access to Mr. Mann, the Government have reminded Equatorial Guinea of his right to a fair trial and of its obligation to ensure that all persons deprived of liberty shall be treated humanely and with respect for their dignity. We have received assurances to this effect.

We will continue to visit Mr. Mann in prison in line with our consular policy.

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the Government have made representations to Equatorial Guinea on Simon Mann's treatment; and if he will make a statement. [186481]

Meg Munn: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office contacted the Equatorial Guinean embassy in London on 5 February to request consular access, once it was confirmed that Mr. Mann had been extradited from Zimbabwe to Equatorial Guinea.

My noble Friend the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN, the right hon. Lord Malloch-Brown, met with the Equatorial Guinean ambassador to the UK, Mr. Agustin Nze Nfumu, on 7 February, and telephoned the ambassador on 11 February to once again request consular access to Mr. Mann.

Consular assistance to British nationals in Equatorial Guinea is provided by our Deputy High Commission in Lagos. Our consul in Lagos travelled to the capital, Malabo, on 5 February to seek immediate access to Mr. Mann and made contact with the Equatorial Guinean Minister of Foreign Affairs, Prime Minister and Minister of Justice. Access was granted on 12 February.

In seeking consular access to Mr. Mann, the Government have reminded Equatorial Guinea of his right to a fair trial and of its obligation to ensure that all persons deprived of liberty shall be treated humanely and with respect for their dignity. We have received assurances to this effect.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information he has on the circumstances under which Simon Mann was transferred from Zimbabwe to Equatorial Guinea. [186646]

Meg Munn: The exact circumstances of Simon Mann's removal from Zimbabwe to Equatorial Guinea remain unclear.

Mr. Mann was last known to be in Chikurubi prison on Wednesday 30 January. On 5 February, the Government of Equatorial Guinea confirmed that he had been transferred to their custody.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what legal advice he has obtained about the (a) current status of Simon Mann in captivity in Equatorial Guinea and (b) steps which the Government can take in international courts to secure his return. [186647]

Meg Munn: It is not the Government's practice to disclose whether they have sought legal advice on a particular issue. Simon Mann is subject to legal proceedings under domestic Equatorial Guinean law. The conduct of those proceedings is a matter for Mr. Mann and his lawyers. We continue to provide Mr. Mann with assistance in line with our consular policy.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reasons he has been given for the refusal by the Government of Equatorial Guinea of access to Simon Mann by (a) lawyers and (b) UK diplomats. [186648]

Meg Munn: British consular officials were granted access and visited Simon Mann in prison on 12 February. We will continue to provide Mr. Mann with consular assistance.

We have been given assurances by the Equatorial Guinean authorities that Mr. Mann will be free to appoint a lawyer.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which members of his Department are in Equatorial Guinea with the task of protecting the interests of Simon Mann; and how long it is planned that they shall stay for that purpose. [186649]

Meg Munn: Our deputy high commission in Lagos provides consular assistance to British nationals in Equatorial Guinea. Once it was confirmed that Simon Mann was in Equatorial Guinea our consul in Lagos travelled to Malabo and sought immediate consular access to him. We were granted access and visited Mr. Mann in prison on 12 February. Our consul has now returned to Lagos. The consul will make further visits to Malabo in future to visit Mr. Mann in prison and provide consular assistance. We also have an honorary consul in Malabo who can provide consular assistance.

Somalia: Armed Conflict

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the security situation in north-eastern Somalia following the recent attack on the port of Bossaso. [186864]

David Miliband: The security situation in north-eastern Somalia remains unstable. The recent attack on the port of Bossaso demonstrates the indiscriminate nature of attacks that can take place in Somalia, and the limited capacity of the Somali authorities to prevent such attacks.

The Government contribute to international efforts aimed at assisting the Transitional Federal Government of Somalia to establish the rule of law, and to build functioning institutions that will enable them to tackle insecurity effectively.

Somalia: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what proposals the UK has put forward for strengthening the African Union Mission in Somalia. [186215]

Meg Munn: The Government support the strengthening of the African Union Mission in Somalia. The International Contact Group on Somalia, of which the UK is a member, called for the full and timely deployment of the AU Mission during their most recent meeting in Addis Ababa on 30 January 2008.

The UK's financial commitment in supporting the African Union Mission in Somalia during the financial year 2007-08 is £8,300,000. This includes support for Ugandan and Burundian deployments and planned support for Nigerian deployment during 2008, which will strengthen the African Union Mission in Somalia's capability on the ground.

On 18 January, the African Union Peace and Security Council renewed the mandate of the AU Mission for a further six months. The UK is currently sponsoring a new UN Security Council Resolution to endorse that mandate.

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will hold discussions with the Chairman of the African Union about its members providing support and assistance for the African Mission in Somalia. [186388]

Meg Munn: The Government welcome the appointment of Jakaya Kikwete, the President of the Republic of Tanzania, as the new chairperson of the African Union, during the African Union Summit held from 31 January to 2 February 2008.

Ministers discussed the African Union Mission in Somalia with the previous chairperson of the African Union, President Kufuor of Ghana, on several occasions. Support and assistance by African Union members for the African Union Mission in Somalia is a key issue that Ministers will wish to raise with the new chairperson at the earliest opportunity.

Sri Lanka: Human Rights

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports the Government have received about allegations of the involvement of Colonel Karuna in the massacre of Sri Lankan police officers. [185389]

Dr. Howells: We are aware of reports of the massacre of approximately 600 police officers by the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Ealam (LTTE) in eastern Sri Lanka in 1990. Vinayagmoorthy Muralitharan (also known as Colonel Karuna) was reportedly a senior LTTE figure in the east at this time. The UK has continually expressed deep concern about the human rights situation in Sri Lanka.

Sudan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Tom Clarke: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the timetable is for full implementation of the United Nations-African Union Mission in Darfur and what assessment he has made of the reasons for the delay in implementation. [186305]

Meg Munn: We are working very closely with the UN Department of Peacekeeping Operations and the African Union to help achieve the goal of the UN-African Union hybrid mission in Darfur's full deployment as soon as practicable. This will be extremely challenging as not all outstanding shortfalls, particularly helicopter capacity, have yet been filled. The UN-African Union hybrid mission in Darfur's deployment to Darfur is one of the most complex and logistically difficult that the UN has ever undertaken.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 29 January 2008, Official Report, column 225W, on Sudan: peacekeeping operations, what plans he has to convene a further meeting on provision of the requisite units for the joint UN-AU hybrid force for Darfur. [186366]

Meg Munn: The UN Department of Peacekeeping Operations meets regularly with UN member states in New York to discuss the joint UN-African Union hybrid force in Darfur. Following two meetings we arranged in January to focus on helicopters, in close conjunction with the UN Department of Peace Keeping Operations, we currently have no plans for further meetings on this topic. We continue to support all the UN Department of Peace Keeping Operations' efforts to generate and deploy an effective force in Darfur.

Sudan: Politics and Government

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether his Department has received reports of senior members of the Janjaweed Arab Militia being advisers or members of the Sudanese Government; and if he will make a statement. [186345]

Meg Munn: The Sudanese Government has announced that it has appointed Arab leader Musa Hilal as an adviser to the Minister of Federal Affairs. My noble Friend the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN, the right Lord Malloch-Brown, raised UK concerns over the appointment of Musa Hilal in meetings with representatives of the Government of Sudan that he met during his visit to Sudan on 28-31 January. He made clear that the appointment was inappropriate as Musa Hilal is subject to UN sanctions. We pressed for UN action on Musa Hilal's appointment at the UN Sanctions Committee on 1 February.

Weapons: Proliferation

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the progress of EU member states in implementing effective export, transit, trans shipment and re-export controls, including appropriate laws and regulations in relation to counter-proliferation, as called for in EU Council Common Position 2005/329/PESC of 25 April 2005. [185080]

David Miliband: The EU Council Common Position 2005/329/PESC of 25 April 2005 relates to the 2005 Review Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons (NPT). The UK and other EU member states take seriously the need to ensure rigorous implementation of effective export, transit, transhipment and re-export controls in order to strengthen the international non-proliferation system, including the NPT. We regularly discuss with EU and other partners ways to enhance national and international efforts to counter proliferation, including, inter alia, by strengthening the NPT and export control regimes such as the Nuclear Suppliers Group, in which all EU member states participate.

Western Sahara: Human Rights

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he expects the report to the UN Human Rights Council on the Western Sahara and refugee camps at Tindouf, completed in September 2006, to be published. [186732]

Dr. Howells: The UN Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) visited Morocco, Western Sahara and Algeria in May to June 2006 to gather information on the human rights situation. The OHCHR shared its report privately with Morocco, Algeria and the Polisario in September 2006. The UN maintains its decision not to make the report public and we do not therefore expect the report to be published more widely.

Zimbabwe: Sanctions

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the sanctions against President Mugabe of Zimbabwe and other members of the Zimbabwean Government are intended to apply to access to educational opportunities in the UK for Zimbabwean nationals; and if he will make a statement. [185801]

Meg Munn: The EU Common Position's targeted measures comprise a travel ban and assets freeze on Robert Mugabe and 130 other Zimbabweans. All members of Mugabe's Cabinet and ZANU-PF's Politburo are included, together with governors, heads of security forces, election officials and others associated with abuses. Other Zimbabwean nationals who are not subject to these targeted measures and who intend to come to the UK in order to study must meet the relevant requirements of the immigration rules.

JUSTICE

A v. Hoare

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what implications the House of Lords' ruling in A v. Hoare has on the lapse of time after which cases may not be brought for battery and common assault (a) under common law and (b) under military law; and if he will make a statement. [186873]

Bridget Prentice: The recent ruling by the House of Lords in the cases of A v. Hoare, C(FC) v. Middlesbrough council, X(FC) and another (FC) v. London borough of Wandsworth, H(FC) v. Suffolk county council and Young (FC) v. Catholic Care (Diocese of Leeds) considered the limitation periods for bringing an action for damages for personal injury in the civil courts.

These periods, which are set out in the Limitation Act 1980, do not relate to the prosecution of criminal offences under criminal or military law such as battery and common assault.

The Government are carefully considering the implications of the ruling for civil claims.

ClearSprings

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what process was followed by which ClearSprings was given authority to operate on a site in Kemsley; and if he will make a statement. [186833]

Mr. Hanson: The Ministry of Justice awarded a contract for the Bail Accommodation and Support Service in England and Wales to ClearSprings Management Ltd. in June 2007. The contract is managed in each region by the Regional Offender Manager, who determines the requirement for property based on the distribution of prisoner origins in the region. ClearSprings consult the police and the local authority in the acquisition of all properties. No objections were raised in relation to the house in Kemsley.

Coroners

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what plans he has to reform the coroner service in England and Wales; and if he will make a statement. [185468]

Bridget Prentice: The Government remain committed to reform of the coroner system and a Bill will be brought before Parliament as soon as time allows. We will introduce measures ahead of legislation which will help to achieve one of the fundamental aims of the Bill in providing a better service for bereaved families. These include strengthening Rule 43 of the Coroners Rules 1984 to help prevent future deaths, revising the Charter for the Bereaved for a reformed service, and working with the Press Complaints Commission to establish whether their code of practice for editors could be refined for the benefit of bereaved families.

Cross-Party Committee

Sir Patrick Cormack: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many times the Cross-Party Committee on the House of Lords has met since November 2007; and if he will publish the minutes of those meetings. [185380]

Mr. Straw: The cross-party working group on House of Lords reform has met three times since November 2007. The Government have no plans to publish the minutes of the Group's meetings. It is important that that the members of the cross-party group are able to debate the policy options for reform vigorously in order to expose the advantages and disadvantages of these options and to fully understand their implications. It is in the public interest that these discussions can take place away from public scrutiny.

Departmental ICT

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) mobile telephones, (b) personal digital assistan and (c) laptop computers issued to his Departmen staff have been reported (i) lost, (ii) missing and (iii) stolen in each year since 2001. [184487]

Mr. Wills: The information requested on laptops reported lost, stolen and missing, is as follows:

| | Lost | Missing | Stolen |
|---|---|---|---|
| 2001 | 1 | 1 | 12 |
| 2002 | 1 | 5 | 19 |
| 2003 | 0 | 3 | 13 |
| 2004 | 0 | 2 | 25 |
| 2005 | 0 | 2 | 18 |
| 2006 | 2 | 4 | 21 |
| 2007 | 4 | 9 | 27 |

The losses were from a variety of locations across England and Wales.

The Department does not hold a comprehensive central record for mobile telephones and personal digital assistants. Details taken from available records are as follows:

Mobile phones

| | Stolen | Lost |
|---|---|---|
| 2001 | 3 | 2 |
| 2002 | 10 | 5 |
| 2003 | 11 | 19 |
| 2004 | 7 | 30 |
| 2005 | 3 | 24 |
| 2006 | 13 | 19 |
| 2007 | 9 | 17 |

Personal digital assistants

| | Stolen | Lost |
|---|---|---|
| 2003 | 0 | 1 |

Departmental Reorganisation

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how responsibility for property costs was allocated between his Department and the Home Office after the restructuring of the Department's responsibilities. [181942]

Mr. Hanson: Responsibility for property costs for the National Offender Management Service and the Prison and Probation Estates rests with the Ministry of Justice and those for the Home Office estate with the Home Office.

Driving Under Influence

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many convictions there were for drink driving offences in (a) Romford, (b) Essex and (c) Greater London in 2007. [186918]

Maria Eagle: Available information held on convictions for driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs for the year 2005 (latest available) is provided in the following table. Information is available at police force area level only. 2006 data will be available later this year. 2007 data will be available next year.

The data provided covers both drink and drugs offences combined, as volumes of convictions for driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs cannot be accurately established.

Findings of guilt at all courts for offences of driving etc after consuming alcohol or taking drugs[1], within Essex and Greater London[2], 2005

| | Number of offences |
|---|---|
| Essex police force area | 2,549 |
| Greater London[2] | 13,071 |

[1] Data provided covers summary offences of driving etc. after consuming alcohol or taking drugs (which cannot be distinguished separately).
[2] City of London and Metropolitan police forces combined.
Notes:
1. It is known that for some police force areas the reporting of court proceedings, in particular those relating to summary motoring offences, may be less than complete.
2. Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Drugs: Driving Under Influence

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many convictions for drug-driving took place (a) in England and (b) in each police authority area in each year since 1997. [186023]

Maria Eagle: Available information held on convictions for driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs from 1997 to 2005 (latest available) is provided in the following table. 2006 data will be available later this year.

The data provided cover both drink and drugs offences combined, as volumes of convictions and custodial sentences for driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs cannot be accurately established.

[1] Data provided cover summary offences of driving etc. after consuming alcohol or taking drugs (which cannot reliably be distinguished separately).

[2] Staffordshire police force were only able to submit sample data for persons proceeded against and convicted in the magistrates courts for the year 2000. Although sufficient to estimate higher orders of data, these data are not robust enough at a detailed level and have been excluded from the table.

Notes:

1. It is known that for some police force areas, the reporting of court proceedings in particular those relating to summary motoring offences, may be less.
2. Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. ### Electoral Administration Act 2006

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what timetable he has set for ending double-reporting of donations by hon. Members; and for what reasons the implementation of sections 59(3) and 59(4) of the Electoral Administration Act 2006 has been delayed. [186073]

Mr. Straw: This provision cannot be brought into force until the Electoral Commission informs me that it is content that the information it would receive from the House Authorities would be sufficiently complete. That is, the information received must be the same as that which the Political Parties, Elections and Referendums Act 2000 currently requires Members who have received donations to provide to the Electoral Commission.

I understand that discussions between the Electoral Commission and the House Authorities are continuing with a view to enabling the Electoral Commission to confirm that this provision can be commenced.

Electoral Commission

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what contribution his Department plans to make to the Electoral Commission's research on the political levy and political funds. [186075]

Mr. Straw: The Ministry of Justice has no plans to contribute to any such research.

Electoral Role Databases

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice which public authorities, other than local authorities, police forces and the Electoral Commission, have access to the full versions of electoral role databases. [184634]

Mr. Wills: The Representation of the People (England and Wales) Regulations 2001 (S.I.2001/341), and the Representation of the People (Scotland) Regulations 2001 (S.I.2001/497), as amended, set out the regulatory regime governing access to the full electoral register in Great Britain. Under part 6 of each set of regulations, relevant parts of the full register may be supplied by an electoral registration officer, to certain persons and bodies, for use for specific purposes, including crime prevention and enforcement of criminal law. Part 6 also allows the register to be supplied to persons whose entitlement arises from another enactment.

In addition to local authorities, police forces, the Electoral Commission and Government Departments, the other public bodies specified as being entitled to be supplied with copies of relevant parts of, or the whole of, the full register under the regulations cited above are:

The Boundary Commission

The British Library

The National Library for Scotland

Other Public Libraries

Environment Agency

Financial Service Authority

National Library Services

The Office of National Statistics

National Criminal Intelligence Service

Police Information Technology Organisation

Other private persons and organisations that have a right to be supplied with copies of the full electoral register are:

Intimidation

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many cases of bullying have been reported in (a) his Department and (b) its agencies in each of the last 12 months. [182837]

Maria Eagle: In the period January 2007 to December 2007 the following number of formal complaints on the grounds of bullying were received:

| | Number of formal complaints |
|---|---|
| Ex-Department of Constitutional Affairs | 12 |
| National Offender Management Service | 2 |
| Office of Criminal Justice Reform | 0 |
| Total | 14 |

The public sector Prison Service does not hold the information centrally in the format requested. This could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Ex-DCA:

The Ministry applies three policies that address the issue of bullying; grievance, conduct, and equality and diversity.

The Grievance Policy contains a specific sub-section on dealing with complaints about bullying that breach equality and diversity requirements. All such complaints are referred to Human Resources for advice, and will almost always result in the appointment of an independent officer to investigate. Grievances will be dealt with promptly and in confidence.

The Conduct Policy sets out the standard of behaviour that is expected of all staff. Discriminatory or unacceptable behaviour such as bullying, harassment, victimisation or unwanted verbal and non-verbal contact is not tolerated. Staff are expected to behave in an acceptable manner and be responsible for their actions. Their responsibilities are to:

respect the dignity of others ensure their own behaviour does not constitute harassment, bullying or victimisation of others where unacceptable behaviour takes place, take action to stop it and/or inform their managers.

Bullying is characterised in the policy using the ACAS definition:

Bullying may be characterised as offensive, intimidating, malicious or insulting behaviour, an abuse or misuse of power through means intended to undermine, humiliate, denigrate or injure the recipient.

Bullying or harassment may be by an individual against an individual (perhaps by someone in a position of authority such as a manager or supervisor) or involve groups of people. It may be obvious or may be insidious. Whatever form it takes, it is unwarranted and unwelcome to the individual.

The Equality and Diversity Policy is based on the principle of establishing practices to eradicate unacceptable behaviour such as harassment and bullying and stresses the stance taken by the Ministry of zero tolerance.

In recent years all staff were trained in raising awareness of equality and diversity issues, and Workplace Mediation was introduced across the Department. This offered an informal way of resolving disputes between people who work together, with the assistance of trained mediators.

Prison Service:

The public sector Prison Service does not tolerate bullying in the workplace. Formal complaints of staff bullying are investigated in accordance with Prison Service Order (PSO) 1300 'Investigations', which contains detailed guidance on the conduct of all types of investigations; and PSO 8460 'Conduct and Discipline', which sets out the procedures for dealing with staff misconduct.

PSO 8460 identifies bullying as behaviour which constitutes gross misconduct (i.e. misconduct which is so serious as to make any further relationship and trust between the Service and the member of staff concerned impossible) and, depending on the circumstances of the case, may result in dismissal from the Service.

Responsibility for commissioning investigations into staff complaints and for deciding whether or not to instigate formal disciplinary proceedings has been devolved to a local level.

Central co-ordination of formal investigations within the public sector Prison Service is managed through the Professional Standards Unit's Investigation Support Section (ISS). Whenever a formal investigation is established, ISS must be informed, as soon as possible, so that the investigation can be registered on the ISS database. This database contains details of the types and locations of formal investigations, their status and outcomes. Records of informal investigations are not held centrally, this information is maintained at a local level by governing governors and heads of group.

Bullying is not separately identified as a type of investigation on the ISS database. Instead, complaints of bullying could be investigated as allegations of 'inappropriate behaviour between staff' or 'harassment'.

ISS records show that at least 56 formal disciplinary investigations into allegations of inappropriate behaviour and harassment were commissioned during the 12 month period to 31 January 2008. A breakdown of these is shown in the following table. However, ISS cannot confirm with any certainty whether or not the original complaint was related to staff bullying. In order to confirm how many cases of bullying were reported, we would need to contact each of our headquarters groups and our 127 public sector Prison Service establishments and ask them to check their local records. This would incur disproportionate cost.

Judges: Ethnic Groups

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) female and (b) ethnic minority judges were appointed in 2007; and if he will make a statement. [184997]

Mr. Straw: The judicial database shows that 159 salaried and fee-paid judges were appointed to the courts in the calendar year 2007. Of these 48 (30.2 per cent.) were women. 107 of the appointees answered the question about their ethnicity and of these nine (8.4 per cent.) described their ethnicity as other than white.

In the same period, 266 people were appointed to salaried or fee-paid office in tribunals, of whom 94 (35.3 per cent.) were women. 174 of the appointees answered the question about their ethnicity and of these 24 (13.8 per cent.) described their ethnicity as other than white.

Knutsford Crown Court

Mr. George Osborne: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many cases were heard by Knutsford Crown court in each of the last five years. [185757]

Maria Eagle: The number of cases either committed or sent for trial, committed for sentence or appealing against a magistrates court's decision which were disposed of at Knutsford Crown court during the last five years are listed in the following table.

| | Trials | Sentences | Appeals |
|---|---|---|---|
| 2007 | 352 | 149 | 124 |
| 2006 | 370 | 165 | 100 |
| 2005 | 317 | 156 | 70 |
| 2004 | 349 | 158 | 70 |
| 2003 | 370 | 119 | 83 |

Limitation Act 1980

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will make an assessment of the implications of the recent House of Lords ruling in A v. Hoare for the provisions of the Limitation Act 1980. [186109]

Bridget Prentice: The Government are carefully considering the recent ruling by the House of Lords in the cases of A v. Hoare, C(FC) v. Middlesbrough council, X(FC) and another (FC) v. London borough of Wandsworth, H(FC) v. Suffolk county council and Young (FC) v. Catholic Care (Diocese of Leeds). This is in the context of our proposed consultation on the text of a draft Bill to implement the Law Commission's recommendations for the reform of the Limitation Act 1980 as a whole.

Macclesfield Magistrates Court

Mr. George Osborne: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many cases are due to be heard by Macclesfield magistrates court; and how long on average the waiting period was before a case was heard by the court in the latest period for which figures are available. [185785]

Maria Eagle: As at 7 February 2008, there are 58 adult trials and two youth trials outstanding at Macclesfield magistrates court. As a result of the implementation of the Criminal Justice Simple Speedy Summary (CJSSS) programme in Macclesfield, there is not a backlog of cases. This information has been supplied directly from the court.

The following table sets out estimates for the average time taken between the recorded date on which a defendant commits an offence to the date on which the defendant's case is first considered by a magistrates court for 2007. Information is not available for Macclesfield magistrates court separately. However, estimates have been provided for the Vale Royal Clerkship which includes combined information for Macclesfield magistrates court and Northwich magistrates court.

The figures are from the Time Intervals Survey (TIS) and are based on defendants (adults and youths) in all criminal cases that were proceeded against in the magistrates courts.

Average time taken between date of offence to first listing for all defendants in completed criminal cases in magistrates courts, information for Vale Royal Clerkship and England and Wales, 2007

| | Estimated average number of days from offence to first listing in magistrates court | Margin of error (+/- days) | Sample size (number of defendants) |
|---|---|---|---|
| Vale Royal Clerkship | 117 | 11 | 147 |
| England and Wales | 117 | 1 | 59,353 |

Notes:
1. Results are based on proceedings in one sample week in March and September. The Time Intervals Survey (TIS) is a sample survey that produces estimates of the average time taken between stages of proceedings for defendants in completed criminal cases in magistrates courts. More information on TIS is available on the Ministry of Justice website.
2. The margin of error is a measure of the precision of a result based on a sample survey. The true value is likely to fall within the range of the sample result +/- the margin of error.
3. 'First listing' refers to the first listed hearing of the case in the magistrates court.
4. Information is provided for the Vale Royal Clerkship which covers Macclesfield and Northwich magistrates courts. It is not possible to give estimates for 2007 for Macclesfield magistrates court separately.

National Offender Management Service

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many staff in the National Offender Management Service were involved in the central commissioning and contestability programme and whether this includes numbers at an area level. [182130]

Mr. Hanson: Reporting to the Director of Commissioning and Partnerships, the central Commissioning and Contestability Programme Unit is responsible for the development of the National Offender Management Service (NOMS) commissioning and contestability policy and for supporting implementation by NOMS national, regional and local commissioners.

As at 24 January 2008, the total number of staff within the commissioning and contestability programme unit was 19.6 full-time equivalents all based at NOMS headquarters in London.

North East

Bill Etherington: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many full-time equivalent civil servants were employed by his Department in (a) Sunderland, (b) Tyne and Wear and (c) the North East region in each year since 2000. [183721]

Maria Eagle: The available figures are in the following table. Data for the Former Department for Constitutional Affairs are available for the North East Region, but are not available for Tyne and Wear and Sunderland. Figures are collated by the Office for National Statistics from Departmental Returns.

Information on the number of full-time equivalent staff employed by the public sector Prison Service in the North East region each year since 2000 are also in the following table. The public sector Prison Service does not employ any staff in either Sunderland or Tyne and Wear.

| | Staff in post | | | | | | Full-time equivalents |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| | 2000 | 2001 | 2002 | 2003 | 2004 | 2005 | 2006 |

[1] Figures as at 1 April each year, except for 2006 where figures are as at 30 September.
[2] Figures as at 31 March each year.
[3] From 1 April 2006, Tribunals became an executive agency of the Department for Constitutional Affairs.
[4] In 2003, the Department for Constitutional Affairs (DCA) was created to take over the role of the Lord Chancellor's Department.
Note:
The latest period for which the statistics are available is the year to September 2006 and so pre-date the creation of the Ministry of Justice

Offender Services

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the value is of new contracts for offender services let by probation boards to private and third sector providers in each of the last five years, in terms of (a) annual value and (b) value over the life of the contract. [185543]

Mr. Straw: Probation Boards have not been required to provide detailed information with regard to the value of sub-contracts awarded to private and third sector providers as detailed in the question. However, there was an initiative by NOMS in the period 2006-07 to identify, from then to March 2008, what percentage of sub-contracts existed in probation areas in England and Wales. This was also to provide NOMS with a view as to which private and third sector providers Probation Boards were sub-contracted with and the range of offender services provided. Information gathered in 2006-07 indicated that Probation Boards had at that time contracts with a range of providers from the private and third sector. The total amount of these contracts was approximately £25 million, with contracts starting from £89 to the highest value of £874,147 in that year. In 2007-08 total contracts amounted to approximately £28 million. The value of these contracts ranges between £360 and £613,500. The total value over the life of the contract cannot be reliably given due to the fact that many contracts are annual but had been renewed annually for many years.

Offenders

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what number and proportion of accused people whose cases were discontinued in the interests of justice were convicted of a further offence within two years of that discontinuation in the most recent period for which figures are available. [186179]

Maria Eagle: The information is not available. The published statistics on reoffending do not include reoffending after cases have been discontinued.

Offenders: Ethnic Groups

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether there are any programmes for which his Department is responsible which are made available only to ethnic minority offenders; and if he will make a statement. [186278]

Mr. Hanson: No. Accredited offending behaviour programmes in custody and community are available to offenders regardless of ethnicity.

Offenders: Foreigners

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many foreign nationals were convicted of indictable offences in each of the last three years for which data is available. [185553]

Mr. Straw: The following table gives the number of foreign national prisoners received into all prison establishments in England and Wales under immediate custodial sentence between 2004 and 2006:

| | Foreign nationals |
|---|---|
| 2004 | 8,355 |
| 2005 | 9,612 |
| 2006 | 9,832 |

Taken from table 7.5 of Offender Management Caseload Statistics 2006

This published table can be found at the following website: http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/prisonandprobation.htm under chapter 7 of the supplementary tables. A copy of the Offender Management Caseload Statistics 2006 can be found in the House of Commons Library.

Information on the total number of foreign nationals convicted for indictable offences are not held centrally. The central databases of Crown court criminal cases collect information on defendants' ethnicities, but do not presently contain information on their nationalities. This is because, as a general rule, nationality is not germane to the outcome of criminal court proceedings. Defendants will not be asked their nationality by the court for this reason. Information on nationality may be recorded where it is specifically relevant to the case (e.g. immigration-related offences) but this would be held on local files and would not be systematically recorded on central databases.

However, in preparation of the implementation of the UK Borders Act 2007, the Crown court IT systems are being changed to allow for the collection of nationality data. This Act introduces automatic—rather than discretionary—triggers for the deportation of foreign nationals who meet certain sentencing criteria, and it will require more detailed recording of data on foreign national criminal defendants. Upgraded systems to meet this requirement are expected to be in place in late 2008.

Police Custody

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people were serving prison sentences in short-term police custody cells due to prison overcrowding at the latest date for which figures are available. [186902]

Mr. Hanson: Operation Safeguard is the formal agreement between the National Offender Management Service and the Association of Chief Police Officers, used at times of high population pressure, that allows for prisoners to be held in police cells temporarily while a suitable place is identified in a prison. Wherever possible, prisoners will be held in police cells for no more than one night.

Prison Accommodation: Shipping

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what sites have been identified for mooring the prison ship announced on 31 January 2008. [185549]

Mr. Straw: A number of sites are currently being assessed but no decisions have yet been taken as to which have the most potential.

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many responses the Government received to their tender for a prison ship in October 2006. [185552]

Mr. Straw: Following the Authority's advertisement under the OJEU Procurement Regulations, 11 organisations submitted an expression of interest and of these, eight organisations elected to submit a response to the Pre-Qualification Questionnaire (PQQ). Following evaluation of the PQQ responses, five organisations were shortlisted to be issued with tender documents, of which in November 2006, resulted in three organisations finally submitting a tender for consideration.

The identity of the bidding organisations remains commercially confidential information.

Prisoners Release: Foreigners

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many foreign national prisoners were released from UK prisons in 2007. [186889]

Mr. Hanson: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer given to the hon. Member for Arundel and South Downs (Nick Herbert) on 21 January 2008, Official Report, column 1665W.

Mr. Wilshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many foreign prisoners have been released from HM prison Bronzefield in each month since the prison opened; and how many of these have been subsequently deported. [185174]

Mr. Hanson: Between June 2004, when HMP Bronzefield opened, and December 2007 there were on average fewer than 10 foreign nationals discharged each month.

Information relating to immigration status including the numbers who have been subsequently deported is not centrally available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost by detailed cross referencing of BIA case files with Prison Service records.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

For the proportion of total prisoners who are foreign nationals, Council of Europe data on foreign national prisoners held in other major western countries reveal much higher proportions, for example in Austria (43 per cent.), Spain (33 per cent.), Germany (28 per cent.) and France (21 per cent.) than the figure for England and Wales (14 per cent.), based on 2006 population data.

Prisoners Release: Scunthorpe

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what proposals there are for new arrangements for the accommodation and supervision of recently released criminals in Scunthorpe; and if he will make a statement. [186434]

Maria Eagle: The Bail Accommodation and Support Service provides accommodation for defendants on bail, and for those at the end of a sentence who are eligible for release on Home Detention on a tag after a thorough risk assessment by the prison governor. The service is provided through ClearSprings Management Ltd. One three-bedroomed property is being sought in Scunthorpe for this service.

Apart from this the Government have no plans to open new accommodation for ex-offenders in Scunthorpe.

Prisoners: Parole

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prisoners are unable to have their applications for parole considered on the grounds that the Prison Service has been unable to provide the courses which must be completed successfully before parole can be given. [186487]

Maria Eagle: The fact that an offender has not completed an offending behaviour course does not preclude the offender from being considered suitable for parole; neither does the successful completion of an offending behaviour programme guarantee that the Parole Board would find the offender to have sufficiently reduced his risk of reoffending to warrant a positive parole decision.

The Parole Board looks at a range of relevant risk factors when determining whether or not offenders should be released on parole, which might include reports on the offender's response to offending behaviour programmes if such work has been undertaken during the course of the sentence.

Ultimate responsibility for the offender satisfying the Parole Board that the level of risk is reduced to the extent that he may be safely released into the community rests with the offender.

Prisons: Forensic Psychologists

Mr. Ronnie Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many (a) full-time and (1) part-time chartered forensic psychologists were employed by the Prison Service in England and Wales between 1997 and 2007; [186327]

(2) how many (a) full-time and (b) part-time forensic psychologists in training were employed by the Prison Service in England and Wales between 1997 and 2007; [186328]

(3) what proportion of forensic psychologists in training in the Prison Service (a) completed and (b) did not complete their training between 1997 and 2007. [186329]

Maria Eagle: It is not possible to report the number of chartered and in training forensic psychologists employed over the period 1997 to 2007. On average throughout this time period, the Prison Service has employed at any one time in the region of 350 psychologists in training.

Chartered staff employed at chartered psychology grades in the Prison Service as at 3 August 2007

| | Number |
|---|---|
| Manager E | 130 |
| Manager F | 135 |
| Senior Manager B | 7 |
| Senior Manager C | 6 |
| Senior Manager D | 46 |
| Total | 324 |

From May 2001 all psychologists wishing to become Chartered Forensic Psychologists have been required to complete the British Psychological Society's Diploma in Forensic Psychology. This consists of an academic component (Stage 1) and a supervised practice component (Stage 2).

The diploma has undergone several changes since May 2001 with a high failure rate for first submission of Stage 2 evidence. At present, six individuals (not all HM Prison Service staff) have successfully completed this process although other have chartered under the 'old route' which ends May 2008.

Reoffenders

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many offenders are believed to have re-offended while on probation in Romford in the last five years. [186897]

Mr. Hanson: The National Statistics relating to re-offending do not include a constituency level breakdown. Figures for proven re-offending within two years by adults released from prison or starting a community sentence have been published for 2000, 2002, 2003 and 2004. The most recent data was published in the 2007 report, "Re-offending of adults: Results from the 2004 cohort" which is available online at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs07/hosb0607.pdf

Secure Training Centres: Restraint Techniques

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 28 January 2008, Official Report, column 150W, on secure training centres: restraint techniques, what the population of each institution was from 1 April to 30 November 2007. [186839]

Mr. Hanson: The following table shows the end-of-month custody figure for each secure training centre from April to November 2007. The data have been provided by the Youth Justice Board.

| Establishment | April | May | June | July | August | September | October | November |

Sentencing: Offensive Weapons

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people were convicted of the possession of a knife in a public place in a crime hot spot in the last 12 months for which figures are available; how many of those people received a custodial sentence; and if he will make a statement. [185187]

Maria Eagle: The number of persons found guilty at magistrates courts, and the number of those found guilty who were given custodial sentences for the offence "Having an article with blade or point in public place", in England and Wales, for the year 2006 can be found in the following table.

It is difficult to identify a "crime hotspot" as these are determined locally, based on locally held data, therefore the data have been broken down by police force area.

From April 2007 police forces have been collecting data on serious violence offences involving a knife or sharp instrument to improve our understanding of the prevalence of these types of crime. The first full year's data will be available from July 08. The new data collection will provide specific information about the level of knife offences in serious violent offences which, over time, will provide trend data to support the Government and the police in identifying areas for which efforts to tackle knife crime should be targeted.

Number of persons found guilty at magistrates courts and, of these found guilty the number who were given custodial sentences for the offence "Having an article with blade or point in public place", in England and Wales by police force area, for the year 2006[1,2,3]

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Sex Offenders

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many registered sex offenders in the relevant areas made no contact with (a) the Metropolitan Police and (b) Sussex Police last year. [186760]

Maria Eagle: The particular data requested are not collected centrally. In the Multi-Agency Public Protection Arrangements (MAPPA) annual reports, police forces report the number of offenders annually who are cautioned or charged for failing to comply with the notification requirements of the Sexual Offences Act 2003 (which make them registered sexual offenders). In addition, police forces regularly monitor how many of the registered sexual offenders are not residing where they should. According to data provided by the two forces in question, the number of offenders cautioned or charged for not complying with the requirements between 1 April 2006 and 31 March 20007 was: London (includes Metropolitan and City of London forces): 405; Sussex: 38.

At 31 December 2007, the number of registered sexual offenders who were found to be not residing at their registered addresses was: London (includes Metropolitan and City of London forces): 91; Sussex: 13.

It should be noted that the latter figures will fluctuate, as police forces locate offenders and others cannot be found at their registered addresses. Police forces will seek to trace registered sexual offenders who cannot be found at their registered addresses; including the checking of known alternative addresses, family and social contacts; consultation with other agencies and their records and liaison with the Child Exploitation and Online Protection Centre (CEOP), which operates a "most wanted" list, published and updated on the internet.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many individuals were on the national sex offenders register in (a) Romford, (b) Greater London and (c) Essex at the most recent date for which figures are available. [186922]

Maria Eagle: Data on registered sexual offenders are collated geographically by police force area and broken down to basic command unit (BCU) level area. The data are published in local multi-agency public protection arrangements (MAPPA) annual reports which are available in the House Libraries and at:

http://www.probation.justice.gov.uk/output/page30.asp

The Romford constituency is not coterminous with any BCU but is covered by the data relating to the Metropolitan police BCU of Havering.

Registered sexual offenders, as at 31 March 2007

| | Number |
|---|---|
| (a) Havering | 65 |
| (b) London (includes Metropolitan and City of London Police) | 3,151 |
| (c) Essex | 735 |

Smuggling

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what fines were imposed on offenders following conviction for offences of illegally importing products of animal origin (POAO) into the UK in each year since 2001; and what the (a) weight, (b) country of origin and (c) type of POAO seized in each case was; [185622]

(2) how many offenders received custodial sentences following convictions for offences of illegally importing products of animal origin into the UK in each year since 2001. [185621]

Maria Eagle: Information on the number of offenders sentenced and fines imposed for the offences of illegally importing products of animal origin is contained in the following table.

Statistics for 2007 will be published in the autumn.

It is not possible to identify separately the weight and country of origin on the Court Proceedings Database as the circumstances of offences are not collected centrally.

Trade Unions

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice with which trade unions his Department has a recognition agreement. [186074]

Maria Eagle: The Ministry of Justice has in place formal arrangements that recognise the following trade unions and employee representative bodies:

FDA
General Municipal Boilers (GMB)
National Association of Probation Officers (NAPO) Prospect
Prison Officers Association (POA)
Prison Governors" Association (PGA)
Public and Commercial Services (PCS)
Royal College of Nursing (RCN)
Unite (includes TGWU/Amicus)
Union of Construction, Allied Trades and Technicians (UCATT) UNISON.

Wills

Linda Gilroy: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment he has made of the effects of self-regulation of the will-making sector; and what plans he has to regulate the making of wills. [186194]

Bridget Prentice: In 2005, this Department considered the case for the regulation of will-writing. Since then we have worked with consumer bodies, the legal profession, providers of will-writing services and the Office of Fair Trading (OFT), and asked for evidence that would suggest that there is a systemic failure in the will-writing market. While we received information about some cases, we reached the conclusion that there was no convincing evidence, either before or during the scrutiny of the Legal Services Bill, to warrant the regulation of will writing services.

The Department recognises that improvements must be made in the control of quality and standards of will-writing and related services in order to protect consumers and in 2006 we held meetings with interested stakeholders to discuss more effective options such as the OFT's voluntary codes scheme. If evidence emerges in the future of any systemic failure which is putting consumers at risk, the Legal Services Act 2007 does provide suitable provision so that will-writing might be brought into the regulatory net.

Young Offenders: Injuries

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether the new system for recording injuries to young offenders in the secure estate identifies (a) the type of institution in which the injury occurred and (b) (i) the age and (ii) ethnicity of the person injured. [184839]

Mr. Hanson: The Youth Justice Board introduced a new system for recording incidents of restrictive physical intervention, assault, self-harm and single separation in April 2007. Information can currently be broken down by institution, ethnicity and sex. The YJB intends to begin collecting details of the age of the young person from April 2008.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Academies: Norwich

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will meet representatives of the area which may be served by the Heartsease Academy in Norwich before the Academy's approval date. [177330]

Jim Knight: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State would be pleased to do so.

Building Schools for the Future

Ann Coffey: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families with reference to the answer of 18 October 2007, Official Report, columns 1292-4W, on Building Schools for the Future, (1) what progress he has made in reviewing the operation of waves seven to 15 of the programme; [185958]

(2) what progress he has made with developing the programme to accelerate the entry of education authorities into it. [185959]

Jim Knight: It is still my aim to consult on how we manage waves seven onwards of Building Schools for the Future, and also to give all authorities with projects in these waves the opportunity we have already offered, to revise their expressions of interest in the programme. Wave seven authorities will be able to access funding from 2011-12. I would like to see all authorities having a project in the programme as soon as possible, but this will depend on their readiness to deliver, and on future public spending decisions.

We have not consulted to the timetable indicated in my response to the question of 18 October last year. As the Select Committee said in its report on Building Schools for the Future last year, the important thing with this major programme is to get it right. This delay reflects our aim to do this, and is a sign of the Government's continued commitment to Building Schools for the Future and to getting it right.

Mr. Flello: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many schools built under the Building Schools for the Future programme have provision for (a) fewer than 500 pupils, (b) between 500 and 1,000 pupils and (c) more than 1,000 pupils; [185391]

(2) how many new schools have been built under the Building Schools for the Future programme; how many have been refurbished; and what proportion of funding to the programme has been spent on each activity. [185392]

Jim Knight: The number of pupils in the schools that have been rebuilt or refurbished as part of Building Schools for the Future is set out in the following table. Funding for these schools from Building Schools for the Future totalled £100.5 million and includes 'early win' projects. The proportion of this funding used for refurbishment was £58.75 million and for new build was £41.75 million.

Building schools for the future—newly modernised schools

| | Number of pupils | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | 0-500 | 500-1,000 | 1,000+ | Total |
| Rebuilt | 1 | 0 | 2 | 3 |
| Refurbished | 1 | 4 | 2 | 7 |
| Total | 2 | 4 | 4 | 10 |

Children in Care

Ms Dari Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children in local authority care are waiting for (a) placement with a foster parent or parents and (b) adoption. [183547]

Kevin Brennan: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given by my predecessor on 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 532W.

Class Sizes

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the average class sizes were in (a) primary and (b) secondary schools in (i) Cornwall, (ii) the south-west and (iii) England in 2006-07. [186502]

Jim Knight: The average class sizes for both primary and secondary schools in Cornwall, the south-west and England are all shown in the following table.

|---|---|---|
| | Primary schools | Secondary schools |
| Cornwall | 26.2 | 21.3 |
| South-west | 26.1 | 21.4 |
| England | 26.2 | 21.2 |

These figures are for classes taught by one teacher. The figures were taken from table 21 and table 23 of the Statistical First Release 'Schools and Pupils in England: January 2007', available at:
http://www.dfes.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000744/index.shtml.

Education: Disadvantaged

Mr. Byers: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of pupils (a) entitled and (b) not entitled to free school meals left school (i) without any recognised qualification and (ii) with five A* to C grade GCSEs in 2007. [185643]

Jim Knight: The following table shows pupil achievement at the end of Key Stage 4 in maintained schools by eligibility for free school meals (FSM) in 2007:

| | Number of pupils | Percentage achieving 5 A-C grades* | Percentage with no recognised qualifications |
|---|---|---|---|
| FSM | 76,641 | 35.5 | 5.4 |
| Non- FSM | 522,088 | 62.8 | 1.9 |

These figures are taken from Table 8 in SFR38/2007 which can be found using the following link
http://www.dfes.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000759/index.shtml

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils who were eligible for free school meals left education without qualifications in each of the last three years. [186188]

Jim Knight: I refer the hon. Member to the answer to his question 182171 on 28 January 2008, Official Report, columns 161-62W.

Female Genital Mutilation

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what advice his Department provides to schools on female circumcision. [184579]

Beverley Hughes: The Department provides advice to schools about female genital mutilation (FGM), which encompasses female circumcision, in 'Safeguarding Children and Safer Recruitment in Education', which came into force in January 2007. The guidance makes clear that FGM is a criminal offence, extremely harmful and is a form of physical abuse which is not justified as a cultural or religious practice. It refers to the Female Genital Mutilation Act 2003 and signposts further sources of information available on the Department's teachernet website.

It is important that people who work with children who may be at risk of FGM know the warning signs that could indicate that a child is being prepared for FGM, which may involve being taken abroad, and that they are alert to the signs that FGM may have been carried out.

Forced Marriage

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the Prime Minister's oral answer to the hon. Member for Reading, West of 30 January 2008, Official Report, column 315, on forced marriage, when the Government plan to report back to the House. [184797]

Kevin Brennan: The Department is looking into this issue, jointly with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's Forced Marriage Unit. We will report back to the House in March.

GCE A-Level

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many secondary schools did not enter any candidates for chemistry A-Level in 2007; [186224]

(2) how many secondary schools did not enter any candidates for physics A-level in 2007; [186225]

(3) how many secondary schools did not enter any candidates for mathematics A-level in 2007; [186226]

(4) how many secondary schools did not enter any candidates for biology A-level in 2007. [186227]

Jim Knight: The information is provided in the following table:

| | Number of schools who did not enter any candidates | Percentage of schools who did not enter any candidates |
|---|---|---|
| Mathematics | 196 | 10.6 |
| Physics | 351 | 19.0 |
| Biology | 244 | 13.2 |
| Chemistry | 287 | 15.6 |

These figures relate to 16 to 18-year-olds (age at the start of the academic year, i.e. 31 August 2006) in all maintained schools with sixth forms.

GCE A-Level: Greater London

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many pupils have re-sat (a) AS level and (b) A2 level examinations in each London borough since their introduction; [186141]

(2) how many pupils re-sat GCSEs in each London borough in the last five years for which figures are available, broken down by subject. [186142]

Jim Knight: The information can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

GCSE and A-Level

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what estimate he has made of the proportion of maintained secondary schools which did not offer GCSE in (a) chemistry, (b) ICT, (c) physics and (d) history in (i) 2000, (ii) 2005, (iii) 2006 and (iv) 2007; [163762]

(2) what his most recent estimate is of the proportion of maintained secondary schools offering Mandarin to (a) GCSE and (b) A-level; [163763]

(3) what assessment he has made of the effects on numbers of pupils choosing subjects at (a) GCSE and (b) A-level of Government targets to improve the share of pupils achieving higher grades in these qualifications; and if he will make a statement; [163764]

(4) what proportion of pupils studying for A-levels and GCSEs have taken (a) A-level and (b) GCSE examinations in each subject in (i) 1988, (ii) 1996, (iii) 2000, (iv) 2004 and (v) 2007; and if he will make a statement; [163765]

(5) what proportion of those studying for mathematics A-level were educated in (a) maintained and (b) private schools in each year from 1988 to 2007; and if he will make a statement; [163766]

(6) what proportion of pupils in maintained schools studied mathematics at A-level or AS-level in each year from 1988 to 2007; and if he will make a statement; [163767]

(7) what proportion of pupils at the 100 (a) top and (b) bottom performing maintained secondary schools by GCSE results in 2007 were known to be eligible for free school meals; what the equivalent national percentage average was for all maintained secondary schools; and if he will make a statement. [163821]

Jim Knight: The information can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

GCSE: Standards

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) pursuant to the answer of 28 January 2008, Official Report, column 162W, on GCSE: standards, how many schools in each local education authority area had fewer than 25 per cent. of pupils achieve five A* to C grade passes at GCSE, including mathematics and English, in each year between 1998 and 2004; [184852]

(2) how many of the schools in each local education authority area with fewer than 25 per cent. of pupils achieving five A* to C grade passes at GCSE, including mathematics and English, in 2006-07 (a) have since been closed and (b) are planned to close. [184853]

Jim Knight: The information for 2001/02 onwards is in the Achievement and Attainment Tables in the Library. Information for the other years can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Holocaust Educational Trust: Finance

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what funding has been allocated to the work of the Holocaust Educational Trust to help combat anti-Semitism and racism. [183830]

Jim Knight: I refer the right hon. Member to the reply given in the House on 4 February 2008, Official Report, column 646.

Holocaust: Education

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps the Government have taken to educate school children on the Holocaust since 1997. [185667]

Jim Knight: The teaching of the Holocaust has been a statutory requirement since the inception of the National Curriculum in 1991.

Guidance to teachers was published by the QCA in 2000 when the National Curriculum was reviewed, and on 27 January 2001 the first Holocaust Memorial Day was held. Holocaust Memorial Day aims to encourage greater awareness among young people of the relevance of the Holocaust and the need for mutual respect and understanding. It is supported by a Government funded education pack.

Since 2006 the Government have been supporting the Holocaust Educational Trust's lessons from Auschwitz project for 16 to 18-year-olds, and funding of £4.65 million over the next three years was announced on 4 February.

Home Education

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether a child aged 14 who is home educated and attends a local college on a part-time basis is entitled to support towards transport costs. [185998]

Jim Knight: Local authorities must provide transport where they consider it necessary to ensure that a child goes to school. If transport is necessary, then it must be provided free of charge.

In most cases, it is for the local authority to decide if transport is necessary, but a child will be automatically entitled to free transport if they are between five and 16 years old and attend the nearest suitable school, and the school is further away than the 'statutory walking distance'. The statutory walking distance is three miles for those aged eight and over.

From 1 September 2008 secondary pupils (11 to 16 years old) will be entitled to free school transport if they are from a low income family, they attend any one of their three nearest suitable schools, and the schools are between two and six miles away from their home address. The extended rights to free transport are part of wider changes introduced under the Education and Inspections Act 2006.

Although the regulations and the Act refer to 'schools', it is the age of the child that is significant. This means that a child of compulsory school age, attending a college to study national curriculum subjects, will fall under the regulations set out above.

Lord Adonis

Mr. Wareing: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the purpose was of Lord Adonis's visit to Liverpool on 25 January, with particular reference to his visit to Croxteth comprehensive school; who invited him to visit the school; and whom he met during that visit. [185754]

Jim Knight: My noble friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Schools and Learners visited Liverpool at the invitation of the leader of Liverpool city council as part of ongoing discussions about the city's Building Schools for the Future Programme. Lord Adonis visited Croxteth comprehensive school with the leader of Liverpool city council and a number of the leader's senior officials.

Primary Education

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many primary schools in each local authority with fewer than 100 pupils have not joined other schools in forming federations; [186222]

(2) how many primary schools in each local authority with at least 25 per cent. surplus places have not joined other schools in forming federations. [186223]

Jim Knight: The Department does not keep systematic records of the schools that are involved in federation arrangements and schools are under no obligation to inform the Department when they enter such arrangements. It would not be possible for this information to be obtained from LAs or schools without incurring disproportionate costs.

Primary Education: Academies

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what plans he has to establish primary school academies; and if he will make a statement. [185334]

Jim Knight: There are currently no plans for the academies programme to extend to schools solely catering for pupils of primary age. However, the programme does extend to all-age academies and there are currently eight all-through academies (providing education for all ages from three to 19), with a further seven in the pipeline.

Sponsors may also enter an academy proposal in any of the competitions now required under the Education and Inspections Act 2006 for most new and replacement primary and secondary schools.

Primary Education: Admissions

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of maintained primary schools had (a) under 245 pupils, (b) between 246 and 345 pupils, (c) between 346 and 445 pupils, (d) between 446 and 545 pupils, (e) between 546 and 645 pupils, (f) between 646 and 745 pupils, (g) between 746 and 845 pupils, (h) between 846 and 945, (i) between 946 and 999 pupils and (j) over 1,000 pupils in the last period for which figures are available. [185074]

Maintained primary schools[1]: Number of schools by size[2], January 2007, England

| | All schools[3] | Maintained primary schools | Percentage[4] |
|---|---|---|---|

| 246 pupils to 345 pupils | 3,462 | 3,120 | 90.1 |
| 346 pupils to 445 pupils | 2,595 | 2,303 | 88.7 |

School Census.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many local authorities (a) had over 10 per cent. surplus primary school places in each year since 1997 and (b) are estimated to have over 10 per cent. of surplus places in each year until 2015; and if he will make a statement. [185338]

Jim Knight: The Department collects information from each local authority (LA) on the number of surplus school places via an annual survey. The earliest data available is for 1998 and the most recent is for 2007. The number of surplus school places was not collected in 2002 to allow for a change in the method of assessing school capacity. Currently, the number of surplus school places is calculated using the net capacity method of assessment which was introduced in 2003. Up to 2001 the capacity of a school was calculated using the MOE (More Open Enrolment) method.

(a) The table shows the number of LAs that had over 10 per cent. surplus primary school places calculated by the MOE method between 1998 and 2001 and the net capacity method between 2003 and 2007.

(b) The Department collects forecast data from local authorities on projected pupil numbers, but not on projected school capacity. We are unable, therefore, to estimate future levels of surplus places.

Pupil Exclusions

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what support has been given to head teachers in exercising their function of excluding pupils since June 2007. [185185]

Kevin Brennan: Head teachers must complete statutory training prior to appointment (the National Professional Qualification for Headship). The training aims to support heads in developing effective strategies to run their schools, which includes those on pupil behaviour and exclusion.

We back heads when they take the difficult decision to permanently exclude a pupil. The intention must be to intervene early to nip misbehaviour in the bud and so reduce the need for permanent exclusion. Provisions in the Education and Inspections Act 2006, which came into force on 1 September 2007, allow schools to apply for Parenting Orders earlier. Now they can be used in cases where a pupil's serious misbehaviour would warrant exclusion, before waiting until a pupil had been excluded as had previously been the case. Schools can now apply directly to the magistrates court for Parenting Orders rather than arrange for the local authority to make the application. Also, schools can now offer voluntary parenting contracts at an earlier stage where pupils have misbehaved in school.

We issued revised guidance to local authorities and schools on exclusions, which came into force on 1 September 2007. We have also issued guidance at the same time on the use of education-related parenting contracts, Parenting Orders and penalty notices.

Pupils: Zimbabwe

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children of Zimbabwean nationals are being educated in English schools. [185802]

Jim Knight: The requested information is not collected centrally.

Schools: Admissions

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many schools had more than (a) 30 per cent., (b) 50 per cent. and (c) 70 per cent. surplus places in each of the last 10 years. [185400]

Jim Knight: We cannot provide the information requested because it would require us to manipulate large volumes of data which could be undertaken only at a disproportionate cost.

Schools: Manpower

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the staffing costs of (a) teachers and (b) all school staff were in the latest year for which figures are available. [185206]

Jim Knight: The available information requested is as follows:

Staffing expenditure by all local authority maintained schools in England for 2006-07

| | £ million |
|---|---|
| (a) Teaching staff | 17,867 |
| (b) Non-teaching staff | 6,655 |
| (c) Other employee expenses[1] | 480 |
| Total: | 25,002 |

[1] Including recruitment, development and training costs.

Schools: Offensive Weapons

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much funding has been allocated to provide intensive education warnings about guns and knives in secondary schools. [185196]

Jim Knight: No specific funding has been allocated by this Department to support education about guns and knives in secondary schools. However, there are opportunities for schools to address this issue throughout the curriculum and in particular through the statutory citizenship curriculum, at key stages 3 and 4 as it relates to legal and human rights and responsibilities and the importance of resolving conflict fairly. Through personal, social and health education, pupils are taught to recognise and manage risk and make safer choices and to recognise when pressure from others threatens their personal safety.

Schools: Rural Areas

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many rural schools he has agreed to close since the presumption against such closure was introduced; which such schools have closed; and on what dates, broken down by local authority. [184992]

Jim Knight: The Secretary of State has not agreed to close any rural school since the presumption against closure of such schools was introduced in 1998. Local authorities are responsible for taking decisions on proposals to close schools, including rural schools. Where there is an appeal against a proposed closure the schools adjudicator makes the decision. Ministers do not have a role in this process.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 31 January 2008, Official Report, column 24WS, on the future of rural schools, and the letter placed in the Library, what estimate he has made of the percentage of rural schools which may need to (a) close and (b) merge; and if he will make a statement. [185024]

Jim Knight: The Department has not made an estimate of the number of rural schools which may need to close or merge. Local authorities are responsible for planning school places in their area and they, or the schools adjudicator, make the decisions about school closures. Both must have regard to statutory guidance which contains a presumption against closing rural schools.

We do not expect local authorities to rush to close rural schools. They should consider other options first such as rationalising school space, for example by removing temporary accommodation, or broadening the services their schools offer in line with the likely future pattern of children's services and the needs of local communities. We also encourage authorities to look at promoting shared governance arrangements between small primary schools as a way of addressing financial and educational challenges resulting from falling primary school rolls.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 31 January 2008, Official Report, column 24WS, on the future of rural schools, and the letter placed in the Library, how much of the £188 million of funding referred to in the dedicated schools grant 2007-08 for the extra costs of primary schools which arise due to sparsity of population has been allocated to Herefordshire; and if he will make a statement. [185025]

Jim Knight: For the financial year 2007-08 we calculate that £2.87 million of Herefordshire's funding for schools through the Dedicated Schools Grant is for the extra costs of primary schools which arise due to sparsity of population.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 31 January 2008, Official

Report, column 24WS, on the future of rural schools, and the letter placed in the Library, under what circumstances his Department's policy is that a (a) primary and (b) secondary school should remain open in a rural area when there is in excess of 10 per cent. surplus spaces; and if he will make a statement. [185026]

Jim Knight: The Department's policy is that it is for local authorities to plan school provision in their area and to develop strategies for removing high levels of surplus places, where they exist, with particular attention to poorly performing schools.

We accept that in order to preserve access for young children there may be more empty places in rural areas than in urban areas. In preparing their plans authorities must take into account the presumption against closing rural schools contained in statutory guidance. Reducing surplus places need not mean school closures. It can also be achieved by removing temporary accommodation, or consolidating, or adapting accommodation for alternative community use, or federating groups of schools together.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which rural schools are (a) on and (b) not on the list of rural schools for which there is a presumption against closure; and if he will make a statement. [185330]

Jim Knight: The presumption against closure applies to all rural schools. Rural primary schools are designated by the Secretary of State under the provisions of Section 70(3) of the Education Act 2005. There is no designation process for rural secondary schools. The rural classification is based on the Office of National Statistics rural indicator.

A copy of the list of rural primary schools has been placed in the Library. The list is also available on http://www.dfes.gov.uk/publications/otherdocs.shtml.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when his Department drew up the list of rural schools for which there is a presumption against closure, with reference to his letter of 31 January 2008 to Directors of Children's Services in England. [185331]

Jim Knight: The order designating the list of rural primary schools to which the presumption against closure applies under Section 70(3) of the Education Act 2005 came into force on 16 March 2007.

Science: GCE A-Level

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many secondary schools did not enter any candidates for at least two science A-levels in 2007; [186228]

(2) how many secondary schools courses which offer A-levels did not offer at least two science A-level courses in 2007. [186229]

Jim Knight: The Department for Children, Schools and Families does not hold information on the subjects offered by individual schools.

In 2006/07, the number of maintained schools that did not enter any candidates for at least two science A-levels was 306. This was 16.6 per cent. of all maintained schools published in the Achievement and Attainment Tables (AATs).

The figures relate to 16 to 18-year-olds (age at start of academic year, i.e. 31 August 2006).

Special Educational Needs: Surrey

Mr. Wilshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children in the Administrative County of Surrey area had special educational needs statements in each of the last five years. [185176]

Jim Knight: The following table shows the number of pupils in all schools living in the local authority of Surrey that had special educational needs with statements in each of the last five years.

Specialised Diplomas

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many secondary schools in each local authority have not joined a consortium with other schools and colleges to provide diplomas. [186221]

Jim Knight: There has been a very positive response from secondary schools to the delivery of diplomas. Of 3,053 secondary schools in England, only 552 (18 per cent.) are not currently members of consortia. A breakdown of numbers by local authority is set out in the following table.

By 2013 there will be a national entitlement to all 14 diplomas; we expect every secondary school to be involved so that all young people can access diplomas if they wish.

Teachers: Communication

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what mechanisms are in place to inform teachers of (a) new legislation and (b) new guidelines; and if he will make a statement. [185310]

Jim Knight: The Department only sends information automatically to schools in England in exceptional cases having stopped regular paper mailings in December 2004. Discussions with head teachers and detailed research showed that schools wanted to be able to choose the information and guidance they needed, when they needed them.

Instead the Department implemented a new model communications approach that combines e-mail, internet, an online ordering system, Teachers TV, and Teachers Magazine—all help signpost legislation and guidance as well as presenting information in a user friendly way. This has been well received by schools and puts them in control of what they receive, when they receive it and the number of paper-based copies they require.

The Department now issues a fortnightly email to all schools highlighting key information of importance including legislation and guidance. In addition to this, the Department's communications directorate offers information and support to schools via a range of channels including:

Teachers Magazine and Governors Newsletter

Issued six times a year and distributed to teachers and governors homes and to schools.

TeacherNet, Standards Site and GovernorNet

Online information, resources and help for people who work in schools. Work is currently being taken forward to bring these sites into a single new website for schools—"SchoolsWeb".

Teachers' TV

A new innovative digital television channel launched in February 2005—the first of its kind. Teachers' TV is editorially independent of the Department and provides support, good practice from around the system. It also offers content of interest and value to broader communities including parents and others in the children's work force.

All of our work on communications (online ordering, Teachers Magazine, Governors Newsletter, Teachers TV, e-mail communications, and SchoolsWeb) build on the guiding principles that our communications must be accessible, add value, aim to reduce burdens, drive improved standards, and contribute where possible to greater efficiency.

An annual report is presented to Parliament each year, listing the documents sent from the Department and its agencies to all schools.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Health and Safety

12. Tony Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on Government policy on enforcement of health and safety law. [186555]

Mrs. McGuire: The Government support the Health and Safety Commission and Executive's policy of firm but fair enforcement of health and safety law, as set out in their published Enforcement Policy Statement.

Worklessness

13. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of trends in the level of worklessness among under 25 year olds since 1997. [186556]

Mr. Timms: Claimant unemployment is falling for 18 to 24-year-olds and is down 167,000 since 1997. In 1997, over 80,000 18 to 24-year-olds had been receiving jobseeker's allowance for over 12 months. Today, that figure is fewer than 7,000.

Poverty

14. Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate the Government has made of levels of poverty among disadvantaged groups. [186559][1]

Mr. Timms: The number of children in poverty has fallen by 600,000 in the past decade, the number of pensioners by over a million and the number of disabled people by 900,000. We are determined to make further progress.

Local Employment Partnerships

16. Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many local employment partnerships are in operation; and if he will make a statement. [186561]

Mr. Timms: Over 500 employers have now signed up, and over half of them are now up and running. In the north-east last week I signed partnership agreements with Sembcorp at the Wilton petrochemicals complex, and with Nissan at Sunderland. Over 2,000 disadvantaged jobless people have found work through local employment partnerships so far.

Child Support Agency

18. Anne Moffat: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the performance of the Child Support Agency following the introduction of the operational improvement plan. [186564]

Mr. Plaskitt: The Agency's performance has significantly improved since the Operational Improvement Plan was launched in April 2006.

The Agency clears more applications than it receives per month and uncleared new scheme applications are at their lowest since March 2003. Over half of all new applications are cleared within six weeks.

However, the real test is the difference made for children by collecting or arranging maintenance. Nearly 675,000 children now benefit from maintenance, an increase of around 78,000 since the plan was launched.

Welfare Services

19. Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans his Department has to personalise welfare services. [186565]

Mrs. McGuire: Jobcentre Plus already provides tailored personal advice. Our successful Pathways to Work pilots, combining employment and health support, have already shown significant success in getting people off benefit and into employment.

We are proposing more personalised support for all our customers. As well as the national roll-out of Pathways to Work we are introducing the Flexible New Deal from April 2009 and extending New Deal Plus for Lone Parents pilots until 2011.

Lone Parents: Work Assistance

20. Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps he is taking to help lone parents into work. [186566]

Mr. Timms: In our Command Paper 'Ready for work: full employment in our generation', published in December 2007, we announced increased obligations for lone parents. Lone parents who are claiming income support solely based on being a lone parent will have to move onto a more appropriate benefit when their youngest child is:

12 and over from October 2008;

10 and over from October 2009; and seven and over from October 2010.

To help more lone parents into work, in April, we are making the in-work credit available nationally. This gives eligible lone parents an extra £40 a week (£60 a week in London) for up to a year when they start work of 16 hours or more a week. In addition, later this year we will pilot a payment which will give an assurance to lone parents, and other eligible groups who have been claiming certain benefits for 26 weeks or more, that their income from work, including in-work benefits, will be a least £25 per week more than they received from out of work benefits.

1. [Official Report, 26 February 2008, Vol. 472, c. 16MC.]

Women Pensioners

21. Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has to increase the income of women pensioners. [186567]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: As a result of pensions reform the proportion of women reaching state pension age entitled to a full basic state pension will rise from around 35 per cent. now to around three quarters in 2010 and over 90 per cent. in 2025.

Proposals in the current Pensions Bill should result in an estimated three and a half to four million women being enrolled into a workplace pension, many for the first time. The combination of state and private pensions reforms will help ensure more women build up their own pension provision.

NEETs

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans his Department has to reduce the number of young people not in training, employment or education. [186562]

Mr. Timms: The proportion of young people not in training, education or employment has fallen over the past decade. To make further progress, we will give early new deal access to 18-year-olds who claim jobseeker's allowance having already spent a period not working or studying.

Attendance Allowance: Glasgow East

Mr. Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people in Glasgow East constituency are in receipt of the (a) higher rate and (b) lower rate of attendance allowance. [184710]

Mrs. McGuire: The latest information is in the following table.

People in Glasgow East parliamentary constituency who are in receipt of attendance allowance by award type, May 2007

| | Higher rate | Lower rate |
|---|---|---|
| Glasgow East | 1,960 | 1,390 |

Notes:
1. Case load figures are rounded to the nearest 10.
2. Totals may not sum due to rounding.
3. Totals show the number of people in receipt of an allowance, and exclude people with entitlement where the payment has been suspended, for example, if they are in hospital.

Barnardo's

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether he has received a copy of the report "Like any other child?" issued by Barnardo's charity; and if he will make a statement. [183747]

Mrs. McGuire: The Secretary of State has receive a copy of the Barnado's "Like any other child?" report.

The Government refute the allegation that there is a policy of enforced destitution of asylum seekers and their families. Those who cannot support themselves while their application is considered are eligible for support from the Border and Immigration Agency. Once their claim has been finally determined, those who have been successful are assisted to integrate into the local community. Those whose claims have failed are expected to return home.

If they are temporarily unable to travel (for instance they need to obtain travel documents) they can be supported. In addition, where there are children under the age of 18 in a family whose claim was unsuccessful, they continue to be supported in the same way and to the same extent as they were before their claim was determined, until they leave the UK.

Our policy ensures that there are support safeguards in place for families and the vulnerable and those who are unable to return home.

Carbon Monoxide

Tom Levitt: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will take steps to promote the use of carbon monoxide detectors with audible alarms in all homes. [182669]

Mrs. McGuire: I refer the hon. Member to the ministerial statement, 26 June 2007, Official Report, column 27WS, about the Ministerial Group on Gas Safety. The group is supporting cross-Government activity to raise awareness of CO poisoning from space and heating appliances burning fossil fuels and how it can be avoided. Appliances need to be properly installed and maintained in a safe condition by competent persons. An annual safety check is also recommended. CO alarms are advocated as a useful back-up precaution but should not be regarded as a substitute for these measures.

Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what services have been provided by (a) Veredus and (b) other recruitment consultants to his Department in the last five years; and what the cost was of such services. [181257]

Mrs. McGuire: The information requested is available from April 2005 only and is provided in the following table.

DWP expenditure from 2005-06 to November 2007 with Veredus and other recruitment consultancy companies

£ million

| | 2005-06 | 2006-07 | 2007 (to Nov 2007) |
|---|---|---|---|
| Veredus | 0.028 | 0.670 | 0.310 |
| Other recruitment consultants | 1.008 | 0.368 | 0.050 |
| Total | 1.036 | 1.038 | 0.360 |

Veredus has provided a range of recruitment services to DWP, primarily in relation to high level search and selection of senior civil service posts. These services have been sourced via the Cabinet Office Framework Agreement. The services provided by other recruitment consultancy companies have covered the full range of end to end recruitment activities including advertising campaigns, sifting and selection across the full range of civil service posts. These services were sourced via the Cabinet Office Framework Agreement and the DWP CIPHER Framework Agreement.

Child Support Agency: ICT

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the timetable is for migrating all Child Support Agency cases onto the new system; and if he will make a statement. [179663]

Mr. Plaskitt: The problems encountered by the Agency following the launch of the reforms in 2003 are well documented and were widely publicised at the time. As a result of these problems the decision to bulk migrate and convert the caseload was deferred, although from the launch of the reforms in March 2003 new rules applications to child support have continued to trigger the reactive migration of old rules cases from CSCS and following migration relevant cases have been reactively converted from old to new rules.

The Child Maintenance and Other Payments Bill, currently under consideration by Parliament, sets out proposals for a new system of child maintenance to be in place by 2010. By the end of 2008, parents will have an option to agree arrangements between themselves and move into voluntary maintenance arrangements, no-one will be compelled to stay in either scheme. For those who choose to remain with the Commission and the new system of child maintenance we expect the case transfer process to start in 2010 and take around three years. During this period, parents will continue to have the opportunity to move to their own arrangements or, for those parents who are satisfied with their existing arrangements to continue with them, supported by a new simple cash transfer service based on the success of the current Maintenance Direct option.

Children: Maintenance

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of parents with care on income support and income-based job seeker's allowance received maintenance in each region in each quarter since January 1997. [174726]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 18 February 2008:

In reply to your recent parliamentary question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what proportion of parents with care on income support and income-based job seeker's allowance received maintenance in each region in each quarter since January 1997. [174726]

The information you requested is provided in the attached table which shows the proportion of those parents with care in receipt of Income Support or Income Based Jobseeker's Allowance who have been assessed as due to receive maintenance and who do so.

I hope you find this helpful.

Christmas

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the Answer of 23 January 2008, Official Report, column 2084W, on Christmas, how much his Department spent on (a) Christmas cards and (b) postage of Christmas cards sent by Minister in 2007. [178640]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 31 January 2008]: The Department spent a total of £1,589.90 on Christmas cards sent by its six Ministers. We are unable to provide the cost of postage as some of these cards would have been issued by hand. Records of these were not kept.

Council Tax Benefits

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps his Department has taken to increase the uptake of council tax benefits among (a) pensioners and (b) young families. [184482]

Mr. Plaskitt: Take-up of council tax benefit (CTB) is lowest among pensioners. Pensioners are, therefore, our priority and we have put in place measures to ensure take-up is improved.

People applying for pension credit by telephone can access CTB (and housing benefit) at the same time, using a shortened three-page claim form which is completed for them during the phone call. Customers only have to provide information once. The income and savings information supplied for the pension credit application is used for the CTB claim.

From October 2008 we will dispense with even the short claim form for claims made in this way. The Pension Service will collect the CTB claim information and pass it direct to the local authority for assessment.

There are also other measures to improve take-up generally which would include young families. Annual awareness campaigns providing data to local authorities to better target entitled non-recipients will improve the administration of CTB by local authorities.

Council Tax Benefits: Rebates

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has to offer council tax benefit as a rebate to improve the take-up rate. [184658]

Mr. Plaskitt: Council tax benefit is a rebate.

Departmental Civil Agencies

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many agencies his Department has created in the last (a) five and (b) 10 years. [185751]

Mrs. McGuire: Since its establishment in April 2002 the Department for Work and Pensions has created the following agencies.

| Agency | Established |
|---|---|
| Jobcentre Plus | April 2002 |
| The Pension Service | April 2002 |
| Disability and Carers Service | November 2004 |

(b) In the five years prior to the establishment of the Department for Work and Pensions, the Appeals Service was established by the Department of Social Security in April 2000. The agency transferred to the Department for Constitutional Affairs in April 2006

Employment

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent representations he has received on the proportion of UK nationals in the UK labour force. [186557]

Mr. Timms: Ministers and officials receive regular representations from a variety of sources on many issues.

Thanks to this Government's handling of the economy and active labour market policies, there are today more UK nationals in work than there were in 1997 and a higher proportion of UK nationals of working age have jobs than they did in 1997.

Health and Safety Executive: Buildings

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the (a) projected and (b) actual cost was of the new Health and Safety Executive headquarters in Bootle. [180139]

Mrs. McGuire: The new HSE Headquarters in Bootle was procured under the Private Finance Initiative. The projected capital cost of the new headquarters was £58.3 million (2003 prices) comprising £57 million on construction which was met by the contractor and £1.3 million land purchase met by HSE. The actual cost including £1.7 million infrastructure costs was £60 million.

HSE pays an annual charge for fully serviced accommodation in the new building. In the first year of operation (2006-07) the charge was forecast to be £7.8 million. The actual cost was £7.6 million.

Housing Benefit

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether the potential savings created by the proposed reduction in backdating of housing benefit and council tax benefit claims will be ring-fenced for redeployment in support for housing. [175245]

Mr. Plaskitt: For any administrative savings, it is up to local authorities to decide how best to administer housing benefit and council tax benefit and how they use any savings resulting from more efficient and streamlined services.

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will publish (a) the findings from the evaluation of the local housing allowances in the 18 pathfinder areas and (b) evidence available to his Department on the likely effects of direct payment of housing allowance in cases where housing benefit would have been paid to the landlord. [183587]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 4 February 2008]: The Department commissioned an independent evaluation of the local housing allowance within the nine pathfinder areas. This included qualitative and quantitative evidence gathered from landlords in all the pathfinder areas. The findings of the evaluation have been published as they have become available.

The final reports of the landlord stream of the evaluation, (reports No. 11 and 12) that were published in late 2006 explore the landlords experience of direct payment and copies are in the House Libraries and on the Department's website.

The evaluation did not include the further nine 'second wave group' of local authorities who introduced the local housing allowance a year after the pathfinders, but their experience has informed the Department's strategy for national roll-out the local housing allowance due to commence in April this year.

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what changes are being made to local housing allowance from April 2008; and what guidance has been given to local authorities accordingly. [184633]

Mr. Plaskitt: Through the comprehensive and independent evaluation of local housing allowance (LHA) in the nine pathfinder areas, we have identified a number of changes to the scheme that will apply for national roll-out.

We will cap the maximum amount of LHA that someone can receive (before non-dependant deductions and means-testing rules are applied) at £15 a week over and above the amount they need to pay their rent to strike a balance between choice and work incentives. In the pathfinder areas, there was no cap on excess benefits.

The criteria used to determine the appropriate size of property for a household will be simplified to be based on the number of bedrooms to ensure they are easier to apply and understand and better reflect the way in which properties are advertised in the private market.

LHA rates will be set at the median market rent in an area, rather than (as now) the midpoint between highest and lowest. This will provide a more accurate system that reflects the distribution of rents in an area and will ensure 50 per cent. of the properties in the local area will be affordable for housing benefit customers.

We will roll out LHA to new and existing customers who move home or have a break in their claim. In the pathfinders, some local authorities converted all of their private rented sector case load in one big bang approach.

The Department for Work and Pensions has an extensive programme of support and advice to help local authorities with the introduction of the local housing allowance on 7 April 2008.

The Department delivered 20 regional seminars for local authorities throughout summer 2007. A range of implementation and guidance products have already been made available to assist local authorities with specific activities, based largely on examples of good practice provided by LHA pathfinder authorities.

We have developed a range of products to support local authorities in communicating with their stakeholders, particularly welfare rights organisations and landlords. A key aim of the LHA is to promote financial inclusion by encouraging tenants to have their benefit paid directly into their own bank accounts, and we have provided advice and information to local authorities to enable them to support their customers in opening bank accounts.

The Department will continue to provide communications, advice and support to local authorities in the run-up to the roll out of the local housing allowance in April 2008.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people have claimed housing benefit in each year since 1997. [185662]

Housing Benefit: Antisocial Behaviour

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many families in each local authority have had their housing benefit withdrawn because of their anti social behavioural practices under the Government's Respect Agenda housing benefit trials; [186148]

(2) what level of proof is required for housing benefit to be removed under the Government's Respect Agenda housing benefit trials; and if he will make a statement. [186149]

Mr. Plaskitt: Eight local authorities are taking part in the pilot for the sanction of housing benefit (HB) related to antisocial behaviour. The pilot began on the 1 November 2007. To date no sanctions have been applied.

A local authority can sanction HB as a result of anti-social behaviour where a person or partner ("a household") is the subject of an order for possession on grounds of antisocial behaviour and subsequently leaves the property; and, if in receipt of HB following re-housing, the household unreasonably refuses to engage with the help and support offered as specified in a written warning notice.

In most cases, HB would be reduced, not removed.

The local authority must be satisfied that the necessary conditions have been met for a sanction to be imposed and that the household did not comply with the requirements of the warning notice without "good cause". In making any decisions in this respect, the local authority must act reasonably.

Housing Benefit: Applications

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average time taken to process a housing benefit application by each local authority was in 2006-07. [174802]

Jobcentre Plus

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what opportunities are available through the Jobcentre Plus network to jobseekers who have been out of work for less than six months; and if he will make a statement. [185303]

Mr. Timms: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 18 February 2008:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what opportunities are available through the Jobcentre Plus network to jobseekers who have been out of work for less than six months. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Everyone claiming Jobseeker's Allowance is seen by a personal adviser. The purpose of this interview is primarily to discuss and agree the type of work being sought and those steps that, if taken, will offer the best chance of finding work. Once agreed, this information is recorded in the Jobseeker's Agreement, which is signed jointly by the adviser and the customer, and is reviewed at regular intervals.

As part of the above process, customers are given information, advice and guidance about the range of Jobcentre Plus services, including our telephony based job-matching service (Jobseeker Direct) and our Internet job bank, and how to make best use of these and other vacancy sources. We also encourage customers who have obvious basic skills or language needs to address this through the Employment Skills Programme provided by the Learning and Skills Council or by making use of locally available provision.

Following the initial interview, people are usually required to attend their nearest Jobcentre Plus office on a fortnightly basis to discuss what the customer has been doing to find work; make sure they remain entitled to Jobseeker's Allowance by being available for and actively seeking work; and to see what help, if any, is required.

About two thirds of all those claiming Jobseeker's Allowance leave benefit during the first 13 weeks of a claim and around four fifths within the first six months, but for those who do not, additional help is provided through another, more in-depth, interview with a personal adviser. The purpose of this interview is to review the Jobseeker's Agreement, making sure that it is still helpful. As part of this process the adviser will, where appropriate, discuss and agree ways in which the customer might broaden their jobsearch to increase the prospects of finding work. Following this interview, people are asked to attend the Jobcentre Plus office on a weekly (rather than fortnightly) basis, thereby increasing the support that is available.

Over and above the support outlined above, those people who are particularly disadvantaged in the labour market, e.g. those with a health problem or disability, a literacy or numeracy problem, a criminal record or a history of drink/drug misuse, can access additional help through early entry to the New Deal. Early access to New Deal is considered and agreed by advisers where it is clear that the customer has significant difficulties, making the prospect of finding work much less likely without additional help. The New Deal provides more intensive help through the support of a personal adviser and a range of opportunities to help overcome significant barriers to employment. New Deal also provides access to the Adviser Discretion Fund, which can be used to overcome more immediate barriers to employment, for example, clothing to attend interviews, or tools not provided by the employer. Similarly, advisers may, during the first six months, also grant early access to Programme Centre provision, which can provide additional help for those people who need to improve motivation and confidence, and their basic jobsearch skills.

But we have recognised that there is still more we can do. In 'Ready for work: full employment in our generation' we set out our plans to provide even more support to customers. A stepped programme of support will be available for all Jobseeker's Allowance (JSA) customers from day one. Harder-to-help people will be fast-tracked to more intensive support and all people will have an initial skill screening followed by a more in-depth skills health check at the six-month stage if they have not already found work.

I hope this information is helpful and assures you of our intent to provide people with the best possible service, aimed at helping them into work as soon as possible.

Jobseeker's Allowance: Disqualification

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many weeks sanctions were applied to those recipients of jobseeker's allowance who did not apply for a job opportunity on first offence, broken down by Jobcentre Plus or Careers Service in each local authority area in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement; [176851]

(2) how many recipients of jobseeker's allowance who have failed to apply for a job opportunity were sanctioned on the first offence, broken down by individual Jobcentre Plus or Careers Service in each local authority area in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement; [176852]

(3) how many recipients of jobseeker's allowance were found not to have applied for a job opportunity, broken down by individual Jobcentre Plus or Careers Service in each local authority area in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [176853]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves, dated 18 February 2008:

The Secretary of State has asked Lesley Strathie to reply to your questions about the number of people who, in each of the last 10 years, have had their benefits reduced as a consequence of not applying for, or taking a reasonable job opportunity. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to Ms Strathie as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus. I am replying in her absence as Acting Chief Executive.

Information on how many weeks sanctions were applied to recipients of Jobseeker's Allowance who failed to apply for a job opportunity on first offence is only available from October 2005, the other information supplied is available from April 2000. The available information is in the attached tables broken down by Jobcentre Plus District. This information will be placed in the Library.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many unemployed non-disabled persons had their jobseeker's allowance suspended for (a) two weeks and (b) more than two weeks in each of the last 10 years. [181002]

Benefit can be suspended indefinitely until the doubts are resolved. They should be counted as a suspension rather than a sanction.

Low Incomes: Council Tax

(2) how many households in relative poverty in each region paid full council tax in the latest period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement; [179442]

(3) pursuant to the answer of 8 January 2008, Official Report, column 436W, on low incomes: council tax, how many people constitute the (a) 2.7 million households in relative poverty before housing costs and (b) the 3 million households in relative poverty after housing costs, broken down by region; and if he will make a statement. [179443]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 16 January 2008]: The available information is in the following tables.

Notes:
1. The information shown is for Great Britain.
2. Three year averages are given for each of the regions as robust single year estimates can not be produced at this disaggregated level.
3. The totals shown for Great Britain are for 2005-06 only and are not three year averages.
4. The income measures used to derive the estimates shown employ the same methodology as the Department for Work and Pensions publication 'Households Below Average Income' series, which uses disposable household income, equivalised for household size and composition, as an income measure as a proxy for standard of living.
5. The figures are based on OECD equivalisation factors.
6. The preferred measure of low income is by using a threshold of 60 per cent. of the contemporary median income. This is an internationally recognised measure.
7. Figures have been presented on both a Before Housing Cost and After Housing Cost basis. For Before Housing Cost, housing costs (such as rent, water rates, mortgage interest payments, structural insurance payments and ground rent and service charges) are not deducted from income, while for After Housing Cost they are. This means that After Housing Cost incomes will generally be lower than Before Housing Cost.
8. Tables show numbers in millions rounded to the nearest 100,000.

Natural Gas: Safety

Tom Levitt: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many prosecutions there were of domestic landlords for breach of gas safety regulations in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [182670]

Mrs. McGuire: The information requested is in the following table:

| 2006-07 | 104 | 9 |

Note:
Offences prosecuted refer to an individual breach of health and safety legislation; a prosecution case may include more than one offence.

New Deal for Young People

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people have completed a New Deal for young people programme (a) in total, (b) twice, (c) three times, (d) four times, (e) five times and (f) more than five times. [183737]

Mrs. McGuire: New deal for young people (NDYP) is a mandatory programme for people aged 18-24 who have been claiming jobseeker's allowance (JSA) for six months. Although there are different stages to the programme, people are not necessarily expected to complete all elements as the aim is to get them into work as soon as possible. There is not, thus, a strict definition of 'completing' NDYP. Those who return to claim JSA again with 13 weeks of leaving NDYP return at the point at which they left the programme.

Information on the number of people who have started on the programme, and the number of times they have started is in the following table. Data for those starting more than once will include those who have completed all the elements of NDYP, as well as those who have left NDYP at an earlier stage and returned to the programme.

New deal for young people

| Number of people who have started | Number | Proportion (percentage) |
|---|---|---|
| In total | 1,237,560 | 100 |
| Once only | 887,030 | 71.7 |
| Twice only | 245,320 | 19.8 |
| Three times only | 78,840 | 6.37 |
| Four times only | 21,720 | 1.76 |
| Five times only | 4,120 | 0.33 |
| More than five times | 530 | 0.04 |

New Deal Schemes

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people have completed a New Deal for the over 55s programme (a) in total, (b) twice, (c) three times, (d) four times, (e) five times and (f) more than five times. [183736]

Mrs. McGuire: New deal 50 plus is a voluntary programme for people who have been claiming an eligible benefit for six months. People can leave the programme at any point and there is thus no definition of 'completing' the programme.

The available information on the number of people who have started on the programme, and the number of times they have started is in the following table.

New deal 50 plus

| Number of people who have started | Number | Proportion (percentage) |
|---|---|---|
| In total | 90,220 | 100 |
| Twice only | 2,190 | 2.42 |
| Three times only | 70 | 0.07 |
| Four times only | — | — |
| Five times only | — | — |
| More than five times | — | — |

Notes:
1. Data on starts to new deal 50 plus are only available from January 2004.
2. Latest data are to August 2007.
3. '—' indicates a nil or negligible figure.

New Deal Schemes: Essex

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many of the people who participated in a new deal scheme in 2007 were unemployed in (a) Romford, (b) Essex and (c) Greater London at the most recent date for which figures are available. [181689]

Mr. Timms: Of those who participated on a new deal programme between January and May 2007, the numbers classified as unemployed on the claimant count on 31 May 2007 were: 160 in Romford; 3,090 in Essex, and 26,610 in Greater London, a considerable proportion of whom were still on the new deal.

Notes:

1. Latest available data for new deal participants is to May 2007.

2. Data includes all those on any of the six new deal programmes who were classified on the claimant unemployment count as unemployed as a result of their claim for jobseeker's allowance (JSA) and/or national insurance credits (NICs).

3. Data is for those who had participated on new deal during the period January to May 2007 who were recorded as unemployed on 31 May 2007.

4. The county of Essex comprises the local authorities of: Harlow; Epping Forest; Brentwood; Basildon; Castle Point; Rochford; Maldon; Chelmsford; Uttlesford; Braintree; Colchester; Tendring; Thurrock, and Southend-on-Sea.

5. Data for Greater London is for the London Jobcentre Plus district.

6. Data excludes those on a mandatory new deal for young people or new deal 25 plus option who were in receipt of a new deal allowance on the 31 May 2007

7. Figures are rounded to the nearest 10.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 18 February 2008:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your question regarding estimates of the number and proportion of pensioners who will be living (a) alone and (b) with a partner in each year until 2050. (185093)

The following table shows the projected population of state pensionable age in England and Wales who are (i) single, widowed, divorced or separated, but not cohabiting and (ii) married or cohabiting. The figures come from the latest (2003-based) official marital status projections published in March 2005. These are only available for England and Wales and up to the year 2031. ONS plan to publish new marital status projections later in 2008. These will be consistent with the latest (2006-based) national projections by age and sex published in October 2007.

The projections in the tables allow for the raising of state pension age for women from age 60 to age 65 over the period 2010 to 2020 and also the subsequent increase in state pension age to 66 for both men and women during 2024-26.

Pensioners: Hendon

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many pensioners in (a) Hendon and (b) the UK received (i) pension credit and (ii) pension guarantee credit in the latest period for which figures are available; and in each case, what the average amount received each week was. [177497]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: In Hendon 4,360 households receive pension credit with an average award of £73.63, of which 2,410 households receive guarantee credit only with an average award of £102.65 and 1,450 households receive both guarantee credit and savings credit with an average award of £46.67, as at August 2007.

In Great Britain 2,734,530 households receive pension credit with an average award of £50.29, of which 811,260 households receive guarantee credit only with an average award of £83.69 and 1,326,130 households receive both guarantee credit and savings credit with an average award of £46.50, as at August 2007.

In Northern Ireland Pension Credit administration is a matter for the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland.

Notes:

1. The figures provided are early estimates. The preferred data source for figures supplied by DWP is the Work and Pensions Longitudinal Study (WPLS). However, the figures provided are the latest available figures, which are taken from the GMS scan at 31 August 2007. These are adjusted using the historical relationship between WPLS and GMS data to give an estimate of the final WPLS figure.

2. Caseloads are rounded to the nearest 10.

3. Households are those people who claim pension credit either for themselves only or on behalf of a household.

4. Parliamentary constituencies are assigned by matching postcodes against the relevant postcode directory.

Pensions Service and the Disability and Carers Directorate

Tom Levitt: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps he has taken to ensure that (a) families of disabled children and (b) disabled people of working age realise benefits from the proposed merger of the Pensions Service and the Disability and Carers Directorate of his Department. [184135]

Mrs. McGuire: Matters in respect of the Disability and Carers Service fall within the responsibility of the Acting Chief Executive of the Agency, Mrs. Vivien Hopkins. She will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Vivien Hopkins, dated 18 February 2008:

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what steps he has taken to ensure that (a) families of disabled children and (b) disabled people of working age realise benefits from the proposed merger of the Pension Service and the Disability and Carers Service of his Department.

The Minister for Disabled People, Anne McGuire MP, promised you a substantive reply from the Acting Chief Executive of the Disability and Carers Service.

The creation of the new Agency will not of itself change the way in which DWP delivers services to its working age customers and children. Both the Disability and Carers Service and The Pension Service currently hold joint Board meetings with Jobcentre Plus and will continue this in the future, while pursuing even closer working to ensure a joined-up service to working age customers. The Disability and Carers Service has set in train work to look at improving services for disabled children and their families, and this will continue to be a priority.

I hope this reply is helpful.

Pensions: Anniversaries

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has to mark the centenary of the introduction of the old age pension in the UK. [185448]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The introduction of the first state pension as an alternative to the Poor Law is something to be celebrated.

We plan to mark the centenary of the introduction of the state pension as a key element of the celebrations around the second UK Older People's Day in October 2008.

Reinstatement of Deficiency Notices Programme

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will place in the Library a specimen copy of the letter sent by his Department in 2004-05 to women over pension age as part of the Reinstatement of Deficiency Notices Programme. [170570]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 3 December 2007]: The information has been placed in the Library.

Shaw Trust

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the value was of the Provider Led Pathways to Work contract awarded to the Shaw Trust in Hampshire. [182930]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 28 January 2008]: The Shaw Trust were awarded a phase 2 Provider Led Pathways to Work contract for the Hampshire and Isle of Wright Jobcentre Plus district, which is worth a total indicative contract value of £18,260,000.

The Provider Led Pathways to Work contracts were let with the expectation of a certain contract value. However, actual contract expenditure may be greater or less than that expected value, dependent on customer volumes and the provider performance levels achieved.

Social Fund

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when the Secretary of State will respond to the social fund review; and if he will make a statement. [183139]

Mr. Plaskitt: The discretionary social fund plays an important role in helping vulnerable people meet the costs of large items of expenditure; in 2006-07 over 2.6 million awards were made.

Operational aspects of the scheme are kept under review to meet our aims of improving delivery and effectiveness. We are also considering longer term reform of the budgeting loans scheme in the context of the Government's wider financial inclusion strategy.

The Government's financial inclusion action plan for 2008 to 2011 announced plans to conduct a feasibility study to look into whether the private and third sectors could be brought into partnership with the Government in delivering a reformed social fund budgeting loans scheme.

Social Security Benefits

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what pilots his Department and Jobcentre Plus have carried out to evaluate the effectiveness of online access to better off calculations; [181259]

(2) when better off calculations will be made available online; [181260]

(3) what training Jobcentre Plus staff will be given of the use of the online better off calculations software. [181261]

Mrs. McGuire: The "My DWP" project is delivering the first stage of a secure customer account on the internet, it will be accessible via the Directgov website. The initial release in spring 2008 will focus on customer inquiries and establishing the IT platform to enable further releases to follow as the DWP Change programme progresses. The next release planned for June will include online access to better off calculations.

To aid the design of the better off calculator, a cross section of citizens, ranging from jobseekers to pensioners were involved in the early customer engagement workshops during July 2007. Their feedback has been invaluable in informing the overall design. We continue our dialogue with our customers and front line staff to ensure that the new service will meet their needs.

The second release of the "My DWP" project, scheduled for June, will introduce the benefit adviser service. The website will then provide a self service channel for citizens to find the benefits they may be entitled to; help themselves find work and plan for retirement. Better off calculations will form part of this suite of services.

We are currently working with departmental agencies to determine the implementation approach for the release of the better off calculator, including training needs. Because of this we are not yet in a position to state definitively what training will be given to Jobcentre Plus staff. However, the expectation is that the training will be low key.

Social Security Benefits: Arrears

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what steps are being taken by his Department to pay benefit claimants benefits not paid in 2006-07 due to (a) official and (b) customer error; [178599]

(2) what estimate he has made of the time it will take to pay benefit claimants the benefits underpaid in 2006-07 due to (a) official and (b) customer error; [178600]

(3) what proportion of benefit claimants who were underpaid benefits in 2006-07 due to (a) official and (b) customer error have now received their full benefit entitlement for that year. [178601]

Mr. Plaskitt: Reducing underpayments or overpayments of benefit is a priority for the Department. To address this, we are implementing our comprehensive and ambitious error reduction strategy, published on 24 January 2007. Copies of our error strategy—Getting Welfare Right: Tackling Error in the benefits system—are available in the Library and can also be viewed online at:

www.dwp.gov.uk/publications/dwp/2007/error_strategy.asp

In all cases where underpayments are identified, monies due are paid as soon as possible.

It is not possible to say what proportion of the total number of claimants who were underpaid in 2006-07 have had their benefits corrected.

Winter Fuel Payments

Mr. Kemp: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people received a winter fuel payment in (a) Houghton and Washington, East constituency and (b) the City of Sunderland in the most recent period for which figures are available. [184900]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: In winter 2006-07 we made 16,670 winter fuel payments to people in the Houghton and Washington, East constituency, and 54,090 winter fuel payments to people in the Sunderland local authority. We expect the numbers to be similar for this winter.

Notes:

1. Figures rounded to the nearest 10.

2. Parliamentary constituencies and local authorities are assigned by matching postcodes against the relevant ONS postcode directory.

Illegal Immigrants: Security Guards

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many of the illegal workers employed in the security industry and the subject of the Home Secretary's oral statement of 13 November 2007, Official Report, columns 531-3, on security industry authority, were issued with (a) temporary national insurance numbers or (b) national insurance numbers after 31 July 2006. [181143]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information on national insurance numbers is not currently available.

The Security Industry Authority (SIA) is currently conducting an exercise to determine the right to work status of SIA licence holders. If, following completion of the legal appeals process, an SIA licence is revoked because the holder has failed to demonstrate the right to work in the UK, the SIA will provide DWP with the information they require. This will enable a check to be made upon whether the individuals concerned were issued with a valid national insurance number by DWP and under what circumstances.

The Department for Work and Pensions does not issue temporary national insurance numbers.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Subsidies

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many individuals received £200,000 or more from the single farm payments scheme in each year for which figures are available; and how much was paid to those recipients in each such year. [185263]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 7 February 2008]: The Single Payment Scheme (SPS) 2005 and 2006 payments to individuals who received £200,000 or more are reflected in the following table:

| | Individuals | Total amount (£) |
|---|---|---|
| SPS 2005 | 320 | 108,845,461 |
| SPS 2006 | 305 | 101,913,033 |

SPS 2007 payments are still being made and RPA cannot provide equivalent figures at this stage.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many farmers in Ribble Valley constituency have not been paid their entitlement under the Single Payment Scheme; for what reasons; and if he will make a statement. [186281]

Jonathan Shaw: Detailed analysis of the number of claimants that have not been paid their entitlements under the single payment scheme in Ribble Valley constituency is not available. Once the remaining scheme payments have been completed, a decision will be taken on the level of detail that will be published.

Aluminium: Recycling

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his assessment is of the contribution made by UK recycling of aluminium to (a) waste reduction and (b) reduction of greenhouse gas emissions; and if he will make a statement. [185578]

Joan Ruddock: The recycling of all metals yields significant greenhouse gas benefits since large amounts of energy are needed to extract and process the raw material. Each tonne of aluminium recycled saves 11 tonnes of $CO_2$. For 2008, we are expecting the recycling of aluminium packaging alone to save over 500,000 tonnes of $CO_2$ equivalent.

Metals already achieve a high rate of recycling and the greatest further potential lies with non-ferrous metals, and particularly aluminium. High recycling of aluminium already occurs in some industries and for some products, but there are areas where more can be achieved. Small increases in recycling tonnages would yield extensive greenhouse gas benefits. This is why the Government have identified aluminium as one of seven priority materials for action in the Waste Strategy 2007.

Animals: Nature Conservation

Martin Salter: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what species he is considering removing from Schedule 4 of the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981; and what mechanisms he plans to put in place to monitor the effects of removal from the Schedule on wild populations of such species. [185858]

Joan Ruddock: The list of species to be removed from schedule 4 to the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981 has not been finalised and will be subject to further discussions with the Devolved Administrations. I hope the revised schedule will take effect from 1 October 2008.

The Joint Nature Conservation Committee (JNCC) and the Statutory Nature Conservation Agencies support a range of bird surveillance and monitoring schemes in the United Kingdom, usually in partnership with specialist non-Government organisations. Surveillance schemes may include annual or periodic assessment of population size and distribution and allow trends in both to be derived; they are tailored to provide comprehensive coverage of common and rare species in both breeding and non-breeding seasons.

The National Wildlife Crime Unit will continue to monitor incidents of illegal persecution, including theft of birds from the wild.

Some species that may be removed from schedule 4 are also subject to sales controls under the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species (CITES) and the Animal Health Agency and the JNCC would be able to monitor levels of trade for these species.

For non-CITES species, Natural England will consider whether stringent sales controls are required. Natural England would consider whether individual licences would be appropriate for species based on threats to their conservation status.

My Department will work with the Devolved Administrations, the JNCC and the Animal Health Agency to investigate the potential of DNA testing for a sample of birds currently registered to check they are of legitimate stock and provide baseline data on any future parenting claims made for the species.

Martin Salter: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what account is taken of the conservation status of species at (a) UK, (b) England, (c) Scotland, (d) Wales, (e) Northern Ireland and (f) regional level in deciding whether to retain species on Schedule 4 of the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981. [185859]

Joan Ruddock: The Joint Nature Conservation Committee (JNCC) considered the conservation status of species which formed a key part of the consultation on the "Review of registration under section 7 of the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981 in England, Scotland and Wales".

No decision has yet been taken on which species should remain on Schedule 4. The revised criterion for deciding which species should be listed on Schedule 4 to the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981 are:

1. Those species which occur in the wild state in the UK and whose wild population is so small that the taking of a few individuals would have a detrimental impact on the conservation status of the wild population in the UK.

2. Whether the listing on Schedule 4 of the species meeting the criterion above was a proportionate burden for the keepers of these particular species. This takes account of issues such as value of the species, their longevity and any demand for keeping.

Biofuels

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the effects of biofuel production on (a) rainforest deforestation, (b) UK food prices and (c) UK greenhouse gas emissions. [184891]

Mr. Woolas: I refer the hon. Member to the answer my hon. Friend the Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Jim Fitzpatrick) gave in response to questions (a) and (b) from the hon. Member for Chipping Barnet (Mrs. Villiers) on 28 November 2007, Official Report, column 447W.

The Renewable Transport Fuel Obligation will require fuel suppliers to ensure that a specified percentage of their fuel sales are from a renewable source from April this year. The Department for Transport has estimated that biofuels used to meet the obligation will result in net lifecycle savings of around 2.6 to 3 million tonnes of carbon dioxide per annum in 2010, when the obligation reaches 5 per cent.

Birds: Conservation

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the (a) criteria and (b) evidential basis are for decisions on species to be removed from Schedule 4 of the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981. [184715]

Joan Ruddock: The criteria for deciding which species should be listed on schedule 4 to the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981 are:

1. Those species which occur in the wild state in the UK and whose wild population is so small that the taking of a few individuals would have a detrimental impact on the conservation status of the wild population in the UK.

2. Whether the listing on schedule 4 of the species meeting the aforementioned criterion was a proportionate burden for the keepers of these particular species. This takes account of issues such as value of the species, their longevity and any demand for keeping.

My Department has received a wide range of views and evidence on the species to be listed on schedule 4. Conservation evidence was primarily provided by the Joint Nature Conservation Committee, while evidence of the impact on keepers has been provided by the Animal Health Agency, keepers' organisations and other trade bodies.

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with colleagues in the devolved administrations on Schedule 4 of the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981; what contingency plans he has made for circumstances in which no agreement is reached; and how much funding he has allocated for action in such circumstances. [184716]

Joan Ruddock: The species to be listed on schedule 4 to the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981 for Scotland and Wales is a matter for the Scottish and Welsh administrations respectively. I have written to my colleagues in the devolved Administrations on a number of occasions to update them on developments in relation to schedule 4 in England.

I am awaiting their responses to my most recent letters advising them that I have decided to retain the bird registration scheme in England.

British Waterways Board: Finance

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will conduct a further review of the funding and financing of British Waterways. [186489]

Jonathan Shaw: Following the announcement of the Government's comprehensive spending review, DEFRA is now going through a business planning process, during which the budget for British Waterways (BW) will be determined for the next three years. As part of this process, we are working with BW to understand the implications of different levels of spending. While we do not anticipate a further review of BW funding at present, BW, with our support, is currently undertaking a review of its status as a public corporation to identify whether or not a different structure might be more beneficial, for example through enabling greater investment in the waterways.

Carbon Emissions: Finance

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which organisations received funding from his Department to reduce carbon dioxide emissions in each of the last five years; how much each received; and what volume of emissions each saved in each year. [182571]

Mr. Woolas: The information requested can be found in the departmental report 2007, which is available on the DEFRA website.

Climate Change

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how he plans, under clauses 48 and 49 of the Climate Change Bill, to involve the devolved administrations in the preparation of reports on the impact of climate change and programmes for adaptation to climate change. [186447]

Mr. Woolas: We are currently in discussion with the devolved Administrations about how we will work together on these, and other clauses of the Bill. The Bill is still under discussion and subject to change.

Departmental Advertising

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what percentage of his Department's expenditure was on advertising in each year since establishment. [182988]

Jonathan Shaw: The core departmental expenditure on advertising for the past four available financial years is set out in the following table.

| Financial year | Departmental expenditure (£000) | Advertising spend (£000) | Percentage |
|---|---|---|---|
| 2003-04 | 2,790,609 | 70 | 0.002 |
| 2004-05 | 3,034,175 | 739 | 0.02 |
| 2005-06 | 3,433,100 | 890 | 0.03 |
| 2006-07 | 3,913,036 | 569 | 0.015 |

This includes communications on a wide range of matters, much of it necessary or beneficial to the public and the wide range of industries in which DEFRA has an interest, together with local government, voluntary organisations and other bodies.

Individual records of spend for DEFRA's non-departmental public bodies, agencies and financially sponsored organisations are not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental E-mail

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will take steps to reduce the number of hard copies of e-mails printed by officials in his Department. [179475]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA is continually looking at ways to improve its operational performance to meet its commitments as part of the Sustainable Operations on the Government Estate (SOGE) targets. The SOGE targets include a requirement for Departments to reduce their waste arisings by 5 per cent. by 2010 and by 25 per cent. by 2020—relative to 2004-05 levels; and to increase their recycling figures to 40 per cent. of their waste arisings by 2010 and to 75 per cent. of their waste by 2020.

DEFRA makes full use of technology to enable staff to avoid using paper unnecessarily. The weekly electronic office notices have provided guidance for staff in the following areas:

reduce paper waste by using print preview, printing only when necessary and printing double sided if possible;

e-mail whenever possible and include short messages in the e-mail rather than in a separate document; and warn recipients if e-mail attachments are very long, so that they can select and print only the parts that are relevant to them.

The Department continues to move towards the use of accredited shared drives and electronic filing systems, greatly reducing the need for hard copy documents. As part of the moves towards a 'smart working' environment, the principles of operating a clear desk policy further encourage staff to reduce any unnecessary printing.

Departmental Freedom of Information

Mr. Denis Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many requests were made to his Department under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 in each year since 2005; and how many requests were refused. [183753]

Jonathan Shaw: The Government have published two annual reports that contain statistical information about how many requests have been received by monitored bodies (including central Government Departments) and how many have been refused.

These reports can be found at the following address:

http://www.dca.gov.uk/foi/reference/statisticsAndReports.htm

Data is currently being collected across monitored bodies in order to produce the 2007 annual report and Q4 monitoring report, however, Q1-Q3 monitoring reports of 2007 can be found at the following address:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/freedomofinformationquarterly.htm

Departmental Recycling

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his Department's policy is on recycling. [174402]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA had a recycling rate of 47 per cent. in 2005-06, so have met the 2010 target. There has been continuing work on improving these rates since then with a focus on improving recycling facilities across the whole of the DEFRA network estate (including agencies). These measures have ensured that we will have increased our rate in the 2006-07 SDIG report due for publication by the SDC in March 2008.

However, DEFRA is not complacent about this achievement and will now be exploring ways to continue to improve the rate. For example, over the next couple of months, we will be implementing a scheme in the core-DEFRA buildings in London to remove general waste bins from desks, requiring people to sort their waste into central recycling points around the buildings.

Environment Agency: Manpower

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many staff were employed by the Environment Agency in each of the last five years; and how many of these were occupied with flood protection, flood prevention and flood defence in each year. [184029]

Mr. Woolas: The following table shows the total number of Environment Agency staff and the number of flood risk management within the Environment Agency in each of the last five years.

| | Total number of Environment Agency staff | Number of Environment Agency flood risk management staff |
|---|---|---|
| 2002-03 | 10,745 | 4,129 |
| 2003-04 | 11,296 | 4,341 |
| 2004-05 | 11,800 | 4,534 |

| | Total number of Environment Agency staff | Number of Environment Agency flood risk management staff |
|---|---|---|
| 2005-06 | 12,000 | 4,596 |
| 2006-07 | 12,398 | 4,748 |

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many staff are employed by the Environment Agency; and how many are expected to be employed in each of the next three years. [186380]

Mr. Woolas: At the end of January 2008, the Environment Agency employed 11,772 full-time equivalent (FTE) staff.

The Environment Agency's corporate plan is due to be approved by the board in March 2008 and this will indicate staffing levels for the next three years.

Fisheries: Nature Conservation

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects to agree a contract to provide aerial surveillance for fisheries protection over the next five years; and if he will make a statement. [186009]

Jonathan Shaw: The present contract for aerial surveillance will cease in March 2009. The future requirements and arrangements for aerial surveillance are currently being considered by the Marine and Fisheries Agency.

Fishing Industry: Quotas

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what (a) percentage and (b) number of 10 metre and under vessels were actively fishing against quota in 2007; and if he will make a statement. [186010]

Jonathan Shaw: The latest information available on activity by UK vessels during 2007 indicates that 3,353 vessels of 10 metre and under length reported landings of fish during 2007. Of these, 1,968 vessels reported landings of stocks subject to quota, which is 38 per cent. of the total number of these vessels on the UK fishing vessel register, as at 1 January 2008.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the amount of fish discarded by 10 metre and under vessels because of being over-quota in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [186011]

Jonathan Shaw: Estimates of the level of fish discards are made by scientists involved in the assessment of the state of fish stocks. However, these are made at the level of the overall fish stock rather than for individual segments of the fleet. In addition, such estimates are not made for the full range of fish stocks caught by the 10 metre and under fleet. As such, the information requested is not available.

Fishing Industry: Waste Disposal

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) whether the European Commission's Scientific, Technical and Economic Committee on Fisheries has assessed any UK fishery in relation to its viability for a discard ban; and if he will make a statement; [186077]

(2) what discussions he has had with representatives of the fishing industry about the implications of the proposals outlined in the Commission Communication COM (2007) 136; and if he will make a statement; [186078]

(3) what recent discussions he has had with (a) the European Commission and (b) other EU member states on the proposals in Commission Communication COM (2007) 136; and if he will make a statement; [186079]

(4) when he expects the European Commission to publish the timetable for introducing a discard ban; and if he will make a statement. [186083]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA conducted a public consultation on the Commission's discards proposals in 2007, and shared our views, and the salient points from the consultation with the Commission at various community fora. DEFRA officials also met with representatives of the industry. The views of a number of UK organisations are reflected in the subsequent North Sea Regional Advisory Council's (RAC) response. This is available on the North sea RAC website at:

http://www.nsrac.org/

With regard to discussions I have had with the European Commission and EU member states on the Commission Communication Com (2007) 136, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 12 December 2007, Official Report, columns 706-07W. The Council's conclusions were agreed and circulated in May 2007 (9891/07 PECHE 163).

DEFRA is not aware that the European Commission's Scientific, Technical and Economic Committee on Fisheries (STECF) has assessed any UK fishery in relation to its viability for a discard ban. The issue of discards is a known priority for the European Commission, and proposals that will make a contribution to addressing the problem are expected to be made in 2008. However, we are not aware that the Commission will make a single proposal for an EU-wide ban on discards.

Instead, the Commission is likely to propose measures tailored to regional and biological circumstances, sometimes as part of broader initiatives. The UK Government expect draft provisions regarding discards to be included in a range of forthcoming proposals, including cod recovery and technical conservation.

While awaiting the Commission's proposals, DEFRA continues to engage with the industry in progressing work on a number of initiatives aimed at reducing discards. These include: the Irish Sea Data Enhancement Project; Gear Selectivity Trials conducted by the Centre for Environment, Fisheries and Aquaculture Science (Cefas) scientists; and, as part of the 2008 Total Allowable Catches (TACs) and quota regime, the introduction of real time closures and other technical measures to help reduce discards of cod and whiting.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what level of fish discards of each species there was as a result of the North Sea Nephrops Discard Pilot Project; and if he will make a statement. [186080]

Jonathan Shaw: The aim of the North Sea Nephrops Pilot Discard Reduction Project was to develop modifications to the fishing gears used which might allow fishermen to continue to catch their target fish while simultaneously reducing discard levels. Fishermen played an active role in constructing and testing a variety of modified trawls. Discards in this fishery are primarily juvenile cod, haddock and whiting, which are caught alongside the Nephrops.

A series of five peer-reviewed scientific papers detailing this work have since been published, and can be found on the Centre for Environment, Fisheries and Aquaculture Science (CEFAS) website at:

http://www.cefas.co.uk/publications.aspx

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what level of fish discards of each species there was as a result of the Irish Sea Discard Pilot Project; and if he will make a statement; [186081]

(2) how much by catch of each species was discarded for being (a) over quota, (b) juvenile and (c) of low market value in the latest period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [186082]

Jonathan Shaw: Although quantities of fish discarded are recorded by scientific observers on randomly selected fishing vessels operating from UK ports, fishermen are not required to declare the reasons for discarding and hence, the figures and information requested are not available.

The initial phase of the Irish Sea Data Enhancement Pilot has recently been completed and the European Commission's Scientific, Economic and Technical Committee for Fisheries (STECF) has approved the methodology used in the pilot. To ensure that the data collected from the pilot are consistent with existing national programmes, data are being cross-checked against discard observer data collected from vessels in the same fishery. This validation process is essential to ensure that the estimates of discards that result from the project are both realistic and representative. An interim report from the project, which will include a detailed analysis of discarding in the Irish sea, is scheduled for submission to STECF in June.

Flood Control

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what additional flood defences have started to be constructed since the floods in summer 2007; [185616]

(2) how much has been spent on new flood defences since the floods in the summer of 2007. [185617]

Mr. Woolas: Following the summer 2007 floods the Environment Agency continued to carry out feasibility studies to consider the viability of proposed new flood defence schemes, which look to reduce flood risk where it is cost-effective, practical and environmentally appropriate. The schemes shown in the table are Environment Agency approved Fluvial and Tidal Projects, with estimated expenditure over £1 million in 2007-08.

| EA region | Project | Estimate of expenditure in 2007-08 (£ million) |
|---|---|---|
| Anglian | Cut Off Channel Bridges | 1.6 |
| Anglian | Broadland PPP Contract | 10.2 |
| Midlands | West Bridgford | 2.8 |
| Midlands | Keadby Pumping Station | 1.0 |
| Midlands | Hereford (Belmont) | 4.0 |
| Midlands | River Derwent (Derby) | 1.0 |
| Midlands | Gainsborough | 4.0 |
| North East | Cockshaw Burn (Hexham) | 2.4 |
| North East | Selby Tidal Defences | 3.4 |
| North West | Lower Lancaster Phase 2 | 1.5 |
| North West | River Eden/Petteril Flood Defences, Carlisle | 3.8 |
| North West | Carlisle City and Caldew | 1.2 |
| North West | Altmouth Pumping Station | 2.0 |
| Southern | Lymington River Flood Alleviation Scheme | 3.5 |
| South West | St. Ives | 5.3 |
| South West | Boscastle—Valency Phase 3 | 4.8 |
| Thames | Thames Barrier, programmed replacements | 1.7 |
| Thames | Dartford Creek Frontage | 1.5 |
| Thames | Isle of Dogs Embayment | 2.0 |
| Thames | Queenhithe Wharf Frontage | 1.2 |
| Total | | 58.9 |

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many flood defences were built in 2005-06; and if he will break down the budget for flood defence funding in 2005-06 by main budget heading. [186379]

Mr. Woolas: The Environment Agency's capital programme delivered 65 completed flood risk management projects to reduce flood risk in 2005-06.

This was in addition to continued investment across a wide range of flood risk management activities such as flood warning, emergency response and planning, development control and maintaining flood defence assets.

The following figures reflect Environment Agency spend on flood risk management in 2005-06, funded by DEFRA. They exclude spend funded from other sources (eg levies on local authorities, beneficiary contributions, and charges).

| | £ million |
|---|---|
| Capital | 202 |
| Maintenance | 163 |
| Other FRM spend | 153 |

Flood Control: Finance

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much funding in addition to that delivered through the local government settlement his Department will make available to Gloucestershire County Council to reduce the risk of flooding in Gloucestershire in 2008-09. [178736]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 30 January 2008]: Total central and local government spend on management of flood and coastal erosion risk will be approximately £600 million this year, rising incrementally to £800 million in 2010-11. This largely consists of grant in aid to the Environment Agency to manage flood risk. The Environment Agency also funds capital improvement projects, undertaken by local authorities (usually district and unitary authorities) and internal drainage boards. County councils rarely undertake capital improvement projects to reduce flood risk but Gloucestershire is free to apply to the Environment Agency subject to eligibility criteria.

The Environment Agency is the principal operating authority with responsibility for flood risk management and provisionally estimates spend of £3 million in Gloucestershire in 2008-09, including £750,000 each on river maintenance and improving flood forecasting and warning, projects looking at possible future improvements for Tewkesbury, Gloucester, Prestbury, Stroud and Lydney and development of long-term, sustainable options for managing flood risk from the fluvial Severn.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much funding his Department provided to (a) Gloucestershire county council, (b) Tewkesbury borough council, (c) Cheltenham borough council, (d) the Environment Agency and (e) other agencies for flood (i) recovery and (ii) prevention in the last 12 months; what restrictions there are upon the ways in which such funds can be spent; what plans he has for further similar expenditure over the next 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [183647]

Mr. Woolas: DEFRA has not provided funding specifically for flood recovery but substantial funding has been provided by other Government Departments, co-ordinated by the Department for Communities and Local Government.

DEFRA has overall policy responsibility for flood risk management and grant aids, the Environment Agency's flood risk activities and capital improvement projects (undertaken by local authorities) and, in areas of special drainage need, internal drainage boards. This funding must be spent in accordance with Government policy to achieve a set of agreed outcome measures for the programme.

We have not provided capital grants to Gloucestershire county council, Tewkesbury borough council or Cheltenham borough council during 2007-08. We plan rather to give the Environment Agency approximately £439 million in 2007-08.

The statement by my right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, on 4 February, Official Report, column 49WS, sets out spending plans for management of flood and coastal erosion risk over the next three years. The Environment Agency will manage this money, including capital grant to local authorities and internal drainage boards, to deliver the targets we have set for them over the comprehensive spending review period.

Fly Tipping: West Midlands

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps the Government have taken to reduce fly tipping in the West Midlands since 1997. [177320]

Joan Ruddock: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave my hon. Friend the Member for Houghton and Washington, East (Mr. Kemp) on 7 January 2008, Official Report, column 66W.

Forestry Commission

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will make it his policy that the Forestry Commission's success strategy should (a) encourage opportunities for recreation and leisure and (b) increase forestation on Commission land. [186483]

Joan Ruddock: The Forestry Commission is responsible for the delivery of the Strategy for England's Trees Woods and Forests that was published last year. With Natural England it is preparing a Delivery Plan for the Strategy which is expected to be published in the autumn.

The Forestry Commission is the largest single provider of outdoor recreation opportunities in England. The freehold estate had been dedicated for public access on foot in perpetuity through the provisions in the Countryside and Rights of Way Act. The Commission is making substantial investments in improving its recreational facilities for all sections of society. Examples include Haldon Forest Park in Devon, Bedgbury in Kent, Grizedale and Whinlatter in the Lake District and Kielder in Northumberland. The commission has also been contributing to urban regeneration through the provision of green spaces, including Newlands in the North West of England, Jeskyns in North Kent and Ingrebourne Hill in Essex.

The Public Forest Estate managed by the Forestry Commission extends to over 250,000 hectares which is independently certified as sustainably managed. It is expected to deliver relevant priorities in the Strategy for England's Trees Woods and Forests and to contribute to other government policies.

Greenhouse Gas Emissions

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the UK's net emissions of (a) hydrofluorocarbons, (b) perfluorocarbons and (c) sulfurhexafluoride in each of the last 10 years; for what reasons such emissions were not included in the UK climate change sustainable development indicator: 2006 greenhouse gas emissions final figures; and if he will make a statement. [185393]

Mr. Woolas: Estimates of the UK's emissions of hydrofluorocarbons, perfluorocarbons and sulfurhexafluoride from 1990 to 2006 can be found on the e-digest statistics section of DEFRA's website.

These estimates were published as National Statistics on 31 January 2008, and form part of the UK Climate Change Sustainable Development indicator. Full details can be found in the statistical release on the DEFRA website. The figures in question can be found in annex A.

DEFRA does not publish sectoral breakdowns of emissions for these three gases.

Home Energy Efficiency Scheme

Mr. Pope: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the total Government grant to the Warm Front scheme was over the last three years. [186375]

Mr. Woolas: Total Government spend on Warm Front over the last three years is detailed as follows.

| 1 April to 31 March each year | Measures spend (WF) (£ million) |
|---|---|
| 2005-06 | 192 |
| 2006-07 | 320 |
| 2007-08 | 352 |
| Total | 864 |

Home Energy Efficiency Scheme: Hyndburn

Mr. Pope: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many Warm Front grants were approved in Hyndburn constituency in each of the last three years. [186196]

Mr. Woolas: The number of Warm Front grants approved in the Hyndburn constituency in each of the last three years is detailed as follows.

| 1 January to 31 December each year | Assisted households |
|---|---|
| 2005 | 705 |
| 2006 | 1,125 |
| 2007 | 1,164 |
| Total | 2,994 |

Mr. Pope: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the average cost was of each Warm Front grant approved in Hyndburn constituency in the last three years. [186197]

Mr. Woolas: The average cost of each Warm Front grant approved in Hyndburn constituency in the last three years is detailed in the table.

| 1 January to 31 December each year | Average grant (£) |
|---|---|
| 2005-05 | 1,237.76 |
| 2006-06 | 1,357.95 |
| 2007-07 | 1,741.98 |
| Total | 1,478.95 |

Housing: Energy

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department takes to monitor residential energy efficiency. [185967]

Mr. Woolas: DEFRA has a robust system in place for monitoring residential energy efficiency. Through rigorous evaluation of our household energy efficiency programmes, including the Energy Efficiency Commitment and Building Regulations, we have a good understanding of the number of low carbon measures, such as cavity and loft insulation, high-efficiency boilers and appliances, installed in United Kingdom housing since 2002, and the remaining capacity.

Underpinning these delivery programmes, is a rolling programme of field research providing detailed understanding of the in-situ energy and carbon performance of buildings and measures. Building on this, we have set in place formal indicators for assessing United Kingdom household energy efficiency over time, through which we will report statutory energy efficiency targets for 2010. Going forward, other instruments, including Energy Performance Certificates and the Green Homes Service will provide further house specific energy efficiency information.

Inland Waterways: Cotswold Hills

Charlotte Atkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what assessment he has made of the effects of the cessation of funding of the Cotswold Canals restoration by British Waterways on the existing funding for the project; and if he will make a statement; [186061]

(2) what discussions he has had with British Waterways on their decision to cease funding for the Cotswold Canals restoration; [186065]

(3) what discussions British Waterways had with (a) the Secretary of State and (b) other funding partners before announcing the cessation of funding to the Cotswold Canals restoration. [186066]

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) when the decision of British Waterways to withdraw from the Cotswold Canals Partnership was first communicated to him; [186062]

(2) what impact assessments he has undertaken of the decision by British Waterways to withdraw from the Cotswolds Council Partnership. [186488]

Jonathan Shaw: On Monday 28 January, DEFRA officials advised me that British Waterways (BW) had informed them that the board had decided to withdraw from the Cotswold Canal Partnership. BW asked that we allow them time to inform their staff and the most affected stakeholders in advance of the Press Notice which was issued on Monday 4 February.

We have always made it clear that, whilst we welcomed the project, this was a matter for the BW board. I was aware that BW had many new pressures on their budget, particularly in relation to the Monmouthshire and Brecon Canal breach, and that they were concerned at their overall level of exposure. It is for the BW board to decide how best to manage risk, taking into account both the interests of all stakeholders and BW's public policy objectives.

Inland Waterways: Dredging

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many mains water courses for which (a) the Environment Agency and (b) internal drainage boards are responsible have been dredged since July 2007; and what length of water courses has been dredged. [185613]

Mr. Woolas: The information requested is not held centrally and could be supplied only at disproportionate cost.

International Whaling Commission

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what reports he has received of countries being lobbied for recruitment to the International Whaling Commission by the pro-whaling group of nations; and if he will make a statement. [186076]

Jonathan Shaw: Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) posts are aware of the need to watch for indications that countries may join the International Whaling Commission and adopt a pro-whaling stance. Posts in the relevant capitals are briefed and engage in discussion with their counterparts on whaling at every appropriate opportunity. Such countries are left in no doubt as to the importance that the UK attaches to whale conservation.

Livestock: Waste Disposal

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the estimated cost to the livestock industry of complying with regulations preventing the on-farm burial of fallen livestock has been in each of the last four years. [184861]

Jonathan Shaw: It is not possible to estimate the amount spent by the livestock industry. Although information is available about the amount spent on the National Fallen Stock Scheme, not all farmers are members of the scheme and many will have made their own arrangements to dispose of carcases in compliance with the rules. In addition, many farmers would have disposed of carcases as required by the EU animal by-products regulation even had it not been agreed, given the strict controls on carcase disposal under previous domestic legislation.

Local Government: Rural Areas

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with other Ministers on raising awareness of the infrastructure provided by rural communities councils; and if he will make a statement. [185242]

Jonathan Shaw: The Government recently recognised the importance of the rural community councils (RCCs) by announcing new funding worth over £10 million to the network over the next three years. We are keen to ensure that rural interests are taken fully into account in policy making and delivery across all Departments and at all levels of government. Where appropriate, DEFRA will continue to raise the potential contribution of the RCCs, as it has done together with the Department for Communities and Local Government in relation to local area agreements and the delivery of public service agreement 21, on building more cohesive, empowered and active communities.

Meat Products: Imports

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the proportion of imported meat that was processed in the UK and subsequently labelled as British in the last 12 months. [185979]

Jonathan Shaw: It would not be practical to collect such statistics. Under the Food Safety Act 1990, the Food Labelling Regulations (1996), and the Trades Descriptions Act 1968 any labelling that provides information on the origin of meat must not mislead consumers. Where meat has been processed, provided it is a substantial change, it is permissible to describe as its origin the country where that change took place. If the absence of information might mislead consumers, then guidance produced by the Food Standards Agency confirms that both the origin of the meat and the country where the processing takes place should be declared in order to facilitate informed consumer choice. More restrictive rules apply to beef and poultry meat that has not been processed.

At the end of January, the European Commission published its proposals, for a food information regulation which brings together a number of general food labelling directives and includes provisions governing the labelling of the origin of a product and its ingredients. Within this draft regulation there is a proposal for amending the rules on country of origin labelling. This proposal will be the subject of widespread consultation by the Food Standards Agency, which leads on food labelling issues.

Nature Conservation: Lyme Bay

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he is taking to protect the marine biodiversity of Lyme Bay. [186008]

Jonathan Shaw: We have recently consulted on proposals to protect the biodiversity of Lyme bay. The consultation sought the views of all interested parties on three proposed options to deliver protection for marine biodiversity in the bay. It also invited respondents to suggest further options to provide protection for the bay's marine biodiversity and raised a number of specific questions concerning related conservation and economic matters.

Consultation closed on 21 December 2007 and we are now urgently considering people's responses. Once this process has concluded, and a summary of consultation responses has been published, an announcement will be made concerning any further measures to protect marine biodiversity at Lyme bay.

Nitrates: Water

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the effects of the EU (a) Nitrates and (b) Water Framework Directives on water management. [184867]

Mr. Woolas: The Nitrates Directive aims to improve water quality by reducing pollution caused by nitrates from agricultural sources. It focuses upon improving agricultural land management practices, in particular the use of manure and fertiliser, through implementation of an action programme. The recent consultation on implementation of the Nitrates Directive in England, included an assessment of the effectiveness of the current and proposed action programme at reducing nitrate losses.

The Water Framework Directive (WFD) requires us to achieve good status in all water bodies by 2015, subject to a range of exceptions related to technical feasibility and disproportionate cost. The WFD accommodates essential uses of the water environment such as for flood defence, power generation and abstraction.

Achievement of the environmental objectives of the WFD is likely to require action by a range of operations that put pressure on the environmental quality of water including water and sewerage services and land management. The requirements of individual operators will depend on the Environment Agency's assessment, using WFD criteria, of the current condition of water bodies and the measures identified as necessary to achieve the relevant environmental objectives.

Draft river basin management plans, outlining the current status of the water environment in each river basin district and proposals for measures to achieve the environmental objectives, will be published for a six month consultation in December 2008.

DEFRA has carried out impact assessments of the costs and benefits of the WFD. Each river basin management plan will, in turn, be subject to an impact assessment, which will take account of specific measures in the way that the higher level assessments carried out to date have been unable to do.

Noise: Health Hazards

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 22 January 2008, Official Report, column 1940W, on noise: health hazards, whether the Noise Strategy for England will have regard to the results of the Salford University study into Research into Aerodynamic Modulation of Wind Turbine Noise commissioned by his Department. [186045]

Jonathan Shaw: The Noise Strategy for England will be a high level document that sets out the Government's policy on neighbourhood and environmental noise. It would be premature to state whether the strategy will single out the aerodynamic modulation of noise from wind turbines. The Government have stated that they will keep the issue of aerodynamic modulation of noise from wind turbines under review.

Packaging: Waste Disposal

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the cost to local authorities of recovering non-reusable bags (a) in household refuse and (b) from streets. [186734]

Joan Ruddock: No such estimates have been made.

Recycling

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department takes to ensure that recycled materials which are exported for reprocessing are not diverted to (a) landfill and (b) other disposal facilities. [186260]

Joan Ruddock: It is the responsibility of producers of waste, including local authorities and their waste management contractors, to ensure that waste is dealt with in an environmentally sound manner throughout the recycling chain, including at its final destination.

Waste that is being exported should be recovered or recycled under environmentally sound conditions, and exporters should reassure themselves that this is taking place.

In England and Wales, the Environment Agency helps to detect and prevent the illegal export of waste through intelligence-led, targeted inspections at ports and other facilities. Enforcement action is taken as appropriate where evidence of illegal activity is found. The Environment Agency cooperates with regulators overseas to help ensure that controls are met.

Renewable Energy: Wood

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what funding he has allocated to his Department's wood fuel strategy in each of the next three years. [186057]

Mr. Woolas: The Forestry Commission is currently carrying out its business planning for the next three years. Decisions on funding for their England Woodfuel Strategy will be made within that process.

Retail Trade: Packaging

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will bring forward legislative proposals to reduce the use of non-reusable bags in the retail trade. [186730]

Joan Ruddock: The Government pledged in the 'Waste Strategy for England 2007' to phase out free single-use carrier bags. We are actively working to establish the best ways of achieving this objective.

Seas and Oceans: Legislation

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs for what reasons a draft Marine Bill was not presented to Parliament in (a) the 2005-06 Session and (b) the 2006-07 Session; and if he will make a statement. [186007]

Jonathan Shaw: The Government are firmly focused on meeting its commitment to introduce a comprehensive Marine Bill in this Parliament. Proposals have been developed for a Bill that covers a broad and complex set of marine issues spanning many different interests and which, in some cases, break completely new ground.

Extensive consultation has been essential with a broad range of stakeholders to ensure that this legislation is right. To this end, we undertook a broad public consultation exercise in 2006. We further developed our proposals in a White Paper which was published for consultation in 2007.

The Government's draft legislative programme states that we are considering publishing a draft Marine Bill in this session of Parliament. We are working to do this in early 2008. Publishing the Marine Bill in draft will allow us to get the legislation right and lead to a better Bill.

Sites of Special Scientific Interest: Standards

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what progress his Department has made towards its public service agreement target to bring 95 per cent. of sites of special scientific interest into favourable condition by 2010; and if he will make a statement. [181505]

Joan Ruddock [holding answer 24 January 2008]: At 30 January 2008, 80.1 per cent. of sites of special interest (SSSI) by area was in favourable or recovering condition (target condition). We anticipate that the figure by the end of March 2008 will be around 81.5 per cent.. This falls slightly short of the milestone of 83 per cent. but compares with a baseline of 56.9 per cent. in 2003 and represents good progress towards delivering the target of 95 per cent. by December 2010.

Trade Unions

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether (a) his Department and (b) the Carbon Trust has provided funding to trades unions in the last 36 months. [186182]

Mr. Woolas: DEFRA has provided £16,000 to support Trade Union activities on sustainable development in the last 36 months.

The Carbon Trust has supported the Trades Union Congress (TUC) with funding through the Networks Initiative in 2006 and 2007. The Initiative provides financial support to projects that help members reduce their carbon emissions. The specific projects supported were Green Workplaces in 2006 and the Carbon Partnership Project in 2007. Each received £140,000 from the Carbon Trust.

As well as engaging the TUC's affiliated members through these projects, the Carbon Trust has supported a number of individual trade unions with free carbon surveys, customer advice and information. The Carbon Trust are also reviewing the findings of the Green Workplaces project to allow a wider roll out in the future.

Waste Disposal

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will place in the Library a copy of the factual briefing note on pilot waste reduction schemes referred to by the Minister of State for Sustainable Farming, Food and Animal Welfare on 30 January 2008, Official Report, House of Lords, column 664. [185787]

Joan Ruddock: I am arranging for the information requested to be placed in the House Library.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much (a) paper and cardboard, (b) metal, (c) glass, (d) plastic and (e) other material was (i) collected for recycling and (ii) exported for reprocessing in each of the last three years for which information is available; and if he will make a statement. [186258]

Joan Ruddock: The tonnages of materials collected from household sources sent for recycling and composting by local authorities in England in the last three years for which figures are available, are shown in the following table[1]. This information is available on the DEFRA website. Tonnages of recyclable materials from non-household sources are not available.

Thousand tonnes

| Household waste | 2004-05 | 2005-06 | 2006-07 |
|---|---|---|---|
| Paper and card | 1,406 | 1,475 | 1,535 |
| Glass | 670 | 760 | 840 |
| Compost | 1,960 | 2,439 | 2,895 |
| Scrap metals and white goods | 577 | 532 | 601 |
| Textiles | 71 | 86 | 103 |
| Cans | 52 | 74 | 80 |
| Plastics | 21 | 38 | 49 |
| Co-mingled | 656 | 860 | 1,121 |
| Other | 372 | 532 | 751 |
| Total | 5,785 | 6,796 | 7,976 |

Where non-hazardous wastes (such as separated recyclables) are exported, they are generally subject only to commercial controls and not to the prior notification and consent procedures which apply to exports of hazardous wastes. Precise data on the amounts and destinations of exported recyclables are not, therefore, available.

However, based on HM Revenue and Customs figures, it is estimated that in 2006 (the last year for which figures are available), the UK exported some eight million tonnes of metal scrap, four million tonnes of paper, 441,000 tonnes of plastic and 136,000 tonnes of glass cullet. These figures will include recyclable materials collected from all sources including households, commerce and industry.

[1] "Household waste sent for recycling" includes all materials sent for recycling, composting or reuse by local authorities as well as those collected from household sources by 'private/voluntary' organisations. Material which was collected for recycling but actually rejected at collection, by the material recycling facility or at the gate of a recycling reprocessor is excluded. Material diverted from the residual waste stream and accepted for recycling is included.

Waste Disposal: Compost

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps the Government have taken to encourage homeowners to compost their kitchen and garden waste since 1997. [177321]

Joan Ruddock [holding answer 7 February 2008]: Increasing the rate of composting of kitchen and garden waste is an important way to reduce the amount of biodegradable waste being sent to landfill and should help cut greenhouse gas emissions.

The Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) is working with local authorities and other partners to improve the uptake of home composting and has distributed over one million home composting bins to households across the country through local authorities. Practical advice on home composting is available on the Recycle Now website.

WRAP is also working to encourage composting more generally and is providing support and advice to local authorities on collecting dry recyclable and organic wastes through its Recycling and Organics Technical Advisory Team (ROTATE).

Waste Disposal: Fees and Charges

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs over what period he plans to allocate central funding for the pilot schemes for charges for the collection of household waste. [183280]

Joan Ruddock: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) on 14 January 2008, Official Report, column 869W.

Whales: Japan

Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department is taking to establish the legal status under the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species (CITES) of Japan's killing of CITES Appendix I listed whales in the Southern Ocean and North Pacific; and if he will make a statement. [182157]

Joan Ruddock: Following the recent announcement that Japan intended to take 50 humpback whales in the Southern Ocean as part of its JARPA II whaling programme, the UK Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species (CITES) Management Authority wrote to the CITES Secretariat asking for clarification on the legal position. In their response, the CITES Secretariat stated that they were not in a position to issue a statement to the effect that the introduction from the sea of humpback specimens violates article III of the convention. We have drawn the contents of their reply to the attention of the EU CITES Management Committee that will consider it at its next meeting in April.

Whales: Nature Conservation

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will host a meeting of anti-whaling nations before the next meeting of the International Whaling Commission; and if he will make a statement. [186012]

Jonathan Shaw: The UK will host a meeting of like-minded anti-whaling countries prior to the inter-sessional meeting of the International Whaling Commission (IWC) due to be held on 6-8 March 2008 in Heathrow, London.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he last discussed whaling with his foreign counterparts; and if he will make a statement. [186013]

Jonathan Shaw: I have raised the issue of whaling at every appropriate opportunity with members of the International Whaling Commission (IWC).

The UK will continue to make clear our objections to those countries that support whaling, both before and during the forthcoming inter-sessional meeting of the IWC in March, and the next annual meeting in Chile in June.

In addition, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has written to 18 countries, encouraging them to join the IWC for the greater protection of whales.

Wild Boar

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) why the publication of the Government's strategy on the management of wild boar has been delayed; and if he will make a statement; [184678]

(2) when he will publish the Government's strategy on the management of wild boar. [184679]

Joan Ruddock [holding answer 5 February 2008]: It is unfortunate that the strategy has taken longer to produce than we had initially hoped. My Department has had other unexpected priorities to resolve such as outbreaks of avian influenza, bluetongue and foot and mouth disease. We also had to resolve some issues with regard to the delivery of the action plan. However, I am now able to announce that DEFRA's wild boar strategy will be published on 19 February.

HEALTH

Alcoholic Drinks: Misuse

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps the Government took to prepare the National Health Service for the effects of the level of binge drinking in the Christmas season. [176078]

Dawn Primarolo: The national health service routinely plan for changes in demand. It is a local service matter as to what arrangements they decide to put in place to deal with any potential fluctuations in activity of services.

Breast Cancer: Essex

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many diagnoses of breast cancer there were in Essex in each of the last five years. [185314]

Angela Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 18 February 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking how many diagnoses of breast cancer there were in Essex in each of the last five years. (185314)

The most recent available figures for newly diagnosed cases of breast cancer registered in Essex are for the year 2005. Figures for the years 2001 to 2005 are in the table below.

Registrations of newly diagnosed cases of breast cancer[1], females, Essex, 2001-05

| | Number |
|---|---|
| 2001 | 909 |
| 2002 | 915 |
| 2003 | 966 |
| 2004 | 881 |
| 2005 | 1,137 |

Burton Independent Sector Treatment Centre

Charlotte Atkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) which medical procedures the Burton Independent Sector Treatment Centre offers to patients; [186046]

(2) which medical procedures the Burton Independent Sector Treatment Centre offered to patients when it opened; [186047]

(3) when the cost effectiveness of the Burton Independent Sector Treatment Centre was last assessed; and what the outcome of that assessment was; [186063]

(4) for what reasons the management arrangements at the Burton Independent Sector Treatment Centre have been changed in the last 12 months; and who is responsible for implementing the new management arrangements. [186064]

(5) what powers the relevant primary care trusts have to renegotiate the contract with the Burton Independent Sector Treatment Centre; [186067]

(6) when the contract between the North Staffordshire Primary Care Trust and the Burton Independent Sector Treatment Centre ends. [186068]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Burton Independent Sector Treatment Centre (ISTC) commenced service delivery in July 2006 offering national health service patients a range of procedures including general surgery, orthopaedics, ophthalmology, ear nose and throat, thoracic procedures, nervous system, digestive system, urology and gynaecology. The Department works with sponsors and providers to ensure optimum utilisation of the contracts. This includes changing the case mix where necessary to respond to local need and working with providers and primary care trusts (PCTs) to recover previous under-utilised activity where possible. Since December 2007 pain management outpatient appointments have been available at Burton ISTC in addition to the above services and a review of the case mix is ongoing.

A formal assessment of cost effectiveness of the Burton ISTC took place as part of the procurement of wave 1 of the ISTC programme in 2004, the subsequent outcome of which was the appointment of Nations Healthcare as the independent sector provider. The procurement of wave 1 was conducted in compliance with European Union procurement law.

In June 2007, in terms of management changes at the ISTC, Circle Health acquired Nations Health. The internal management arrangements for the Burton ISTC are the responsibility of Nations Health, in line with contractual obligations.

The North Staffordshire PCT contract for services at the Burton ISTC is due to cease in the financial year 2011-12. There is an option for the contract to be extended or re-negotiated at the end of the contract term, in line with the local needs of NHS patients.

Cancer

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the projected costs of the (a) national cancer survivorship initiative, (b) national survey awareness of cancer, (c) national cancer equality initiative and (d) national cancer intelligence network in each of the next three years. [185050]

Ann Keen [holding answer 7 February 2008]: The projected costs for the next three years for the national cancer survivorship initiative, national survey awareness of cancer and national cancer intelligence network are set out as follows. Projected costs for the national cancer equality initiative have not been separated from the overall projected costs for awareness and early detection, and it is these costs that are given instead.

| | 2008-09 | 2009-10 | £ million 2010-11 |
|---|---|---|---|
| National cancer survivorship initiative | 18.2 | 36.4 | 54.5 |
| National survey awareness of cancer | 0.7 | 0.7 | 0.7 |
| Awareness and early detection | 3.0 | 7.0 | 11.0 |
| National cancer intelligence network | 1.4 | 2.8 | 4.2 |

Cancer: Cheshire

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department has taken to improve outcomes in cancer (a) screening and (b) treatment in (i) Warrington and (ii) Cheshire in the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [185586]

Ann Keen [holding answer 7 February 2008]: Major progress has been made on cancer over the past 10 years and especially since the publication of the "National Health Service Cancer Plan", which set out the first ever comprehensive strategy to tackle cancer and was the first time any Government had drawn up a major programme of action linking prevention, diagnosis, treatment, care and research. Significant achievements include:

extending breast screening to women aged 50-70 years. The number of new cancers diagnosed through breast screening has increased by over 60 per cent.;

roll-out of the bowel cancer screening programme, the first programme to target both men and women;

major reductions in waiting times for patients with suspected cancer referred urgently by their general practitioners (99 per cent. seen within 14 days, up from 63 per cent. in 1997); over 99 per cent. of patients receiving their first cancer treatment within one month of diagnosis (the 31-day target); over 97 per cent. of urgently referred patients being treated within two months of referral (the 62-day target); expansion of the cancer work force; and provision of unprecedented numbers of new equipment.

Cancer: Health Services

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the (a) mean and (b) median waiting time was from diagnosis of cancer to treatment for each type of cancer in (i) 2004-05, (ii) 2005-06 and (iii) 2006-07. [186002]

Ann Keen: Statistics on average waiting times for cancer patients and average waiting times for specific cancer conditions are not collected centrally. The cancer waiting time standard of a maximum wait of 31 days from diagnosis to first cancer treatment was introduced for breast cancer patients from December 2001 and all patients from December 2005. Statistics are published on a quarterly basis on the Department's website at:

www.performance.doh.gov.uk/cancerwaits.

Performance against the standard for all cancers for the last quarter (January, February and March) for each of the years was:

2004-05: 91.1 per cent. of cancer patients treated within 31 days of diagnosis;

2005-06: 98.9 per cent; and 2006-07: 99.6 per cent.

Cancer: Medical Treatments

David Tredinnick: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the availability of treatment for (a) bone metastases caused by prostate cancer in men and (b) bone metastases caused by breast cancer in women; what biophosphonate drugs are available in the Leicester cancer care area for the treatment of bone metastases caused by (i) prostate cancer and (ii) breast cancer; and if he will make a statement. [185497]

Ann Keen [holding answer 7 February 2008]: From the information collected on bone metastases, it is not possible to identify which have been caused by either prostate or breast cancer, therefore no assessment has been carried out on bone metastases caused by either prostate or breast cancer.

University Hospitals of Leicester NHS Trust does not routinely use bisphosphonate drugs to treat prostate cancer as there is inconclusive evidence as to the drugs efficacy and cost-effectiveness. However, pamidronate and ibndronate are routinely used for breast cancer as there is National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) guidance and evidence of effectiveness.

In 2002, NICE published guidance on "Improving Outcomes in Urological Cancer". The guidance makes recommendations on the management of bone metastases in patients with metastatic prostate cancer.

In the same year, NICE also published "Improving Outcomes in Breast Cancer". The guidance makes recommendations on the management of bone metastases in patients with metastatic breast cancer.

NICE is also preparing clinical guidelines on the diagnosis and treatment of prostate cancer and of breast cancer. Both sets of guidance will address bone metastases. The guideline on prostate cancer is due to be published later this month. Publication of the guideline on breast cancer is expected in early 2009.

Cancer: Waiting Lists

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 12 November 2007, Official Report, column 58W, on cancer: waiting lists, whether his Department's press release of 9 October 2007 was approved by a Minister before it was issued. [177897]

Mr. Bradshaw: Yes. The Department's press release of 9 October 2007 on the comprehensive spending review was approved by a Minister before it was issued.

Christmas

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much his Department's agencies spent on (a) Christmas cards and (b) postage of Christmas cards in each year since 1997. [182444]

Mr. Bradshaw: Information about what Department's agencies spend on Christmas cards and the amount they spend on the postage of Christmas cards, is not held centrally.

Consent to Medical Treatment: Mentally Ill

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance his Department has issued on the circumstances under which (a) the Commission on Social Care Inspection and (b) healthcare workers may conduct intimate medical examinations on those with mental incapacities without the consent of guardians ad litem; under what authority such examinations are performed; and if he will make a statement. [186498]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Mental Capacity Act 2005 , which came fully into force on 1 October 2007, sets out a statutory framework for making treatment decisions for people who lack the capacity to make such decisions themselves. The Act establishes overarching statutory principles governing these decisions, setting out who can make them and when. It sets out the legal requirements for assessing whether or not a person lacks capacity to make a decision.

Where a person lacks the capacity to make a decision for themselves, any decision must be made in that person's best interests. The Act introduced a duty on the national health service to instruct an independent mental capacity advocate in serious medical treatment decisions when a person who lacks capacity to make a decision has no one who can speak for them, other than paid staff. The Mental Capacity Act allows people to plan ahead for a time when they may not have capacity to make their own decisions by appointing an attorney to make treatment decisions on their behalf or by making an advance decision to refuse medical treatment. Further guidance is available in the Mental Capacity Act Code of Practice.

The Commission on Social Care Inspection (CSCI) does not perform medical examinations. CSCI inspects care providers and does not examine or inspect actual users of services.

Dentistry: Databases

Sir Paul Beresford: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether his Department uses the General Dental Council dental list to send its communications to dentists. [185789]

Ann Keen: Generally, we make arrangements with the NHS Business Services Authority which has contact details of all dentists with contracts to provide national health service primary care dental services. If however a communication was of interest to all dentists, for example advice on the control of cross-infection in dental practice, we would use the General Dental Council's register.

Departmental Data Protection

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether personal data for which his Department is responsible is (a) stored and (b) processed overseas; and if he will make a statement. [176020]

Mr. Bradshaw: A limited amount of personal data for which the Department of Health is responsible is stored overseas, and some is processed overseas. This includes national health service payroll and financial systems where the NHS Business Services Authority, an arms length body of the Department, operates a service on behalf of NHS trusts, storing data in the UK but processing pay and finance forms in India under strict data protection controls. The Business Services Authority also uses overseas resources as part of a system for inputting details of NHS dental treatments.

The Department is also responsible for NHS patient data managed by NHS Connecting for Health, but none of this data is stored or processed overseas. The Department is not responsible for patient or other personal data managed by NHS trusts and health authorities.

Departmental guidance requires measures to be taken to ensure such processing is compliant with our obligations under the Data Protection Act 1998. Reviews are currently in hand, related to the wider government review of data handling arrangements, to confirm that those measures are adequate.

Departmental Freedom of Information

Mr. Denis Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many requests were made to his Department under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 in each year since 2005; and how many requests were refused. [183752]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Government have published two annual reports that contain statistical information about how many requests have been received by monitored bodies (including central Government Departments) and how many have been refused.

These reports can be found at:

www.dca.gov.uk/foi/reference/statisticsAndReports.htm

Data is currently being collected across monitored bodies in order to produce the 2007 annual report and Q4 Monitoring report, however, Q1-Q3 Monitoring reports of 2007 can be found at:

www.justice.gov.uk/publications/freedomofinformationquarterly.htm

Departmental Marketing

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what products featuring departmental or Government branding were procured by (a) his Department and (b) its agencies in each of the last five years. [179790]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department advises against the use of departmental branding on products, other than on occasional low value promotional items to support specific internal initiatives or conferences. Any such items are procured by individual teams within the Department and the Department does not hold central records on which items were procured and at what cost. To provide this information would therefore incur disproportionate cost.

The two agencies that receive funding from the Department are the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) and the NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency (NHS PASA).

The MHRA has produced low cost branded items in the last five years, these were: mugs, pens, coasters, carrier bags, back massagers, tins with jelly beans, mouse mats and stress balls. All these items have been produced specifically for special events such as conferences, including the United Kingdom Presidency events in 2005, and events to promote the General Practice Research Database and the reporting of adverse incidents and faulty devices. This is part of MHRA's role in protecting public health.

We are informed by NHS PASA that they have not produced or issued any products featuring departmental or government branding in the last five years.

Departmental Pay

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many civil servants in his Department and its agencies received bonuses in each year since 2002. [178959]

Mr. Bradshaw: The figures provided in the following table include bonuses paid to senior civil servants under pay arrangements common across the civil service and special bonuses paid under schemes operated by the Department and its agencies.

Senior civil service bonuses reward excellent performance during the year, based on a judgment of how well people perform relative to their peers. This covers the extent to which objectives are met and how they are achieved, and has regard to how leadership behaviours and professional skills are demonstrated and how stretching objectives are.

Special bonuses are awarded for a number of different reasons, the most common of which are an outstanding contribution in a particularly demanding situation, job loading becoming temporarily very heavy, a high level of commitment and resolution to get a job done, special efforts to produce results, cover for a high level of absence, and a contribution over and above what would normally be expected for the job and of the person or team concerned. Special bonuses can be paid either to individuals or to a group or team of staff at any point in the year, and only for additional duties undertaken which will not be recognised through annual pay awards.

The figures presented for 2007-08 are up to December 2007.

The Department changed its payroll provider in 2003-04. Information on performance bonus payments prior to 2004-05 is only available from individual payslips. To retrieve this information would therefore involve disproportionate cost.

Numbers of staff receiving bonuses

| Year in which bonuses were paid | Department DH | Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency | NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency |

Departmental Sustainable Development

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether his Department is working towards an accredited certified environmental management system for (a) its whole estate and (b) some of its buildings. [181319]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does not have a certified system for its core administrative estate.

The Department's NHS Purchasing and Supplies Agency has an environmental management system certified to ISO14001.

Departmental Vehicles

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many vehicles were (a) owned and (b) purchased by his Department in each of the last 10 years. [183294]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Number of vehicles owned and purchased by the Department during each of the last 10 years are shown in the following table.

| Year ending 31 March | Number of vehicles owned | Number of vehicles purchased |
|---|---|---|
| 1999 | 17 | 0 |

These vehicles were owned by the Department through outright purchase. During 2005, ownership and management responsibility for 47 vehicles transferred to NHS Purchasing and Supplies Agency, and seven transferred to the Commission for Social Care Inspection.

Employment Agencies

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much his Department paid to recruitment agencies in relation to departmental appointments in each year since 1997. [184912]

Mr. Bradshaw: Because of the way in which financial data is coded in the Department's accounting system, it is not possible to extract the specific information required from the overall costs of appointments. This could be established only from a manual examination of invoices, which would incur disproportionate costs.

Family Practitioner Services: Enfield

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many GP surgeries are open out of hours in (a) Enfield North constituency and (b) Enfield Borough. [178677]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is not held centrally. The hon. Member may therefore wish to approach the chief executive of Enfield PCT for information on number of surgeries which are open out of hours.

Primary care trusts (PCTs) now have a legal responsibility to ensure that they provide, or secure provision of out of hours services for their local population. NHS London has advised officials that Enfield PCT is in the process of trying to agree extended opening hours with all its practices.

Food: Labelling

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the cost to industry of implementing the Food Standards Agency's guidelines on the provision of allergen information on non-prepacked foods. [185961]

Dawn Primarolo: Given the voluntary nature of the guidance, the exact cost to businesses is difficult to quantify. Businesses may adopt the changes over time and in a way that is appropriate to the size and type of the particular business. They may chose different ways of providing the information to the customer from written means such as point of sale notices, product labelling or menu descriptions to verbal information, which will have differing costs.

The regulatory impact assessment was compiled during the development of the Food Standards Agency guidance package and is published on the Agency's website at www.food.gov.uk/foodindustry/guidancenotes/labelregsguidance/nonprepacked.

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what arrangements his Department has made to monitor the effectiveness of recent Food Standards Agency voluntary best practice guidance on the provision of allergen information for non-prepacked foods; and over what timescale such arrangements will operate. [185962]

Dawn Primarolo: The Food Standards Agency is monitoring the take up of the guidance package by food business operators. It will follow this up in a year's time to evaluate awareness of food allergy issues in the non-prepacked foods sector, a key objective of the guidance among food businesses.

General Practitioners

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which general practice surgeries (a) he and (b) the Minister of State, the hon. Member for Exeter, have visited in an official capacity since June 2007; and on what dates. [185992]

Mr. Bradshaw: Since June 2007 the Secretary of State has visited Churchill Medical Centre, Kingston in London. Since June 2007, I have visited: St Bridge Practice, Gloucestershire (twice); Fishponds Health Centre, Bristol; Wood Lane Surgery, Hornchurch, Essex; Chadwell Heath Health Centre, Romford, Essex; Bromley by Bow Centre, London; Great Oaks GP Practice, Weymouth and Calne Health Centre in Wiltshire.

General Practitioners: Working Hours

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 18 January 2008, Official Report, column 1360W, on family practitioner services: working hours, what proportion of patients were able to make appointments at their general practitioner practice outside 8am to 6pm Monday to Friday in each quarter for which figures are available since 2000. [182603]

Mr. Bradshaw: Since June 2006, we have estimated the proportion of patients able to make such appointments based on samples of around 1,500 members of the public. These figures are given in the following table:

Percentage

| | 2006 | | | | 2007 | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| | June | August | October | December | March | May | August |

"Health For All, Have Your Say"

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost of development and publication of the document "Health for all, Have Your Say" was. [185365]

Ann Keen [holding answer 7 February 2008]: This information is not held centrally and can instead be obtained directly from Wirral primary care trust.

Health Services

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the compliance levels of health care providers with section H of the Code of Practice for Promotion of NHS Services; and if he will make a statement. [186673]

Mr. Bradshaw: The 'Code of Practice for the Promotion of NHS services' was a document published for consultation in November 2006. The consultation finished on the 28 February 2007, and we are currently considering the responses to the consultation and will publish a final code shortly. The provisions of this draft promotion code are therefore not currently enforceable, therefore no assessment has been done of the compliance with section H of this code.

Health Services: Age

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the effect of the likely changes to the age profile of the population in the next 10 years on the service requirements of the NHS; and if he will make a statement. [179730]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department has used population predictions supplied by the Office for National Statistics to inform its policy development. This will support the delivery of high quality health care in areas such as prevention, and better management of long-term conditions to a growing and ageing population.

Health Services: Prisoners

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent on (a) general medical services, (b) mental health treatment, (c) drug and alcohol treatment and (d) other health-related expenditure for prisoners in each year from 2002-03 to 2006-07; and how much funding is allocated in each category for 2007-08. [186910]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Expenditure on prison healthcare in England 2002-03 to 2007-08, including general medical services, mental health services, and other health-related expenditure, is shown in table 1.

Table 1: Expenditure on prison healthcare in England 2002-03 to 2007-08[1]

[1] The figures quoted include amount spend on mental health in-reach services in both publicly and privately managed prisons.
[2] The figure for 2006-07 also includes an amount to cover the cost of implementing Agenda for Change, backdated to October 2004, for prison healthcare staff who have transferred to the NHS.

Prison funding used specifically for alcohol treatment is not separated out from overall drug treatment funding. Drug treatment funding allocated to prisons globally over the past six years is shown in table 2. This includes investment from both the Department and the Ministry of Justice, and is in addition to the investment in table 1.

Health Services: Publicity

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 18 January 2008, Official Report, column 1360W, on health services: publicity, what the total cost of the campaign is in each relevant financial year; and how many staff of each pay band are running it. [182589]

Mr. Bradshaw: The total cost of the campaign in the financial year 2006-07 was £217,861.13. Between December 2006 and March 2007, there was one grade seven (G7) communications manager working on this project full-time.

The total anticipated spend to the end of this financial year (end March 2008) is £950,000. Between April 2007 and March 2008, there has been one G7 communications manager and one senior information officer and one information officer working part-time on the different aspects of the campaign.

The campaign budget for April to December 2008 will be determined as part of the development of the Department's 2008-09 business plan , which is now under way. The resource necessary for the year 2008-09 will be determined as part of this plan.

Health Services: Standards

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the evidential basis was for the decision to propose a change to the number of quality and outcomes framework points allocated for access. [182139]

Mr. Bradshaw: The quality and outcomes framework provides financial incentives to reward practices that demonstrate high standards of care, not just in clinical care but also in terms of the patient experience. Parties to the framework have agreed to recycle a number of out-dated indicators that are either redundant or of very limited added value, and to revise the patient experience domain. Our proposals are to use the freed resource to incentivise improvements in patients' access experiences so as to better meet patients expectations as demonstrated through last year's national general practitioner patient survey.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 18 January 2008, Official Report, column 1360W, on health services: standards, what information his Department collects on the reasons for decisions taken by clinicians that it is not clinically appropriate for a patient's treatment to start within 18 weeks. [182588]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does not collect information on the reasons for decisions taken by clinicians that it is not clinically appropriate for a patient's treatment to start within 18 weeks. Decisions on whether it is clinically appropriate to start treatment within 18 weeks of referral rests with individual clinicians in consultation with patients.

Hospitals: Admissions

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many finished admission episodes of care for emergency admissions there were in each year since 1997-98, broken down by age of patient. [184508]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information is set out in the following table.

Finished admission episodes (FAE)

| Age at start of episode | 1997-98 | 1998-99 | 1999-2000 | 2000-01 | 2001-02 | 2002-03 | 2003-04 | 2004-05 | 2005-06 | 2006-07 |

[1] This age category includes babies under the age of one.

Notes:

1. FAE

A finished admission episode is the first period of in-patient care under one consultant within one healthcare provider. Please note that admissions do not represent the number of in-patients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.

2. Admission methods: Emergency

Via accident and emergency (A and E) services, including casualty department of provider

Via General Practitioner (GP)

Via Bed Bureau, including Central Bureau

Via Consultant Out-patient Clinic

Other means—including patients who arrive via A and E department of another healthcare provider.

3. Assessing growth through time

HES figures are available from 1989-90 onwards. During the years that these records have been collected by the national health service there have been ongoing improvements in quality and coverage. These improvements in information submitted by the NHS have been particularly marked in the earlier years and need to be borne in mind when analysing time series. Changes in NHS practice also need to be borne in mind when analysing time series. For example a number of procedures may now be undertaken in outpatient settings and may no longer be accounted in the HES data. This may account for any reductions in activity over time.

4. Ungrossed data

Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data (i.e. the data are ungrossed).

5. Data quality

HES are compiled from data sent by over 300 NHS trusts, and primary care trusts in England. Data are also received from a number of independent sector organisations for activity commissioned by the English NHS. The Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data via HES processes. While this brings about improvement over time, some shortcomings remain.

Hospitals: Infectious Diseases

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps the Government has taken to prevent children from picking up viruses when visiting hospitals. [176079]

Ann Keen: Infections are generally controlled by good infection control practice but national health service trusts may introduce additional measures such as restricting visiting if appropriate. Most visitors, including children, only spend time with one patient and providing they follow hospital advice e.g. on hand washing there is little risk of them acquiring the organism or infecting others.

Hospitals: Waiting lists

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what written representations his Department has received from NHS trusts on the 18 week waiting time target in the last six months; and if he will place copies of all such representations in the Library. [182646]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department receives a wide range of written representations on issues relating to 18 weeks from national health service trusts. Information on the number of representations received over the last six months and obtaining copies could only be obtained at disproportionate cost.

Incontinence

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) children and (b) young people in the UK were identified as having incontinence problems in the latest period for which figures are available. [185558]

Ann Keen [holding answer 7 February 2008]: The information requested is not collected centrally. Continence services for children and young people are the responsibility of local primary care trusts, with a view to compliance with standard six of the National Service Framework for Children, Young People and Maternity Services. This standard includes a specific section on paediatric incontinence.

Information Centre for Health and Social Care: Data Protection

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what dates in the last 12 months the Information Centre for Health and Social Care has physically transported data which contain personally-identifiable information; and what guidance the Information Centre for Health and Social Care has issued to its staff on how personally-identifiable information should be transported. [174836]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Information Centre for health and social care frequently transports data containing personally-identifiable information, where approval has been given by the Patient Information Advisory Group.

The Information Centre for health and social care has an information security policy, which ensures that all staff are made aware of their roles and responsibilities of the correct transportation of personally-identifiable information.

I also refer the hon. Member to the statement made on 21 November 2007, Official Report, column 1179, by my right hon. Friend, the Prime Minister and the written statement made on 17 December 2007, Official Report, column 98WS, by my right hon. Friend the Minister for the Cabinet Office. The review by the Cabinet Secretary and security experts is looking at procedures within Departments and agencies for the storage and use of data. A further report is expected in spring 2008.

Information Services Division

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the remit is of the Information Services Division in his Department. [185596]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Information Services Division has a remit to provide the following services within the Department:

directory services: management and publication of central databases containing information about staff, business groups and building addresses for the Department and related external organisations; delivery and operation of NHS Choices website; and professional oversight and guidance to the IT organisations within departmental arms length bodies.

Intimidation

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many cases of bullying have been reported in (a) his Department and (b) its agencies in each of the last 12 months. [182832]

Mr. Bradshaw: The number of complaints are given in the following table for the calendar year 2007. Where there has been at least one complaint but less than five the exact figure is not provided on grounds of confidentiality. Any such situation is marked <5 in the table. Nil returns are marked zero.

| Department/agency | Complaint—bullying |
|---|---|
| Departmental | 6 |
| NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency | 0 |
| Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency | <5 |

Malnutrition: Standards

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make it his policy to include malnutrition in the quality and outcomes framework for general practitioners. [182140]

Mr. Bradshaw: As part of the ongoing development of the Quality and Outcomes Framework (QOF), indicators and clinical areas are continuously reviewed in the light of the clinical evidence base. The expert panel advises the QOF negotiations on the evidence for new areas for clinical intervention in terms of the benefits to patients. The scope for new areas depends on the strength of the evidence base, priorities for health, and the resource available to deliver them.

However, the identification of patients suffering from malnutrition who attend their general practitioner would be considered part of normal essential services delivered in general practice.

MRSA

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what date the decision was taken to release under embargo statistics on (a) MRSA and (b) Clostridium difficile published by the Health Protection Agency on 30 January 2008; for what reason the decision was taken to release statistics under embargo; on what dates (i) he, (ii) his special advisers and (iii) other officials of his Department held discussions with the Health Protection Agency on the release of statistics under an embargo, and what the content of the discussions was; to which (A) organisations and (B) individuals the statistics were issued under embargo; and if he will make a statement. [185994]

Ann Keen: On 16 January 2008 Departmental and Health Protection Agency officials agreed to release the information at 10:00 am on 29 January. It was distributed under embargo until 00:01 hours on 30 January to national and regional journalists with an interest in health to give them more time to look at the statistics in detail before reporting on them. It was also copied to the Health Care Commission.

This was in addition to the routine distribution of the pre-publication data to the national health service.

NHS Business Services Authority: Data Protection

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what dates in the last 12 months the NHS Business Services Authority has physically transported data which contain personally-identifiable information; and what guidance the NHS Business Services Authority has issued to its staff on how personally-identifiable information should be transported. [174837]

Mr. Bradshaw: The NHS Business Services Authority (NHSBSA) transports a considerable volume of personally-identifiable data on virtually every working day.

The NHSBSA has a data protection policy and an information security policy, which ensure that all staff are made aware of their roles and responsibilities for the correct transportation of personally-identifiable information. Staff also receive computer based training in data protection and information security which covers how information should be sent outside of the organisation. Reminders are also issued through a variety of internal communications mechanisms. The NHSBSA constantly reviews the security arrangements for data it is transporting.

I also refer the hon. Member to the statement made on 21 November 2007, Official Report, column 1179, by my right hon. Friend, the Prime Minister and the written statement made on 17 December 2007, Official Report, column 98WS, by my right hon. Friend the Minister for the Cabinet Office. The review by the Cabinet Secretary and security experts is looking at procedures within Departments and agencies for the storage and use of data. A further report is expected in spring 2008.

NHS Employers: Freedom of Information

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether NHS Employers is defined as a public authority for the purposes of the Freedom of Information Act 2000. [184559]

Mr. Bradshaw: No. NHS Employers is a company limited by guarantee, and works as part of the NHS Confederation. As such, it is not considered a public authority for the purposes of the Freedom of Information Act. NHS Employers provides services under contract to the Department, and also acts independently to represent the interests of individual national health service employers.

NHS Foundation Trusts: Public Appointments

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will take steps to place senior appointments in NHS foundation trusts within the terms of reference of the Commissioner of Public Appointments; and if he will make a statement. [182465]

Mr. Bradshaw: In line with their independent status, schedule 7 of the National Health Service Act 2006 sets out how appointments to NHS foundation trusts (NHSFTs) are to be made. Monitor (the statutory name of which is the independent regulator of NHS foundation trusts) has issued guidance on the procedure and principles for appointments in NHSFTs which is consistent with their public service values. The NHS Foundation Trust Code of Governance is available at Monitor's website:

NHS Treatment Centres: Christchurch

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when the former NHS Health Centre in Saxon Square, Christchurch was vacated; and when he expects it will be brought back into use. [186117]

Mr. Bradshaw: The former health centre at Saxon Square was vacated in 1989. Since then a number of unsuccessful attempts have been made to dispose of the Secretary of State's long leasehold interest in the property.

Discussions are currently taking place with Royal Bournemouth and Christchurch NHS Foundation Trust for them to take responsibility for the leasehold interest and to bring the property back into national health service use. If these are concluded, it is expected the property will be brought back into use in 12 to 18 months.

NHS: Catering

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of (a) beef, (b) lamb, (c) pork and (d) dairy products used in NHS premises were imported products in the most recent period for which figures are available. [166744]

Mr. Bradshaw: The following percentages represent the number of products imported for each category:

| | Percentage |
|---|---|
| Beef | 10 |
| Lamb | 85 |
| Pork | 15 |
| Dairy | 20 |

NHS: Finance

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 11 December 2007, Official Report, column 525W, on NHS finance, what his Department's latest estimate is of the outturn for NHS resource spending in 2007-08. [184478]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department will release its latest forecast of outturn national health service resource spending for 2007-08 in the "Department of Health Department Report 2008", due to be published in May 2008.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Wyre Forest (Dr. Taylor) of 12 December 2007, Official Report, column 657W, on NHS: finance, which new indicators are under consideration for inclusion in the Better Care Better Value indicators. [185577]

Mr. Bradshaw: While further testing will be necessary it is likely that future publications by the National Health Service Institute will include indicators covering did not attend rates, ratios of new to follow-up appointments in outpatients and emergency readmission rates. The indicator set will be further expanded in subsequent quarters.

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health by what means his Department monitors primary care trusts' commissioning of services to ensure funding is according to patient need. [186934]

Mr. Bradshaw: Primary care trusts (PCTs), working with their partners, are responsible for ensuring that their local communities have the opportunity to be fully engaged in the commissioning decisions that they take. By listening, understanding and responding to peoples' expressed needs and preferences commissioners can be sure that the services that are made available are right for their populations.

This is why Operating Framework for the NHS in England 2008-09 requires PCTs to adopt a systematic and rigorous approach to seeking, collecting and acting on the views of individuals and partners in the local community, including carrying out joint strategic needs assessments.

PCTs are expected to respond by setting local commissioning priorities accordingly. Strategic health authorities (SHAs) are responsible for ensuring that these priorities reflect local health needs, informed by local indicators for PCTs. Performance against these indicators will be published to allow members of the public, as well as the Department and the SHAs, to assess how well or poorly their PCT is performing in relation to the local priorities it has set.

NHS: ICT

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 10 December 2007, Official Report, column 333W, on NHS: ICT, which stakeholders his Department (a) has consulted and (b) plans to consult in its informatics review; and whether he expects to publish interim findings emerging during the course of the review. [185576]

Mr. Bradshaw: To date, the informatics review has involved over 400 stakeholders during the analysis phase. These consultations have involved a broad range of stakeholders from front-line national health service organisations, including clinicians, senior managers and senior information management and technology staff; policy makers and other senior staff from within the Department; the Department's arms-length bodies; the medical professional representative and health regulatory bodies; and commercial organisations and suppliers.

During February 2008 another phase of consultative engagement will take place in each of the strategic health authorities in the form of locally-run events with input from of a large number of NHS staff to validate and further inform the review. In addition, a smaller number of members of the public and patients will be invited to offer their own perspective.

There are no current plans to publish interim findings. The recommendations from the informatics review will be finalised within the context and timeframes set for the NHS Next Stage review being led by my noble Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State (Lord Darzi), and expected to publish its final report during summer 2008.

NHS: KPMG

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Old Bexley and Sidcup (Derek Conway) on 14 January 2008, Official Report, column 1029W, on NHS: KPMG, when he expects to be in a position to publish the report by KPMG on the financial viability of the four acute hospital trusts in outer South East London. [185023]

Mr. Bradshaw: The KPMG report into the financial position of the four financially challenged trusts in South East London was commissioned in order to inform Ministers and officials as to the possible solutions for the repayment of the historic debt in the trust.

This report was produced in order to, and is still being used to, inform Ministers and officials as part of this financially challenged trust's review process and, as such, we feel the release of the report may prejudice their ability to rely on free and frank advice that is contained within.

It should also be noted that any decisions regarding these four organisations will be heavily influenced by the outcome of NHS London's "A Picture of Health" public consultation which is due to run until 7 April 2008.

In addition the report contains a detailed breakdown of the trust's financial position including valuations on the organisations assets and liabilities, which if made public may harm the organisation in future negotiations with commercial partners.

Some of these issues remain relevant for the foreseeable future and therefore we are unable to put a timescale on when the report will be published.

NHS: PFI

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the answer of 9 March 2007, Official Report, column 2288W, on the NHS: private finance initiative, if he will state, for each of the schemes (a) given the go-ahead and (b) opened, the nature of the rebuild project, including any estimate of the number of beds within the rebuilt area. [184300]

Information on the number of beds in each new build scheme could be collected only by going through each business case which would incur disproportionate cost.

NHS: Questionnaires

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many Ipsos MORI NHS questionnaires his Department sent out. [181958]

Mr. Bradshaw: In the financial year 2007-08, Ipsos MORI worked with the Department on the following questionnaires. The Department does not send out questionnaires.

| Survey/questionnaire | Number of questionnaires |
|---|---|
| General practitioner patient survey—annual | Approximately 5 million postal questionnaires sent to patients by Ipsos MORI. Approx 2 million questionnaires issued directly to patients at practices. |
| Departmental survey: what matters to staff | The Department's 'What Matters to Staff' research project included the issuing of a survey questionnaire in the summer of 2007 to a random sample of around 32,000 staff in the national health service including practice staff. |
| National patient choice survey—bimonthly | Started in May 2006. Approximately 2,353,187 questionnaires sent to patients to date by NHS trusts. |
| 18 weeks patient experience pilot | Two pilot phases: first pilot (five trusts), approximately 4,500 questionnaires sent to patients by trusts. The second pilot (20 trusts and four primary care trusts) is still underway. |

Political Impartiality

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) for what purpose his Department records the political opinions of members of his Department's staff; [177308]

(2) for what purpose his Department records the political opinions of (a) staff and (b) the public. [179323]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 10 January 2008]: The Department does not keep records of the political opinions of its staff. Civil servants are required to act in accordance with the requirements of the Civil Service Code, and section 4.4 of the Civil Service Management Code.

The Department does not keep records of the political opinions of the public. Members of the public who apply for public appointments within the jurisdiction of the Commissioner for Public Appointments are asked to complete a declaration on political activity.

Primary Care Trusts: Procurement

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which primary care trusts are (a) purchasing and (b) considering purchasing commissioning support from the 14 organisations appointed to the Framework for Procuring External Support for Commissioners. [172904]

Mr. Bradshaw: There are currently five organisations that are considering purchase of commissioning support under the FESC process. These are Ashton Leigh and Wigan PCT, North East Lincolnshire PCT, Cambridgeshire PCT, Hampshire PCT and NHS East of England.

Discussions and negotiations between Hillingdon PCT and BUPA have now been completed and a service contract was signed on 30 January 2008.

Sexual Harassment

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many complaints of (a) sexual harassment and (b) sexual discrimination have been made by staff in (i) his Department and (ii) its agencies in the most recent year for which figures are available. [184684]

Mr. Bradshaw: The number of complaints are given in the following table for the calendar year 2007. Where there has been at least one complaint but less than five the exact figure is not provided on grounds of confidentiality. Any such situation is marked <5 in the table. Nil returns are marked zero.

| Type of complaint | Departmental | NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency | Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency |
|---|---|---|---|

Urology: Nurses

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the role of specialist urology nurses in infection control. [185556]

Ann Keen [holding answer 7 February 2008]: No assessment has been carried out centrally. National health service organisations are responsible for the skill mix of their work force. They are best placed to assess the health needs of their local health community and must have the freedom to deploy staff in ways appropriate for local conditions.

The Department of Health published updated national evidence based guidelines for preventing health care associated infections in NHS hospitals in England as a supplement of the Journal of Hospital Infection in February 2006. The publication includes guidelines for preventing infections associated with short-term indwelling urethral catheters.

Wheelchairs: Finance

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how the funding element in primary care trust baseline allocations for the improvement of wheelchair provision for children and young people for 2008-09 to 2010-11 will be calculated; and whether such funding will be ring-fenced; [185740]

(2) when he will publish the new model for the delivery of community wheelchair services; [185743]

(3) how much each primary care trust spent on (a) equipment, (b) overheads and (c) staffing costs in relation to the provision of wheelchairs for children and young people in the last year for which figures are available. [185744]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: It is for primary care trusts (PCTs) to determine allocations for the improvement of wheelchair provision for children and young people taking into account local needs, the priorities set out in the national health service operating framework for 2008-09 and other national strategies. The Government recently announced, through the comprehensive spending review, that local authority funding will increase by £2.6 billion by 2010-11 and NHS funding will increase from £35 billion in 1997-98 to £110 billion in 2010-11.

Information on PCT expenditure in relation to wheelchairs for children and young people is not held centrally.

Consideration is being given to the findings and recommendations of the Transforming Community Equipment and Wheelchair services project in relation to wheelchair services with a view to confirming the next steps in due course.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Archaeology

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many representations have been received by his Department since October 2007 from (a) hon. and right hon. Members, (b) Members of the House of Lords, (c) members of the public and (d) organisations on the future of the portable antiquities scheme. [184502]

Margaret Hodge: The Museums Libraries and Archives Council (MLA) recognises that the Portable Antiquities Scheme (PAS) is of national importance. The British Museum (BM) and the MLA are fully committed to the continued success of the PAS and are working together with other stakeholders to ensure that this is achieved.

Since 1 October 2007, this Department has received (a) 131 representations from hon. and right hon. Members, (b) two representations from members of the House of Lords and (c) 109 from members of the public and other organisations on the subject of the Portable Antiquities Scheme.

For the purposes of the Department's correspondence statistics we do not differentiate between letters from the public and letters from organisations.

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will transfer the administration of the portable antiquities scheme from the Museums, Libraries and Archives Commission to the British Museum; and if he will make a statement. [184503]

Margaret Hodge: The Museums Libraries and Archives Council (MLA) recognises that the Portable Antiquities Scheme (PAS) is of national importance. The British Museum and the MLA are fully committed to the continued success of the PAS and are working together with other stakeholders to ensure that this is achieved.

The PAS is already administered by the British Museum on behalf of the MLA. Any transfer of responsibility for funding of the PAS could only follow after receipt of a joint request from both organisations concerned. My Department would then need to give full and due consideration to such a request, including the impact on the operation of both organisations and the risks involved in such a transfer. No such request has been submitted to my Department.

Archaeology: Finance

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will assess the merits of operating the portable antiquities scheme without finds advisers. [184567]

Margaret Hodge: The Museums Libraries and Archives Council (MLA) recognises that the Portable Antiquities Scheme (PAS) is of national importance. The British Museum (BM) and the MLA are fully committed to the continued success of the PAS and are working together with other stakeholders to ensure that this is achieved.

The PAS is administered by the BM on behalf of the MLA. Any decisions about the delivery of the scheme are, therefore, a matter for these organisations. It is not the intention of either the MLA or the BM to operate the PAS without finds advisers.

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many finds liaison officers (FLOs) under the Portable Antiquities Scheme there are for local authorities in the North East; and where each FLO is based. [184964]

Margaret Hodge: The Museums Libraries and Archives Council (MLA) recognises that the Portable Antiquities Scheme (PAS) is of national importance. The British Museum and the MLA are fully committed to the continued success of the PAS and are working together with other stakeholders to ensure that this is achieved.

There is one finds liaison officer for the north-east region, based at the Museum of Antiquities at the university of Newcastle.

Arts

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many people aged 16 years and over (a) from black and ethnic minority groups, (b) with a limiting disability, (c) from lower socio-economic groups and (d) from the total population did not (i) participate in arts activity and (ii) attend an arts event in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available; and what estimate his Department has made of the most recent level of arts participation in each such group. [186377]

Margaret Hodge: The DCMS 'Taking Part' survey provides national data on participation in arts activities and attendance at arts events by adults aged 16 and over. The survey has been running since 2005-06 and the latest available data are from 2006-07. Robust and consistent data relating to the priority groups are not available for years prior to the start of Taking Part.

Arts Council England South East

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport why the appropriate papers and minutes were not available in advance of the Arts Council South East meeting in December 2007. [186812]

Margaret Hodge: The appropriate papers and minutes for the 7 December 2007 meeting of the Arts Council South East Council were distributed to council members on 28 November 2007.

The Arts Council's publication scheme gives details on what information it is committed to make publicly available. The minutes of meetings of regional arts councils are published on Arts Council England's website after they have been approved by the regional council, usually at its subsequent meeting. The Arts Council publication scheme says that information will not be published where it is not in the public interest to do so. This may include papers for regional council meetings, which may contain funding recommendations or other commercially sensitive information.

The Arts Council's publication scheme is available on their website at:

www.artscouncil.org.uk/publications/publication_detail.php?sid= 1&id=413

Copies of this document have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Arts Council England South East: Komedia

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what papers will be made public relating to Komedia's appeal to the Arts Council South East regarding reductions in funding. [186813]

Margaret Hodge: Arts Council England operates at arm's length from the Government and decisions about which arts organisations to fund are entirely for them. The Arts Council has a publication scheme which is available on their website at:

www.artscouncil.org.uk/publications/publication_detail.php?sid=1&id=413

This gives details of their general policy on the information they make publicly available. Copies of this document have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Under this scheme, the Arts Council does not publish papers where it is not in the public interest to do so, which may include commercially sensitive information relating to funding decisions about individual organisations. Arts Council England, South East will not in this case be making any papers public relating to the proposals regarding reductions in funding.

Arts Council of England: Grants

Bingo

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many (a) bingo halls and (b) high street bookmakers there are; and how many there were in February 2007. [185951]

Mr. Sutcliffe: No figures are available for the number of high street bookmakers in operation in February 2007. Prior to the introduction of the Gambling Act 2005 (the 2005 Act), high street bookmakers were authorised by permits issued by magistrates courts and no information was collated centrally. The most recent estimate, made in 2003, was that there were 8,800 high street bookmakers.

Under the 2005 Act, the Gambling Commission is responsible for issuing general betting standard operating licences for high street bookmakers, and licensing authorities are responsible for bookmakers' premises licences. The Gambling Commission has so far issued 691 such operating licences.

In March 2007, the number of bingo halls holding licences was 647, of which 634 were actually operating. Under the 2005 Act, the Gambling Commission is responsible for issuing bingo operating licences for bingo halls, and licensing authorities are responsible for bingo premises licences. The Gambling Commission has so far issued 218 such operating licences.

The Gambling Commission will be responsible for collecting information on the number of bookmakers' and bingo premises licences issued by licensing authorities, but complete information is not yet available.

British Amusement Catering Trade Association

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent representations his Department has received from the British Amusement Catering Trade Association; and if he will make a statement. [186200]

Mr. Sutcliffe: A regulatory impact assessment (RIA) was published in April 2005 to accompany the Gambling Act. The RIA included an assessment of the impact of the Act on the gaming machine sector. Copies of the RIA are available in the House Library.

In addition, impact assessments were prepared for each piece of secondary legislation required to implement the Act. These are published with the related explanatory memorandum on the Office for Public Sector Information website (www.opsi.gov.uk <http://www.opsi.gov.uk>), and separately on the Department's website (www.culture.gov.uk <http://www.culture.gov.uk>)

The Department is engaged in active and continuing dialogue with the British Amusement Catering Trades Association (BACTA). Ministers and officials have had a number of meetings with BACTA officials and members in recent months to discuss issues of concern to the arcades and gaming machine sectors.

Casinos

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many adult gaming centres are in operation; and how many were in operation in February 2007. [185952]

Mr. Sutcliffe: No figures are available for the number of adult gaming centres (AGCs) in operation in February 2007. Prior to the introduction of the Gambling Act 2005 (the 2005 Act), adult gaming centres were authorised by permits issued by individual local authorities and no information was collated centrally.

Under the 2005 Act, the Gambling Commission is responsible for issuing gaming machine general operating licences for an AGC, and licensing authorities are responsible for AGC premises licences. The Gambling Commission has so far issued 634 such operating licences.

The Gambling Commission will be responsible for collecting information on the number of AGC premises licences issued by licensing authorities, but complete information is not yet available.

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the financial impact the introduction of the Gambling Act 2005 has had on adult gaming centres in England and Wales. [186202]

Mr. Sutcliffe: A regulatory impact assessment (RIA) was published in April 2005 to accompany the Gambling Act. The RIA included an assessment of the impact of the Act on the gaming machine sector. Copies of the RIA are available in the House Library.

In addition, impact assessments were prepared for each piece of secondary legislation required to implement the Act. These are published with the related explanatory memorandum on the Office for Public Sector Information website (www.opsi.gov.uk <http://www.opsi.gov.uk>), and separately on the Department's website (www.culture.gov.uk <http://www.culture.gov.uk>)

The Department is engaged in active and continuing dialogue with the British Amusement Catering Trades Association (BACTA). Ministers and officials have had a number of meetings with BACTA officials and members in recent months to discuss issues of concern to the arcades and gaming machine sectors.

Casinos: Licensing

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether problem gambling may be taken into account by a local authority considering whether to grant a casino premises licence under the Gambling Act 2005. [184638]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Gambling Act for the first time provides licensing authorities with the power to resolve not to issue further casino premises licences in their area. The licensing authority may take into account any principle or matter in making its decision, and may pass a resolution at any time.

Licensing authorities also have the discretion to grant or reject premises licence applications, including any premises licences issued in respect of casinos permitted under the Gambling Act 2005.

In reaching a decision, licensing authorities must take account of their own three year licensing policy statement and the codes of practice and guidance issued by the Gambling Commission. Licensing authorities must also take into account the three licensing objectives of the Act, which include protecting children and other vulnerable people from being harmed or exploited by gambling.

Convergence Think Tank

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport who the members are of his Convergence Think Tank; on which dates the Convergence Think Tank plans to hold its seminars; what the title is of each seminar; what the (a) names and (b) job titles are of those invited to attend each seminar; and what estimate he has made of the cost of establishing and running the Convergence Think Tank. [183448]

Andy Burnham: The Convergence Think Tank consists of a steering group of senior officials from my Department, the Department for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR) and four industry experts; Robin Foster, Chris Earnshaw, John Willis and Tess Read. There is also a strategy team of officials from my Department and BERR. Ofcom will also provide input to the think tank's work.

On 21 December we announced details of the industry experts and of the first three seminars:

1. 'Why does convergence matter?'—7 February 2008.

2. 'Competition and Innovation: content and services'—18 March 2008.

3. 'Competition and Innovation: networks'—22 April 2008.

Further seminars are planned and will be announced in due course.

Costs are currently estimated at £300,000, in addition to internal staff costs.

Around 250 invitations have been sent out to date and I will send a copy of the list of invitees to the hon. Member and arrange for copies of the list to be deposited in the Libraries of the House.

Cultural Heritage

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the role of the Chair of the World Collections Programme will be in decisions relating to requests from foreign governments and cultural institutions for the restitution of artefacts held by British museums. [184405]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 5 February 2008]: The aim of the six museums involved in the World Collections Programme and consequently that of the Chair is to develop their connections with other collections around the world. The role does not carry any decision-making responsibilities in relation to restitution requests for items in national collections.

Digital Broadcasting: Television

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what performance indicators the BBC have established for evaluating the value for money of its funding of Digital UK. [184272]

Andy Burnham: This is a matter for the BBC. I have, therefore, asked the BBC's Director of Finance to consider the question raised by the hon. Member and to write to him direct. Copies of the reply will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the results were of Digital UK's monthly external mystery shopping of its call centres in each month since August 2007. [184273]

Andy Burnham: Digital UK (DUK) does not conduct monthly external mystery shopping assessments of its UK call centre in Scotland. Instead, to date, DUK has commissioned GfK Mystery Shopping to carry out two waves of 50 assessments of their customer call centre in September and in October 2007, which were designed to test the call centre both in advance of the first Whitehaven/Copeland digital switchover and up to and including the switchover date itself on 17 October, when a higher volume of calls had been expected. The results of the first wave of assessments carried out in September are summarised as follows:

92 per cent. of agents appeared knowledgeable in relation to the inquiries overall.

Switchover dates when provided were given accurately. A number of callers (17) were not provided with switchover dates in their areas. These occasions were generally during call scenarios where the provision of a switchover date was not imperative.

86 per cent. of callers had a more positive view of Digital UK after the call and 30 per cent. of callers rated the service they received as excellent.

The results of the assessment carried out between 15 and 17 October in the final week leading up to and including the first Whitehaven/Copeland switchover date itself are summarised as follows:

88 per cent. of agents appeared knowledgeable in relation to the inquiries.

90 per cent. of callers had a more positive view of Digital UK after the call and 40 per cent. of callers rated the service they received as excellent.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether the receiver equipment provided as part of the digital switchover help scheme includes a talking electronic programme guide to enable access to channels and programmes by blind and partially sighted people; and if he will make a statement. [184776]

Andy Burnham: The equipment provided by the Digital Switchover Help Scheme so far has not included a talking Electronic Programme Guide (EPG). However, we have had discussions on this issue with the RNIB and it is now under consideration by the Emerging Technologies Group, which has been set up to consider and recommend technological updates to equipment provided by the scheme.

Digital Switchover Help Scheme: Copeland

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many of those in the Copeland area who have received assistance from the digital switchover targeted assistance scheme have opted for (a) satellite, (b) cable, (c) television via a telephone line and (d) freeview. [184275]

Andy Burnham: The figures are as follows:

| | Number |
|---|---|
| (a) | 573 |
| (b) | [1]— |
| (c) | 0 |
| (d) | 2,043 |

[1] Not available in Copeland.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 22 January 2008, Official Report, column 1809W, on digital switchover help scheme: Copeland, what targets were set for the expected response rate from households in Copeland eligible for assistance from the digital switchover targeted assistance scheme. [184471]

Andy Burnham: No response rate target was set for the Digital Switchover Help Scheme during the Copeland switchover.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 22 January 2008, Official Report, column 1809W, on digital switchover help scheme: Copeland, what estimate was made of the number of people in Copeland who qualify for the digital switchover targeted assistance scheme who are registered blind or partially sighted and qualify on grounds of registration rather than on grounds of age or entitlement to disability benefits; and what efforts were made to contact them. [184473]

Andy Burnham: A total 202 individuals were identified as registered blind or partially sighted people living in the Copeland area. Of these, seven individuals only qualified solely on grounds of being either registered blind or registered partially sighted. All seven individuals were contacted by the Help Scheme operator and invited to make claims.

In addition to the communications issued by Digital UK to all residents, the West Cumbria Society of the Blind contacted approximately 300 of their members in and around the Copeland area to draw attention to the assistance available from the Help Scheme.

Digital Switchover Help Scheme: Finance

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what estimate he has made of the average cost of upgrading a home to receive digital television as part of the targeted assistance programme; and if he will make a statement; [184257]

(2) what the (a) best case and (b) worst case modelling was for the cost of the digital switchover targeted assistance scheme; [184270]

(3) if he will provide a full budgetary breakdown of the £603 million ring-fenced within the BBC licence fee settlement to pay for the digital switchover targeted assistance scheme; [184274]

(4) how much of the £603 million funding for the targeted assistance scheme has been allocated for contingencies. [184468]

Andy Burnham: This information is commercially sensitive while the BBC conducts a procurement process to identify a contractor to deliver the digital switchover help scheme. Once this process is complete, I will place a report in the Libraries of both Houses which sets out the methodology and assumptions used to develop a model to estimate the costs of the help scheme.

Digital UK: Advertising

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much has been spent on advertising by digital UK, broken down by region; and how much will be spent on advertising in each region in each year until 2012. [183846]

Andy Burnham: I have asked Digital UK to write to the hon. Member with the information requested. I will arrange for copies of the letter to be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Digital UK: Hearing Impaired

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether there are plans to set up an email helpline for Digital UK to enable those with hearing difficulties to make enquiries on digital switchover. [183847]

Andy Burnham: Digital UK intends to introduce a public e-mail contact channel in autumn 2008. The RNID has advised that e-mail is an accessible communications channel for deaf and hard of hearing people and a specific address for them would not be required. Digital UK's customer contact centre staff have undergone disability awareness training and are able to answer questions relating to all aspects of digital switchover.

Digital UK promotes its text service number 0845 234 0380 on all information leaflets, including door-drops sent to every household in a TV region in the build up to switchover. In addition their leaflets are available on request in large print, Braille and other accessible formats on 0845 234 0388 or through their general call centre number on 08456 50 50 50.

As digital switchover approaches in a region, Digital UK will work through organisations which represent deaf people at a local or regional level to reach those who may need extra help to switch. This was the approach taken in the Copeland area.

RNID and TAG, a consortium of national organisations working on behalf of deaf people to promote equality of access to broadcasting and other electronic communications, are members of the Consumer Expert Group which advises Government and Digital UK on consumer issues relating to digital switchover.

Dwain Chambers

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether he has had discussions on the decision to allow Dwain Chambers to compete following his drugs ban; and if he will make a statement. [185750]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Secretary of State has not had any discussions on the decision to allow Dwain Chambers to compete following his ban for failing a drug-test.

Selection of athletes is a matter for the National Governing Bodies (NGBs) of sport, in this case UK Athletics, in line with the rules set out in the World Anti-Doping Code.

European Year of Intercultural Dialogue

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans he has to mark 2008 as the European Year of Intercultural Dialogue. [185373]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 7 February 2008]: The European Year of Intercultural Dialogue 2008, for which my Department is in the lead, provides an opportunity to highlight the UK's achievements in encouraging dialogue and to make further progress. The launch event, hosted by the Slovenian EU presidency in Ljubljana on 6-7 January, was attended by an official from my Department and also by the British Council and other UK organisations.

We have appointed EUCLID, the UK's Cultural Contact Point for the EU Culture Programme, as the UK's National Co-ordinating Body for the Year. We have asked EUCLID to draw up a programme of events. The major events planned so far are the UK launch event for the year in Manchester in early March and a conference in Liverpool on 1-3 May on "Intercultural Cities".

I am also very pleased that Liverpool's project, "Intercultural City", which forms part of Liverpool's Capital of Culture programme, has been chosen by the European Commission as the representative UK national project for the year, and will receive funding from the Commission. This project will last throughout 2008.

We want to encourage all organisations which are planning projects involving intercultural dialogue to apply to register them on the EUCLID website

Fair Trade Initiative

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what his Department's policy is on the use of fair trade goods (a) in staff catering facilities and (b) at official departmental functions and meetings; and if he will make a statement. [183880]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Staff have the opportunity to purchase fair trade tea, coffee and confectionery in the Department's staff restaurant.

Fair Trade tea and coffee is supplied at official functions and meetings.

Film

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will make a statement on his film policy. [183539]

Margaret Hodge: The Government aim to help create a sustainable, stable and successful film industry that brings both cultural and economic benefits to the UK.

To achieve this, the UK Government will continue to direct financial support for the production of culturally British films.

The main forms of funding support are the new film tax relief, and grant in aid/lottery funding distributed through a number of organisations including the UK Film Council.

Since the establishment of the UK Film Council in 2000, over 100 feature films have been supported, as have around 300 short films and about 400 script development projects. An estimated 34 million people have seen these films in UK cinemas.

The New Cinema Fund was established to support creative innovation and new talent, and has been involved with such award winning films as Ken Loach's The Wind that Shakes the Barley (Palme d'Or, Cannes) and Kevin MacDonald's Touching the Void (BAFTA, Best British Film).

Gambling

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the basis was for the decision to introduce B3A machines under the auspices of the Gambling Act 2005; and what evidential factors were considered when deciding to introduce the machines. [185544]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The introduction of the category B3A gaming machine under the Gambling Act 2005 was intended to assist non-commercial clubs, such as the Royal British Legion and Miners' Welfare Institutes, with their fundraising efforts.

The background to the introduction of the B3A category was included in the regulatory impact assessment and explanatory memorandum which accompanied the Categories of Gaming Machine Regulations 2007. The regulations can be accessed at:

www.opsi.gov.uk/si/si2007/em/uksiem_20072158_en.pdf

Non-commercial clubs can make the B3A gaming machine available as part of their entitlement to category B machines. The B3A gaming machine has a maximum prize of £500 and must not allow the user to engage in any form of gambling apart from a lottery. At least 20 per cent. of the proceeds from the machine must be used in support of the club's activities, which must be conducted for charitable, sporting, cultural or not-for-profit purposes.

Historic Buildings: Conservation

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps the Government has taken to promote the preservation of historic buildings in the West Midlands since 1997. [181578]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 7 February 2008]: English Heritage has a statutory role in the planning process and provides expert advice and guidance on the maintenance, care and enhancement of historic buildings, monuments and places in the West Midlands. It works with owners, trusts and local authorities as well as regional and sub-regional strategic partners to find solutions for historic buildings at risk in the region.

Government funding for the historic environment is mostly provided through English Heritage. Since 1997[1], English Heritage has provided £15.2 million in grants for the historic environment in the West Midlands. In addition, it has contributed towards the £20 million provided, with the Heritage Lottery Fund, to listed places of worship in the West Midlands through the Joint Places of Worship Grant Fund.

In addition to English Heritage, between April 2002 and March 2007, £4.8 million has been provided to listed places of worship in the West Midlands through the Listed Places of Worship Grant Scheme.

Between 1997 and 2007, the Heritage Lottery Fund has provided awards worth £185.5 million to the built environment in the West Midlands (including awards to activities such as access, learning, participation and enjoyment of historic buildings).

[1] Figures for period 1998-08. Figures are not available for the period 1997-98.

Historic Buildings: Plymouth

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what progress has been made by English Heritage in reaching agreement with Plymouth City Council on the listing of the Civic Centre and its future development. [186102]

Margaret Hodge: English Heritage met Plymouth city council in summer 2007 and offered its expertise to help resolve the future of the civic centre. English Heritage remains keen to help negotiate proposals which balance the qualities of the building with the wider regeneration aspirations for the city.

Jacqueline Asafu-Adjaye

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether Ms Jacqueline Asafu-Adjaye is employed by his Department. [184843]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Jacqueline Asafu-Adjaye is employed by DCMS.

Licensing Act 2003

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the timetable is of each element of the assorted evaluation of the impact of the Licensing Act 2003. [184639]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Government's evaluation of the impact of the Licensing Act 2003 consists of a number of different projects. A report drawing together the main conclusions from these strands will be published shortly.

The main elements of the evaluation are:

Scrutiny Councils Initiative: a final report was issued in July 2006. The Scrutiny Councils have been asked recently whether there are any updates on the position reported in 2006.

Independent Fees Panel Report: published 25 January 2007.

Review of Statutory Guidance: completed and revised guidance was issued on 28 June 2007.

Live Music Forum Report: published 3 July 2007.

Alcohol, Entertainment and Late Night Refreshment Licensing Statistical Bulletin: published on 8 November 2007.

DCMS Simplification Plan: the Department's second Simplification Plan was published on 4 December 2007.

Closing times data: commissioned by DCMS from CGA Strategy Ltd. to analyse actual Saturday closing times—data collected and to be published shortly.

The impact of the Licensing Act 2003 on levels of crime and disorder: the Home Office expects to publish its report shortly.

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether (a) police authorities, (b) police forces, (c) magistrates and the judiciary, (d) the Association of Chief Police Officers and (e) local authorities, have been formally consulted as part of the evaluation of the impact of the Licensing Act 2003. [184640]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The evaluation brings together the various projects which were established to monitor the impact of the Licensing Act 2003. Those projects would have involved a variety of stakeholders. For example, the Scrutiny Council initiative involved 10 local authorities, but also drew on their wider licensing forums and in some cases the experiences of authorities in their surrounding areas. Similarly, the Justices Clerks Society, Local Authorities Coordinators of Regulatory Services and the Association of Chief Police Officers were members of the stakeholder group which helped review the statutory guidance to licensing authorities and several police forces and local authorities responded to the consultation on that review.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. McLoughlin: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he expects to reply substantively to the letter of 4 December 2007 from the hon. Member for West Derbyshire concerning his constituent, Mr. B. Mallalieu. [185762]

Andy Burnham: The original case referred to in the letter of 4 December 2007 from the right hon. member for West Derbyshire was transferred to the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR) on the 26 November 2007. Our records show that a letter informing the right hon. member of this transfer was dispatched at the time. I apologise for the delay in responding to the right hon. Member's follow-up letter of 4 December. A reply has now been sent.

National Lottery: Grants

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will estimate the amount of funding from the national lottery (a) per head of population and (b) in total for each local authority area in each of the last five years. [186453]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The total value of lottery grants awarded since the national lottery began to operate in November 1994 is £19,733,936,681. This figure is derived from the DCMS lottery grants database. This represents £325.71 per head of population using a population figure of 60,587,300. The population figures used are the mid-2006 estimates of the Office of National Statistics.

The totals awarded in each local authority area in each of the last five years are set out in the following tables. These will be placed in both Libraries of the House.

The Department's Lottery Grants Database is searchable at:

www.lottery.culture.gov.uk

and uses information supplied by the lottery distributors.

National Lottery: Southend on Sea

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much was paid in grants from lottery funds to organisations in Southend-on-Sea (a) in cash terms and (b) as a percentage of the Essex total in each of the last three years. [186406]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Since the national lottery began to operate in November 1994, Southend-on-Sea has received 283 grants with a total award value of £14,712,191. In the same time period Essex has received 4,679 grants with a total value of £258,522,025.

The figures for each of the last three completed financial years are given in the following table.

| | Financial year | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| | 2004-05 | 2005-06 | 2006-07 |
| Essex total award value (£) | 19,804,859 | 19,950,420 | 14,018,349 |
| Southend-on-Sea total award value (£) | 579,121 | 729,384 | 1,426,020 |
| Southend-on-Sea percentage of Essex total award value | 2.92 | 3.66 | 10.17 |

The search is location specific. That is the figure includes only grants that are specific to location in the region and exclude grants that might have gone to addresses in the region, but are not otherwise related to it. The Department's lottery grants database is searchable at www.lottery.culture.gov.uk and uses information supplied by the lottery distributors.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) how much was paid in each prize awarded by the national lottery to individuals who purchased lottery tickets in Southend-on-Sea in each of the last three years for which information is available; [186407]

(2) how much was paid in each prize awarded by the national lottery to individuals who reside in Southend-on-Sea in each of the last three years for which information is available. [186408]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information requested is not available. The national lottery operator, Camelot, does not collect prize payout information on a constituency or postcode basis, nor does it collect the addresses of winners who win prizes of less than £500.

Furthermore, Camelot does not collect ticket purchase information on individual retail customers, nor does it collect sales information on a constituency, district, county or postcode basis. However, an analysis of sales data by postcode area is available in the Libraries of both Houses and provides information up to 2004.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the value of unclaimed national lottery winnings is (a) in total and (b) arising from tickets sold in Southend-on-Sea since the national lottery began; and how such unclaimed money is managed. [186413]

Mr. Sutcliffe: From the national lottery's launch in 1994 to 11 February 2008, there has been a total of £978.8 million in unclaimed prizes. The national lottery operator, Camelot, does not collect a total value of unclaimed prizes in relation to any constituency, district, county or postcode.

Amounts in respect of unclaimed prizes are paid to the Good Causes via the National Lottery Distribution Fund (NLDF) or Olympic Lottery Distribution Fund (OLDF) as appropriate, 180 days after the relevant draw, 180 days after the end of the relevant scratchcard game or 180 days after the date on which the Interactive Instant Win Game was played. The unclaimed prize money is held in Player Trust Accounts for the 180-day period. Camelot is required to publicise larger unclaimed prizes in the area where the ticket was purchased during this time in order to encourage winners to come forward. This has included raising public awareness through television, radio and other creative publicity initiatives.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the largest amount of national lottery money is that has been awarded to (a) an organisation and (b) an organisation in Southend-on-Sea since the lottery was established; and if he will make a statement. [186415]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The largest single grant was awarded to the New Millennium Experience Company. The grant for £604 million was awarded in November 1997.

The largest grant awarded in the local authority area of Southend-on-Sea was awarded by the Heritage Lottery Fund in March 1999. The recipient was the Southend-on-Sea borough council and the grant of £1.5 million was used for the Southend Cliff Gardens Project.

The Department's Lottery Grants Database is searchable at:

www.lottery.culture.gov.uk

and uses information supplied by the lottery distributors.

Obesity

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what his Department's target is for reducing obesity; and what baseline figure was set. [185255]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Last year's comprehensive spending review set a new public service agreement (PSA) to "Improve the Health and Wellbeing of Children and Young People", which is co-owned by the Department of Health and the Department for Children, Schools and Families.

As part of this new PSA, there is the commitment to reduce the rate of increase in obesity among children under 11 as a first step towards a long-term national ambition by 2020 to reduce the proportion of overweight and obese children to 2000 levels in the context of tackling obesity across the population.

The baseline figure is still in development and will be confirmed by the Department of Health by April this year.

The Department for Culture, Media and Sport remains a key partner in delivery of this commitment.

Portable Antiquities Scheme: Finance

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the effect a real terms reduction in funding for the Portable Antiquities Scheme would have on the reporting of treasure finds in England and Wales; and if he will make a statement. [186391]

Margaret Hodge: The Museums Libraries and Archives Council (MLA) recognises that the Portable Antiquities Scheme (PAS) is of national importance. The British Museum and the MLA are fully committed to the continued success of the PAS and are working together with other stakeholders to ensure that this is achieved.

The PAS is funded by the Museums, Libraries and Archives Council (MLA) and administered on their behalf by the British Museum (BM). Any assessment regarding the scheme is therefore a matter for the MLA and the BM. The contribution of the PAS to the reporting of treasure finds is recognised and will be a factor in ensuring the scheme's future strength.

Public Libraries: Standards

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what progress has been made in reducing the striking variation in the standard of library services in different parts of the country identified in his Department's 2003 publication Framework for the Future: Libraries, Learning and Information in the Next Decade. [186949]

Margaret Hodge: At a national level my Department continues to advocate for the valuable role libraries play in every community, and to share best practice within the sector to raise national standards. DCMS does not, however, individually manage public library authorities. Libraries are a locally managed and delivered service, and therefore subject to local funding decisions.

In 2004-05 only 55 per cent. of authorities passed more than five Public Library Service Standards (PLSS). This figure rose to 70 per cent. by 2006-07, indicating an overall improvement in national service quality. Among the authorities that have improved most notably are Oldham and the East Riding of Yorkshire—having each passed only three out of 10 Standards in 2004-05, they now pass nine. Improvements in library opening hours have been particularly significant since the introduction of PLSS 2, which challenges authorities to open their libraries for 128 hours per 1,000 population: since the publication of Framework for the Future in 2003 the number of libraries open for more than 60 hours per week has more than doubled, from 42 to 97.

In implementing the Government's strategy for libraries, Framework for the Future, the Museums, Libraries and Archives Council (MLA) has introduced a number of programmes to promote improvement in the public library service. 661 people have completed MLA leadership training, ensuring effective delivery of library services into the future. 16 authorities have benefited from the experience and support offered through their successful peer review programme, helping them to improve services.

The MLA also manages The People's Network Service, at:

www.peoplesnetwork.gov.uk.

Launched in October 2005 the network presents a national online presence for public libraries, offering 24 hour access to innovative services, plus campaigns and features.

MLA is currently developing a public library strategy for 2008-11 that will build on the successful delivery of Framework for the Future.

Regional Arts Councils: Public Participation

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what requirement there is for Arts Council regional meetings to be held in public; and if he will make a statement. [186814]

Margaret Hodge: Currently there is no requirement for Arts Council regional meetings to be held in public and meetings of both the national and the regional arts councils are not open to members of the public. However, the Arts Council publication scheme sets out the information it is committed to make publicly available, which includes the minutes of national council and regional council meetings. The Arts Council's publication scheme is available on the website:

www.artscouncil.org.uk/publications/publication_detail.php?sid=1&id=413

Copies of this document have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Safeguarding Vulnerable Groups Act 2006

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the potential effect of the Safeguarding Vulnerable Groups Act 2006 on open age sport. [185748]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department for Children Schools and Families, the Department of Health and the Home Office share responsibility for the implementation of the Safeguarding Vulnerable Groups Act 2006.

We are aware that these Departments received feedback on the issue of under 18-year-olds playing in open age sport from a wide range of stakeholders in the sports sector during the course of last year. We are also aware that they have no intention to make any activity a regulated activity unnecessarily, particularly if that means children could be denied access to a wide range of sporting activity.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport which ministerial colleagues he consulted over the consequences for sport of the Safeguarding Vulnerable Groups Act 2006. [185749]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department for Children Schools and Families, the Department of Health and the Home Office share responsibility for the Independent Safeguarding Authority scheme and the implementation of the Safeguarding Vulnerable Groups Act 2006.

DCMS was involved in the consultation and continues to be involved in discussion on the implementation of the scheme and its impact on the sports sector.

Sexual Harassment

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many complaints of (a) sexual harassment and (b) sexual discrimination have been made by staff in (i) his Department and (ii) its agencies in the most recent year for which figures are available. [184688]

Mr. Sutcliffe: There have been no cases of sexual harassment or sexual discrimination in DCMS since 2002. There have been four cases in the Royal Parks since 1991—two cases of sexual discrimination and two cases of sexual harassment.

Shropshire

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the value was of each grant provided by his Department, its associated agencies and non-departmental public bodies to (a) Shrewsbury and Atcham borough council, (b) Shropshire county council and (c) Telford and the Wrekin borough council in (i) 2006-07 and (ii) 2007-08; and what grants have been planned for 2008-09. [184105]

Margaret Hodge: DCMS has provided no direct grants to these local authorities in the financial years 2006-07, 2007-08 and has no plans to do so in 2008-09. Information on grants provided by the Department's agencies and non-departmental public bodies is held by the bodies themselves. This information is not held centrally.

Sports

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of progress towards his Department's public service agreement target to increase significantly the take-up of sports opportunities by users from priority groups; and if he will make a statement. [1] [185845]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The DCMS 'Taking Part' survey is being used to measure progress against this public service agreement.

The most recent results were published in December 2007 and are in the tables. They provide a comparison between the baseline figures and the second year results of the survey.

The moderate level intensity sport indicator is defined as participation in moderate intensity level sport for at least 30 minutes on three separate days during the past week.

| Priority group | Year 1 | Percentage Year 2 |
|---|---|---|
| Black and minority ethnic | 19.2 | 19.6 |
| Limiting disability | 9.5 | 9.4 |
| Lower socio-economic | 15.2 | 15.3 |
| Women | 18.5 | 18.3 |
| All adults | 20.9 | 21.5 |

The active sport indicator is defined as at least one occasion of participation in an active sport during the past four weeks.

| Priority group | Year 1 | Percentage Year 2 |
|---|---|---|
| Black and minority ethnic | 53.3 | 51.9 |
| Limiting disability | 32.3 | 31.7 |
| Lower socio-economic | 43.4 | 42.2 |
| Women | 47.7 | 46.2 |
| All adults | 53.7 | 53.4 |

Sport England have been working to increase the number of participants in sport through a range of interventions across sports organisations at a regional and local level; including national governing bodies, county sports partnerships, community sports networks, sports clubs and others. Since 1997-98, over £4 billion has been invested through Government and the lottery on sport in England.

Participation will be an integral part of Sport England's new strategy to build a world-class community sport infrastructure.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many people aged 16 and above (a) from black and ethnic minority groups, (b) with a limiting disability, (c) from low socio-economic groups, (d) who are women and (e) in total did not participate in any form of sport (i) in each year for which figures are available and (ii) in the latest period for which figures are available. [185846]

Mr. Sutcliffe: According to the Taking Part survey, the following data represents those who did not participate in any sport or recreational physical activity during the preceding 12 months.

|---|---|---|---|---|

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many people aged 16 and over (a) from black and ethnic minority groups, (b) with a limiting disability, (c) from low socio-economic groups, (d) who are women and (e) in total (i) participated in active sports at least 12 times a year and (ii) engaged in at least 30 minutes of moderate intensity level sport at least three times a week (A) in each year for which figures are available and (B) at the latest date for which figures are available. [2] [185847]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The DCMS 'Taking Part' survey provides national data on sports participation.

The most recent results were published in December 2007 and are in the tables. They provide a comparison between the baseline figures and the second year results of the survey.

Sports: Greater London

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many sports clubs are registered in each London borough. [185971]

Mr. Sutcliffe: DCMS does not hold the information requested and there is no central register for such clubs.

Sports: Young People

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what mechanisms are in place to provide support to outstanding young athletes in relation to elite sport. [185320]

Andy Burnham: For our most talented athletes, UK Sport, the Government's high performance sports agency, operates a World Class Performance Programme supporting our aspiring Olympic and Paralympic athletes at podium, development and talent levels.

The Talented Athlete Scholarship Scheme (TASS) and TASS 2012 Scholarships aim to bridge the gap between junior representative sport and world class levels for athletes typically aged between 12 and 25. This provides funding to meet the costs of providing talented athletes with a package of support services, including coaching, sports medicine, conditioning and lifestyle management.

Telephone Calls: Ofcom

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he expects Ofcom to issue its review of charges of calls made to 0870 numbers; what the reasons are for the time taken to complete the review; and if he will make a statement. [184308]

Malcolm Wicks: I have been asked to reply.

The matter raised is the responsibility of the independent regulator, the Office of Communications (Ofcom), which is accountable to Parliament rather than Ministers. Accordingly, I have asked the chief executive of Ofcom to reply directly to the hon. Member. Copies of the chief executive's letter will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

2. [Official Report, 7 March 2008, Vol. 472, c. 28MC.]

Television: Disability Aids

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will take steps to encourage digital television (a) broadcasters and (b) equipment providers to incorporate talking menus and programme guides in digital television (i) broadcasts and (ii) receivers for blind and partially sighted people. [185540]

Andy Burnham: Ofcom is responsible for promoting the development of electronic programme guides (EPGs) accessible to people with visual impairments. Ofcom's codes of practice on access services and EPGs already require broadcasters to supply relevant data, and EPG providers to make their EPGs usable by people with visual and hearing impairments, so far as practicable.

There is already one specialised digital receiver available that uses broadcast EPG data to provide a speaking EPG. Ofcom continues to encourage equipment manufacturers and service providers to make available mainstream digital receivers with speaking EPGs.

Tourism: East of England

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate he has made of the average expenditure per head by overseas tourists visiting (a) the Eastern region and (b) Peterborough city council area in each of the last five years. [186193]

Margaret Hodge: The table shows the average expenditure per visit by overseas residents visiting the (a) East of England and (b) Peterborough in the last five years for which data is available.

Tourism: Historic Buildings

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps the Government has taken to encourage the public to visit historic buildings since 1997. [181579]

Mr. Sutcliffe: This Department and its sponsored bodies have been working with other historic environment organisations, including the National Trust, the Historic Houses Association and Civic Trust to encourage the public to visit historic buildings in the following ways:

Heritage Open Days—over a million people now participate in this annual English Heritage funded scheme run by the Civic Trust. A record 3,500 properties across the country opened their doors for free as part of Heritage Open Days last September. In 2006, Heritage Open Days attracted more than 1 million visitors with support from an army of 30,000 volunteers, making Heritage Open Days England's largest voluntary cultural event. Evaluation shows that this free access event significantly increases access to the historic environment by people on lower incomes.

Festival of History—this is the UK's biggest historical event, and is organised by English Heritage. It brings together the country's leading performers, interpreters and historians in a celebration of over 2,000 years of England's history. This annual event attracted over 20,000 people in 2007.

Great British Heritage Pass—English Heritage and VisitBritain are partners in this scheme which is marketed by VisitBritain to inbound visitors.

Property Development Programme—English Heritage manages over 400 properties that attract around 11 million visitors every year. 665,000 people have demonstrated their commitment to caring for these historic buildings by becoming members of English Heritage. Since 2005 English Heritage has invested approximately £21 million in improving visitor facilities at its properties and in creating new interpretation schemes. 5.3 million people visited English Heritage staffed properties in 2006-07.

Free Access—in 2003 English Heritage introduced free access for children and young people under 19 with an accompanying adult who is a member. Members can take up to six children under 19 into its 400 properties without charge, and entry is free to all children under five.

Learning—English Heritage hosted 481,000 free educational visits in 2006-07 and, in response to market demand, hosted facilitated visits, known as Discovery Visits, at 70 sites across the country. The scheme was marketed to every school in England and 10,400 children took part in the first year. Additionally, 418 events were staged at English Heritage sites designed to attract and entertain all sections of the community. English Heritage has also expanded its events programme, 'Tours Through Time', which is aimed at adult learners.

Outreach work—English Heritage outreach programmes demonstrate the potential of the historic environment for supporting social inclusion, and projects are developed with communities and groups all around the country. In 2006-07, 85 outreach projects were held attracting nearly 49,500 people who had never participated before. English Heritage has also allocated £400,000 per annum in National Capacity Building Grants for the period 2006-08 for historic environment organisations to develop their ability to engage with under-represented groups.

Television—research has shown that television programmes play a strong role in attracting visitors to English Heritage sites. English Heritage experts have been involved in the Time Team programme for many years and continue to contribute to new programming as appropriate. In particular, English Heritage has partnered the BBC TV Restoration series with website links, point launch promotion, publishing collaborations and, where appropriate, English Heritage has grant-aided eligible properties featured in the series.

Film—since 1997 English Heritage has positioned its buildings as a first port of call for the film and television industry both across the world and within the UK. English Heritage's success has brought well publicised associations with feature films such as Mrs. Brown, Notting Hill, and Elizabeth: The Golden Years. It has been proven that working proactively with this industry cannot only bring more visitors through the doors but also allows a large audience to become more familiar with the properties overall.

Access Conditions for English Heritage Grants—in most cases English Heritage grants are offered on condition that a guaranteed level of public access is provided for a minimum of 10 years after the grant-aided work has been completed.

English Heritage commissioned research in 2003 which indicated that 29 per cent. of people from ethnic minorities had visited a historic building or garden in the last 12 months compared to the national average of 40 per cent. We have set a target for heritage organisations to increase the number of adults and young people aged 16 and above from priority groups visiting designated historic environment sites by 3 per cent. by 2008. We expect to report on whether this has been achieved in December 2008.

Tribunals, Courts and Enforcement Act 2007

Mark Fisher: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans he has to make regulations under powers granted him by section 134 (9) of the Tribunals, Courts and Enforcement Act 2007. [185686]

Margaret Hodge: I am currently considering the responses to the public consultation on the content of the Regulations, which closed on 21 December. The regulations will be laid before Parliament once we have concluded our consideration and discussed the outcome with the devolved Administrations.

Video Games: Violence

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what research his Department has conducted on the effects on behaviour of depictions of (a) knife use and (b) other violence in computer games. [185200]

Mr. Sutcliffe: In 2005 we published a review of research on the impact of violent computer games on young people. The review examined the academic literature relating to violent video games and violent behaviour. It is available on our website at:

http://www.culture.gov.uk/NR/rdonlyres/3093C6FE-5932-41D5-B901-2BAF02810AC9/0/research_vcg.pdf

copies were placed in the Library on 28 February 2005. 18 pieces of research were key in this review, but the reviewers also took into account a further total of 69 pieces of work. It ensured that all the key studies examining the relationship between playing violent computer games and real-world violence in young people between 1985 and 2004 were covered.

None of the research specifically considers the depiction of knives; it does not differentiate between that and other types of violence.

VisitBritain

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much (a) VisitBritain and (b) VisitEngland spent on advertising overseas in each financial year since they were established. [186239]

Margaret Hodge: The advertising, promotion, and marketing of both Britain and England in overseas and domestic markets is the responsibility of VisitBritain. In the marketing of England, VisitBritain is advised by VisitEngland (which was known as the England Marketing Advisory Board until October 2007). There was no overseas advertising or other marketing spending on England until 2005-06, other than as part of VisitBritain's wider marketing of Britain. In March 2005, the specific marketing of England in a number of established European markets was agreed between DCMS, VisitBritain, and the Devolved Administrations.

VisitBritain's spending on direct marketing costs (not including staff and other marketing expenditure), has been as follows since its establishment:

| | | £ million |
|---|---|---|
| | Britain International | England International |
| 2003-04 | 16.93 | — |
| 2004-05 | 16.90 | — |
| 2005-06 | 16.84 | 2.01 |
| 2006-07 | 17.24 | 2.04 |

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much of VisitBritain's grant-in-aid has been allocated to promoting (a) Britain and (b) England overseas in each of the next three years. [186236]

Margaret Hodge: VisitBritain presently spends £35.5 million a year on the overseas marketing of Britain, and £14.4 million a year on the marketing of England at home and overseas.

The split of VisitBritain's allocated funding for future years is a matter which is currently being considered as part of the Strategic Review of tourism led by VisitBritain. I have ensured that the devolved Administrations have the opportunity to fully participate in that process, and in the review's wider work of improving the impact of the £350 million a year which the public sector invests in supporting tourism.

WiFi

Mr. Kemp: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps the Government have taken to provide wi-fi access to the general public in public buildings; what steps are planned up to 2010; and if he will make a statement. [173566]

Malcolm Wicks: I have been asked to reply.

There is no Government policy on provision of wireless access to the public in public buildings and there are no steps planned between now and 2010 to provide wireless access to the general public in public buildings. However, some public authorities make wireless access available to the public in their buildings, for example, 23 per cent. of library services currently deliver wireless access, with 42 per cent. actively planning to offer wireless access in future. Most of these services are providing wireless access free of charge to the end user. This is a matter for public authorities individually.

Youth Sport Trust: Finance

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much funding the Youth Sports Trust has received from his Department in each of the last three years; and whether such funding has been targeted to particular programmes. [184614]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Youth Sport Trust (YST) is an important partner in the delivery of sport for children and young people and as such receives funding direct from Sport England.

Sport England advise that YST has been awarded the following amounts for particular programmes in each of the last three years:

| | | | £ |
|---|---|---|---|
| Name: | 2005-06 | 2006-07 | 2007-08 |
| Step into Sport | 2,044,500 | 1,972,178 | 1,972,168 |
| Club Links | 490,000 | 524,750 | 489,750 |
| Respect Athlete Mentoring Project | n/a | 63,500 | 242,500 |

In 2006-07 Sport England also allocated £15,000 to the YST to support the National Competition Framework and £23,000 to support the running of the School Sport Partnerships Conference.

Sport England has also funded the National Council for School Sport which is a separate entity from the YST.

TREASURY

Average Earnings

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average wage has been in (a) Cornwall, (b) the South West and (c) England for each year since 1979. [186627]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 18 February 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking what the average wage has been in (a) Cornwall, (b) the South West and (c) England for each year since 1979. (186627)

Since 1997, levels of earnings are estimated from the Annual Survey of Hours and Earnings (ASHE), and are provided for all full time employees on adult rates of pay whose pay for the survey period was not affected by absence. Prior to 1997, levels of earnings are estimated from the New Earnings Survey (NES) and are provided for all full time employees either on adult rates of pay, or for years prior to 1984, aged 21 and over (male) or 18 and over (female), whose pay for the survey period was not affected by absence.

I attach a table showing Gross Weekly Pay for Cornwall, the South West and England, for all full-time employees, for the years 1979-2007.

The ASHE, carried out in April each year, is the most comprehensive source of earnings information in the United Kingdom.

Bank Notes: Scotland

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the results of the consultation on banknote issue arrangements in Scotland and Northern Ireland were; and if he will make a statement; [185637]

(2) what recent discussions he has had with Scottish banks regarding the issuing of Scottish banknotes; [185638]

(3) when he last met representatives of the Scottish banking industry; and if he will make a statement; [185639]

(4) when he last met (a) representative bodies from (i) Scotland and (ii) Northern Ireland note-issuing banks and (b) the Bank of England to discuss the consultation on banknote issue arrangements in Scotland and Northern Ireland. [185640]

Angela Eagle: Treasury Ministers and officials have meetings with a wide variety of organisations in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such meetings.

As part of the consultation document on financial stability and depositor protection released last week, the Government reaffirmed their intentions to legislate to strengthen the arrangements underpinning banknote issuance by commercial banks in Scotland and Northern Ireland. It also plans to bring the law in Scotland relating to the treatment of cheques into line with that in the rest of the United Kingdom. The Government intend to take forward these proposals within the legislation on banking reform provided it remains appropriate in light of the consultation launched last week.

Child Benefit

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many child benefit payments have been backdated by more than three months from the date of the initial application in each of the last three years; [186731]

(2) how many child benefit claims were made (a) within and (b) after more than three months of a child's birth in the last 12 months. [186733]

Jane Kennedy: HMRC do not backdate a child benefit award for more than three months from the date the claim is initially received.

The other information requested is not available.

Child Benefit: Bexley

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the number of children living in each European country for whom UK child benefit was received by a parent resident in the London Borough of Bexley in the most recent period for which figures are available. [184174]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Child Benefit: Personal Records

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether (a) his Department and (b) the Poynter Review has been able to conclude whether the two data discs missing from HM Revenue and Customs were posted. [185212]

Jane Kennedy: As my right hon. Friend the Chancellor outlined in his statement of 17 December on publication of Kieran Poynter's interim report, 17 December 2007, Official Report, column 612W, the Poynter Review remains ongoing and the final report is expected during the first half of 2008.

Child Tax Credit

John Hemming: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many payments of child tax credit have been made since their introduction; and how many have involved overpayment because of a failure by HM Revenue and Customs to record the return of an annual declaration. [184504]

Jane Kennedy: Information on the numbers of families benefiting from tax credits, and payments of entitlement, are available in table 1.1 of the HMRC publication "Child and Working Tax Credits. Finalised Annual Awards. 2005-06", for the years 2003-04, 2004-05 and 2005-06. This publication is available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-quarterly-stats.htm

Information on the numbers of families benefiting from tax credits is not produced separately for child tax credit and working tax credit.

There should be no overpayments arising because of a failure by HMRC to record the return of an annual declaration. If this happens the award is restored.

Coinage

Philip Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the cost of introducing the new design of the 50 pence piece coin. [184297]

Angela Eagle: The estimated cost of the new 50p coin design is approximately £15,000 which includes, under the terms of the public competition, a £5,000 fee to the artist that submitted the final design.

Crown Estate Commissioners

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how much the Crown Estate spent on its communications department in each of the last five years; [183391]

(2) how much the Crown Estate spent on hospitality in each of the last five years; [183392]

(3) what the cost of producing the Crown Estate's annual reports was in each of the last five years. [183393]

Angela Eagle: The information requested is given in the table.

| | 2002-03 | 2003-04 | 2004-05 | 2005-06 | 2006-07 |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Communication Department (staff costs)[1] | 133 | 138 | 131 | 235 | 272 |
| Hospitality | 6 | 10 | 10 | 6 | 5 |
| Annual Reports (including Corporate Responsibility Report, since 2003-04)[2] | 90 | 126 | 131 | 132 | 132 |

[1] Figures given are for the staff costs of the Crown Estate's Communication Department.
[2] In 2003-04, the Crown Estate's first Corporate Responsibility Report was published, and the costs given in the aforementioned answer for 2003-04, 2004-05, 2005-06 and 2006-07 include costs for both the Annual Report and the Corporate Responsibility Report.

Crown Estate Commissioners: Finance

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much income the Crown Estate received from rents paid for (a) marinas and (b) piers in each of the last five years. [183394]

Angela Eagle: The information available is given in the table.

£ million

| | 2004-05 | 2005-06 | 2006-07 |
|---|---|---|---|
| Marinas | 1.6 | 1.6 | 1.7 |
| Piers | 4.1 | 4.0 | 4.2 |

Crown Estate Commissioners: Public Relations

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many external contracts the Crown Estate had with public relations companies in each of the last 10 years; and what the cost of those contracts was. [183397]

Angela Eagle: The information requested is given in the table:

| | Number of contracts | Total amount (£000) |
|---|---|---|
| 1997-98 | 3 | 83 |
| 1998-99 | 3 | 113 |
| 1999-2000 | 4 | 126 |
| 2000-01 | 5 | 134 |
| 2001-02 | 5 | 187 |
| 2002-03 | 5 | 287 |
| 2003-04 | 7 | 704 |
| 2004-05 | 7 | 938 |
| 2005-06 | 10 | 629 |
| 2006-07 | 10 | 713 |

Crown Estate Commissioners: Research

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the value was of applications made to the Crown Estate's research committee for research proposals in each of the last five years; how many applications were made in each year; what the value of research funding allocated was; and how many applications were successful in each year. [183390]

Angela Eagle: The Crown Estate does not have a research committee and it does not invite open applications for research, rather areas of research are decided by The Crown Estate through discussions with industry.

Debts

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the value of unsecured debt owed by individuals in the UK in each year since 1990, broken down by income decile of debtors. [184505]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 18 February 2008:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your question on what estimate has been made of the value of unsecured debt owed by individuals in the UK in each year since 1990, broken down by income decile of debtors. (184505)

The ONS do not publish explicitly data on unsecured debt of individuals and it has been assumed that this is the equivalent to consumer credit.

Data on consumer credit are published in Table 3.2B of Financial Statistics. Table A below shows total consumer credit split by credit cards or other and Table B shows total consumer credit split by type of lender.

These data are not available by income decile of debtors.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps were taken to (a) prevent similar losses and (b) examine data protection procedures in (i) HM Revenue and Customs and (ii) other parts of HM Treasury following the loss of the disc containing data for Standard Life customers in transit between HM Revenue and Customs in Newcastle and Standard Life in Edinburgh; and if he will make a statement. [184205]

Jane Kennedy: HMRC was already undertaking an internal review of data handling and security at the time of the Standard Life incident.

Following the Standard Life incident, HMRC introduced tightened data security measures and controls in time for the next monthly transfer of payment information.

HMRC has also introduced new procedures designed to ensure that all data transfers require the personal approval of a director or their delegated data guardian.

Following the loss of child benefit data the Chancellor also asked Kieran Poynter to undertake an independent review of HMRC's data handling.

In his interim report, published on 17 December, Kieran Poynter noted that HMRC had already put in place a number of measures to tighten its data handling. This report is available in the Library of the House. He is expected to consider the need for any further procedural changes in his final report which is due in the first half of 2008.

HMT are playing a full part in the Cabinet Office data handling exercise. A data handling workstream has been set up to manage the exercise and the risks associated with information handling. On 18 December the HMT permanent secretary e-mailed all staff reminding them of their responsibilities. This covered all aspects of security.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 16 January 2008, Official Report, column 1341W, on departmental data protection, whether the investigation related to the two child benefit discs missing from HM Revenue and Customs. [185345]

Jane Kennedy: The investigation referred to in the answer of 16 January 2008, Official Report, column 1341W, related to the two child benefit discs missing from HM Customs and Revenue.

Departmental Databases

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what databases are (a) owned and (b) maintained by (i) his Department and (ii) its agencies. [185422]

Angela Eagle: The Treasury and its agencies own and maintain a wide variety of databases to support their work.

Departmental ICT

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many of his Department's personal digital assistants were (a) lost and (b) stolen in each of the last five years; and what the value of those items was. [185282]

Angela Eagle: The numbers of Treasury PDAs reported as lost or stolen are presented as follows:

| | Number lost | Number stolen | Estimated value (£) |
|---|---|---|---|
| 2003 | — | 2 | 800 |
| 2004 | — | 1 | 200 |
| 2005 | — | 1 | 200 |
| 2006 | 1 | — | 200 |
| 2007 | 1 | 1 | 400 |

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Walker: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the special advisers employed in his Department since 6 May 1997; and what the (a) start and (b) end date of employment was in each case. [184361]

Angela Eagle: Since 2003, the Government have published on an annual basis the names and numbers of special advisers in each pay band. For the most recent information I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 22 November 2007, Official Report, columns 147-50WS.

Information on the employment of special advisers prior to 2003 was provided at regular intervals and is available in the Library of the House.

Departmental Publications

Mr. Randall: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what public information booklets were published by his Department in 2007; and what the (a) print run and (b) cost to the Department was in each case. [185790]

Angela Eagle: The Chancellor of the Exchequer's Department has published five public information booklets in 2007. These were:

| Publication | Print run | Cost (£) |
|---|---|---|
| Euro preparations leaflet | 1,117 | 266 |
| Budget 2007 summary leaflet | 1,000,000 | 106,247 |
| Budget 2007 regional summary leaflets | 9,150 | 4310 |
| Pre-Budget Report and Comprehensive Spending Review 2007 summary leaflet | 1,000,000 | 101,910 |
| Pre-Budget and Comprehensive Spending Review 2007 regional summary leaflet | 9,000 | 3,182 |

Departmental Training

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 12 December 2007, Official Report, column 615W, on departmental training, how many Treasury away days were undertaken in each of the last five years. [178344]

Angela Eagle: No central records are held on Treasury teams' away days and the information could be obtained only at a disproportionate cost. In common with other organisations in the public and private sectors the Treasury uses away days for work-planning, training and staff development purposes.

Employment

Chris Grayling: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the employment rate was for (a) lone parents, (b) the disabled and (c) the over 50s in each year since 1997, broken down by constituency. [185941]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 18 February 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking what the employment rate was for (a) lone parents, (b) the disabled and (c) the over 50s in each year since 1997, broken down by constituency. (185941).

Information in the form requested is not readily available and could only be obtained at disproportionate cost.

European Commission: Offices

Mr. Evans: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the UK financial contribution was towards maintaining, staffing and operating the representative offices of the European Commission in (a) EU capitals, (b) non-EU capitals and (c) other locations in each of the last 10 years. [186280]

Angela Eagle: The UK makes its contributions to the EC Budget as a whole and not to individual spending programmes within it. There is therefore no specific UK contribution to the areas of expenditure referred to.

Excise Duties: Fuels

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how much revenue the Exchequer accrued from sales of (a) diesel and (b) petrol on garage forecourts in the last 12 months; [186237]

(2) what the excise duty rate was on (a) diesel and (b) petrol fuel in each of the last five years. [186238]

Angela Eagle: Historic and monthly excise duty receipts from diesel and petrol can be found in table 3 of the HM Revenue and Customs Hydrocarbon Oils Bulletin, a copy of which can be found at:

http://www.uktradeinfo.co.uk/index.cfm?task=bulloil

Published figures on receipts are on the basis of excise duty charged on quantities of oil released for consumption rather than on forecourt sales.

Finance: Afghanistan

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will take steps to monitor financial transactions between Afghan individuals in the United Kingdom and (a) Afghanistan and (b) Dubai. [185344]

Angela Eagle: The Money Laundering Regulations 2007 require relevant persons (including banks and money service bureaus) to identify and verify the identity of their customers and to monitor their transactions.

Any suspicious transactions, including suspicious transactions with Afghanistan and Dubai should be reported through the appropriate channels to the Serious Organised Crime Agency.

The ED Wire Transfer Regulations impose similar obligations in respect of electronic transfers of funds.

Financial Services: Disadvantaged

Jim Dobbin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to ensure that financial advice is made available to those who are financially excluded. [186549]

Angela Eagle: The Government recognise the importance of readily available, specialist money advice to ensure that financially excluded people have access to the help and support they need to deal with financial distress, should it arise. The Government have established a £47.5 million money advice project in the current spending period, administered by BERR, to increase the availability of free face-to-face money advice in areas of high financial exclusion.

The Government's recent action plan for financial inclusion announces that the Government will continue to support BERR's face-to-face money advice initiative with funding of £76 million in 2008-11.

In addition, the Government have asked Otto Thoresen to report on the feasibility of a national approach to the delivery of generic financial advice. Generic Advice is basic financial guidance, tailored to the individual's own circumstances. It will be of particular benefit to those most vulnerable to the consequences of poor financial decisions—including the financially excluded and people on low incomes. The Thoresen review is due to report shortly.

Fossil Fuel Levy: Scotland

Mr. Ingram: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many meetings have taken place between his Department and the Scottish Executive to discuss the transfer of the Fossil Fuel Levy to the Consolidated Fund; and when those meetings took place. [186637]

Angela Eagle: Treasury Ministers and officials have meetings with a wide variety of organisations in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such meetings.

Frontiers: Security

Damian Green: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much Her Majesty's Customs and Revenue and its predecessors spent on border security and enforcement in each of the last three financial years. [186412]

Jane Kennedy: HM Revenue and Customs undertakes a range of activities at the border, including security and enforcement, regulatory, fiscal and trade facilitation. Resources are deployed according to risk and officers are trained to, and may discharge any or all of these functions. Security and, enforcement is an intrinsic part of HMRC's frontier work. No assessment has been made of the spend on purely security activity and it is not possible, or sensible in terms of proving meaningful information, to extract these costs.

Fuels: Prices

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps the Government has taken to ensure the competitiveness of the British haulage industry in respect of fuel prices. [185628]

Angela Eagle: Policies have been put in place to support the road haulage industry including a freeze of lorry vehicle excise duty since 2001, the extension of the Reduced Pollution Certificate scheme and the forthcoming graduated fixed penalty and deposit scheme.

Budget 2007 also announced the tripling of spending on enforcement through targeted checks and the recent pre-Budget report announced a further £2 million. We also look forward to receiving the conclusions from the Freight Data Feasibility Study, an outcome of the Haulage Industry Task Group.

The Government set out their policy on fuel duty in the last Budget based on the UK seeking to reduce polluting emissions and fund public services. By 2010 main fuel duty rates will still remain 11 per cent. lower in real terms than they were in 1999.

Graduates: Unemployed

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Ribble Valley of 4 February 2008, Official Report, column 860W, (1) if he will provide comparable figures for the number of unemployed university graduates for each year from 1997 to 2002; [186044]

(2) if he will provide comparable figures for the number of unemployed people aged 16 years and over in each year from 1997 to 2002. [186005]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 18 February 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Questions on the number of unemployed university graduates for each year from 1997 to 2002 and the number of unemployed people aged 16 and over in each year from 1997 to 2002. (186044) and (186005)

The attached table gives unemployment figures for graduates and all people aged 16+ for the three month period ending June each year, from 1997 to 2002. Comparable estimates from 1998 and 2000 are not available.

The LFS estimates at this detailed level are only consistent with the UK population estimates published in February and March 2003 and they do not incorporate the more recent population estimates that are used in the headline LFS series.

As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

Unemployed[1] population aged 16 plus—three months ending June each year, 1997-2002 United Kingdom, not seasonally adjusted

| | Total | Thousand Graduates[2] |
|---|---|---|
| 1997 | 2,013 | 137 |
| 1999 | 1,695 | 128 |
| 2001 | 1,408 | 115 |
| 2002 | 1,456 | 145 |

[1] According to the ILO (International Labour Organisation) definition of unemployed, i.e. those who are without a job, are available to start work in the next two weeks, who want a job and have been seeking a job in the last four weeks or are waiting to start a job already obtained.

[2] Those who hold qualifications to degree level or higher.

Notes:

1. It should be noted that the estimates:
are grossed to population estimates consistent with those published in spring 2003 which are significantly lower than the latest population estimates as used in the Labour Market Statistics.
2. Comparable data not available for 1998 and 2000.

Households

Chris Grayling: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the number of households of (a) married couples, (b) cohabiting couples and (c) lone parents with dependent children in each year since 1990. [185882]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 18 February 2008:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your request to asking what estimate has been made of the number of households with dependent children broken down by (a) married couples, (b) cohabiting couples and (c) lone parents in each year since 1990. (185882)

The question asks for the number of households broken down by family type. However, the number of households would not show the total number of married and cohabiting couples and lone parents with dependent children. This is because some households contain more than one family. Therefore, this answer shows the number of families, not the number of households. The number of families with dependent children in the UK can be estimated using the Labour Force Survey (LFS). According to the LFS, 0.8 per cent. of households in 2007 were occupied by more than one family.

Table 1 shows the latest UK family estimates for available years. Comparable estimates are not currently available for 1998 and 2000 or prior to 1997. Work is underway to make comparable LFS data available from 1992 onwards. It is hoped that this work will be completed by the end of 2008.

Table 1: Number of UK families with dependent children by type

| Family type | 1997 | 1998 | 1999 | 2000 | 2001 | 2002 | 2003 | 2004 | 2005 | 2006 | Thousand 2007 |

Immigrants: Age

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average age was of immigrants to the UK in 2007. [186905]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 18 February 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question concerning the average age of immigrants to the UK. (186905)

In 2006, the latest full year for which data are available, the average age of those migrating to the UK was twenty-eight years.

Immigration

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer from which 10 countries the greatest number of migrants entered the UK in 2007. [186932]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 18 February 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking from which 10 countries the greatest number of migrants entered the UK in 2007. (186932)

International migration data for the 2007 calendar year are scheduled for release in November 2008. The International Passenger Survey, the main source of international migration estimates, shows that of those migrating to the UK in 2006, the top ten countries of last residence were:

Poland, India, Australia, Pakistan, China, France, United States, Germany, South Africa, and Spain.

Itis Holdings

Robert Neill: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what payments his Department and its agencies has made to Itis Holdings in the last 36 months. [183269]

Jane Kennedy: Neither the Treasury or any of its agencies have made any payments to Itis Holdings in the past three years.

Landfill Tax

Sarah Teather: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was raised by landfill tax between January 2005 and December 2007; how much he expects to raise from landfill tax in 2008; and how the money is being used. [185606]

Angela Eagle: Latest landfill tax receipts are published by HM Revenue and Customs at:

http://www.uktradeinfo.com/index.cfm?task=bulllandfill

Forecast landfill tax receipts for 2007-08 and 2008-09 are published in Table B8 of the 2007 pre-Budget report and Comprehensive Spending Review available at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/media/F/9/pbr_csr07_annexb_305.pdf

Landfill tax was introduced alongside a 0.2 percentage point reduction in the main rate of employers national insurance contributions.

Budget 2007 announced that the additional tax revenue from business as a result of the increase in the landfill tax escalator will be recycled to business through reductions in corporation tax announced in the Budget.

Landfill Tax: Greater London

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much each local authority in London paid in landfill tax in each of the last five years. [186144]

Angela Eagle: It is not possible using landfill tax receipts data to determine how much revenue is received from local authorities. This is because registered landfill site operators pay the tax to HM Revenue and Customs and pass on the cost to their customers through the disposal charges they set. The origin of the landfilled waste is not recorded on the tax return.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Donohoe: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for Central Ayrshire, dated 22 November 2007, on Northern Rock. [186342]

Angela Eagle: I have already done so.

Mr. Donohoe: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for Central Ayrshire, dated 19 November 2007, on capital gains tax. [186343]

Jane Kennedy: I replied to the hon. Member on 17 February 2008.

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when HM Revenue and Customs will respond to the letters of (a) 18 October 2007 and (b) 22 January 2008 from the hon. Member for Lancaster and Wyre on a constituent, Mr. Stefan Fish. [186695]

Jane Kennedy: HM Revenue and Customs replied to the hon. Gentleman on 11 February 2008 and very much regret the delay in doing so.

Migrant Workers

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 4 February 2008, Official Report, columns 834-36W, on migrant workers, what the change has been in the number of the UK born population in employment in each industry sector since 1997. [185665]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 18 February 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about the UK born population in employment in each industry since 1997. (185665)

The attached table gives the number of working age UK born workers in each industry sector for each year since 1997. It also gives the change in the number of UK born workers in each industry sector, between the second quarter of 1997 and the second quarter of 2007. Comparable estimates are not available for 1998 and 2000.

As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

Migrant Workers: EU Nationals

Mr. Bone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what percentage of job vacancies he estimates were filled by migrant workers from the European Union in the latest period for which figures are available. [186550]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 18 February 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question on the percentage of job vacancies filled by migrant workers from the European Union. (186550)

Information is not available on the percentage of job vacancies filled by individuals whose country of birth was in the European Union (EU).

Migration

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many visitor switchers were taken into account for the purpose of calculating the balance of total international migration to and from the UK in each year since 1991; [177391]

(2) how many asylum seekers were taken into account for the purpose of calculating the balance of total international migration to and from the UK in the years 1997 to 2006 inclusive; and what proportion of net migration these figures represented in each of those years; [177392]

(3) what the level of inward migration from EU A8 countries for the purposes of total international migration statistics to the UK was in (a) each year and (b) each quarter since 1 January 2004. [178332]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 18 February 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your questions on Total International Migration related issues:

how many visitor switchers were taken into account for the purpose of calculating the balance of total international migration to and from the UK in each year since 1991; (177391)

how many asylum seekers were taken into account for the purpose of calculating the balance of total international migration to and from the UK in the years 1997 to 2006 inclusive; and what proportion of net migration these figures represented in each of those years; (177392)

what the level of inward migration from EU A8 countries for the purpose of Total International Migration statistics to the UK was in (a) each year and (b) each quarter since 1 January 2004. (178332)

Table 1, attached, gives the adjustments made to Total International Migration (TIM) to account for visitor switchers from 1991 to 2006. Visitor switchers are those that intended to come to (or leave) the UK for less than 12 months and then switched to being migrants by staying (or leaving) for more than twelve months; i.e. someone who came as a visitor but switched to a migrant.

Table 2, attached, gives the asylum seeker adjustment made to Total International Migration (TIM) estimates of inflows, outflows, and net-migration from 1997 to 2006. It also gives the corresponding TIM estimates; and shows the asylum seeker adjustments as a percentage of these. As indicated in the table, we do not recommend using the figures on asylum seekers as a proportion of net migration as an indicator.

The asylum seeker adjustments are based on Home Office data but differ from the asylum statistics published by the Home Office in a number of respects. In order to fit with the United Nations recommended definition of an international long-term migrant, which is used in calculating population estimates, the data only include cases where the asylum seeker remained in the UK for more than 12 months. These data will also exclude a number of asylum seekers that are accounted for already in International Passenger Survey (IPS) estimates of migrants. Finally the adjustments include both principal applicants and their dependants whereas HO figures generally exclude dependants.

Estimates of annual inward migration from EU A8 countries for 2004 and 2005 are available in Table 2.2 of the "International Migration 2005, Series MN no.32" which can be found on the National Statistics website at:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/StatBase/Product.asp?vlnk=507

The 2006 Total International Migration (TIM) estimates of annual inward migration from EU A8 countries (i.e. by country of last residence) are not yet available but are due to be released in May 2008. All 2006 TIM estimates will be produced using revised methods, and these changes will also result in revisions for earlier years. Therefore the 2004 and 2005 estimates currently in the public domain are likely to change slightly. However, estimates of annual inward migration by EU A8 nationals (as opposed to country of last residence referred to above) are available for 2004-2006 and can be found in Table 1 (Citizenship UK) at the following link on the National Statistics website:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/statbase/Product.asp?vlnk=15053

Quarterly estimates of inward migration are not available for country of last residence or nationality either on a TIM or IPS basis.

Total International Migration data are the most comprehensive estimates of long-term international migration. They are produced by combining migration data from the IPS, Home Office data on asylum seekers, migration data between the UK and the Irish Republic and adjustments for (migrant and visitor) "switchers", i.e. those whose initial length of stay intentions are not realised.

| 2005 | 51 | 15 | 36 |
| 2006 | 50 | 16 | 35 |

Notes:

1. A visitor switcher is defined as someone who enters or leaves the UK intending to stay in the destination country for less than a year but who actually stays for a year or longer. Thus "inflow" indicates the estimate of those who entered the UK as visitors, but who switched to being migrants and stayed a year or more.
2. Several different methods and data sources have been used between 1991 and 2006 to estimate the visitor switcher adjustment. For the years 1991 to 2000, the adjustment is based on visa extension data from the Home Office. For the years 2000 to 2003, the adjustment is based on fixed proportions applied to certain categories of visitors considered most likely to switch and become migrants. From 2004, the adjustment is based on specific questions asked in the International Passenger Survey (IPS) to identify former visitor switchers which is then applied to certain visitor categories. In all cases, the best available data has been used to produce these adjustments.

Notes:

1. These figures are a statistical adjustment, not estimates of asylum seekers. Those migrants captured by the International Passenger Survey (IPS) stating the reason for visit as "to seek asylum" are excluded from these calculations to avoid double counting.
2. Several improvements have been made to the data sources and methods used in the estimation of the asylum seeker adjustment between 1997 and 2006. These figures are produced using the best available data and methods for each year.
3. Total International Migration (TIM) is the most comprehensive estimate of migration. It is based mainly on the IPS but also includes estimates of Irish flows supplied by the Irish Central Statistics Office, and adjustments for asylum seekers not captured in the IPS and for "switchers" (i.e. those whose migration intentions are not realised).
4. We recommend looking at the inflow and outflow proportions as the net proportion could be highly misleading. For example, should outflows of asylum seekers exceed inflows this would show as a negative percentage. If TIM net migration were zero, this would show as an infinite percentage.

Mortgages: Repossession Orders

Robert Neill: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Ribble Valley of 17 December 2007, Official Report, column 1126W, on mortgages: repossession orders, what assessment the Government have made of the reasons for the change in the number of mortgage possession orders from 2002 to 2006. [184063]

Angela Eagle: The Ministry of Justice publishes figures for the numbers of possession orders made by county courts. The Government's assessment of personal debt and its proposals for tackling problem debt can be found in the Government's annual reports on tackling over-indebtedness, available at:

http://www.berr.gov.uk/consumers/consumer-finance/over-indebtedness/index.html

National Insurance

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the minimum age is at which an individual can be issued with a national insurance number. [185218]

Jane Kennedy: The minimum age at which an individual can be issued with a national insurance number (NINO) is 15 years nine months.

National Insurance Fund

Justine Greening: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the balance of the National Insurance Fund was in excess of the minimum balance required in relation to benefit spending in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement; [180104]

(2) what estimate was made by the Government Actuary of the minimum balance required in the National Insurance Fund in relation to benefit spending in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [180105]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 21 January 2008]: The information requested is shown in the following table in respect of the GB National Insurance Fund:

| | 1996-97 | 1997-98 | 1998-99 | 1999-2000 | 2000-01 | 2001-02 | 2002-03 | 2003-04 | 2004-05 | 2005-06 |

| Minimum balance required | 6.9 | 7.1 | 7.4 | 7.7 | 7.9 | 8.4 | 8.8 | 9.2 | 9.5 | 10.0 |
| Excess | 0.8 | 2.5 | 4.9 | 6.7 | 11.4 | 15.2 | 17.7 | 17.9 | 19.6 | 24.3 |

When there is a surplus it is invested. NICs and associated social security benefits operate within the Government's fiscal rules designed to ensure sound public finances. Any surplus of NICs over social security benefits (the NI Fund surplus) in any one year is not therefore an extra resource available to spend.

The minimum operating balance recommended by the Government Actuary is one sixth of annual benefit payments. Figures for the minimum balance shown in the table are based on actual benefit payments made in each year. Estimated levels of benefit payments are published annually by the Government Actuary's Department in reports on up-rating orders, copies of which are in the Library.

Paul Flynn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects to receive the next quinquennial review of the National Insurance Fund. [185395]

Jane Kennedy: There is no firm date for publication but the Acting Government Actuary has confirmed that the review should be published later this year.

Paul Flynn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what advice he has received from the Acting Government Actuary on the minimum recommended balance in the National Insurance Fund. [185405]

Jane Kennedy: The latest report by the Acting Government Actuary on the drafts of the Social Security Benefits Up-rating Order 2008 and the Social Security (Contributions) (Re-rating) Order 2008 (Cm 7312) was published on 23 January 2008. The Acting Government Actuary states that his predecessor recommended that the minimum balance in the National Insurance Fund should be one-sixth (16.7 per cent.) of estimated annual benefit expenditure. The report confirms that the balance in the fund is expected to be greater than the minimum recommended in 2008-09.

Parkinson's Disease: Death

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people died from Parkinson's disease in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) the UK in each year since 1997. [186960]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 18 February 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many people died from Parkinson's disease in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) the UK in each year since 1997. (186960)

The attached table provides the number of deaths from Parkinson's disease in (a) Jarrow parliamentary constituency, (b) South Tyneside local authority, (c) North East Government Office Region, and (d) the UK, from 1997 to 2006 (the latest year available).

| 2006 | 10 | 15 | 222 | 4,444 |

[1] Cause of death was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Ninth Revision (ICD-9) code 332.0 from 1997 to 2000 for England, Wales and Northern Ireland, and from 1997 to 1999 for Scotland, and the Tenth Revision (ICD-10) code G20 from 2001 to 2006 for England, Wales and Northern Ireland, and from 2000 to 2006 for Scotland. The introduction of ICD-10 in 2000 for Scotland, and 2001 for England, Wales and Northern Ireland means that the numbers of deaths from this cause for earlier years are not comparable with those for later years.

[3] Figures are for deaths registered in each calendar year.
[4] Figures include data provided by the Registrars General for Scotland and Northern Ireland.

Population

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the population density is of each region of England; [177451]

(2) how many estimates of population density in (a) the UK, (b) England, (c) Scotland, (d) Wales, (e) Northern Ireland and (f) the regions of England have been made since 1987; and what each estimate was; [177464]

(3) what assessment he has made of the likely effects of (a) migration on population density in England and (b) the increase in population density implied by Office for National Statistics population projections; [177465]

(4) what his most recent estimates are of the likely population densities of (a) the UK, (b) England, (c) Scotland, (d) Wales and (e) Northern Ireland in 2056; [177466]

(5) what the population densities are expected to be of each of the regions of England on the basis of the change in population forecast by the Government Actuary Department and the Office for National Statistics in (a) 2031 and (b) 2056; [177467]

(6) pursuant to the answer of 3 December 2007, Official Report, columns 1035-36W, on population, if he will rank the regions of England in terms of the population density of each region of the EU, giving the population density of each EU region according to the most recent available figures. [178317]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 18 February 2008:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your questions on population density:

what the population density is of each region of England. (177451)

how many estimates of population density in (a) the UK, (b) England, (c) Scotland, (d) Wales, (e) Northern Ireland and (f) the regions of England have been made since 1987; and what each estimate was. (177464)

what the most recent estimates are of the likely population densities of (a) the UK, (b) England, (c) Scotland, (d) Wales and (e) Northern Ireland in 2056. (177466)

what the population densities are expected to be of each of the regions of England on the basis of the change in population forecast by the Government Actuary Department and the Office for National Statistics in (a) 2031 and (b) 2056. (177467)

pursuant to the Answer of 3rd December 2007, Official Report, Columns 1035-6W, on population, what is the ranking of the regions of England in terms of the population density of each region of the EU, giving the population density of each EU region according to the most recent available figures. (178317)

I am replying in her absence.

Table 1 (parts 1 and 2), attached, shows population density figures calculated for each mid-year estimate from 1987 to 2006 for the UK and constituent countries, and regions in England. This includes (on part 2) the latest, mid-2006, estimate of densities for each region of England. In terms of the number of population density estimates, population estimates are produced annually but may be subject to later revision. Population density calculations are readily produced from these estimates and are normally published each year.

Population projections are demographic trend-based projections that indicate what the population levels of an area are likely to be if recently observed trends in fertility, mortality and migration were to continue. They take no account of future developments which may affect trends. Projections should not be seen as predictions. If, as in recent years, there is an increase in migration levels then the assumptions are changed to reflect this.

Table 2 below shows projected population densities for England for the period to mid-2031 based on the ONS 2006-based principal population projection. It also shows what the projected densities would be if net migration at each age was assumed to be zero from 2006 onwards, but making the same fertility and mortality assumptions as the principal projection.

Table 4, below, shows the projected population density for English regions in 2029, the closest year available to your question. The most recent subnational population projections, published in September 2007, are 2004-based projections and cover a 25 year projection period from 2005 to 2029; this means that it is not possible to provide data for subnational population projections for 2031 or 2056. Please note that as these data are based on 2004 based subnational projections they are not directly comparable with the latest (2006-based) national projections given in Table 2. 2006 based subnational population projections are due to be published in June and these will allow calculation of population densities for 2031 on a comparable basis with the latest (2006 based) national projections.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 18 February 2008:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your question asking what projection has been made of population figures in 2014. (186924)

New national population projections, based on the population at the middle of 2006, were published on 23 October 2007. These projections give a United Kingdom total population figure at mid-year 2014 of 64.1 million.

Revenue and Customs: Data Protection

Mr. Chope: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer for what reason the PAYE Coding Notices for 2007-08 and 2008-09 issued by HM Revenue and Customs on 24 January 2008 in respect of Mr. Hemmings of Worthing and Mr. Wigley of Wanstrow, Somerset, were sent to a taxpayer in Christchurch, together with that taxpayer's PAYE Coding Notice; and if he will make a statement. [186677]

Jane Kennedy: HMRC investigations have established that this was an isolated incident resulting from a manual handling error. HMRC has sent apology letters and up-to-date Coding Notices to the affected customers and requested the return of the Coding Notices sent in error.

Road Traffic Offences

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many (a) parking tickets and (b) speeding fines were issued for vehicles used by his Department in each of the last 10 years; and what the cost to the public purse of those penalties was in each year. [183348]

Angela Eagle: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport on 5 February 2008, Official Report, columns 1014-15W.

Seized Articles

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many seizure notices were issued by customs officials in each of the last five years. [186461]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested is not available.

Smuggling: Animal Products

Mr. Paice: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many product of animal origin detector dogs have been used at ports and airports in Great Britain in each year since 2001. [185624]

Jane Kennedy: Meat detection dogs were introduced by DEFRA in 2002, and were transferred to HMRC in 2003. The number of products of animal origin detector dogs used at ports and airports in Great Britain since 2002 is in the following table:

| | Number of dogs |
|---|---|
| 2002 | 2 |
| 2003 | 2 |
| 2004 | 6 |
| 2005 | 10 |
| 2006 | 11 |
| 2007 | 11 |
| 2008 | 9 |

Smuggling: Drugs

John Cummings: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what volume of illegal drugs was seized at the ports of (a) Hartlepool, (b) Teesside, (c) Tyneside, (d) Wearside and (e) Seaham in each year since 2000, broken down by type of drug; and if he will make a statement. [186211]

Jane Kennedy: National information on seizures made by HM Revenue and Customs is contained in their annual reports.

Information of seizures, by location, cannot be disclosed as this would provide information of value to those seeking to circumvent HM Revenue and Customs' controls, thereby prejudicing the prevention and detection of crime.

Smuggling: Tobacco

David Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate has been made of the proportion of the illicit trade in tobacco in (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07 that was in (i) manufactured cigarettes and (ii) hand rolling tobacco. [186383]

Angela Eagle: The 2005-06 estimates of the illicit trade in manufactured cigarettes and hand rolling tobacco are given in "Measuring Indirect Tax Losses—2007" published by HMRC in October 2007.

Estimates for 2006-07 will be published alongside the 2008 pre-Budget report.

Strokes: Death

Mark Hunter: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people died as a result of a stroke in each (a) strategic health authority area, (b) primary care trust area, (c) Westminster constituency, (d) English region and (e) socio-demographic group in each year since 2002. [185823]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply. The reply has been placed in the Library.

Tax Credits

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 23 January 2008, Official Report, column 2101W, on tax credits, what proportion of complaints received replies in (a) under one week, (b) between one and two weeks, (c) between two and three weeks, (d) between four and five weeks and (e) over five weeks in each of the last three years. [183812]

Jane Kennedy: Although HM Revenue and Customs aim to reply to the majority of letters within three weeks, following the administrative issue I referred to in my statement of 25 July 2007, Official Report, columns 62-63WS, some parts of HMRC's tax credits business have, regrettably, been subject to delays. I am not satisfied with this performance and the Tax Credit Office is working hard to improve the speed of responses. Around 40 per cent. of replies issued in December 2007 were sent within three weeks of receiving the correspondence.

For the proportion of complaints sent a full reply for the periods requested I refer the hon. Member to the following table:

| | Cleared within | Percentage clearance | Cumulative percentage |
|---|---|---|---|
| 2005-06 | 1 week | 5 | 5 |
| | 1 to 2 weeks | 14 | 19 |
| | 2 to 3 weeks | 14 | 33 |
| | 3 to 4 weeks | 10 | 43 |
| | 4 to 5 weeks | 5 | 48 |
| | Over 5 weeks | 52 | 100 |
| 2006-07 | 1 week | 4 | 4 |
| | 1 to 2 weeks | 12 | 16 |

| | 1 to 2 weeks | 8 | 13 |
| | 2 to 3 weeks | 10 | 23 |

| | 4 to 5 weeks | 9 | 41 |
| | Over 5 weeks | 59 | 100 |

Taxation

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Stafford of 29 January 2008, Official Report, column 291W, on taxation, what levels of need his Department attributes to (a) a single person and (b) a married couple with (i) one, (ii) two and (iii) three children for the purposes of determining tax credit entitlements. [185666]

Jane Kennedy: Tax credit entitlement is determined according to family income and the number of children in a family. A single earner family earning £10,000 a year is entitled to tax credits of £90.93 per week with one child, £126.28 per week with two children and £161.63 per week with three children. This is in addition to child benefit payable for each child.

Taxation: Gambling

Mr. Betts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the effective tax rate is for (a) bingo clubs, (b) casinos, (c) local betting offices and (d) adult gaming centres. [185703]

Angela Eagle: It is not possible to give an accurate estimate of the effective tax rate on each premises type as it depends on a range of factors. These include: the types of gambling activity each type of premises offers; the tax liability each gambling activity incurs; and the relative mix of these different activities. However, the average effective rates of taxation on bingo, casino gaming and gaming machines are between 20 and 25 per cent. The rate of general betting duty is 15 per cent.

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what gambling activities are subject to (a) value-added tax and (b) gross profits tax; [185843]

(2) how much value-added tax was collected from adult gaming centres in England and Wales in (a) 2006 and (b) 2007. [185954]

Angela Eagle: VAT is chargeable on admission fees to premises where gambling takes place, club subscriptions, the takings from gaming machines, and fees for the playing of a game of chance where no prize is offered.

With certain exceptions, VAT is also chargeable on the provision of facilities for the playing of any games of chance for a prize, including bingo participation and session fees.

General betting duty, pool betting duty, bingo duty, gaming duty and remote gaming duty are all levied on a gross profits tax basis.

HM Revenue and Customs does not collect data on the amount of VAT paid on individual goods and services.

Taxation: Property

Robert Neill: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of the presentation made and handouts produced by the representative of the Valuation Office Agency entitled, Towards modernisation in property tax systems: the British experience, during the International Seminar on Property Taxation in Salvador da Bahia, Brazil on 22 November 2007; and what the cost to the public purse of attendance at this seminar was. [183273]

Jane Kennedy: The Valuation Office Agency did not send an official representative to this seminar and no cost to the public purse was incurred.

Taxation: Second Homes

Ms Buck: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the estimated cost to the public purse was of tax exemptions to (a) second home owners and (b) buy-to-let landlords in each year since 2000. [185972]

Jane Kennedy: No tax exemptions are available for either second homes owners or buy-to-let landlords, and therefore there are no costs to the public purse.

Taxation: Sports

Michael Gove: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what criteria were used to classify (a) angling, (b) ballooning, (c) billiards, pool and snooker, (d) crossbow, (e) rifle and pistol shooting, (f) flying, (g) gliding, (h) motor sports and (i) parachuting as sports which do not qualify for a tax exemption; [185325]

(2) for what reason community amateur sports clubs as defined by HM Revenue and Customs receive tax exemptions; what the criteria are for definition as a community amateur sports club; and if he will make a statement; [185326]

(3) what representations he has received on changing the number of animal racing activities which are eligible for tax exemption; and if he will make a statement. [186190]

Jane Kennedy: Sports clubs that meet certain criteria are able to register with HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) as community amateur sports clubs (CASCs) and enjoy a range of tax reliefs. It is not however for HMRC to decide which activities are eligible sports for the CASC scheme. Eligible sports are defined by Treasury Order, by reference to the Sports Councils' list of recognised activities. The list can be accessed at www.sportengland.org/index/get_resources/resource_ul.htm.

HMRC registered CASCs are eligible for tax reliefs because the Government recognise the benefits of community participation in sport and the benefits that CASCs can bring in terms of health, community building and crime reduction. Because of these benefits, the Government provide tax exemptions to support those amateur sports clubs that do make a positive contribution to their local communities and to encourage local communities to support their CASCs.

The key criteria for registration as a CASC are that a club must;

be open to the whole community

be organised on an amateur basis

have as its main purpose the provision of facilities for and promotion of participation in eligible sports—as defined by the Sports Councils' list of recognised activities.

Further detail of these criteria can be found at http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/casc/index.htm.

Treasury Ministers and officials receive representations from a wide range of organisations and individuals in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such representations.

Tobacco: Exports

David Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the share of the tobacco market in (a) Belgium, (b) the Netherlands and (c) Luxembourg that is UK manufactured hand-rolled tobacco. [186410]

Angela Eagle: The Government have not made an estimate of the share of the tobacco markets in (a) Belgium, (b) the Netherlands and (c) Luxembourg that is UK manufactured hand-rolled tobacco. In order to inform its monitoring and enforcement of compliance by tobacco manufacturers with Section 2 of the Finance Bill 2006, HM Revenue and Customs has had, and continues to have, discussions with manufacturers about the level of demand for their products for consumption outside the United Kingdom.

Valuation Office: ICT

Robert Neill: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much the Valuation Office Agency has spent in relation to its automated valuation model on (a) consultancy, (b) payments to CapGemini including those indirectly to CLT, (c) hardware, (d) staffing and (e) other costs since September 2005. [183267]

Jane Kennedy: Since September 2005, when the Council Tax Revaluation in England was postponed, approximately £5.5 million has been spent by the Valuation Office Agency on IT development (software, hardware and technical consultancy) and on other support costs associated with securing the investment in its automated valuation model (AVM). This will allow the AVM to be used as a support for the Agency's day-to-day work, including maintenance of council tax valuation lists. Staffing costs associated with developing and maintaining the AVM are not recorded separately.

Valuation Office: Opinion Research Corporation

Robert Neill: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much the Valuation Office Agency spent on Opinion Research Corporation's services in each year since 2001; and what the purpose of each service purchased was. [178743]

Jane Kennedy: No work was undertaken for the agency prior to 2004. The total expenditure (exclusive of VAT) in the last four financial years is:

| Financial year | Project name | Total expenditure (£) |
|---|---|---|
| 2004-05 | Annual customer survey | 10,450 |
| 2005-06 | Annual customer survey | 18,955 |
| | People's Panel research (prior to the postponed council tax revaluation) | 68,390 |
| 2006-07 | Annual Customer Survey | 30,000 |
| 2007-08 | Annual Customer Survey | 25,000 |
| Total spend | — | 152,795 |

Valuation Office: Rightmove

Robert Neill: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 8 January 2008, Official Report, column 509W, on Valuation Office: Rightmove, (1) what the timetable is for HM Revenue and Customs, on behalf of the Valuation Office Agency, to decide whether or not to exercise its option to extend the contract with Rightmove for a further 12 months; [178657]

(2) whether HM Revenue and Customs, on behalf of the Valuation Office Agency, intends to exercise its option to extend its contract for a further 12 months with Rightmove.co.uk Plc when the current 34 month contract period expires in March 2008; and if he will make it his policy to terminate the contract at the end of the 34 month period. [183270]

Jane Kennedy: This is an operational decision for the Valuation Office Agency, who should continue to gather, in the most cost-effective way, the data it requires to perform its statutory functions.

VAT: Energy

Mr. Benyon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether it is the Government's policy to reduce value added tax on energy efficiency devices from 17.5 per cent. to 5 per cent. [185985]

Jane Kennedy: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 23 January 2008, Official Report, column 2096W, to the right hon. Member for Scunthorpe (Mr. Morley).

Welfare Tax Credits

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 6 December 2007, Official Report, columns 1500-01W, on welfare tax credits, what definition his Department uses of financial hardship in such cases. [173808]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 13 December 2008]: HM Revenue and Customs approach is set out in its Code of Practice 26 available at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/taxcredits/forms-leaflets.htm

HMRC published revised guidance on their website on 31 January.

Mr. Todd: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what progress has been made on the review of tax credit cases announced on 25 July 2007; and what implications the outcomes of the review have for those people whose cases are subject to review and are also involved in disputes on tax credit entitlements for the immediately succeeding years. [184539]

Jane Kennedy: HM Revenue and Customs are running a three year programme of work to review tax credit awards where it appears awards were reduced as a result of new information which came to light after the award for that year had been finalised and closed. In a small number of cases the outcome of the review will be to remit an overpayment. Overpayments which are not part of the review will not be affected.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what estimate he has made of the number and proportion of UK households below (a) 60 per cent., (b) 50 per cent. and (c) 40 per cent. of the median household income are eligible for, but not in receipt of (i) child benefit, (ii) working tax credit and (iii) child tax credit; [185908]

(2) what estimate he has made of the number and proportion of children living in households whose income is below (a) 60 per cent., (b) 50 per cent. and (c) 40 per cent. of the median household income are eligible for, but not in receipt of (i) child benefit, (ii) working tax credit and (iii) child tax credit. [185909]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested for tax credit recipients and children in these families could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Estimates for the number of in-work families who were eligible but not claiming tax credits, by income used to calculate entitlement, are presented in table 4 of the HMRC publication "Child Tax Credit and Working Tax Credit. Take-up rates. 2004-05." This is available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/takeup-rates2004-05.pdf

It is estimated that around 98 per cent. of eligible families receive child benefit. The household income is not recorded for child benefit purposes as it does not affect the recipient's award. Therefore, the information requested is not available.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the number of children who would be lifted out of poverty if all households claimed the full amount of (a) child benefit, (b) child tax credit and (c) working tax credit to which they are entitled. [185914]

Jane Kennedy: Increased financial support for families with children through tax credits and child benefit have played a key role in reducing child poverty, helping to lift 600,000 children out of relative poverty, and 1.8 million children out of absolute poverty between 1998-99 and 2005-06.

It is estimated that approximately 98 per cent. of families in the UK claim child benefit. Latest statistics show that take-up of tax credits for families with children was 82 per cent. in 2004-05, rising to 97 per cent. for those on low incomes, significantly higher than for previous comparable systems of support.

Evidence from some external studies and Treasury modelling suggest that full tax credit take-up might reduce the child poverty rate by one percentage point or more compared with 2004-05 take-up rates. Such estimates are subject to a number of uncertainties and simplifying assumptions, and should be taken as a very broad guide only.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the written statement of 25 July 2007, Official Report, columns 62-63WS, on tax credit administration, what has been the effect of rectifying the administrative error in the tax credit system on the time it takes HM Revenue and Customs to (a) resolve (i) pre-existing and (ii) fresh complaints, (b) submit information regarding (A) pre-existing and (B) fresh complaints to the Adjudicator and (c) submit information regarding (1) pre-existing and (2) fresh complaints to the parliamentary ombudsman in (x) affected and (y) unaffected cases. [186017]

Jane Kennedy: The administrative error had an initial impact on the time it took HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) to handle complaints about tax credits. The position has now been recovered for the majority of cases.

Welfare Tax Credits: Complaints

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many complaints the Tax Credits Office received on tax credits in each of the last five years. [185305]

Jane Kennedy: For information about the number of complaints received in the Tax Credit Office for each year from January 2004 to May 2007 I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer given to the hon. Member for Yeovil (Mr. Laws) on 13 June 2007, Official Report, column 1125W. Information about the numbers of complaints about tax credits received in the Tax Credit Office in each month from June to December 2007 is given in the following table.

| Month 2007 | Number of complainants (approximate) |
|---|---|
| June | 3,850 |
| July | 3,400 |
| August | 3,250 |
| September | 2,800 |
| October | 3,150 |
| November | 3,350 |
| December | 1,900 |

Welfare Tax Credits: Northern Ireland

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the cost of recovering overpayment of tax credits from claimants in Northern Ireland. [184728]

Jane Kennedy: The cost of recovering overpayments of tax credits in Northern Ireland is not available centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

I refer to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Fareham (Mr. Hoban) on 31 January 2008, Official Report, column 681W.

Welfare Tax Credits: Overpayments

Jeremy Wright: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when his Department expects to publish details of the new test intended to replace the reasonable belief test used in disputed cases of overpayment of tax credits. [169090]

Jane Kennedy: HM Revenue and Customs published the revised guidance on their website at www.hmrc.gsi.gov.uk on 31 January 2008.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the reasons were for the recent changes to HM Revenue and Customs' Code of Practice 26, What Happens if We Have Paid You too Much Tax Credit; and if he will make a statement. [184628]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 5 February 2008]: HMRC published the new Code of Practice 26 on its website (www.hmrc.gov.uk/leaflets/cop26.pdf.) on 31 January 2008. Details were also given in my letter to the parliamentary and health service ombudsman of 29 January 2008 setting out the Government's response to her report on tax credits. That letter was deposited in the Library of the House.

HMRC has consulted widely on the changes seeking the views of the adjudicator, the ombudsman and also a number of the voluntary organisations, including the Child Poverty Action Group, Citizens Advice and the Low Incomes Tax Reform Group.

The new code no longer has a reference to what is or is not 'reasonable' for a customer to have understood. Instead, HMRC and customers' respective responsibilities are clearly set out in the code.

HMRC will be responsible for:

paying the correct award; and ensuring that changes reported to them by customers are recorded accurately and promptly.

Importantly, the Department will have a time limit (30 days) to act on information reported to them.

The customer's responsibilities will be to:

report changes of circumstances promptly;

check that their award notice properly reflects their family's circumstances and income and if it is incorrect to inform HMRC within 30 days of receiving the award notice; and check that the award matches the amounts going into their bank account and, if they are incorrect, to inform HMRC.

If a customer reports a change of circumstance then HMRC have 30 days to act on that change. If HMRC fail to act within 30 days then any resulting overpayment after the 30 days will be remitted.

Welfare Tax Credits: Telephone Services

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was spent on staff recruitment for the Tax Credits Helpline in each year for which figures are available. [180233]

Jane Kennedy: This information is not available in the format requested as the data cannot be disaggregated from other costs.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what methods have been used to recruit staff for the Tax Credits Helpline in the last year. [180235]

Jane Kennedy: HMRC does not recruit staff specifically for the Tax Credits Helpline, but instead advertises for Contact Centre Advisers. Over the last year HMRC has advertised externally in Local and National newspapers, on internet sites, on local radio and conducted road shows, attended Job fairs and Job Centre Plus offices. HMRC also recruits advisers internally and from other Government Departments by advertising vacancies through internal departmental intranet sites and publications.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many staff at each grade were employed on the Tax Credits Helpline in each year since it was established. [180419]

Jane Kennedy: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the former Paymaster General on 25 July 2006, Official Report, column 1392W. The number of full-time equivalent (FTE) staff employed on the Tax Credit Helpline for the year ended 31 March 2007 is estimated to be around 4,000, and for the year ended 31 March 2008 the figures are not yet available.

The analysis of these figures "by grade" is not available. At any given time, the numbers of staff working on the Tax Credits Helpline can vary considerably from the figures given as staff are increasingly deployed flexibly across HMRC's Helplines to respond to changing customer demand.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Arms Trade: Export Controls

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what applications have been received for export licences for the sale of arms to Sri Lanka since 1 January 2007; what type of arms were included in each application; whether each application was approved; and what the grounds for refusal were for each application which was refused. [185258]

Malcolm Wicks: The Government publish detailed information on export licences issued and refused, including the overall value and number of export licences approved for Sri Lanka and a summary of the items covered by these licences, in its annual and quarterly reports on strategic export controls. For licences refused, the reports provide, by destination, information on the number of licences refused, and a description of the nature of those goods (by reference to the relevant entry in export control legislation), and indicate which of the Consolidated EU and National Arms Export Licensing Criteria applied.

The Government's annual reports, published since 1997, are available from the Libraries of the House and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) website at:

http://www.fco.gov.uk/servlet/Front?pagename=OpenMarket/Xcelerate/ShowPage&c=Page&cid=1007029395474

The Government have published quarterly reports on strategic export controls since January 2004 and these are also available from this website.

Bankruptcy: Agriculture

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many (a) bankruptcy orders and (b) company liquidations there were in the agriculture sector in each year since 1997. [185650]

Mr. McFadden: The closest available estimates for bankruptcies in the agriculture sector are among self-employed farmers under the category "agriculture" according to the Insolvency Trade Classification (ITC). Also provided are the numbers of company liquidations in the agriculture sector.

The following table provides the England and Wales figures in 1997—Q3 2006.

Bankruptcies and company liquidations in England and Wales in the agriculture sector, 1997—Q3 2006

| | Bankruptcy orders | Company liquidations |
|---|---|---|
| 1997 | 155 | 51 |
| 1998 | 157 | 65 |
| 1999 | 183 | 75 |
| 2000 | 173 | 67 |
| 2001 | 183 | 90 |
| 2002 | 132 | 76 |
| 2003 | 151 | 52 |
| 2004 | 204 | 35 |
| 2005 | 195 | 35 |
| 2006 (up to September)[1] | 129 | 28 |

[1] Figures from October 2006 are not available due to development work to update the classification to the Standard Industrial Classification (SIC) 2003. These will be available for new cases from July 2007.

Broadband: Elderly

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what discussions he has had with colleagues in the Department for Culture, Media and Sport on the potential of the digital switchover programme to increase access to the internet for (a) older people and (b) people with a disability. [184357]

Malcolm Wicks: Discussions on the potential of the digital switchover programme to facilitate increased internet usage have been ongoing between the Department for Trade and Industry/Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, and the Department for Culture, Media and Sport throughout the development of the policy for whether, and if so, how and when, full switchover to television should be implemented. The joint Government—Industry Digital Television Action Plan which operated from January 2002 to November 2004 included a number of actions to explore the potential synergies between television switchover and providing access to services provided over the internet. With further technological advances since 2005, the issue has continued to be considered in the digital switchover programme. However, it remains the case that, while some means of electronic communications such as broadband networks can also offer reliable access to digital television services, digital television does not of itself provide easy-to-use access to the internet.

The Government have asked the BBC to establish and fund the Digital Switchover Help Scheme to assist those aged 75 or over, and younger people with significant disabilities, including those registered as blind or partially sighted to convert to digital television. The scheme will provide practical help with obtaining and installing equipment, and aftercare support. Providing access to the internet would add significantly to the complexity of the scheme and of the communications which support it. It is also likely to add significantly to the complexity for many of the recipients of the Help Scheme assistance and so act counter to the objectives of the scheme. We will continue to keep under review the options for accommodating new and emerging technologies into the scheme to help ensure that the equipment provided best suits the needs and interests of older and disabled people.

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate he has made of the number of (a) older people and (b) people with a disability using broadband to enhance their access to goods or services; what further scope there is for increasing the number of older and disabled people who can gain such access; and if he will make a statement. [184359]

Malcolm Wicks: The Department does not collect statistics on this matter. Statistics on the elderly and people with disabilities using broadband to enhance their access to goods and services are collected by Ofcom and the Ofcom Advisory Committee on Older and Disabled People.

Ofcom's UK Communications Market 2007 report shows that penetration falls with age when you look at internet usage with just 16 per cent. of over-65s using the web, although this age group spend on average almost 42 hours online every month, more than any other group. One quarter of all Britons online are over 50 and 30 per cent. of total time spent on the internet is by over-50s.

There are a number of industry and the third sector groups looking at ways of increasing the number of older and disabled people with access to online who can then benefit from using broadband to access goods and services. Organisations like, UK Online Centres, Citizens Online, RNID, RNIB, Help the Aged, Silver Surfers club, i2010, eAccessibility/Design for all, Action plan against Poverty, the Government's LinkAgePlus and local authorities through the DC10plus are all helping to get more people online.

Capita

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much was paid by his Department and its predecessor to Capita Group plc and its subsidiaries in each financial year since 2000; which contracts were awarded by his Department to Capita Group plc in each year from 2000-01 to the most recent available date; what the cost was of each contract; what penalties for default were imposed in contract provisions; what the length was of each contract; whether the contract was advertised; how many companies applied for the contract; how many were short-listed; what criteria were used for choosing a company; what provision was made for renewal without re-tender in each case; and if he will make a statement. [180697]

Mr. Thomas: Central records indicate that the following amounts have been paid to Capita Group plc and its subsidiaries in each financial year from 2003-04 to date:

| | 2003-04 | 2004-05 | 2005-06 | 2006-07 | 2007-08[1] |

Further information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Companies: Data Protection

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate he has made of the (a) number and (b) percentage of UK companies that store data indefinitely in compliance with one or more of (i) the Markets in Financial Instruments Directive, (ii) the single euro payments area, (iii) the Sarbanes-Oxley Act and (iv) the Companies Act 2006. [185411]

Angela Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

(i) There is no obligation imposed by the Markets in Financial Instruments Directive to store data indefinitely. MiFID requires that documents be held for at least five years and that certain client records be held for at least the duration of the firm's relationship with the client.

(ii) The Single Euro Payments Area (SEPA) is an industry initiative. For this reason the Government have not requested firms to store SEPA compliance data. The European Payments Council, which oversees the SEPA initiative, requires firms to hold information in order to comply with SEPA. To date 16 UK banks have adhered to SEPA, representing 84 per cent. of UK retail banking payment volume.

(iii) The UK Government do not hold data on UK companies that are required to comply with the US Sarbanes-Oxley Act.

(iv) There is no requirement under company law for UK companies to store any historic data indefinitely. The Companies Act 2006 introduced time limits, of 10 years, for certain records including, for example, minutes of a meeting. This was primarily to allow UK companies to dispose of such information, as some had previously been storing it indefinitely. All companies are required to hold certain documents and records, which should be kept up to date for the lifetime of the company. For example the company's registers of members and directors must be kept available for inspection.

Construction: Standards

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent representations he has received on the creation of a single set of competency standards for the construction industry; and if he will make a statement. [184488]

Malcolm Wicks: The issue of competency standards for construction has been raised briefly by the Specialist Engineering Group (SEC) at meetings with the Department. No formal representations have been received.

Departmental Consultants

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much his Department spent on external consultants in (a) 2003-04 and (b) 2004-05. [184884]

Mr. Thomas: Central records indicate that the cost to the Department of engaging external consultants in each of the following financial years has been:

| | £ million |
|---|---|
| 2004-05 | 86 |
| 2003-04 | 112 |

Departmental Marketing

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 24 January 2008, Official Report, column 2187W, on departmental marketing, what the cost of the re-branding exercise was. [184887]

Mr. Thomas: The rebranding exercise in the previous answer refers to the costs incurred in setting up BERR. An analysis of these costs dated 21 November 2007 showed them to be £218,063. These included stationery, rebranding and IT changes, including revised email addresses, new signage, web-based changes, new logo and print costs (including the re-launch of BERR on 1 November 2007) and the anticipated cost of branding guidelines.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 24 January 2008, Official Report, column 2187W, on departmental marketing, whether any external contracts were awarded to (a) run and (b) facilitate the re-branding exercise. [184888]

Mr. Thomas: No external contracts were awarded to run or facilitate the rebranding exercise. It was run and managed by BERR staff.

Departmental Telephone Services

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what telephone contact centres his Department is responsible for. [173133]

Mr. Thomas: The Department's central records do not contain the information to answer this question. Therefore, the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform could answer this question only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Travel

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much his Department and its predecessors spent on travel (a) within and (b) outside the UK for officials in each of the last 10 years; and what percentage of his Department's overall expenditure was spent on such travel in each of those years. [181638]

Mr. Thomas: The total amount spent on travel (a) within and (b) outside the UK by BERR and its predecessor, the DTI, in each of the last 10 years was:

| | Outside UK | £ Within UK |
|---|---|---|
| 1998-99 | 5,019,971 | n/a |
| 1999-2000 | 5,291,063 | n/a |
| 2000-01 | 5,470,024 | n/a |
| 2001-02 | 4,912,785 | n/a |
| 2002-03 | 5,583,825 | 4,235,910 |
| 2003-04 | 4,260,257 | 4,310,326 |
| 2004-05 | 5,483,903 | 3,976,125 |
| 2005-06 | 5,601,629 | 3,709,167 |
| 2006-07 | 6,295,501 | 3,234,332 |
| April 2007 to November 2007 | 1,752,867 | 2,529,628 |

n/a = Not available

These figures include travel, accommodation and incidental costs associated with travel.

To provide details of the percentage of the Department's overall expenditure on such travel for each of those years would entail disproportionate costs.

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many overseas visits by officials in his Department took place in each of the last 10 years; which countries were visited; and how much was spent on such visits in each such year. [181614]

Mr. Thomas: The total amount spent on foreign travel by BERR and its predecessor, the DTI, in each of the last 10 years was:

| | £ |
|---|---|
| 1998-99 | 5,019,971 |
| 1999-2000 | 5,291,063 |
| 2000-01 | 5,470,024 |
| 2001-02 | 4,912,785 |
| 2002-03 | 5,583,825 |
| 2003-04 | 4,260,257 |
| 2004-05 | 5,483,903 |
| 2005-06 | 5,601,629 |
| 2006-07 | 6,295,501 |
| April 2007 to November 2007 | 1,752,867 |

The Department does not separately record details of which countries were visited—to provide this information would entail disproportionate cost.

These figures include travel, accommodation and incidental costs associated with travel.

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much was spent by the former Department for Trade and Industry and his Department on expenses, travel and accommodation to Brussels in each year since 2000. [176051]

Mr. Thomas: Details of the amount spent by BERR, and previously by DTI, on travel and accommodation to Brussels are available only from June 2002 to date and are:

| | Travel | £ Accommodation |
|---|---|---|
| June to December 2002 | 420,294 | 55,885 |
| January to December 2003 | 630,725 | 15,256 |
| January to December 2004 | 577,633 | 9,305 |
| January to December 2005 | 717,260 | 16,587 |
| January to December 2006 | 512,668 | 94,076 |
| January 2007 to date | 424,301 | 95,374 |

Details of expenses to Brussels are not centrally recorded. To obtain this information would entail disproportionate cost.

Employment: Discrimination

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 24 January 2008, Official Report, columns 2188-9W, on employment: discrimination, how many cases based wholly or partially on a complaint of age discrimination have been brought before the Employment Service Tribunal in each of the last 10 years. [185432]

Bridget Prentice: I have been asked to reply.

The collection of details on Age Discrimination cases only became a requirement from October 2006, thus information is only available from that period. From October 2006 until the end of January 2008, there were 2,514 age discrimination cases out of a total of 147,530 discrimination cases. From 2002 until October 2006, there was a total of 114,392 discrimination cases. The information is summarised in the following table.

Numbers of discrimination and age discrimination cases, 2002 until January 2008.

| | October 2002 to October 2006 | October 2006 to January 2008 | Total |
|---|---|---|---|
| Discrimination | 114,392 | 147,530 | 261,922 |
| Age discrimination | Not available | 2,514 | Not available |

Energy Supply: Meters

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to paragraph 2.1.25 of the 2007 Energy White Paper, what ways of reducing the costs associated with pre-payment meters his Department has considered; and if he will make a statement. [185360]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 7 February 2008]: The costs associated with pre-payment meters reflect the higher cost of the meter itself, as well as that of the complex payment and support infrastructures required to support them, involving suppliers, meter owners and thousands of retail outlets.

Gas and electricity suppliers have been considering their tariff structures and two companies have equalised their standard credit and prepayment prices for electricity, while one offers prepayment customers a lower price for both fuels than that paid by standard credit customers. In addition, some suppliers offer social tariffs and other measures that benefit their most disadvantaged customers.

I will continue to look with Ofgem and the energy companies at ways of reducing the costs associated with pre-payment meters. I also support Ofgem's work to promote access to cheaper payment methods, especially direct debit.

The Government will shortly set out their next steps on smart meters. Such meters could significantly reduce the cost of serving a prepayment meter customer.

Energy Technologies Institute: Finance

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the cost to the public purse is of the Energy Technologies Institute in 2007-08. [180482]

Ian Pearson: I have been asked to reply.

The Energy Technologies Institute was legally established on 12 December 2007 as a limited liability partnership. Direct costs accrued in April to December 2007 by the public sector in support of the establishment of the ETI are estimated to amount to approximately £1,466,520. The majority of these costs will be shared with the private sector partners and off-set against public sector contributions to ETI during 2008.

Energy: Conservation

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much was raised by the energy efficiency commitment, broken down by energy supplier in each year since its introduction; and how much will be raised by the carbon emission reduction target on the same basis. [184951]

Mr. Woolas: I have been asked to reply.

We estimate that the first phase of EEC (2002-05) cost suppliers around £410 million and stimulated about £600 million worth of investment in energy efficiency delivering net benefits to householders in excess of £3 billion. The EEC's second phase (2005-08) is expected to cost suppliers around £1.2 billion and stimulate £400 million worth of annual investment in energy efficiency, delivering net benefits of £7.2 billion. The forthcoming CERT (2008-11) is estimated to cost energy suppliers around £2.8 billion, stimulating low carbon investment of some £4.3 billion and delivering net benefits to households worth approximately £12 billion.

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what guidance and incentives are available for businesses to implement more energy efficient (a) information and communication technology equipment, (b) working practices and (c) data centres. [185412]

Mr. Woolas: I have been asked to reply.

The Carbon Trust is working with a number of companies in the information communications technology (ICT) and financial services sectors through the carbon management process, to help reduce their carbon emissions and implement energy efficient practices. This includes a number of data centres, where barriers to energy efficiency implementation include:

education at executive level in relation to risks and opportunities surrounding 'carbon intensity' and differentiation of services offered in the market place. A cultural evolution within these companies is needed, accompanied by significant changes to organisational structure; commercial risk of installing new technologies due to loss of system availability, brand perception and because the systems are deemed to be of critical importance to the UK economy; business regulation (particularly in the financial sector) requiring energy intensive backup and disaster recovery systems; and difficulty in retrofitting existing data centres.

The Carbon Trust is in discussions with industry bodies to share understanding of energy issues in data centres, and is giving serious consideration to rolling out an industry-wide solution.

The Carbon Trust also provides a range of general guidance on the energy efficient use of office equipment, staff awareness and energy management. This is done through its customer centre, website and publications. The Carbon Trust also founded the Low Carbon Culture Company. This makes use of the Carbon Trust's experience in understanding carbon emissions to help companies reduce their carbon emissions by changing employee behaviour.

Energy: Meters

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will make a statement on the replacement of consumer energy display units with smart meters; who will bear the cost of replacement; and what research his Department has carried out on using alternative meters. [184773]

Malcolm Wicks: The Government have carried out a consultation on metering and billing, including smart meters, display devices and the relationship between the two. The Government will set out the next steps on metering and billing shortly.

Mr. Benyon: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) when he will make the statutory instrument necessary to enable consumers of energy to request real time consumption display devices; [185983]

(2) whether the Government intend to provide free real-time energy consumption display devices to householders. [185984]

Malcolm Wicks: In August 2007, the Government consulted on a range of metering and billing proposals, including the provision of electricity display devices. The Government will shortly set out their response to the consultation, including the next steps on smart meters and display devices.

Energy: Warrington

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps he is taking to reduce energy costs to (a) low income families and (b) vulnerable people in Warrington. [184775]

Malcolm Wicks: Action to reduce energy costs for those on low incomes cuts across several Departments. The Government have a package of measures in place to support vulnerable households to reduce energy costs.

We have announced that spend on energy efficiency measures for those on low incomes for the period 2008-11 will be in excess of £2.3 billion. Since 2000 the Warm Front programme has helped over 14,000 vulnerable households install energy efficiency measures in Warrington.

In the Energy White Paper we made it clear that we expected energy suppliers to have a proportionate programme of assistance in place for vulnerable customers. Energy companies have responded positively and have recently increased the level of support they provide to vulnerable customers from £40 million to £56 million this winter.

Engineering

Mr. Olner: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the contribution of the engineering industry to the economy in 2007. [182950]

Malcolm Wicks: The engineering industry, counting the sectors defined by the Community Innovation Survey as engineering-based manufacturing industries, contributed some £57 billion gross value added to the UK economy in 2006, the last year for which figures are available.

Export Control Act 2002

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform when he expects to publish the Government's response to the consultation on the review of the Export Control Act 2002; and if he will make a statement. [181739]

Malcolm Wicks: The Government published their response on 7 February 2008. The response is available from the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR) at:

http://www.berr.gov.uk/europeandtrade/strategic-export-control/legislation/export-control-act-2002/review/index.html

Exports: China

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether any commercial export contracts were agreed (a) during and (b) as a result of the Prime Minister's recent visit to Beijing. [182692]

Mr. Thomas [holding answer 28 January 2008]: My right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, and my right hon. Friend, the Prime Minister, witnessed a number of commercial contract signings during the recent visit to Beijing.

It is too early to say what the commercial results of the visit were. However, I am confident that following discussions and agreements reached during the visit, including the announcement of a new $60 billion bilateral trade target, and the business matching event involving British and Chinese companies, there will be a significant number of commercial relationships arising from the visit.

Fair Trade Initiative

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what his Department's policy is on the use of fair trade goods (a) in staff catering facilities and (b) at official departmental functions and meetings; and if he will make a statement. [183849]

Mr. Thomas: My Department has adopted a policy to use fair trade products within its catering operations and includes a clause within the contract specification with its catering service provider.

Farepak Response Fund

Mr. McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will place in the Library a copy of the Farepak Response Fund accounts for the period from 10 November 2006 to 31 July 2007; and if he will make a statement. [184734]

Mr. Thomas: I will arrange for a copy of the accounts to be placed in the Library promptly.

Fuel Poverty

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps have been taken to assist the fuel poor in meeting any increases in electricity prices resulting from the renewables obligation. [175694]

Malcolm Wicks: Government measures outlined in the UK Fuel Poverty 5th Annual Strategy Progress Report are aimed at ensuring the fuel poor are able to meet their fuel bills. Since 2000, the Government have spent £20 billion on benefits and programmes, including the winter fuel payment which helped keep 11.7 million people warm in the winter of 2006-07.

In addition, the combination of Warm Front funding of just over £800 million for the 2008-11 period and the focus on low income and elderly consumers through the priority group obligation in the Carbon Emissions Reduction Target (CERT) mean that spending on energy efficiency and other measures in low income, elderly and disabled households is expected to rise by £680 million to around £2.3 billion compared to the previous spending period.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps the Government has taken to reduce levels of fuel poverty since 1997. [178470]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 22 January 2008]: The Government developed a strategy for tackling fuel poverty which was published in 2001. The strategy focuses on improving the energy efficiency of low income households and increasing their income.

Since 2000, the Government have spent £20 billion on fuel poverty benefits and programmes. Winter fuel payments that helped 11.7 million people keep warm last winter will continue for the rest of this Parliament. The Government have also announced that spend on household energy efficiency measures for the period 2008-11 will be in excess of £2.3 billion—£680 million more than the previous spending period.

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of social tariffs for energy supplies in alleviating fuel poverty. [184996]

Malcolm Wicks: In the Energy White Paper the Government asked the energy companies to provide a proportionate programme of assistance to vulnerable consumers. Following analysis of Ofgem's review of energy suppliers' social initiatives, the Government found that the energy companies offered an extensive range of social programmes, including social tariffs, trust funds and rebates, and concluded that the energy companies were offering a proportionate level of assistance. A supplier is deemed to be offering a proportionate level of assistance if it is offering measures around or above the industry average at the time of the publication of the White Paper. The energy companies have increased their contribution from £40 million to £56 million this winter, lifting a further 70,000 households out of fuel poverty by the end of 2007.

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to his answer of 15 October 2007, Official Report, column 805W, on fuel poverty, what the duration is of each of the social initiatives announced by the six major energy suppliers in light of the 2007 Energy White Paper; and if he will make a statement. [185262]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 7 February 2008]: In the Energy White Paper, we made it clear that we expected energy suppliers to have a proportionate programme of assistance in place for vulnerable customers. Energy companies have responded positively and have recently increased the level of support they provide to vulnerable customers from £40 million to £56 million this winter. Further details about the duration of these programmes will be provided in due course.

Fuel: Meters

Mr. Godsiff: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps are being taken to reduce the difference in costs between those paying for fuel on prepay meters and those paying by direct debit. [185295]

Malcolm Wicks: The costs associated with pre-payment meters reflect the higher cost of the meter itself, as well as that of the complex payment and support infrastructures required to support them, involving suppliers, meter owners and thousands of retail outlets.

Gas and electricity suppliers have been considering their tariff structures and two companies have equalised their standard credit and prepayment prices for electricity, while one offers prepayment customers a lower price for both fuels than that paid by standard credit customers. In addition, some suppliers offer social tariffs and other measures that benefit their most disadvantaged customers.

I will continue to look with Ofgem and the energy companies at ways of reducing the costs associated with prepayment meters. I also support Ofgem's work to promote access to cheaper payment methods, especially direct debit.

The Government will shortly set out their next steps on smart meters. Such meters could significantly reduce the cost of serving a prepayment meter customer.

Mr. Godsiff: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many people pay for fuel on prepay meters in Sparkbrook and Small Heath constituency. [185296]

Malcolm Wicks: Splits by payment type are not available at constituency level. The lowest level of aggregation available is distribution zone, with Sparkbrook and Small Heath being located in the West Midlands. This information is published quarterly in "Quarterly Energy Prices", the latest version of which is accessible online at http://www.berr.gov.uk/files/file43302.pdf.

The following table shows the total number of domestic customers and the number of customers paying using a prepay meter in the West Midlands for both electricity and gas.

| Total customers | Pre-payment customer | Percentage |
|---|---|---|
| Electricity | | |
| 2,166,600 | 321,500 | 15 |
| Gas | | |
| 1,884,700 | 210,200 | 11 |

Furniture: Carbon Emissions

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what plans he has to encourage British furniture manufacturers to reduce their carbon footprint through the use of sustainable manufacturing practices. [182246]

Malcolm Wicks: Government are taking action to encourage all parts of the economy including manufacturing to reduce their carbon footprint. The Commission for Environmental Markets and Economic Performance report published in November reported that there are opportunities for all businesses to improve eco-efficiency and operational performance by addressing the environmental impact of products throughout their whole lifecycle. The Carbon Trust offers advice and support schemes to business and more specific measures are set out in the Climate Change Bill currently going through Parliament. Government have introduced a number of initiatives which help businesses including WRAP which offers advice to manufacturers on recycling and reducing material consumption and from April the Manufacturing Advisory Service will extend its services to include improving resource efficiency in both energy and waste.

Furniture

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many furniture manufacturers operate in the UK; how many people the industry employs; and how many items made by British furniture manufacturers were exported in the latest period for which figures are available. [182234]

Malcolm Wicks: In 2006, the latest year for which full figures are available from official statistics, the UK furniture industry had 7,327 enterprises, 110,000 employees and exported £923 million worth of goods (the number of items exported is not available from official statistics).

ONS ABI and MQ10

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate he has made of the contribution to the British economy made by UK furniture manufacturers. [182235]

Malcolm Wicks: Official statistics show that in 2006, the latest year for which full figures are available, the furniture industry contributed £3,588 million in gross value added[1] to the UK economy.

ONS ABI

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will make it his policy to ensure that Government funding to support furniture manufacturing industry and its supply chain is more effective for the industry across all geographical regions. [183017]

Malcolm Wicks: Regional Development Agencies (RDAs) have a remit to promote business efficiency and competitiveness and they deploy funding support according to regional priorities. The RDAs are also the principle channel for delivery of business support through Business Link and the Manufacturing Advisory Service which are available to all parts of manufacturing industry.

Government Office for London: Finance

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the Government Office for London's budget has been in each year since its establishment. [184616]

Mr. Dhanda: I have been asked to reply.

Government office for London's running cost expenditure is as follows:

| | Total (£ million) | Status |
|---|---|---|
| 1998-99 | 16.0 | Outturn |
| 1999-2000 | 16.0 | Outturn |

Imports: Furniture

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment his Department has made of the effects of furniture imports from (a) China and (b) Poland on the British furniture manufacturing industry. [182247]

Malcolm Wicks: No such assessments have been made. Imports from low cost economies represent a significant challenge to all parts of UK manufacturing and Government are taking action through the Manufacturing Strategy to help companies to compete on value rather than low wages. We have started a review of the Strategy to ensure that it continues to meet the changing demands on the sector and so that companies can take advantage of opportunities in emerging markets.

Industrial Diseases: Compensation

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what payments were made under coal health schemes in each year for which figures are available. [185178]

Malcolm Wicks: The following table shows the payments made under the coal health compensation schemes since its inception as at 3 February 2008.

£ million

| | COPD | | VWF | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Damages | Solicitors costs | Damages | Solicitors costs |
| Pre 1999 | 21.3 | 0.02 | 4.6 | 1.0 |

Information and Communications Technology: Energy

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent discussions he has had with representatives of the information and communications technology (ICT) industry on the energy efficiency of ICT products. [185387]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 7 February 2008]: Government Ministers and officials have regular discussions with representatives of the information and communications technology (ICT) industry on a wide range of issues including the energy efficiency of its products.

International Trade

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether his Department discussed in advance with HRH Prince Andrew, in his role as special representative for international trade and investment, the businesses whose interest he would promote during his visit to the world economic forum in Davos. [183788]

Mr. Thomas: In advance of HRH The Duke of York's attendance at the World Economic Forum in Davos, in his role as the UK's Special Representative for International Trade and Investment, UK Trade and Investment discussed the programme for his visit with the Duke of York's Private Office.

Liquified Natural Gas: Milford Haven

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate he has made of the liquefied natural gas (LNG) storage capacity that will be provided at the two new LNG import terminals to be commissioned at Milford Haven. [185064]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 6 February 2008]: These developments are a commercial matter. Based on BERR's current data on capacity under construction, the information requested is:

South Hook—LNG storage capacity equivalent to 470 mcm of gas in gaseous form;

Dragon—LNG storage capacity equivalent to 100 mcm of gas in gaseous form.

I should take this opportunity to make the following correction to the answer given to the hon. Member's earlier question, 30 January 2008, Official Report, column 416W. The figure for LNG storage capacity at import terminals is equivalent to 120 mcm of gas in gaseous form (not the 50 mcm previously indicated). Consequently Great Britain's total existing fixed storage capacity for liquefied natural gas is the equivalent of 380 mcm of gas in gaseous form (not the 310 mcm previously indicated).

London Development Agency: Grants

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) whether his Department (a) records, (b) monitors and (c) audits grants made by the London Development Agency; [184429]

(2) what records his Department holds of grants made by the London Development Agency to bodies other than trade unions. [184729]

Mr. McFadden: The Secretary of State's approval is only required by the London Development Agency for expenditure on individual projects where these exceed the Agency's current financial delegation of £50 million and for a proportion of projects between £10 million and £50 million. The Department keeps records of these projects and receives monitoring reports on them. The Department does not keep records of smaller grants made by the Agency.

It is not the Department's role to audit grants provided by the LDA. As a functional body of the GLA, the LDA's external auditor is the Audit Commission.

Manufacturing Industries: Employment

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many jobs in the manufacturing sector there were in (a) Ribble Valley constituency, (b) Lancashire county council area and (c) England in each of the last 10 years. [182266]

Mr. Thomas [holding answer 25 January 2008]: Figures from the Office for National Statistics detailing the number of jobs in the manufacturing sector as per the hon. Member's question are shown in the following table:

Figures for 2007 are not yet available.

| | (a) Ribble Valley | (b) Lancashire CC | (c) England |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1998 | 9,500 | 138,500 | 3,504,700 |
| 1999 | 9,800 | 129,700 | 3,395,500 |
| 2000 | 10,600 | 127,200 | 3,279,500 |
| 2001 | 9,600 | 116,700 | 3,121,000 |
| 2002 | 10,400 | 115,700 | 2,965,600 |
| 2003 | 9,100 | 112,900 | 2,807,100 |
| 2004 | 8,000 | 107,700 | 2,665,400 |
| 2005 | 7,800 | 102,100 | 2,549,700 |
| 2006 | 8,500 | 98,600 | 2,481,100 |

Minimum Wage: Publicity

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps the Government has taken to promote awareness of the national minimum wage since its introduction. [185371]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 7 February 2008]: There were high profile publicity campaigns to raise awareness of the national minimum wage in the early years following its introduction. Since then the Government have run a campaign to inform workers and employers about the rates.

This year we are running a more sustained national and regional campaign including radio and poster advertising, an online campaign targeting young workers, an outreach campaign involving a national minimum wage bus visiting more than 30 towns and cities across Great Britain, and a campaign targeting migrant workers bringing in elements of these campaigns. These campaigns seek to promote awareness of the minimum wage, the rates and where workers and employers can get advice or make a complaint.

We are also working with business to identify what support they need to ahead of new penalties for underpayment of NMW which are being introduced through the Employment Bill.

Minimum Wage: Young People

Mrs. Riordan: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate he has made of the number of 18 to 21-year-olds in the Halifax area who are being paid more than they otherwise would because of the minimum wage. [184722]

Mr. McFadden: Estimates of earnings distribution by region are derived from the ONS's Annual Survey of Hours and Earnings (ASHE). ASHE data are not available at the level of detail required to identify the Halifax area.

However, it is estimated that around 7 per cent. of employee jobs held by 18 to 21-year-olds in Yorkshire and the Humber region stood to benefit from the October 2007 increase in the national minimum wage.

Ministers: Responsibilities

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether Baroness Vadera's ministerial responsibilities include oversight of (a) UK Trade and Investment and (b) the Defence and Security Group; and if he will make a statement. [183629]

Mr. Hutton: No. My noble Friend, the Minister for Trade Promotion and Investment has ministerial responsibility in BERR for UK Trade and Investment (UKTI). His responsibilities will also include defence and security trade promotion when UKTI takes over responsibility for defence exports from the Defence Export Services Organisation on 1 April 2008. He is responsible for the Department's general relations with the defence and security business sectors.

Mobile Phones: Fraud

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what regulations his Department has introduced prohibiting phishing texts on mobile telephones. [180380]

Malcolm Wicks: The practice of attempting fraud by text message, also known as "smishing", is rare in the UK. Under the provisions of the Privacy and Electronic Communications (EC Directive) Regulations 2003, any unsolicited text messages are illegal. Text messages should only be sent with the prior consent of the individual subscriber, but there is an exemption where the subscriber has given his or her mobile telephone number direct to a company in the context of the purchase of a product or service. Enforcement is undertaken by the Information Commissioner.

Nuclear Installations Act 1965

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform when the Government plans to consult on amending the Nuclear Installations Act 1965. [180089]

Malcolm Wicks: I understand the hon. Member to be referring to the Government's intention to consult on amending the Nuclear Installations Act 1965 to implement the amendments made in 2004 to the Paris and Brussels Conventions on third party nuclear liability. We intend to consult on this later this year.

Nuclear Power

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 21 January 2008, Official Report, column 1632W, on nuclear power, how many respondents requested anonymity for their submissions; how many such respondents were (a) companies, (b) individuals and (c) others; and how many submissions were made to the consultation. [185486]

Malcolm Wicks: We received 2,728 written responses to our public consultation on nuclear power. Of these, 261 were treated as confidential. We asked respondents to identify themselves by category in making their responses. Of the 261 responses treated as confidential, 62 defined themselves as coming from a company-related sector. Of these, two responses were on behalf of a company, and 60 were individual responses. 149 responses came from those defining themselves as individuals. Of these, four indicated that they were making a response on behalf of an organisation. 50 responses came from a group of sectors summarised as "other", including academic, consultancy, Government agency or sponsored body, local or regional government, trade union, voluntary or environmental organisation. Of these, five indicated that they were making a response on behalf of an organisation.

Olympic Games 2012: West Midlands

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps the Government has taken to encourage West Midlands businesses to examine the opportunities arising from the hosting of the 2012 Olympic Games. [185372]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 7 February 2008]: London 2012 has recently launched the "London 2012 Business Network", which is aimed at helping businesses, particularly SMEs, to access Contracts and sub-Contracts from the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games.

The West Midlands launch of the Network took place on 23 January 2008, at Villa Park. The keynote speaker was Mr. Paul Deighton, the chief executive of the London Organising Committee for the Olympic Games (LOCOG). The launch was attended by 260 delegates, around 75 per cent. of whom were from private sector businesses. The regional development agency for the West Midlands, Advantage West Midlands (AWM), is committed to promoting the London 2012 Business Network in the region.

As part of that process, the West Midlands Business Council, which is funded by AWM, has organised a series of 17 "Olympic Opportunities" seminars across the region. The first seminar took place on 1 February in Ross-on-Wye and the Coventry seminar will take place on 14 March. A full list of the seminars can be accessed at www.wmbusinesscouncil.org.uk under "Events".

In addition, the agency is working closely with Business Link to support businesses in the region to maximise the number of 2012 Tenders won in the West Midlands. This includes a series of ten, detailed, half-day "Tender Training" Workshops, themed around London 2012. The Coventry workshop is on 20 February.

The regional development agencies, including AWM are joint funders of one of the main components of the 2012 Business Network, the "CompeteFor" system.

"CompeteFor" gives unprecedented access to top-tier and lower-level sub-contracts from Olympic Delivery Authority and LOCOG Tenders.

Packaging: Misleading Advertising

Mr. Greenway: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) whether he plans through the implementation of the Unfair Commercial Practices Directive to increase consumer protection from misleading copycat packaging; [175501]

(2) what assessment he has made of the trading standards departments' capacity to enforce the Unfair Commercial Practices Directive regulations without the inclusion of provision for private prosecution against misleading copycat packaging. [175502]

Mr. Thomas: The Office of Fair Trading and Trading Standards Departments will have a duty to enforce the Consumer Protection from Unfair Trading Regulations (CPRs) implementing the Unfair Commercial Practices Directive. The Government believe that these enforcement arrangements suffice to adequately enforce the CPRs, including in relation to misleading copycat packaging design. OFT and Trading Standards Departments will have to act in a manner consistent with their duty to enforce the Regulations. Indeed the Gowers Review of Intellectual Property notes that in this context the Local Authority Co-ordinators of Regulatory Services have said that once the UCPD is in place they will act on behalf of consumers by pursuing businesses who act improperly.

For this reason the Government do not propose to allow businesses to enforce the regulations. However, they will review the position three years after the regulations come into force.

Political Levy

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what funding his Department has provided to trades unions through the Union Modernisation Fund and Union Learning Fund to promote awareness of trades union members' right to opt out of political funds since 1997. [186084]

Mr. McFadden: Neither the Union Modernisation Fund nor the Union Learning Fund provides funding to trade unions to promote awareness of trade union members' right to opt out of political funds.

The Union Learning Fund is administered by the Department for Innovation, University and Skills.

Post Offices: Closures

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what consideration the Minister of State for Employment Relations and Postal Affairs has given to the letter from the London borough of Hammersmith and Fulham dated January 2008 on post office closures in that local authority area. [185475]

Mr. McFadden: I have seen the letter from Councillor Paul Bristow of the London borough of Hammersmith and Fulham council and would recommend that the council contact Post Office Ltd to discuss their concerns and proposals for future service provision in the borough.

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform with reference to the answer of 29 October 2007, Official Report, column 706W, on post offices: closures, if he will make an assessment of the impact on transport-related climate change emissions arising from the Post Office Network change programme. [185547]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 7 February 2008]: No. The 17 area plans published by Post Office Ltd. to 5 February indicate that on average over 95 per cent. of the population in each area will see no change to the post office branch they currently use or will be within one mile of an alternative branch. And, as stated in the Government's response to the public consultation on the post office network, closures will principally affect a combination of branches in areas of high provision and those that are least used. Post Office Ltd. have been tasked with taking a strategic overview of service provision to ensure that in areas of high provision, people should be able to find an alternative branch nearby and the vast majority will still be within walking distance of their nearest office. With the least used, the number of people affected will, by the nature of the offices, be low.

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform with reference to the meeting held by his Department with the hon. Member for Billericay on 12 December 2007, if he will instruct Post Office Ltd. to release financial data pertaining to post offices earmarked for closure to Essex county council before the proposed closure of such post offices on 11 February. [185555]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 7 February 2008]: I understand that detailed discussions are now in progress between Post Office Ltd. and Essex county council regarding the post offices which the council has expressed an interest in supporting financially.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) which post office branches closed temporarily in each parliamentary constituency in each month from January 2005 to October 2007; [185924]

(2) which temporary post office closures in each parliamentary constituency were made permanent between January 2005 and October 2007; and on what date each closure was made permanent; [185925]

(3) how many new post office outreach services were created in each month from January 2005 to October 2007; [185926]

(4) how many temporarily closed post office branches remained part of the Post Office network at the beginning of each month from January 2005 to October 2007. [185927]

Mr. McFadden: This is an operational matter for Post Office Ltd (POL). I have therefore asked Alan Cook, managing director of POL, to reply direct to the hon. Member.

Copies of the letter will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Sir Peter Soulsby: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the quality of the Post Office's consultation process for proposed branch closures. [186029]

Mr. McFadden: From the outset, Post Office Ltd has made clear that their local public consultation process is about how, not whether, network changes should be implemented. This was set out in their letter sent to all MPs last July.

Across the 10 area plans for which final decisions had been announced as at 7 February, 22 closure decisions have been withdrawn and two proposed closures have been deferred for up to three months to allow time for local funding proposals to be developed and assessed. In the area plans published to date, on average over 10 per cent. of the initial proposals have been changed to ensure compliance with the access criteria and to take account of other factors demonstrating the company's responsiveness to the concerns of stakeholders such as Postwatch, local authorities and sub-postmasters.

Sir Peter Soulsby: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what system there is for appealing against post office closures following the announcement of the Post Office's response to public consultation on branch closures in Leicester, Leicestershire and Rutland. [186030]

Mr. McFadden: The review process for closure decisions after public consultation has been agreed between Post Office Limited and Postwatch. It applies where Postwatch shows for an individual branch that, either Post Office Ltd. has not given due consideration to material evidence received during the public consultation in coming to its decision or, evidence emerging from the consultation suggests that the proposal for the branch does not meet the Government's policy requirements. The aim of the review process is to reach an agreed way forward by a bilateral review of individual cases, with three stages available at increasing levels of seniority of the respective Post Office Ltd. and Postwatch representatives. For very difficult cases which remain unresolved after stage three, a further stage was recently added whereby Allan Leighton, chairman of Royal Mail Group, will review the issues and reach the final decision.

Under this review process, specific closures proposals have been reversed in response to information received as part of the public consultation.

Postal Services

Sir Peter Soulsby: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) which local authorities made submissions to the Post Office consultation on the post office network change programme for Leicester, Leicestershire and Rutland; [186031]

(2) what the cost was of the Post Office's consultation on the network change programme for Leicester, Leicestershire and Rutland.; [186032]

(3) how many responses were received in relation to each branch proposed for closure in the Post Office's consultation on the post office network change programme for Leicester, Leicestershire and Rutland. [186033]

Mr. McFadden: This is an operational matter for Post Office Ltd (POL). I have therefore asked Alan Cook, managing director of POL, to reply direct to the hon. Member.

Copies of the letter will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Postwatch

Sir Peter Soulsby: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent assessment he has made of Postwatch's ability to carry out its statutory duties. [186028]

Mr. McFadden: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform has made no such assessment.

As an executive non-departmental public body the performance of Postwatch is a matter for its board and the chief executive officer, which is monitored via regular meetings with BERR, the sponsor Department.

Public Telephones

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) what estimate he has made of the number of public telephone boxes which (a) display advertising on their exterior and (b) displayed advertising on 24 January (i) 2007 and (ii) 2003; [182212]

(2) what estimate he has made of the number of red public telephone boxes that have been replaced. [182548]

Malcolm Wicks: Under the terms of the Universal Service Obligation imposed on BT and Kingston Communications by the regulator, the Office of Communications (Ofcom), the companies are required to maintain public call boxes to meet reasonable demand across the UK. Ofcom enforce this requirement but I understand that Ofcom do not collect information on the design of public call boxes or the extent to which the exterior is used for advertising. My hon. Friend will need to contact the two companies to obtain this information.

I understand from Ofcom that on UK streets there are currently 61,796 public telephone boxes.

Radioactive Materials: Transport

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 11 December 2007, Official Report, columns 390-91W, on radioactive materials: transport, if he will place in the Library a copy of the responses to the section of the consultation which includes the question 'Do you agree or disagree with the Government's views on the transport of nuclear materials'. [184290]

Malcolm Wicks: A copy of the analysis of the responses to the consultation on "The Role of Nuclear Power in a Low Carbon Economy" has been placed in the Library.

As we received 2,700 written responses to the consultation we do not intend to place copies of responses in the Library. However all the written responses to the consultation have been placed on the internet at:

http://nuclearpower2007.direct.gov.uk

The website allows responses and parts of responses on individual subjects, including the transport of nuclear materials, to be read separately.

Regional Development Agencies: Trade Unions

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar, of 9 January 2008, Official Report, column 676W, on regional development agencies: trade unions, what the diversity works project was for which funds were given to the Trades Union Congress by the London Development Agency. [184731]

Mr. McFadden: I understand from the London Development Agency that the Agency's London Diversity Works for London programme has been working closely since 2006 with southern and eastern region TUC (SERTUC) to capacity build trade union representatives in their efforts to promote equality and diversity in workplaces in partnership with employers.

Renewable Energy: Heating

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent representations he has received on renewable heat supplies. [179045]

Malcolm Wicks: Representations on renewable heat have mainly been channelled to the Office of Climate Change who, until recently, have been leading work on renewable heat and have conducted initial consultations with a range of industry representatives, including those from the Government's Renewables Advisory Board.

On 31 January 2008, BERR, along with DEFRA and CLG, published the Heat Call for Evidence which encourages input to Government thinking from industry and other stakeholders. Responses are due by the end of March.

Retail Trade: Internet

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the likely future change in levels of use of internet shopping and the implications for high street retail outlets; and if he will make a statement. [182045]

Malcolm Wicks: We have not made any such estimate. The internet has opened up a number of opportunities for high street retail outlets. These include potential increases in the customer base, the ability to sell goods for which there is insufficient space in retailers' high street stores, as well as the extra convenience for customers who can order online and then collect the goods from a high street outlet. The internet can also be exploited for marketing purposes, for example through the provision of information to customers on the products in their stores, and the ability to reach customers who would otherwise face difficulties in visiting high street outlets. Depending on circumstances, overheads can be reduced through lower fixed costs per item and a smaller proportion of goods stolen by shoplifters.

The internet has brought about a wider marketplace where customers have greater information and choice than previously. High street retailers who adapt to new market conditions are likely to have more opportunities to grow their businesses.

Sellafield

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many completed MOX fuel assemblies were made in the Sellafield MOX plant in the last year for which figures are available; and what the production target was for that year. [184894]

Malcolm Wicks: The last full year for which production figures for the Sellafield MOX plant are available is the 2006-07 financial year, when the output was eight completed fuel assemblies against a target of 16. This information is contained in the Nuclear Decommissioning Authority's annual report and accounts for 2006-07, which is available on their website at:

www.nda.gov.uk

Solar Power: Standards

Dr. Whitehead: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what progress he has made with the accreditation of low pressure solar PV panel manufacturers under the terms of the Low Carbon Building Programme. [174370]

Malcolm Wicks: The Low Carbon Buildings programme supports microgeneration installations only where approved products and installers are used. This is to ensure that Government grants support reliable and safe installations, which comply with building regulations.

Under the Microgeneration Certification Scheme (MCS) products must meet specified requirements. Where possible, the product requirements are taken from the appropriate British or European standards (e.g. solar thermal collectors have to comply with BS EN 12975-1:2006 when tested in accordance with BS EN 12975-2:2006).

We assume that this question relates to solar thermal collectors. BS EN 12975 does include a pressure test (EN 12975-2:2006 Clause 5.2 Internal pressure test for absorbers). This test involves subjecting the solar collector to a pressure of 1.5 times the maximum solar collector operating pressure specified by the manufacturer. The 1.5 safety factor is normal for this type of test and since the pressure applied in the test is related to the manufacturer's specified maximum pressure, this test should be equally applicable to 'low pressure designs' as those that require higher pressures. This internal pressure test is not only limited to solar collectors incorporating evacuated tubes but also applied to flat plate solar collectors.

The internal pressure test does not, however, apply to solar PV panels. For solar PV panels (and solar thermal collectors) there are mechanical load tests (to demonstrate the ability to resist the loads caused by wind and snow etc.).

These types of tests are described in Clause 5.9 of EN 12975-2:2006 for solar thermal collectors and Clause 10.16 of EN 61215:2005 for PV modules.

South East England Development Agency

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 30 January 2008, Official Report, column 418W, on South East England Development Agency, how much the South East England Development Agency received from renting its facilities to (a) enterprise gateway projects and (b) enterprise hubs in each of the last five years. [185066]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 6 February 2008]: SEEDA has not received rent from any Enterprise Gateway Projects or Enterprise Hubs.

South East England Development Agency: Property

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform which properties are owned by the South East England Development Agency; to whom each is leased; and on what terms. [181673]

Mr. McFadden: The properties owned by the South East England Development Agency are set out in the table. I have placed a copy in the Libraries of the House.

Telecommunications: EU Law

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps his Department has taken to implement the EU Radio and Telecommunications Terminal Equipment Directive; what further steps he plans to take; and if he will make a statement. [185006]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 6 February 2008]: The RTTE directive was published in the Official Journal of the EU on 7 April 1999, and has applied since 8 April 2000. All transitional provisions ended on 8 April 2001.

The directive was transposed into UK law via The Radio Equipment and Telecommunications Terminal Equipment Regulations 2000 (SI 2000 No.730) which were published on 13 March 2000.

The regulations were amended by The Radio Equipment and Telecommunications Terminal Equipment (Amendment) Regulations 2003 (SI 2003 No. 1903) which were published on 21 July 2003 and which took into account the coming into force of the EU communications directives on 25 July 2003.

The regulations were further amended by The Radio Equipment and Telecommunications Terminal Equipment (Amendment No 2) Regulations 2003 (SI 2003 No.3144) which were published on 5 December 2003 and which, among other things, added Ofcom as an enforcement authority as a consequence of it assuming the responsibilities of the former Radiocommunications Agency.

No further amendments are expected to be needed in the foreseeable future.

Telecommunications: Hearing Impaired

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will review the definition of relay services for the deaf in the Government's 2003 Universal Service Order to include newer technologies such as video and internet protocol relay; and if he will make a statement. [181095]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 22 January 2008]: The matter raised is the responsibility of the independent regulator, the Office of Communications (Ofcom), which is accountable to Parliament rather than Ministers. Accordingly, I have asked the chief executive of Ofcom to reply directly to the right hon. Member. Copies of the chief executive's letter will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Timesharing: Complaints

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many consumer complaints his Department has received on timeshare sales in the latest period for which figures are available. [183069]

Mr. Thomas [holding answer 29 January 2008]: The Department's central records do not contain the information to answer this question. Therefore, the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform could answer this question only at disproportionate cost.

Trade Union and Labour Party Liaison Organisation

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform on how many occasions Ministers in his Department have met representatives of the Trade Union and Labour Party Liaison Organisation in each of the last three years. [178945]

Mr. McFadden: Ministers meet many people and organisations as part of the process of policy development. In addition, Ministers will meet their own party organisations from time to time. It is not normal practice to disclose details of such meetings.

Trade Unions

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what restrictions apply to trades unions making payments from their general funds to organisations other than political parties which engage in (a) campaigning for changes to legislation and (b) political campaigning. [186092]

Mr. McFadden: It is unlawful for trade unions to apply their general funds in furtherance of "political objects" as defined by section 72 of the Trade Union and Labour Relations (Consolidation) Act 1992, either directly or indirectly via another trade union, association or other organisation.

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what guidance his Department has issued on the permissible use of resources from trades unions' general funds for campaign purposes. [186093]

Mr. McFadden: The BERR publication "Trade union political funds: a guide to trade unions, their members and others" refers to the use of general funds for expenditure on purposes which do not constitute political objects.

Tribunals: Employment

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent representations he has received on changes to the role of lay members sitting on employment tribunals. [184572]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 5 February 2008]: The Government consultation, "Resolving Disputes in the Workplace", published in March 2007, raised a range of issues relating to dispute resolution. Many respondents to that consultation commented on the role of lay members sitting on employment tribunals.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate he has made of the number of employment tribunals with (a) three members, (b) two members and (c) one member adjudicating which will sit each year should the provisions of the Employment (Simplification) Bill be enacted. [184573]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 5 February 2008]: The Government acknowledge the valuable and important contribution which lay members make to the tribunal system. This was reaffirmed through responses to the Government consultation "Resolving disputes in the workplace" which issued in March 2007 and closed on 20 June 2007. Most respondents commented that the tripartite structure of the tribunal was a real strength which aided decision-making in cases where considerations of context and reasonableness were important.

There was also support in the consultation for chairs to sit alone in determining cases involving issues of a purely legal nature and in straightforward monetary cases, where the practical experience of the workplace that lay members bring to the tribunal's deliberations is of less relevance. Additionally over 70 per cent. of respondents to the consultation supported the introduction of a new, swift approach to dealing with straightforward claims, where cases could be determined by an employment tribunal chair, with the consent of the parties, on the basis of the papers. Responding to these findings in the consultation process, the Government propose to develop further good practice which already exists within the tribunals by establishing a fast-track system for dealing with simple monetary claims. The fast-track system will involve five jurisdictions where claims potentially raise straightforward issues and therefore potentially could be determined without the need for tribunal hearing. The jurisdictions considered suitable for the fast-track are:

unlawful deductions from wages;

breach of contract;

redundancy pay;

holiday pay; and the national minimum wage.

Claims falling within this narrow band that are combined with other jurisdictions outside the list will not be eligible for a fast-track determination.

The Government envisages that employment judges will make an early analysis of claims falling within these jurisdictions and form a view as to whether the case would be suitable for (a) determination based on the documents or (b) whether the issues raised are more suitable for a hearing, and if the latter, whether lay members need to be present. Where a case falls into category (a), the employment judge will write to the parties informing them that in his or her opinion the case could be determined on the basis of documents, but advising the parties that they have a right to a hearing. If the parties are content for the case to be determined without hearing, a written determination will be made. If one of the parties requests a hearing, the case will be heard either by an employment judge sitting alone or before a full tribunal. Where complex issues are raised, the case would be heard by a three-member tribunal.

The fast-track potentially benefits both parties by enabling them to resolve straightforward issues quickly and efficiently reducing unnecessary burdens on the parties' time and, where they agree to a determination without hearing, saving them from costs associated with attendance or representation at tribunal hearings. We have estimated some 10 per cent. of tribunal claims will be potentially eligible for a fast-track determination.

The Government remain committed to the tripartite nature of tribunals and recognise the important role which lay members play. Provisions in the Employment Bill will not impact on these valuable and trusted arrangements other than as outlined above.

Chris McCafferty: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent assessment he has made of the role of lay members on employment tribunals; and if he will make a statement. [185071]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 7 February 2008]: The Government acknowledge the valuable and important contribution which lay members make to the tribunal system. ## UK Trade and Investment: Europe

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many UK Trade and Investment staff there are at each UK embassy in Europe; how many posts at each embassy are to be discontinued; and what are the expected resulting cost savings. [180265]

Mr. Thomas: The number of people (full-time equivalents) engaged on UK Trade and Investment business at each embassy in Europe[1] is as follows:

[1] 27 EU member states

| | Number |
|---|---|
| Austria | 4.13 |
| Belgium/Luxembourg | 13.8 |
| Bulgaria | 4 |
| Croatia | 4.1 |
| Czech Republic | 11.47 |
| Cyprus | 3.15 |
| Denmark | 10.75 |
| Estonia | 5.8 |
| Finland | 8.85 |
| France | 41.88 |
| Germany | 45.9 |
| Greece | 6.2 |
| Hungary | 11.04 |
| Ireland | 11.35 |
| Italy | 19.39 |
| Latvia | 3.2 |
| Lithuania | 3.2 |
| Malta | 2.5 |
| Netherlands | 9.8 |
| Poland | 17 |
| Portugal | 12 |
| Romania | 8.5 |
| Slovakia | 4.39 |
| Slovenia | 3.15 |
| Spain | 30.5 |

UK Trade and Investment reviews its overseas network resource on an ongoing basis to ensure it is deployed appropriately in support of the objectives in its strategy "Prosperity in a Changing World", published in July 2006, and to achieve efficiency savings. The number of posts in each UK embassy in Europe to be discontinued as a result of this work, and the resulting cost savings, remains to be determined but UKTI is currently seeking efficiency savings of £4.4 million overall from its overseas network.

Union Modernisation Fund

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 18 December 2007, Official Report, column 1480W, on the union modernisation fund, what the membership is of the independent supervisory board; and by what criteria they were appointed. [186094]

Mr. McFadden: The members of the Independent Supervisory Board are: Sir Bill Connor, Bruce Warman, Willy Brown, Jeannie Drake, Danny Carrigan and Adrian Askew.

Members of the Supervisory Board were selected by open competition. Recruitment was conducted in accordance with the Commissioner for Public Appointments' Code of Practice for Ministerial Appointments to Public Bodies, with support from the Office of the Commissioner for Public appointments (OCPA). The Nolan Principles of Public Life, which are the foundations of the public appointments process and provide guidance on the standards expected of public appointees, applied to these appointments.

The applicants were assessed against the following criteria:

team working skills;

knowledge of trade union modernisation issues and the broader employment relations context; experience of working in or with trade unions; and Analytical skills and judgment.

Union Modernisation Fund: Audit

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Peterborough (Mr. Jackson) of 23 January 2008, Official Report, column 2036W, on the union modernisation fund: audit, if he will place in the Library a copy of each independent accountant's report produced so far for each completed project. [186085]

Mr. McFadden: The independent accountant is appointed in accordance with the Standardised Terms of Engagement as published on the BERR website:

http://www.berr.gov.uk/files/file31695.pdf

Under these terms the independent accountants' reports are commercially confidential between the Department, the grant recipient and the accountant.

Video Games

Mr. Oiner: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate he has made of the market share of UK computer games developers in (a) the UK, (b) the US and (c) Europe in 2006-07. [182949]

Malcolm Wicks: The Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform does not currently have access to figures giving the share of UK games developers of markets in Europe and the US in 2006-07. However, we are aware the market analysts ChartTrack estimate that in 2007 UK developers' share of the UK video games market was 19.2 per cent.

To help address the lack of reliable data available on the UK computer games industry, in October 2007 UK Trade and Investment published "Playing for Keeps", a report by independent consultants Games Investor which includes a range of valuable new data on the competitiveness of the UK games sector compared to key competitor territories including the US and Canada. This research confirmed that the UK had the second largest number of games development studios, after the US, and was the fourth most revenue generative games development market in the world.

Video Games: Research

Mr. Oliver: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate he has made of the average proportion of turnover invested in research and development by UK companies in the computer games development sector. [182948]

Malcolm Wicks: Very few figures for investment in research and development (R and D) by UK companies in the computer games sector are currently collected.

The 2007 R and D Scoreboard published by DIUS and BERR lists the top 850 UK companies from all sectors by R and D investment. The list includes only companies who publish their annual reports and who then specify their R and D spend in those reports. Three games companies appear in the scoreboard as follows:

| Company name | R and D spend (£ million) | As a percentage of sales |
|---|---|---|
| Sci Entertainment | 58.00 | 19.4 |
| Sony Computer Entertainment Europe | 55.85 | 15.5 |
| Empire Interactive | 6.82 | 32.1 |

This sample is too small to calculate a reliable average R and D spend for the UK games development sector which comprises some 160 studios, the vast majority of which employ fewer than 100 staff.

Wind Power

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will make an estimate of (a) how much wind energy the National Grid can manage and (b) the total capacity of wind the UK can absorb for energy use. [184408]

Malcolm Wicks: The information requested is as follows.

(a) Work by National Grid indicates that there are no major technical barriers to accommodating wind on the GB electricity system. The costs associated with maintaining system balancing and system reliability will, however, be important considerations. All indications are that the GB's electricity networks can operate reliably with high penetrations of wind and other intermittent forms of renewable generation.

(b) Limitations to the amount of energy from renewable sources that can be used (i.e. supplied to consumers) are principally dependent on levels of demand in relation to the amount of renewable electricity being produced. This is not currently an issue, but looking forward to much higher levels of wind generation it is possible that potential wind generation may exceed demand for some periods. The implications of this will be considered during the development of the Renewable Energy Strategy.

Wind Power: Housing

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what is the minimum permitted distance from housing at which windfarms may be constructed in England and Wales; and what studies of comparable standards in Germany have been undertaken. [185488]

Malcolm Wicks: The Department has not issued standards on specific minimum distances between wind farms and occupied buildings. The distances that will be appropriate will depend on the particulars of each case and issues such as expected noise levels, visual impact and safety requirements. Guidance on these matters in England is provided in the Companion Guide to Planning Policy Statement 22 on Renewable Energy. No comparative studies with Germany have been undertaken.

Winter Fuel Payments

Martin Salter: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent representations he has received on raising the winter fuel allowance. [184007]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: I have been asked to reply

There have been a number of representations on increasing the Winter Fuel Payment. These have been in the form of correspondence and parliamentary questions.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Ambient Assisted Living

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what his policy is on participating in ambient assisted living projects at EU level; and if he will make a statement. [181722]

Ian Pearson: The UK supports the objectives of the European Commission proposal under Article 169 of the EC treaty for the Joint Programme for Ambient Assisted Living (AAL), which are to support applied research and the demonstration of potential AAL solutions for the elderly in their home/ambient environment through effective co-ordination between national support schemes.

Negotiations are currently progressing under the co-decision procedure in the council and the European Parliament. The UK has indicated it will participate. UK enterprises participating in successful projects will be funded via the Assisted Living Innovation Platform recently established by the Technology Strategy Board.

Apprentices: Admissions

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the entry requirement is for a programme-led apprenticeship in each subject. [184037]

Mr. Lammy: There are no set national entry requirements for a programme-led apprenticeship. Any entry requirement would be set by the institution providing the learning based on its assessment of an individual's prospects of completing.

As set out in "World-class Apprenticeships: Unlocking Talent, Building Skills for All" published on 28 January 2008, a young person will need to meet a new minimum entry threshold to qualify for the entitlement to an apprenticeship place from 2013. This new threshold will apply to learners in the entitlement group who are placed in a programme-led apprenticeship because no employed apprenticeship place is immediately available.

Departmental Data Protection

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills whether personal data for which his Department is responsible are (a) stored and (b) processed overseas; and if he will make a statement. [176018]

Mr. Lammy: The information is as follows:

(a) As far as we are aware, none.

(b) As far as we are aware, none.

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what obligations his Department and its agencies place on contractors in relation to the audit of personal data and IT equipment. [176465]

Mr. Lammy: Any requirements placed on contractors in relation to the audit of personal data and IT equipment would be included in the contractual terms for the specified service, which would include compliance with HMG and departmental security policies.

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what audits his Department and its agencies have carried out in relation to personal data and IT equipment in each of the last 10 years. [176477]

Mr. Lammy: The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills (DIUS) was created by the Prime Minister on 28 June 2007.

Since the creation of the Department, no formal audit of personal data has yet been completed.

Auditing of the service provider's IT equipment is the contractual responsibility of the service provider.

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many people are employed by his Department as apprentices. [162713]

Mr. Lammy: The Department has five staff undertaking Advanced Apprenticeships and one undertaking an Apprenticeship. This arrangement was set up by the Department for Education and Skills (DfES) which predates the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills set up in the recent Machinery of Government changes.

Departmental Marketing

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many posters or displays there are in the offices of his Department and its agencies displaying the names and photographs of Ministers; and what the cost has been of producing such posters or displays since it was established. [179913]

Mr. Lammy: One photographic panel has been produced at a cost of approximately £500.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) what the name is of each special adviser in his Department; [166871]

(2) what the estimated cost is of (a) expenses, (b) salary, (c) office space, (d) administrative support and (e) special advisers for the two new Ministers of State in his Department in 2007-08. [166872]

Mr. Lammy: I refer the hon. Member to the written statement from my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 22 November 2007, Official Report, column 148WS.

Mr. Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will list the special advisers employed in his Department and its predecessor since 6 May 1997; and what the (a) start and (b) end date of employment was in each case. [184372]

Mr. Lammy: Since 2003, the Government have published on an annual basis the names and numbers of special advisers in each pay band. For the most recent information I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 22 November 2007, Official Report, columns147-50WS.

Departmental Pay

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many people in his Department and its predecessors earned over £100,000 in each year since 1997. [167195]

Mr. Lammy: The Department was created as a result of the June 2007 Machinery of Government changes and no employees have earned over £100,000. Information on predecessor Departments is listed in the answer given to the hon. Member on 27 November 2007, Official Report, column 381W.

Departmental Recruitment

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills whether the policy of British jobs for British workers will affect his Department's recruitment policy. [179884]

Mr. Lammy: As a new department, created from elements of BERR (formerly DTI) and DCSF (formerly DfES) DIUS is in the process of defining, consulting and communicating Department-specific policies and procedures. Recruitment and selection policies will be part of this project and will be established in 2008. In the meantime the policies of the two former Departments are maintained supported by interim guidance notes for managers.

This guidance and the formal policies ensure that the following points are taken into account when filling posts within DIUS:

1. The need to utilise, wherever possible, surplus staff in the civil service. This requires that suitably qualified and experienced civil servants are given opportunities to apply for new jobs, prior to them being advertised externally. This ensures that human resources are used as efficiently as possible and saves on severance and recruitment costs.

2. The adherence to rules governing nationality and the right to take up employment in the UK civil service. These rules require that applicants for any job in the civil service must be a UK national or have dual nationality with one part being British.

In addition, about 75 per cent. of civil service posts are open to Commonwealth citizens and nationals of any of the member states of the European economic area (EEA). The remainder, which require special allegiance to the state, are reserved for UK nationals. This includes most fast stream posts. Please see

3. The need to be compliant with all laws governing equal opportunities.

4. The importance of diversity in the work force.

Adhering to these principles will ensure that DIUS has a diverse work force, while complying with all legal requirements.

Education

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills which further and higher educational establishments have opened teaching centres overseas; what estimate he has made of the annual revenue from such centres; and if he will make a statement. [184034]

Bill Rammell: Further and higher education institutions are independent and autonomous institutions and the Department does not hold records of establishments which have opened teaching centres overseas.

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what assessment he has made of the effect of non-accredited learning on (a) health, (b) educational aspirations within families and (c) social inclusion. [184664]

Bill Rammell: We recognise the many wider benefits of participation in non-accredited learning and its vital contribution to improving personal health and wellbeing, raising confidence and self-esteem, engaging families in learning, and developing stronger communities.

These courses offer social and economic benefits for people of all ages and backgrounds, including the most vulnerable families, marginalised groups and those at risk from offending behaviour. They help adults and children to learn together, helping to change attitudes to learning and widening participation across the community by promoting a positive learning culture, where learning is seen as attractive and relevant. They also have well-documented spin-off benefits in terms of reduced calls on health and social services budgets. People who keep mentally and physically active not only live longer but live happier and more fulfilled lives, and pursuing learning can play a real part in this.

We want to continue to raise people's aspirations and significantly broaden participation, progression and achievement in learning by creating the best learning offer possible and enabling individuals and communities to improve and prosper. Our Skills and Skills for Life Strategies, the Employability Skills Programme and projects like Skilled for Health, together with our decision to extend the Personal and Community Development Learning budget safeguard at £210 million per annum through to 2010/11, will ensure the continuing availability of a wide range of suitable learning opportunities in every area.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills launched a consultation on Informal Adult Learning on 15 January 2008. Through this consultation we will work with other Government Departments, with partners and stakeholders, and with learners themselves, to look at how this learning is funded and delivered to improve social cohesion and progression, focus on disadvantage and engage new learners.

Educational Institutions: Religion

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills whether funds were paid to (a) Jewish, (b) Muslim and (c) Christian seminaries by his Department's predecessors between 1997 and 2001. [172370]

Bill Rammell: The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills does not hold information on any funding that might have been paid to Jewish, Muslim or Christian seminaries by its predecessor Departments between 1997 and 2001.

Employment Agencies

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much his Department paid to recruitment agencies in relation to departmental appointments in each year since 1997. [184913]

Mr. Lammy: DIUS was created by Machinery of Government Changes in July 2008 from elements of the then Department of Trade and Industry and Department for Education and Skills.

DIUS is currently undertaking a project to define document and agree a single set of policies and procedures. Until such time as these are defined, the policies of an employee's former Department (DTI/DfES) remain in force.

These policies allow for staff to report any cases of harassment to line management, trade union representatives, a confidential counselling service or HR.

During the period in which DIUS has existed there have been no cases of complaints of sexual harassment or sexual discrimination.

English Language: Education

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many individuals (a) registered for and (b) successfully completed an English for Speakers of Other Languages approved course in England in each of the last five years. [181564]

Mr. Lammy: The Learning and Skills Council does not break down the data to subject or level for individual learners as some learners will be taking literacy/ESOL and numeracy across a number of different levels. However, the following data show all ESOL learning aims enrolled on and achieved over the last five years.

ESOL learning aims enrolled and achieved for the last five years

| | Learning aims enrolled | Learning aims achieved |

Forced Marriages: Victim Support Schemes

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will ensure that information on helplines and access to support for victims of forced marriage or persons in fear of forced marriage is made available on university and college campuses. [184351]

Bill Rammell: Higher and further education institutions do provide a range of welfare support to their staff and students and, due to their status as independent organisations, specific support is determined by institutions at the local level based on individual need. However, institutions do receive guidance on welfare issues from a range of national organisations and networks. I have asked the Equality Challenge Unit, the Association of Managers of Student Services in Higher Education, the National Union of Students, and the Association of Colleges to consider how they might best provide sign-posting information on the forced marriages helpline, and other support available, to higher and further education institutions.

Higher Education: Finance

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what funding he has allocated in cash terms to (a) higher education and further and continuing education funding for teaching costs only, (b) fee grants for full-time students and fee grants for part-time students, (c) fee loans for full-time students, (d) maintenance loans for full-time students, (e) maintenance grants for full-time and part-time students and (f) access funds in each year from 2008-09 to 2010-11. [183946]

Bill Rammell: The following table sets out the funding allocated over the 2007 comprehensive spending review period for higher education (HE) and further education (FE) in the areas the hon. Gentleman requests in cash terms (£ millions).

The funding systems for FE and HE operate differently. For example in HE, support for fees is provided mainly through fee loans. In FE, fee remission is provided in full for all learners undertaking priority qualifications as well as those on limited incomes. This is reflected in the total amount of participation funding for adult FE and skills in the following table.

Student support figures are for English domicile HE students.

Higher Education: Student Wastage

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many applicants accepted for places in higher education were no longer enrolled onto higher education courses as first time students in each of the following years by the February of the academic year (a) 2005, (b) 2006 and (c) 2007. [175789]

Bill Rammell: The available information on non-continuation in higher education is shown in the following table. These figures show proportions of UK-domiciled entrants to full-time first degree courses at higher education institutions in England, who did not continue in higher education after their first year.

This information is taken from the annual Performance Indicators in Higher Education, which are currently published by the Higher Education Statistics Agency.

Nuclear Physics

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) how much (a) capital and (b) revenue funding has been (i) spent and (ii) allocated for each of the next three years on the large hadron collider; [182767]

(2) what the initial programme of activity is for the large hadron collider; what the programme's objectives are; and if he will make a statement; [182768]

(3) what progress has been made in commissioning and operating the large hadron collider; and if he will make a statement; [182769]

(4) what process is in place for British universities and organisations to bid for projects to run on the large hadron collider; and if he will make a statement; [182770]

(5) what assessment he has made of the merits of the large hadron collider as an instrument for scientific discovery; and if he will make a statement. [183742]

Ian Pearson: The UK is a member state of CERN, and the Science and Technology Facilities Council has responsibility for the funding of the UK's membership subscription. Most of the activities at CERN are currently directed towards building the large hadron collider (LHC), and the experiments for it, which are due to start operation later this year. A major part of the UK's CERN subscription relates to spending on the LHC.

The total cost of the LHC facility, which comprises the underground tunnel, the machines which fire the beams of particles, and the people and resources needed to build and operate it, is estimated to be 4.7 BN CHF. The costs of the four LHC experiments, which are not considered part of the LHC, are not included in this figure.

The following table illustrates CERN's spending on the LHC for 2004-07 and the planned expenditure in the next three financial years in millions of Swiss Francs. It also shows the UK contribution for 2004-07, and the estimated UK contributions in the next three years, to the LHC project itself, and to university groups in the UK involved in the project. The expenditure on the LHC is projected to fall as the construction nears completion.

| | 2004 | 2005 | 2006 | 2007 | 2008 | 2009 | 2010 |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| LHC expenditure (MCHF) | 1,236 | 1,276 | 1,131 | 854 | 732 | 668 | 653 |
| UK contribution (MCHF) | 220 | 245 | 196 | 149 | 128 | 117 | 114 |
| UK contribution (£million) | 101 | 110 | 88 | 70 | 60 | 54 | 53 |
| Support within the UK through grants to institutions (£ million) | 24 | 21 | 21 | 26 | 26 | 28 | 23 |
| Total UK contribution (£ million) | 125 | 131 | 109 | 96 | 86 | 82 | 76 |

The objective of the LHC project is to improve our knowledge of how the universe around us works, in particular by shedding light on the nature of fundamental particles and the forces that govern them.

Commissioning of the LHC is now proceeding according to schedule. Two of the eight sectors have been cooled to operating temperature and one of these two sectors has been commissioned to the full energy value required. Three other sectors have commenced the cool down process. Both injection lines (through which the particles will be fired) have been tested successfully and commissioning has begun of the complex electronics needed to handle the beams. All four detectors are completing installation and the LHC circular tunnel is on schedule for sealing in March/April 2008 with experiments expected to commence in July 2008.

UK university groups are involved in each of the four collaborations that are building the experiments (known as ATLAS, CMS, LHCb and ALICE) and have played key roles in the construction of each detector.

It is expected that the groups involved in constructing the experiments will continue to work on the programmes, enabling them to fully utilise the data each detector acquires. Funding for the university and Rutherford Appleton Laboratory staff involved in the physics programme (with associated costs and the UK contribution to maintenance of the detectors) will be provided by the Science and Technology Facilities Council (STFC) at a level set by peer review—taking into account STFC's strategic objectives and the financial resources available.

CERN issues tenders for a wide range of goods and services, from computing and electronics to cleaning. UK companies can compete for this work and in 2006 (the last year for which figures are available) UK companies won approximately 28MCHF in contracts from CERN. STFC provides links and support to UK companies wishing to bid for work at CERN through the activities of its Business Opportunities Manager and information made available on its website.

Overseas Students

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many colleges in England are approved to provide education for overseas students; how many such colleges have been inspected in the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [183206]

Bill Rammell: There are currently 15,044 institutions on the Register of Education and Training Providers. The Register was established on 1 January 2005, and since then, all colleges which want to recruit international students need to appear on it. The Home Office will not grant any international student leave to enter or remain in the UK unless he or she is studying at a provider on the Register.

Since 1 January 2005, 321 colleges on the Register have been investigated by the Borders and Immigration Agency. Of these, 142 have been found to be in breach of the immigration rules, and therefore removed from the Register.

Student Loans Company: Complaints

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many complaints the Student Loans Company received in each year since it was established. [175748]

Bill Rammell: The number of complaints received by the Student Loans Company (SLC) in each financial year since the SLC has had in place a process for measuring complaints is set out in the following table.

While the table shows that the number of complaints each year has remained broadly stable since 1997-98, complaints as a proportion of the total number of customers has fallen significantly over this period.

Complaints received by the Student Loans Company 1997-2007

Students: Fees and Charges

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many (a) full-time and (b) part-time (i) UK, (ii) EU and (iii) non-EU (A) undergraduate and (B) postgraduate students have been (1) excluded from using some university facilities and (2) suspended for the non-payment of fees. [182644]

Bill Rammell: The information is not held centrally.

Students: Loans

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many student loans were paid manually by the Student Loans Company in each year since 1997. [175747]

Bill Rammell: The number of manual payments made in each academic year since the Student Loans Company began recording manual payments is set out in the following table.

The numbers generally have fallen since 1999/2000 as technical issues arising from the introduction of a national computer system to deal with student loan applications have been addressed. The increased volume in 2004/05 coincided with all local authorities processing on-line loan applications for the first time. The vast majority of payments are made by automated transfer. In 2006/07 these amounted to 925,000 payments.

Number of manual student loans paid to borrowers by the SLC

| Academic year | Number of manual payments |
|---|---|
| 1998/99[1] | 30 |
| 1999/2000 | 9,253 |
| 2000/01 | 9,260 |
| 2001/02 | 6,032 |

[1] Part year

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the average amount of debt of a student on graduation was at the most recent date for which figures are available; and what steps his Department plans to take to improve financial advice for students commencing their studies, with particular reference to advice on arrangements for repaying loans. [179156]

Bill Rammell: For students who entered higher education in the 2006/07 academic year, we expect their average level of debt on graduation to be around £15,000.

Student loans have very different features to commercial loans. Graduates repay only once they are in work and only when their annual income reaches £15,000. Interest is charged at the rate of inflation, so students only pay back in real terms the amount they originally borrowed.

In July we announced plans to introduce greater flexibility in the repayment of student loans by allowing borrowers to take repayment holidays of up to five years.

A generous package of support is available to students, particularly those from low incomes, who receive maintenance grants of up to £2,700 per annum. From 2008/09 onwards, around two-thirds of new full-time entrants to higher education will be eligible for a full or partial grant—compared to just over a half now.

There is a range of promotional material about student finance for potential students and their advisers, such as the Aimhigher Student Finance 'How to Get Financial Help' booklet. This includes general information about both the type of financial help on offer and an overview of the arrangements for repaying loans.

The Student Loans Company (SLC) also provides a range of published material. It issues 'A Guide to Financial Support for Higher Education Students' to all students prior to taking out a loan, and then sends borrowers an updated version annually. When a loan is taken out the SLC offers further guidance in its booklet 'Student Loans Terms and Conditions'. Both publications include information about repayment arrangements. In addition, the SLC provides a range of guidance materials to help borrowers who are entering into repayment to understand the arrangements for repaying their loans. And its website, www.slc.co.uk, contains a section on repayment that students and potential students can access at any time.

The SLC is currently reviewing the range of guidance materials it provides with the aim of improving the information provided on arrangements for repaying loans.

Students: Orphans

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what additional financial support is available to undergraduate students who have been orphaned; and if he will make a statement. [185309]

Bill Rammell: There are no loans or grants that are specifically available to undergraduate students who have been orphaned; they are eligible for the same support package as any other undergraduate student. However, students who are eligible for support and whose natural or adoptive parents have both died are treated as independent students for the purposes of the Student Support Regulations. Entitlement to support will be based upon the student's income only, if he or she has any. This means that such students are likely to be eligible for a higher level of support than students whose household income includes the income of their parents or where appropriate, the income of a student's husband, wife or partner. And if necessary, they can apply for additional help from the Access to Learning Fund, available from their university or college.

Teachers: Training

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what proportion of participants dropped out of teacher training courses in each of the last three years, broken down by age. [185692]

Jim Knight: I have been asked to reply.

The proportion of participants who dropped out of teacher training course is not collected centrally.

Complete data are collected for final year trainees and the number of trainees who leave their course during this final year are recorded. The following table shows the proportion of trainees in their final year for both mainstream and Employment Based Initial Teacher Training (EBITT) courses who have left before the end of their Initial Teacher Training (ITT) course for the past three years for which data are available, broken down by age.

1. Mainstream includes universities and other higher education institutions, SCITT and OU, but excludes employment based routes.
2. Performance profiles data are collected at the end of a trainees' first year, therefore 2006-07 data are collected in autumn 2007 and will be published in July 2008.
3. Trainees taking the assessment only are not included in the table.
4. Teach First trainees are included in EBITT in the table, however the age of final year Teach First trainees was not collected prior to 2005-06, therefore only 2005-06 data include the age break down of Teach First trainees.
5. Overseas Trained Teacher Programme (OTTP) trainees are included in EBITT in the table, however the age of final year OTTP trainees was not collected prior to 2004-05, therefore only 2004-05 and 2005-06 data include the age break down of OTTP trainees.

Trade Unions

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what meetings he has had with trades union officials since 1 July 2007; on what dates; and with which trades unions. [179852]

Mr. Lammy: Ministers meet many people as part of the process of policy development. It is not normal practice to disclose details of such meetings.

Vocational Training: Expenditure

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what proportion of the additional support budget of the Train to Gain programme was spent in each English region by the Learning and Skills Council in 2006-07. [164208]

Mr. Lammy: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to the Member for South Holland and The Deepings (Mr. Hayes) on 12 November 2007, Official Report, column 57W.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Animal Experiments

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what progress has been made since the ministerial letter of 31 January 2006 responding to the recommendations of the Animal Procedures Committee's 2005 report on the Statistics of Scientific Procedures on Living Animals on the commitment to liaise with the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for Northern Ireland with the aim of amalgamating the statistics for Great Britain and Northern Ireland. [185465]

Meg Hillier: We plan to make a final decision on this issue in time for the publication of the Statistics of Scientific Procedures on Living Animals 2007.

Antisocial Behaviour Orders

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many anti-social behaviour orders have been placed on individuals living in Wirral, West constituency in the last two years; on what grounds each was imposed; and how many such orders were breached. [185848]

Mr. Coaker: Antisocial behaviour order (ASBO) data for 2004 and 2005 (latest available) for the Merseyside CJS area in which the Wirral, West constituency lies can be found in the following table. Information on the grounds on which ASBOs are imposed is not collated centrally. ASBO data do not identify the constituency in which an ASBO is issued or breached.

Number of ASBOs issued and breached in the Merseyside CJS area, 2004 and 2005

| Merseyside CJS area | 2004 | 2005 |
|---|---|---|
| ASBOs issued | 96 | 128 |
| ASBOs breached[1, 2] | 43 | 70 |

[1] ASBOs may be issued in one area and breached in another. Breaches are counted in this table on area of issue.
[2] ASBOs may be breached more than once and in more than one year. In this table ASBOs are counted once only within the period when they were first breached. Hence the ASBOs listed as breached in 2004 and 2005 may have been issued in earlier years.

Note:
Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used. Ref: ASBO 08-08

Asylum

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what progress has been made by her Department in responding to the key findings of the National Audit Office report Asylum and migration: a review of Home Office statistics (HC (2003-04) 625) of 25 May 2004. [179816]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 17 January 2008]: The asylum and immigration statistics are "produced to high professional standards set out in the National Statistics Code of Practice. They undergo regular quality assurance reviews to ensure that they meet customer needs. They are produced free from any political influence".

The National Audit Office (NAO) report concluded that "asylum data and statistics are in most respects reliable". Home Office statisticians continue to quality assure the asylum statistics and to expand their range to provide a broader picture of the asylum process, as can be seen from the published statistics.

A National Statistics Quality Review was conducted in 2006 on the "Control of Immigration: United Kingdom" publications (as is required by the National Statistics code of practice). This review and the Home Office's implementation plan are available from the Library of the House and from the National Statistics website:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/about/data/methodology/quality/reviews/population.asp.

The Border and Immigration Agency is currently reviewing what asylum and migration statistics are produced and published, and the frequency of the publications. This review was signalled by the Home Secretary in the House of Commons on 9 July 2007.

Copies of these publications are available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html.

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent representations she has received on granting amnesty for asylum seekers without a record of illegal activity who have been in the UK for over 10 years. [184948]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 6 February 2008]: The information requested is not collated and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Asylum: Afghanistan

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many Afghan nationals were granted asylum in (a) 2007 and (b) each of the 10 previous years. [185045]

Mr. Byrne: Provisional information on Afghan nationals granted asylum in 2007 will be published in the Q4 2007 Asylum Bulletin on 26 February 2008. Information on asylum decisions is published in quarterly web pages and in the annual statistical bulletin Asylum Statistics United Kingdom. Copies of these publications and others relating to immigration to the UK are available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics Directorate website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html

Asylum: Housing

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) asylum applications originated and (b) asylum seekers were housed in Enfield in (i) 1997 and (ii) 2007. [182664]

Mr. Byrne: Information on numbers of asylum applications relating to particular areas of the UK are unavailable. Statistics on the location of asylum seekers in the UK are linked to the available information on those asylum seekers in receipt of support. Not all asylum seekers are eligible for asylum support.

The numbers of asylum seekers in receipt of support, broken down by Government office region and local authority, are available from December 2002 onwards. These statistics are published on a quarterly and annual basis. Copies of these publications are available from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html.

Further breakdowns, of those in receipt of support by parliamentary constituency, are also available from the Library of the House.

Beatrice Guessie

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she expects the investigation into the treatment of Beatrice Guessie to be completed. [184188]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 4 February 2008]: I have been informed that the investigation into the treatment of Beatrice Guessie has now been completed. I am unable to comment until the findings have been published.

Biometrics

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the Government have statutory powers to share information held on biometric immigration documents and identity cards issued to foreign nationals resident in the United Kingdom with (a) the national's own government, (b) other national governments other than the person's own and (c) international and non-governmental security-related organisations such as Interpol; and if she will make a statement. [184490]

Mr. Byrne: The Secretary of State has the power to share information with other countries and international organisations, provided this is done compatibly with the safeguards of the Data Protection Act 1998 and the Human Rights Act 1998. When the identity cards for foreign nationals are rolled out from this year, information provided can be shared, subject to these key safeguards.

The UK Borders Act 2007 enables the Secretary of State to make regulations requiring a foreign national to apply for a biometric document—the identity card for foreign nationals. By regulations made under section 8, the Secretary of State may use biometric information collected as part of the application for the card for any of the specified purposes including the prevention, investigation or prosecution of an offence or to protect national security.

Regulations under section 8 also preserve the ability of the Secretary of State to share biometric information relying on her Common Law powers.

Additionally, the Secretary of State will be able, as now, to share non-biometric information under her existing Common Law powers.

Where it is right to do so, the Secretary of State is able to share information with other governments and international organisations.

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what statutory authority the Government have to hold the biometric details and other information relating to foreign nationals who have been issued with biometric information documents and identity cards in the United Kingdom when such nationals are no longer resident in the UK. [184492]

Mr. Byrne: The Secretary of State has the power, by regulations made under section 8 of the UK Borders Act 2007, to retain biometric information about foreign nationals who have applied for a biometric immigration document—an identity card for foreign nationals—even if they leave the UK. The Secretary of State may also retain biographical information about foreign nationals who are subject to immigration control after they have left the UK, under her Common Law powers, provided this is done compatibly with the safeguards of the Data Protection Act 1998 and the Human Rights Act 1998. It is essential to retain this information, for example, to identify those who may seek to abuse immigration control by seeking to return to the UK with a false identity.

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether her Department plans to keep the (a) biometric and (b) other information held on biometric immigration documents and identity cards issued to foreign nationals after the individual is no longer resident in the United Kingdom. [184851]

Mr. Byrne: The Secretary of State will retain the biometric information provided by those who apply for an identity card for foreign nationals for as long as the Secretary of State thinks the information is likely to be of use for any of the purposes specified under section 8(2) of the UK Borders Act 2007. That will, in all likelihood, include retaining such information even after an individual has left the UK. Where a foreign national becomes a British citizen, the Secretary of State is required to destroy the biometric information in her possession unless it is to be retained and used for the purposes of another Act of Parliament.

The Secretary of State will be able, as now, to retain and use non-biometric biographical information provided by foreign nationals under her Common Law powers, provided that this is compatible with the requirements of the Data Protection Act 1998 and the Human Rights Act 1998. This is the case even where the foreign national leaves the UK.

Border and Immigration Agency: Databases

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent estimate she has made of the error rate in each of the databases operated by the Border and Immigration Agency. [180257]

Mr. Byrne: Within the context of this question, 'error rate' is considered to relate to data accuracy within each database.

This information is not held centrally and cannot be provided from current information available.

However, there are controls in place to safeguard against certain errors and to help prevent them occurring. Where errors are identified, prompt and robust remedial action is implemented.

In order to prevent data being captured which are inaccurate or incomplete (often keystroke errors), it is conventional to provide data capture forms that have as few 'free text' fields as possible to limit the possible occasions of input data error.

All core systems within BIA are subject to quarterly data audits by our data bureau, a third party supplier, overseen by Home Office IT officials where appropriate corrective actions are implemented as needed. Using root cause analysis, such errors are identified, analysed and remedied.

Following advice from the Office of the Chief Information Officer (OCIO), this statement is included as supporting information:

written ministerial statement of 21 November 2007, Official Report, column 1179 notes that the review by the Cabinet Secretary and security experts is looking at procedures within Departments and agencies for the storage and use of data. A statement on Departments' procedures will be made on completion of the review. An interim progress report on the review was published by the Cabinet Office through a written ministerial statement on 17 December 2007, Official Report, column 98WS. This included a recommendation regarding enhanced transparency with Parliament, and the public about action to safeguard information and the results of that action, through publication of results departmental annual reports and an annual report to Parliament.

Border and Immigration Agency

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what the reasons are for the time taken by the Borders and Immigration Agency to reply to the request made by the appellant in case number 15A/1510/2007, despatched by special delivery on 26 September 2007 (ZU 5490 3847 8GB) and delivered on 29 September 2007 (DL 8504 23545GB); and if she will make a statement; [180893]

(2) if she will make available a copy of the letter dated 27 August 1998 which was despatched from Beckett House to the appellant in case number ISA/15110/2007 to (a) the appellant and (b) the hon. Member for Thurrock before the hearing on 31st January; and if she will make a statement. [180894]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 24 January 2008]: I wrote to the hon. Member on 4 February 2008.

British Nationality

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many naturalised UK citizens have had their citizenship revoked since 1997. [185376]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 7 February 2008]: One naturalised British citizen has been deprived of that citizenship since 1997. In addition one person who was registered as a British citizen had his citizenship removed in 2006.

Burglar Alarms

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many burglar alarm activations were responded to by the Metropolitan Police in each of the last five years; and how many turned out to be false alarms. [176064]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is not centrally available.

Christmas

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much her Department's agencies spent on (a) Christmas cards and (b) postage of Christmas cards in each year since 1997. [182442]

Mr. Byrne: The amount spent on (a) Christmas cards and (b) postage since 1997 is as follows:

Border and Immigration Agency

Information concerning the (a) cost and (b) postage of Christmas cards from the Border and Immigration Agency for each year since 1997 is not known centrally and would be available only at disproportionate cost.

Criminal Records Bureau

(a) The costs for Christmas cards from the Criminal Records Bureau for each year since 2003 are as follows:

| | £ |
|---|---|
| 2003 | 558.32 |
| 2004 | 786.14 |
| 2005 | 679.59 |
| 2006 | 578.38 |
| 2007 | 757.76 |

The Criminal Records Bureau's Disclosure service was launched in 2002 and no information is held on costs incurred before or during 2002.

(b) Spend on postage of Christmas cards is not separated from spend of all Criminal Records Bureau mail and therefore is not calculable.

Identity and Passport Service

(a) The costs for Christmas cards from the Identity and Passport Service for each year since 2005 are as follows:

| | £ |
|---|---|
| 1997 to 2004 | [1] |
| 2005 | 1,280 |
| 2006 | 1,030 |

[1] No information held centrally

(b) Spend on postage of Christmas cards is not separated from spend of all Identity and Passport Service mail and therefore is not calculable.

Commissioner of Police for the Metropolis

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 26 November 2007, Official Report, column 180W, on the Commissioner of Police for the Metropolis, for what reasons she did not provide the information requested in the question; and if she will make a statement. [172525]

Mr. McNulty: My right hon. Friend the Home Secretary and I have regular meetings with the Metropolitan police commissioner to discuss official business.

Crime: Darlington

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what trends there have been in crime detection rates in Darlington over (a) the last 12 months and (b) the last five years. [186313]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not available centrally for Darlington. While detections data are available for basic command units, there are currently only two in the Durham police force area, north and south Durham.

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the change has been in crime rates by category of offence in Darlington in (a) the last year and (b) the last five years. [186454]

Mr. Coaker: The available information relates to percentage changes in crimes recorded in the Darlington crime and disorder reduction partnership area and is given in the following table. Data for 2001-02 are not directly comparable with those for later years and therefore the percentage change between 2002-03 and 2006-07 has been provided.

Percentage change in offences recorded by the police in Darlington

| | Percentage change between | |
|---|---|---|
| Offence group | 2002-03 and 2006-07 | 2005-06 and 2006-07 |

| Criminal damage | 16 | 5 |
| Drug offences | 35 | -6 |
| Other miscellaneous offence | 21 | 7 |
| Total | 3 | -2 |

Crime: Genetics

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will undertake an investigation into the Forensic Science Service's use of DNA testing in criminal investigations. [182056]

Meg Hillier: The Interim Forensic Science Regulator commissioned a scientific review of low template forensic DNA profiling, which includes the Forensic Science Service's Low Copy Number DNA profiling service. The review, which is being led by Professor Brian Caddy of Strathclyde University, is due to report at the end of February.

Crimes of Violence

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate her Department has made of the number of violent crimes committed (a) in and (b) immediately outside pubs and clubs in each year since 1997. [185132]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 6 February 2008]: The British Crime Survey (BCS) routinely provides information on the location of violent incidents in England and Wales.

BCS interviews for 2005-06 showed 17 per cent. of violent incidents took place around pubs or clubs (this includes inside the premises or on the street/car park outside). The following table gives the numbers since the 1997 BCS.

Location of violent incidents (BCS)

Percentage

| | 1997 | 1999 | 2001-02 | 2002-03 | 2003-04 | 2004-05 | 2005-06 |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| | | | | All violence[2] | | | |
| Pub or club[1] | 22 | 20 | 21 | 20 | 21 | 22 | 17 |
| Unweighted base | 1,012 | 1,130 | 1,361 | 1,537 | 1,540 | 1,612 | 1,631 |

[1] Includes pub/club premises, whether inside or nearby street/car parks.

Crimes of Violence: Greater London

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many crimes were committed in public parks in each Greater London borough (a) in total and (b) where the victim was female in each year since 2000. [186658]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not collected centrally. Offences which take place in public parks cannot be separately identified in the recorded crime statistics.

Crimes of Violence: Schools

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many pupils were arrested in each of the last five years for violent offences in schools in (a) England and Wales, (b) the north east, (c) Tees Valley district and (d) Middlesbrough, South and East Cleveland constituency. [185505]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not centrally available.

Criminal Records Bureau

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average time was for a Criminal Records Bureau check to be made from the date of application in the most recent period for which figures are available. [182612]

Meg Hillier: The CRB operates to a set of published service standards (PSS) which include to issue 90 per cent. of Standard Disclosures within 10 days and 90 per cent. of Enhanced Disclosures within 28 days. Between April 2007 and December 2007 the CRB has issued 228,728 Standard Disclosures and 2,272,369 Enhanced Disclosures.

During this period the CRB has exceeded PSS with a cumulative total of 99.7 per cent. of Standard Disclosures issued within 10 days and 96.6 per cent. of Enhanced disclosures issued within 28 days.

Delivery Services

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which companies are under contract to her Department to provide mail services. [170168]

Mr. Byrne: The Department does not hold central courier contracts nor is information held centrally on all the couriers it uses. Firms which have been used by the Department or its agencies either regularly or from time to time include:

Royal Mail Special Deliveries
Data Express
Transworld Couriers
City Link
Amtrak (Netfold)
CDS
DHL
A to Z Couriers
Secure Mail Services
Captain Courier
DX Network Services Ltd.
Hansam Couriers
TNT UK Ltd.
City Sprint (UK) Ltd.
Rico Logistics
Federal Express
Swift Despatch
Ecosse World Express.

Departmental Carbon Emissions

Mr. Kemp: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps she has taken to reduce her Department's carbon dioxide emissions in 2008-09. [181812]

Mr. Byrne: In line with the targets within the sustainable operations on the government estate framework my department has implemented a number of initiatives that should reduce carbon dioxide emissions in 2008-09. For example further improvements in data capture and performance measurement through the introduction of new shared service facilities management contracts are expected to lead to reductions in carbon dioxide emissions.

Departmental Consultants

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what consultancy contracts her Department issued in each year since 2005; what the (a) value, (b) purpose and (c) contractor was in each case; and whether the consultant's report is publicly available in each case. [181884]

Mr. Byrne: The Home Department engages consultancy firms to support and augment civil servants in the delivery of a specific range of work, including large IT development programmes and, where more cost effective, longer term service delivery programmes.

The Department's expenditure on these services is allocated across a wide range of firms, from small, specialist companies with niche expertise and few employees, to global multinational organizations offering a broad spectrum and substantial depth of consultancy expertise.

The Department awards contracts in competition according to the EU Procurement Directives based on value for money. The Department uses OGC framework agreements where appropriate. The use of external consultants provides the Department with specialist knowledge, skill, capacity and technical expertise that would not otherwise be available. Some expenditure is on consultants to whom we have outsourced services, such as IT.

The Department does not hold a central record of individual contracts with external consultants showing the level of detail requested. To identify and assemble the requested details from individual records would incur disproportionate cost.

The information held by the Home Department on the total value of spend on consultancy since 2005 is as follows:

| | Financial year | |
|---|---|---|
| | 2005-06 | 2006-07 |
| HO headquarters | 128,000,000 | 118,000,000 |
| IPS | [1]10,912,741 | 29,870,522 |
| Total spend | 138,912,741 | 147,870,522 |

[1] IPS recently revised figures.

Departmental Contracts

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the (a) objective and (b) value was of each contract, consultancies and other services placed with (i) Deloitte & Touche, (ii) Ernst & Young, (iii) KPMG, (iv) PricewaterhouseCoopers and (v) PA Consulting by her Department and its agencies in each year since 2004-05. [179024]

Mr. Byrne: The (a) nature of all contracts, consultancies and other services placed with (i) Deloitte & Touche, (ii) Ernst & Young, (iii) KPMG, (iv) PricewaterhouseCoopers and (v) PA Consulting is the provision of advice, guidance, training and operational development and support in a broad range of areas from business change to technical analysis.

The Home Department engages consultancy firms to support and augment civil servants in the delivery of a specific range of work, including large IT development programmes, such as PA Consulting Group's contract as development partner on the identity cards programme and, where more cost effective, longer term service delivery programmes.

The Department awards contracts in competition according to the EU Procurement Directives based on value for money. The Department uses OGC framework agreements where appropriate. The use of external consultants provides the Department with specialist knowledge, skill, capacity and technical expertise that would not otherwise be available.

The information held by the Home Department on the (b) total value of contracts, in each year since 2004-05 by her Department inclusive of its agencies is as follows:

Home Office inc. agencies

| | 2004-05 | 205-06 | 2006-07 |
|---|---|---|---|
| Deloitte & Touche | 0 | 3,401,919 | 13,753,669 |
| Ernst & Young | 36,165 | 415,393 | 4,675,868 |
| KPMG | 81,800 | 533,045 | 1,873,314 |
| PricewaterhouseCoopers | 2,118,055 | 3,769,092 | 4,669,861 |
| PA Consulting | 19,152,349 | 40,329,593 | 36,095,960 |

Departmental Data Protection

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many times (a) her Department and (b) the Border and Immigration Agency lost or misplaced databases relating to (i) British citizens and (i) foreign nationals in each of the last five years; what information, relating to how many people, was held on lost or misplaced databases; and if she will make a statement; [169554]

(2) how many officials in her Department are authorised to access electronic files and databases relating to an individual's (a) immigration status, (b) asylum application and (c) passport application; and if she will make a statement; [169555]

(3) how many staff in her Department and its agencies have been (a) investigated, (b) disciplined and (c) dismissed for matters relating to unauthorised or attempted unauthorised access to files or databases containing personal information in each of the last five years; and if she will make a statement; [169556]

(4) how many electronic and computer files her Department and its agencies lost in transit in each of the last five years; and if she will make a statement; [169558]

(5) how many people working for or on behalf of her Department and its agencies were (a) investigated, (b) disciplined and (c) dismissed for losing or misplacing sensitive personal data in each of the last five years; and if she will make a statement; [169559]

(6) how many staff in her Department and its agencies were (a) investigated, (b) disciplined and (c) dismissed for not following practice and protocols when handling files and databases containing personal information on members of the public in each of the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [169560]

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many electronic databases within her Department contain (a) names, (b) addresses, (c) bank details and (d) other personal information on members of the public. [169718]

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many confirmed data security breaches there have been in her Department in the last 36 months; and what action was taken after each occurrence; [170251]

(2) what training is provided to staff in her Department and its agencies on the safe handling of data to counteract identity theft and other data security breaches. [171373]

Mr. Byrne: I refer the hon. Members to the statement made by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 21 November 2007, Official Report, column 1179W. The review by the Cabinet Secretary and security experts is looking at procedures within Departments and agencies for the storage and use of data. A statement on Departments' procedures will be made on completion of the review.

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many confirmed security breaches of databases controlled by her Department occurred in each of the last five years; whether the breach resulted from internal or external sources in each case; how many records were compromised on each occasion; and what estimate was made of the total number of records accessible to the individuals concerned. [173692]

Mr. Byrne: Except in exceptional cases, when it is in the public interest, it has been the policy of successive Governments not to comment on breaches of security.

Departmental Email

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will take steps to reduce the number of hard copies of emails printed by officials in her Department. [179467]

Mr. Byrne: A number of initiatives are currently in place within my Department to raise staff awareness about printing unnecessary documents, including emails. In particular Home Office staff are encouraged to avoid printing emails by including a message within their signature blocks.

Departmental Marketing

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what products featuring departmental or Government branding were procured by (a) her Department and (b) its agencies in each of the last five years. [179917]

Mr. Byrne: There is no central record of procured products featuring departmental or government branding. Such products procured by the Department and its agencies include stationery, booklets, leaflets and media advertising in addition to promotional items. To manually examine files across all areas of the Department and its agencies for specific procured items in each of the last five years would incur disproportionate cost.

Departmental Recycling

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what weight of paper her Department recycled in each of the last five years. [179456]

Mr. Byrne: The weight of paper recycled is not currently measured within the Home Office as a whole as this is not a recognised Government target. However, 100 per cent. of paper placed in the designated receptacles at our London headquarters building, which is now shared with Ministry of Justice staff, is recycled. The most recent figures provided by our facilities supplier at 2 Marsham street are as follows:

| Financial reporting year | Tonnage recycled paper |
|---|---|
| 2005-06 | 48.44 |
| 2006-07 | 71.41 |
| 2007-present | 73.64 |

Departmental Redundancies

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost was of redundancies in her Department in the 12 months preceding (a) 30 June 2004, (b) 30 June 2005 and (c) 30 June 2006. [175323]

Mr. Byrne: To identify redundancies the Home Department has made in the 12-month periods preceding 30 June, from 1 July 2003 to 30 June 2006, could be undertaken only at disproportionate cost.

Central information held on early departures does not distinguish between those who were compelled to leave the Department on compulsory redundancy terms, and those who wished to leave voluntarily on similar terms and not subject to the Department's formal redundancy procedure. Consolidated historic information on early departures is also not generally held in periods of 12 months to 30 June each year, but held by financial year. It would be necessary to review historic individual files to extract the information requested.

Provisions made each year for new cases of early departures, which include any redundancies, are published in the Home Office Consolidated Resource Accounts. The figures, as follows, show the provisions made each financial year, for the full costs of new cases of early departures (including early retirements) from 2003-04 to 2005-06.

| | Total (£000) |
|---|---|
| 2003-04 | 9,774 |
| 2004-05 | 52,707 |
| 2005-06 | 22,369 |

The aforementioned totals include the core Department, agencies and the 42 local probation boards but not NDPBs.

Note that the figures include any early departure costs which may have arisen in the Office of Criminal Justice Reform and National Offender Management Service, part of the Home Office during the period shown. They are now part of the Ministry of Justice.

Departmental: Public Expenditure

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the Answer of 11 December 2007, Official Report, column 480W, on departmental public expenditure, when she expects budget allocations for 2008-09 to be delegated within her Department. [184879]

Mr. Byrne: Budget delegations will be issued shortly within the Department to all the main Home Office business areas. This will allow time for further sub-delegation in advance of 1 April 2008.

Domestic Violence

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many repeat offences of domestic violence were recorded in each police authority area in the last period for which figures are available. [184758]

Mr. Coaker: The British Crime Survey (BCS) routinely provides information on the number of incidents of domestic violence in England and Wales, but it is not possible to break it down by region or police force area.

BCS interviews for 2006-07 showed that domestic violence had the highest rate of repeat victimisation, with 42 per cent. of victims being victimised more than once. Repeat victimisation accounts for 70 per cent. of all incidents of domestic violence as measured by the BCS.

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department in how many cases of domestic violence the alleged perpetrator was released on bail without notification to the victim in each police authority in the latest period for which figures are available. [184759]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office does not routinely collect this information.

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) cautions were imposed and (b) prosecutions were brought for domestic violence offences in the (i) Bedfordshire and (ii) Luton areas in each of the last five years. [184761]

Mr. Coaker: Details of prosecutions for alleged domestic violence related offences in Bedfordshire are contained in the following table (figures for 2007-08 relate only to the period from 1 April 2007 to 4 February 2008). The Crown Prosecution Service is unable to break these data down by towns within the county.

The Home Office does not routinely collect data on domestic violence related cautions, and Bedfordshire police are unable to collate these data at the present time. However, the force is planning to implement mechanisms to enable such data to be collected in the future.

Driving Under Influence: Drugs

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many arrests for drug-driving took place (a) in England and (b) in each police authority area in each year since 1997; [186024]

(2) in how many hit and run incidents where the driver was subsequently identified the driver was found to have been impaired by drugs in 2006. [186026]

Mr. Coaker: This information is not collected centrally

Drugs

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will introduce a nationwide scheme to close down crack houses. [185188]

Mr. Coaker: The Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 introduced across England and Wales the power for courts to issue orders for the closure of premises where class A drugs and serious nuisance and disorder are a problem. The provision commenced on 20 January 2004 and is proving effective with over 1,000 properties closed according to early analysis due to be published in the spring.

Drugs: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 29 November 2007, Official Report, column 652W, on drugs: Peterborough, what methodology she will use to assess the delivery of the Prime Minister's recent pledge to deport foreign-born drug dealers; and if she will make a statement. [173220]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 12 December 2007]: It has already been made clear that we will take deportation action against those foreign nationals who commit serious offences. The chief executive of the Border and Immigration Agency advised the Home Affairs Committee on 15 January that more than 4,200 foreign national prisoners were deported in 2007. The Home Secretary has also confirmed that this includes more than 1,100 drug offenders, more than 200 sex offenders and more than 20 killers.

Drugs: Smuggling

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent support (a) her Department and (b) police forces have offered to the Government of Colombia in combating the smuggling of illegal drugs across the Colombia-Venezuela border. [185492]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 7 February 2008]: Preventing the cross-border flow of illicit drugs from Colombia to neighbouring countries is a top priority for the UK's international counter-narcotics efforts. The UK is investing in projects in Colombia and Venezuela to tackle the cross-border flow of illicit drugs. These projects have helped to build capacity among Colombian and Venezuelan law enforcement agencies and the judiciary. In addition, funding of a United Nations Office of Drugs and Crime project on cross-border co-operation has recently been approved.

We take a broad regional approach to tackling the trade in illicit drugs, through a mixture of political engagement, capacity building and law enforcement support in producer, transit and consumer countries. This includes working with Governments of other producer and transit countries in Latin America and countries along the main trafficking routes for drugs via the Caribbean and West Africa.

Emergency Calls

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the average cost of answering and responding to a call to 999; and if she will make a statement. [184138]

Mr. McNulty: The Home Office does not collate the cost of answering and responding to 999 calls and we do not hold data centrally on the duration of calls and level of response to each call to provide estimated costs.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost per call is to use the 0845 6070999 non-emergency police number. [186759]

Mr. McNulty: This information is not collected centrally.

Entry Clearances: Indian Subcontinent

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) spouses and (b) fiancés and fiancées were admitted to the UK in each of the last five years from (i) Pakistan, (ii) India, (iii) Bangladesh and (iv) Sri Lanka. [180623]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 21 January 2008]: The information requested is shown in the following table.

Passengers given leave to enter the United Kingdom as spouses[1] or fiancé(e)s by, selected country of nationality: 2002 to 2006[2]

Entry Clearances: Students

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many student visas were revoked in each of the last five years as a consequence of (a) failure to register with the relevant institution at the beginning of the academic year and (b) failure to attend classes. [180676]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested could be obtained only by the detailed examination of individual case records at disproportionate cost.

Extradition: USA

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many requests for extradition under the Extradition Act 2003 have been received from public authorities in the United States; what offences those the United States sought to extradite were suspected of; how many such requests have been granted; and how many of those extradited have subsequently been convicted of the offence for which they were extradited. [185999]

Meg Hillier: The purpose of extradition is to ensure that those accused—or already convicted—of a crime do not avoid justice by leaving the country in which the offence or alleged offence took place. The available information in the following table does not differentiate between accused and convicted cases, but the great majority of requests for extradition involve those accused of offences. All extradition requests, from the US or any other country, are made by public authorities.

We do not hold information about whether those extradited have subsequently been convicted of the alleged offence for which they were extradited. The involvement of the Home Office extradition section finishes when the extradition case is concluded, either by the person being extradited to the US or by the extradition request being dismissed. The Home Office has no statutory role in the monitoring of cases post extradition.

Fair Trade Initiatives

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what her Department's policy is on the use of fair trade goods (a) in staff catering facilities and (b) at official departmental functions and meetings; and if she will make a statement. [183873]

Mr. Byrne: Although there are no mandatory requirements in place for the procurement of fair trade products by Government Departments it is Home Office policy to provide fairtrade tea and coffee at official meetings in some of its key buildings. In addition the Home Office encourages suppliers to offer fair trade products such as chocolate, biscuits and orange juice in staff restaurants and coffee shops.

Foreign Workers

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether foreign nationals working as diplomats and in other jobs at foreign embassies, high commissions, consulates and other diplomatic posts will be required to hold biometric information documents and identity cards; and if she will make a statement. [184491]

Mr. Byrne: Our intention is that the new identity cards for foreign nationals will eventually be issued to all foreign nationals who are subject to immigration control. However, those working as diplomats and in posts at foreign embassies, high commissions, consulates and other diplomatic posts which render them exempt from immigration control, will not be required either to provide biometric information or to apply for an identity card for foreign nationals.

I do not intend to make a statement at this stage.

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the number of foreign senior care workers who will not meet the minimum salary requirements to continue employment under the Border and Immigration Agency guidelines. [184738]

Mr. Byrne: The Border and Immigration Agency has made no estimate of the number of foreign senior care workers who will not meet the minimum salary requirements. It is not possible to estimate the salaries that employers will choose to offer when work permits expire in the future.

Senior care worker salary guidance was updated on 13 August 2007. More senior care worker extension applications were granted in the period August to December 2007 than in the same period in 2006.

We have reviewed the transitional measures put in place on 13 August and as a result we announced two new transitional measures on 18 January to further assist the sector in maintaining continuity of care while it adapts its recruitment practices.

We are working with the Department of Health and our Healthcare Sector Advisory Panel to monitor the situation. The Department of Health has also undertaken to provide evidence to the Migration Advisory Committee.

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether foreign nationals resident in the United Kingdom serving as diplomats for (a) the United Nations, (b) the World Health Organisation and (c) other international organisations will be required to produce biometric information documents and identity cards. [184527]

Mr. Byrne: Our intention is that the new identity cards for foreign nationals will eventually be issued to all foreign nationals who are subject to immigration control. However, diplomats and other employees who are exempt from immigration control, due to their service with the United Nations, the World Health Organisation or certain other international organisations, such as the International Monetary Fund, or the European Bank for Reconstruction and Development, will not be required either to provide biometric information or to apply for an identity card for foreign nationals.

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the effect on the numbers of foreign nationals seeking to enter the UK of the hosting of the 2012 Olympic games in (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10, (c) 2010-11 and (d) 2011-12. [184850]

Mr. Byrne: Most recent projections of foreign national tourism commissioned by VisitBritain and Visit London suggest no appreciable increase through to 2011. In the calendar year 2012 a 3 per cent. rise is forecast due to the 2012 games.

Between 2007 and 2012 about 37,000 athletes of all nationalities are expected to participate in events leading up to the games themselves. A number of delegations are also expected to visit Britain in connection with the Olympics.

Construction at Olympic sites will create employment, but employers are expected to fill vacancies from local labour supplies or by recruiting EEA nationals. No formal approach has been made to the Borders and Immigration Agency to recruit foreign labour.

Genetics: Databases

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what security measures exist to protect the information on the national DNA database. [181247]

Meg Hillier: Security measures on the national DNA database (NDNAD) are managed by its custodian, the National Policing Improvement Agency (NPIA). Direct access to information on the NDNAD is restricted to a limited number of designated personnel under the control of the custodian, either directly, or under a contract awarded by the Home Office to the Forensic Science Service (FSS) for operation and maintenance of the NDNAD and development of its IT systems. Throughout the lifetime of the contract, the FSS are required to demonstrate compliance with the requirements of the International Standard for Information Security, ISO 17799.

Police and law enforcement staff do not have access to the information on the NDNAD, but receive reports from the custodian's staff of matches between DNA taken from crime scenes and that taken from individuals.

In accordance with the policy that it may assist persons interested in testing the effectiveness of the United Kingdom's IT defences, a detailed description of IT security measures cannot be provided, as this would not be in the public interest.

Human Trafficking

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans her Department has to enhance the powers of (a) border and (b) other officials to stop people on the grounds that they suspect them to be victims or perpetrators of human trafficking. [184458]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 4 February 2008]: To help meet the increased challenge from organised crime and terrorism the Prime Minister announced in November the creation of the United Kingdom Border Agency which will bring together into a single organisation the work of UKvisas, the Border and Immigration Agency and the border work of HM Revenue and Customs. The UK Border Agency will give officers the power to detain people not just on suspicion of immigration offences or for customs crime but also for other criminal activity. Powers are also being given to airline liaison officers to cancel visas where justified.

To assist in punishing facilitators or traffickers Section 31 (1) of the UK Borders Act 2007 came into force on 31 January 2008. This will give border staff powers to ensure that we can prosecute traffickers and facilitators operating anywhere within the secure areas of ports, whether they commit an act here or overseas and regardless of their nationality.

Increased training and awareness raising, including that provided by other expert organisations, means that our front-line staff are better equipped than ever to identify potential victims at an early stage.

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what powers (a) border and (b) other officials have to stop people on the grounds that they suspect them to be victims or perpetrators of human trafficking. [184459]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 4 February 2008]: All people seeking entry to the United Kingdom are subject to examination by an Immigration Officer under Schedule 2 of the Immigration Act 1971. This provides that the officer may examine any person to ensure that they qualify for entry in accordance with the published Immigration Rules.

BIA has provided staff with guidance and training to identify victims both on entry to the United Kingdom and after.

Any passenger suspected of trafficking is referred to a Border and Immigration Agency prosecution unit, or the police, for the offence to be fully investigated. The present offences on statute to deal with traffickers include Section 25(1) of the Immigration Act 1971 which provides it is an offence to assist in the unlawful immigration of a non EU citizen.

Section 57 (1) of the Sexual Offences Act 2003, which provides an offence of trafficking for sexual exploitation.

Section 4 (1) of the Asylum and Immigration Act 2004, which provides an offence of trafficking for non sexual exploitation.

Immigration Officers have power under the Immigration Act to detain, for further examination, any person they believe is involved in the commission of any of the above offences. Furthermore, trained immigration officers also have the power to arrest any individual they have reasonable grounds to believe have committed such an offence.

Police officers and officials from the Her Majesty's Customs and Revenue also have powers to deal with perpetrators of trafficking.

Hunting: Prosecutions

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prosecutions there have been for hunting foxes with dogs since 2005; and what steps her Department is taking to enforce the Hunting Act 2004. [186038]

Mr. Coaker: Data showing the number of defendants proceeded against, found guilty, cautioned and fined under the Hunting Act 2004, broken down by police force area, are in the following table. The Association of Chief Police Officers has issued guidance on enforcement of the Hunting Act and the Government are continuing to work closely with the police, and other stakeholders, to identify what more can be done to ensure that there is effective and proportionate enforcement of the Hunting Act 2004.

Number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts, found guilty at all courts and fined, and the number of offenders cautioned by the police of offences under the Hunting Act 2004, England and Wales, by police force area[1, 2, 3, 4]

[1] These data are on the principal offence basis.
[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.
[3] The Hunting Act 2004 came into force in February 2005.
[4] Where police forces are not listed, assume a nil figure.

Illegal Immigrants

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) prosecutions and (b) convictions there were for (i) knowingly facilitating the entry of an illegal entrant contrary to section 25(1)(a) of the Immigration Act 1971 and (ii) assisting unlawful immigration contrary to section 25 of the Immigration Act in each quarter since 1 January 2002; and how many of those convicted received custodial sentences. [177414]

Mr. Byrne: Data showing the number of defendants proceeded against, found guilty and given custodial sentences for Section 25 of the Immigration Act 1971, from 2002 to 2006, in England and Wales, are shown in the following table.

Section 25 of the 1971 Immigration Act was amended as part of the 2002 Nationality, Immigration and Asylum Act. Following this change it is not possible to separate offences under Section 25(1 )(a) from any under the rest of Section 25.

Information on persons proceeded against for offences under Immigration Acts 1971 to 2004 during 2007 will be available in the autumn of 2008.

Published statistics on immigration and asylum are available from the Library of the House.

[1] Principal immigration offence.
[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.
[3] From 2004 to 2006 it is not possible to separate data for section 25 (1) (a) from the data for the rest of section 25.
[4] The found guilty column may exceed those proceeded against, as it may be the case that the proceedings in the magistrates court took place in the preceding year and they were found guilty at the Crown court in the following year, or the defendant was found guilty for a different offence to the original offence proceeded against.
[5] These data are provisional. Data for 2006 were updated on 9 January 2008.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will estimate the number of known illegal immigrants in each constituency. [181776]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 24 January 2008]: No government have ever been able to produce an accurate figure for the number of people who are in the country illegally. By its very nature it is impossible to quantify accurately and that remains the case. It is therefore not possible to provide an estimate for the number of immigrants known to be illegally resident in each constituency.

Exit controls were phased out from 1994. As part of the Government's 10-point plan for delivery, by Christmas 2008 the majority of foreign nationals will be counted in and out of the country. This will build on the successes of our early testing of the e-Borders programme (Project Semaphore) which already covers over 30 million passenger movements and has led to 18,000 alerts and more than 1,500 arrests.

This is part of a sweeping programme of border protection which also includes the global roll-out of fingerprint visas, compulsory watch-list checks for all travellers from high-risk countries before they land in Britain and ID cards for foreign nationals.

Illegal Immigrants: Poole

Mr. Syms: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what level of fine has been levied on individuals and companies for carrying illegal immigrants through the Port of Poole in the last five years; [184676]

(2) how many (a) individuals and (b) companies have been fined for carrying illegal immigrants through the port of Poole in the last five years. [184677]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 5 February 2008]: There have been 107 incidents involving drivers and transport companies for the carriage of clandestine entrants into the port of Poole over the last five years. Penalties were not imposed in all cases as the imposition of a penalty depends upon the measures taken by the company and the driver to prevent the carriage of clandestine entrants and the extent to which they comply with the Code of Practice.

The level of penalty imposed depends upon the measures taken by the owner, hirer and driver to prevent the carriage of clandestine entrants and with regard to the Level of Penalty Code of Practice. Penalties range from nil to £2,000 per clandestine entrant.

Immigrants: National Insurance

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to her statement of 13 November 2007, Official Report, columns 531-3 and her answer to the hon. Member for Hertsmere, how many of the non-EEA nationals without the right to work to whom she referred have been issued with national insurance numbers. [165386]

Mr. Plaskitt: I have been asked to reply.

The information on national insurance numbers is not currently available.

The Security Industry Authority (SIA) is currently conducting an exercise to determine the right to work status of SIA licence holders. If, following completion of the legal appeals process, an SIA licence is revoked because the holder has failed to demonstrate the right to work in the UK, the SIA will provide DWP with the information they require. This will enable a check to be made upon whether the individuals concerned were issued with a valid national insurance number by DWP and under what circumstances.

The Department for Work and Pensions does not issue temporary national insurance numbers.

Immigration

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what criteria she used to select the cases to be dealt with in the legacy exercise as referred to in the letter of 17 December 2007 from the Chief Executive of the Border and Immigration Agency to the Chairman of the Home Affairs Committee. [177364]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 10 January 2008]: The cases dealt with by the case resolution teams include unresolved asylum applications which are not being processed by case owners in our regional asylum teams, meaning that they are those lodged with the Agency before 5 March 2007, and many of them have been in our system for more than three years.

The common factor that defines incomplete asylum cases for the purpose of the case resolution directorate is that there was initially an asylum claim and, as yet, the case record has not been concluded( i.e. granted, removed or closed) either due to errors in recording information or there are outstanding actions that need to be taken. Our cases largely date from before the Asylum (Treatment of Claimants etc.) Act 2004. Case records are concluded when individuals have permission to stay; are removed from the UK, voluntarily or by force; or their records are otherwise closed (e.g. when data errors are resolved).

The priorities are those who may pose a risk to the public, those who can be more easily removed, those receiving support and those who may be granted leave. All cases will be dealt with on their individual merits.

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 14 January 2008, Official Report, column 105W, on immigration, how many unresolved electronic and paper asylum records within the Border and Immigration Agency related to the London borough of Hillingdon; and how many and what proportion of such cases were concluded within the six month target period up to December 2007. [183522]

Mr. Byrne: The requested information is not collated centrally and could be obtained only at a disproportionate cost through the examination of individual cases.

There is no requirement for unresolved asylum cases to be concluded within a specific target date due to the differing nature and complexity of the casework undertaken.

Immigration Officers: Complaints

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of those making a complaint against staff involved in removals from the United Kingdom were interviewed in each of the last three years. [184947]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 6 February 2008]: Records have only been held centrally since October 2006 and relate to contractors' staff who are involved in the detention and overseas escort process only. During this period, of the 51 complaints received, 37 complainants have been interviewed to date.

Immigration Officers: Crimes of Violence

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many complaints of assault have been made against staff involved in immigration removals from the United Kingdom in each of the last three years. [184946]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 6 February 2008]: This information has only been held centrally since October 2006 and relates to contractors' staff involved in the detention and overseas escort process only. During this period there have been 51 complaints of assault to date.

Immigration: Children

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to her written ministerial statement of 31 January 2008, Official Report, columns 28-29WS, on care for children in the immigration system, which local authorities will be part of the network of specialist local authorities looking after unaccompanied asylum seeking children. [184736]

Mr. Byrne: The location of the specialist network is currently being discussed with local authorities.

Immigration: Work Permits

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 21 January 2008, Official Report, column 1773W, on Immigration: Work Permits, how much her Department spent in relation to reviews where work permits have been refused and the applicant has sought a review of their case (a) in total, (b) on legal counsel and (c) on staffing, administration and accommodation costs in the last 12 months. [184424]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested is not available. The team responsible for the consideration of work permit reviews is part of a larger unit and expenditure relating specifically to work permit reviews is not separately recorded.

Immigration: Workers

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research she has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the effect on the recruitment of highly skilled chefs for Chinese restaurants in the UK of the points-based immigration system, with particular reference to the language test requirement; and if she will make a statement. [175498]

Mr. Byrne: The Government have not commissioned specific research to address the effect of the points-based system on the recruitment of highly skilled chefs in Chinese restaurants. Tier 2 of the points-based system is designed to ensure that employers can bring in the skilled migrants they need subject to meeting the relevant points criteria. In addition, the Migration Advisory Committee will produce a list of shortage occupations which will receive additional points and I have specifically asked the MAC to consider the ethnic cuisine sector when they draw up their list later this year.

Immobilisation of Vehicles

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many licensed vehicle immobilisers have had their licences revoked in each of the last five years; how many unlicensed individuals have been prosecuted for carrying out vehicle immobilisations in the same period; and what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of the Private Security Industry Act 2001 in regulating the activities of wheel clampers. [184719]

Mr. Coaker: The Security Industry Authority revoked three vehicle immobilisers licences in 2006, six in 2007 and four in 2008 as at 6 February 2008. Some 1,500 valid vehicle immobilisers licences are currently held. The following weblink gives the list of revoked licences, which includes the type of licence for each revocation:

http://www.the-sia.org.uk/home/licensing/revoked/rorl_intro.htm

The Private Security Industry Act 2001 provides for the regulation of vehicle immobilisers carrying out licensable activities and for a range of offences which include using an unlicensed wheel-clamper. The most common offence prosecuted under the Act is "conduct prohibited without a licence". This would include carrying out, without a licence, not only wheel-clamping and related activities but also the other types of activity which are licensable under the 2001 Act, such as manned guarding and door supervision. Numbers of prosecutions and convictions for 2004-06 are shown in the following table. The data do not break down further the licensable activities to which the prosecutions related, except where this is clear from the offence.

The Home Office and the SIA are considering various options for the regulation of vehicle immobilisation companies in the private sector, including a company registration scheme. The SIA is planning to undertake a feasibility study of the various policy options in the financial year 2008-09. Further details will be published in the SIA's business plan 2008-09. We expect the results of the feasibility study to be available in early 2009.

[1] These data are on the principal offence basis.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Infanticide

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many children have been killed by (a) non-resident fathers and (b) non-resident mothers in each of the last five years. [186800]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not available centrally.

Isac Dumitru

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what representations she has had from the Romanian embassy on the case of Isac Dumitru; [183817]

(2) where Isac Dumitru is being looked after by Essex social services; [183818]

(3) what steps she plans to take to secure the future of Isac Dumitru. [183819]

Mr. Byrne: It is the general policy of the Border and Immigration Agency not to disclose to a third party personal information about another person, including information concerning their immigration status, as well as personal details, mainly for reasons of privacy, data protection and child protection.

Licensing Laws

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what consultation her Department has had with (a) the Association of Chief Police Officers and (b) the Police Federation on the Government's review of licensing hours. [186353]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I have been asked to reply.

The Department for Culture, Media and Sport is looking at the many strands of evaluation that were set up to monitor the impact of the Licensing Act 2003. Those projects would have sought the views of the police where necessary. For example, the evaluation of the impact of the Licensing Act 2003 on levels of crime and disorder is being progressed by the Home Office and has included analysis of police force data, a telephone survey of police officers with responsibility for licensing in 26 police force areas and interviews with police in five case study areas. In addition, the Association of Chief Police Officers has been able to contribute to the ongoing monitoring of the impact of the new regime as a longstanding member of the DCMS licensing stakeholder advisory group.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Winnick: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she expects to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for Walsall, North of 26 November 2007 on a constituent (Home Office reference: B34554/7). [178324]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 14 January 2008]: The Border and Immigration Agency wrote to the hon. Member on 21 January 2008.

Neighbourhood Policing Programme

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she expects to publish the results of her Department's monitoring and evaluation exercise in relation to the neighbourhood policing programme across England and Wales. [170015]

Mr. McNulty: The evaluation of Neighbourhood policing at the BCD level is currently ongoing and is scheduled to end in March 2009. There is a plan to publish a first report of early findings in the first half of 2008.

Offenders: Crimes of Violence

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the proportion of violent incidents in each region of England and Wales where the offender was thought to be under the influence of alcohol or drugs was in each year since 1997. [185100]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 6 February 2008]: The British Crime Survey (BCS) routinely provides information on the proportion of violent incidents in England and Wales, where the victim believed the offender(s) to be under the influence of alcohol or drugs, but it is not possible to break it down by region.

According to the latest BCS (2006-07), the offender was thought to be under the influence of alcohol in 46 per cent. of violent incidents, and under the influence of drugs in 17 per cent. of violent incidents. The following table gives the figures for previous years.

Percentage of violent incidents where offender/s under the influence of drink or drugs (BCS)

| | 1997 | 1999 | 2001/02 | 2002/03 | 2003/04 | 2004/05 | 2005/06 | Percentage 2006/07 |

Notes:
1. Percentages may not sum to 100 due to founding
2. BCS violence in 1997, 1999, 2001-02, 2002-03, 2003-04, 2004-05 and 2005-06 includes common assault, wounding, robbery and snatch theft.
3. BCS violence in 2006/07 excludes snatch theft.

Offenders: Deportation

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the number of crimes committed by non-UK nationals which have resulted in a Court recommendation for deportation in each police authority area in each of the last five years. [176073]

Mr. Byrne: It is within a judge or magistrate's discretion to make a recommendation, at the time of sentencing, for any foreign national to be subject to deportation action upon completion of a custodial sentence. When a recommendation is made, the subject is referred by the Ministry of Justice to the Border and Immigration Agency to consider deportation.

The Border and Immigration Agency do not hold the requested information and could obtain it only through the detailed examination of individual court, police and immigration records at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many criminals of foreign nationality who (a) were apprehended and (b) served their sentences in the UK were deported to their country of origin in each of the last five years. [178718]

Mr. Byrne: The Chief Executive of the Border and Immigration Agency has regularly updated the Home Affairs Committee over the last 18 months on the issue of foreign national prisoners and provided the most accurate and robust statistics available. Copies of her letters are placed in the Library of the House. She has also advised the Home Affairs Committee during her appearance of 15 January that over 4,200 foreign national prisoners were deported or removed in 2007.

Offenders: Foreigners

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many foreign former prisoners were housed in (a) immigration detention centres and (b) young offender institutions on 31 December 2007. [179773]

Mr. Byrne: The chief executive of the Border and Immigration Agency wrote to the Home Affairs Committee on 20 November advising that there were 1,500 foreign nationals whose sentences had expired and were detained in the agency or prison estate while awaiting deportation. A copy of this letter is available in the Library of the House.

Offensive Weapons

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many people under the age of 18 years were (a) injured and (b) killed by bladed weapons in the last year for which figures are available; [178203]

(2) how many fatalities there were arising from the use of bladed weapons in the last year for which figures are available. [178231]

Mr. McNulty: Available information relates to offences currently recorded as homicide that were caused by a knife or other sharp instrument. As of 12 November 2007, 258 such homicides were recorded by police in England and Wales during 2006-07. Of these, 19 victims were aged under 18.

Centrally-collected data cannot show how many persons were injured by means of bladed weapons.

Official Residences

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many years remain on the lease for South Eaton Place, the Government House in Pimlico. [183486]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 31 January 2008]: The property is held on a number of co-terminous leases which expire in 45 years.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for how many months the Government House in Pimlico has been vacant. [183487]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 31 January 2008]: The property has been vacant for 22 months.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will place in the Library a copy of the home information pack produced regarding South Eaton Place, the Government House in Pimlico at the time it was put on the market. [183540]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 31 January 2008]: The home information pack will be placed in the Library when it is prepared.

Organised Crime

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many investigations into organised crime organisations have been undertaken by (a) the Serious and Organised Crime Agency and (b) other police organisations in each of the last five years. [176118]

Mr. Coaker: The Serious Organised Crime Agency, which became operational on 1 April 2006, has the aim of reducing the harm caused to the UK through organised crime. SOCA's annual report published on 18 May 2007 states that during 2006-07—its first year of operation—SOCA ran 404 operations and projects as its contribution to the UK Serious Organised Crime Control Strategy. Of these 404 operations and projects, 283 were operations focussed on organised criminals and their organisations. Information on the operational activity undertaken by SOCA in 2007-08 will be published in the 2007-08 annual report. Information on investigations undertaken by other police organisations is not held centrally.

Police

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what legislation determines whether a suspect may be questioned by police following charge; and if she will make a statement. [182463]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 28 January 2008]: The code of practice for the detention, treatment and questioning of persons by police officers (code C) issued under the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 provides in paragraph 16.5 that a person may not be interviewed about an offence after they have been charged with, or informed that, they may be prosecuted for it, unless the interview is necessary: to prevent or minimise harm or loss to some other person, or to the public; to clear up an ambiguity in a previous answer or statement; in the interests of justice for the detainee to have further matters put to them which have come to light since they were charged or informed they might be prosecuted.

The PACE Review consultation paper published in March 2007 sought public and stakeholder views on the current use of questioning after charge. The responses to that are available on the PACE Review webpage at:

http://police.homeoffice.gov.uk/operational-policing/powers-pace-codes/PACE-Review

We aim to publish final proposals at the end of March 2008.

Police Custody: Asylum

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what nightly rate is paid by the Immigration Service for the use of police cells to each police force. [176306]

Mr. Byrne: Border and Immigration Agency opened negotiations in October 2005 direct with a number of police forces about the rates they charge for the use of police cells and discussions continue. The negotiations are based on a standard charging methodology which takes account of local circumstances. The following table shows in ranges the rates payable in 2007-08, and indicates where rates have been agreed as a result of the negotiations.

1. There are small variations to rates depending on individual circumstances of detentions (e.g. number of meals, clothing required, length of stay, etc.), hence why rates are banded rather than provided as specific figures.
2. Different rates apply to the hire of full custody suites, as opposed to utilising existing facilities.
3. In most cases, interpreter and medical examination costs are charged separately at cost, in addition to the above rates;
4. Those police forces which do not charge or to whom payments made are ad hoc/for incidentals only are not shown.

Police National Computer

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what measures are in place to prevent the unauthorised passing of information from the Police National Computer to the media. [184022]

Mr. McNulty: The Police National Computer (PNC) is a secure facility. All applicants seeking employment at the location are subject to rigorous security vetting checks, which are subject to periodic renewal.

Access to PNC live data systems by a limited number of staff is strictly controlled and monitored by a security manager. All staff at the HOC are reminded of their obligations to adhere to the stringent procedures in place for the handling of requests for information from the media, and these are updated regularly.

The protection of information from PNC that is conveyed to the media by forces is the responsibility of individual chief officers.

Police: Bureaucracy

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what forms are required to be completed by a policeman processing a burglary from investigation to conviction; and how many pages each form contains. [180119]

Mr. McNulty: The specific information requested is not available as the number of forms and pages completed by a police officer processing a burglary from investigation to conviction is dependent on the circumstances of arrest in each individual case.

Following an arrest, the arresting police officer is required only to record information about the nature and circumstances of the offence leading to the arrest, the reason (s) why arrest was necessary, the giving of the caution and anything said by the person at the time of arrest. Once in custody, the grounds for arrest do not need to be given to the custody officer in person as they may be given remotely or via a third party, enabling the arresting police officer to remain on front line duty.

Police: Cambridgeshire

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many full-time police officers, excluding police community support officers, there were in the Northern Division of Cambridgeshire Constabulary in each quarterly period since 2001; and if she will make a statement. [184445]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 5 February 2008]: The requested data for police officer strength at the Basic Command Unit level, have been collected annually since 2002-03, and are given in the following table.

I am told by the chief constable (Mrs. Julie Spence) that the reduction in police officer numbers in 2004-05 is the result of transferring responsibility for traffic policing from division to HQ control. It is also the result of the creation of a major investigation team in 2004-05 on the advice of Sir Ronnie Flanagan following his report on the Soham murders investigation.

Police officer strength (FTE)[1] for Northern Basic Command Unit of Cambridgeshire police force as at 31 March 2003 to 31 March 2007

| 31 March | Number |
|---|---|
| 2003 | 360 |
| 2004 | 356 |
| 2005 | 308 |
| 2006 | 317 |
| 2007 | 287 |

[1] These figures are based on full-time equivalents that have been rounded to the nearest whole number, due to rounding there may be an apparent discrepancy between totals and the sums of constituent items. Figures include those officers on career breaks or maternity/paternity leave.

Police: Computers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many hand held computers have been provided to police officers to log crime in each of the last three years. [184615]

Mr. McNulty: Numbers of hand-held computers currently in use by the police service are not held centrally.

The Government have funded a pilot of mobile information systems in six police forces. Based on this pilot, it is estimated that the number of hand-held computers in use has risen from 250 at the end of 2006 to 2,500 at the end of 2007. In September 2007, my right hon. Friend, the Prime Minister, announced an initiative to provide police officers with additional hand-held computers, increasing the total number in use to over 10,000 by the end of 2008. My right hon. Friend, the Home Secretary, announced that £50 million capital would be made available to provide the police with access to crime-fighting technologies, such as hand-held computers and mobile fingerprinting devices. We are working closely with the Association of Police Authorities and the Association of Chief Police Officers on proposals to take the initiative forward.

Police: Genetics

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department in what circumstances a police officer may ask for a DNA sample. [181244]

Mr. McNulty: A constable has power under section 63 of the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 (PACE) to take a non-intimate sample (i.e. cells inside the mouth or from the roots of a sample of non-pubic hair) for DNA profiling without consent from a person aged 10 or over if that person is in police detention as a consequence of being arrested for a recordable offence and the same sample has not already been taken or the sample previously taken proved insufficient; or in police custody on the authority of a court and authority to take the sample is given by an inspector or above who has grounds to suspect the person of involvement in a recordable offence and to believe that the sample will tend to prove or disprove that involvement; or has been charged with, or reported for, a recordable offence and a same sample has not already been taken or a sample previously taken proved unsuitable or insufficient; or has been convicted of a recordable offence. A sample may also be taken from a person with the appropriate consent in writing.

Appropriate consent means for a person aged 17 or over, the person's consent; for a person aged 14 to 16 inclusive, the consent of the person and their parent or guardian; and, for a person aged 10 to 13 inclusive, the consent of the person's parent or guardian.

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers there were in Enfield North in (a) 1997 and (b) 2007, how many community safety officers there were in Enfield North in 2007; and how many incidents of recorded crime there were in Enfield North in (i) 1997 and (ii) 2007. [183318]

Mr. McNulty: Police strength data are not collected by parliamentary constituencies; data are available at the basic command unit level from 2002-03 onwards.

Recorded crime data are not collected by parliamentary constituencies; data are available at the Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnership level from 1999-2000 onwards.

The available data are given in the following tables.

[2] Data were collected centrally from 1999-2000 onwards.

Police: Influenza

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 7 January 2008, Official Report, column 294W, on police: influenza, if she will make it her policy to direct individual chief constables to conduct an assessment of the operational capacity of the police service in their area should a serious outbreak of pandemic influenza occur. [184222]

Mr. McNulty: Operational capacity and evaluation of any potential threats to this capacity is a matter for individual chief constables.

Police: Information and Communications Technology

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how much has been spent on (a) hand held computers and (b) other time saving technologies for police forces in England and Wales since January 2007; [180151]

(2) when she expects all forces in England and Wales to issue all officers with (a) hand held computers and (b) other time saving technologies; [180152]

(3) what the procedures are by which police forces in England and Wales may apply for funds for hand held computers and other time saving technologies before September 2008; [180153]

(4) whom her Department consults before a police force is awarded funds to provide its officers with hand held computers and other technology. [180154]

Mr. McNulty: The Government have no plans to issue all officers with hand held computers and other time saving technologies as this is a matter for individual chief officers of police. However, all police officers have benefited from the introduction of the national 'Airwave' digital radio network which incorporates advanced voice, text and image capability.

Since January 2007, the Government have made £1 million available to pilot mobile information systems in six police forces. In addition, £1.5 million has been provided during the same period for 'Project Lantern', a pilot of mobile fingerprint technology. The amount spent by individual police forces on mobile technology is not held centrally.

In September 2007, my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister announced a new initiative to provide police officers with additional hand held computers. My right hon. Friend the Home Secretary has announced that £50 million would be made available for meeting this objective. The National Policing Improvement Agency (NPIA), is working closely with the Association of Police Authorities and the Association of Chief Police Officer's Mobile Information Programme Board, on proposals for the bidding criteria and in early February, the NPIA will invite police forces to submit applications for funding.

Police: North Yorkshire

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) police and (b) community support officers were employed in North Yorkshire at the latest date for which figures are available. [183435]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 31 January 2008]: Figures published on 31 January 2008 show that there were 1,623 police officers and 186 police community support officers employed in North Yorkshire on 30 September 2007. Both figures are in terms of full-time equivalents rather than head counts, and include officers on career breaks and maternity/paternity leave.

Police: Pay

Jeremy Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the financial liability is for compensation to police officers owed for rest days not taken of (a) Warwickshire Police Authority and (b) all police authorities in England and Wales. [180651]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 21 January 2008]: The Home Office does not collect data on rest days not taken by police officers in England and Wales.

Police: Standards

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the Head of the Police and Crime Standards Directorate will be eligible for a bonus for 2007; and what the criteria are for the award of such bonuses. [176061]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested cannot be provided as it relates to an individual. However, members of the senior civil service are usually eligible for consideration for bonuses based on their performance against agreed objectives and targets.

Police: Telephone Services

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans her Department has to (a) extend and (b) terminate central funding of the 101 non-emergency numbers in local areas. [176708]

Mr. McNulty: It has been decided that the Home Office will not continue to fund centrally the operation of the single non-emergency number 101 service in existing live areas or the development of 101 services in other areas. This was a difficult decision taken in the context of significant pressure on resources and competing policing and security priorities.

However, the Government recognise the many benefits demonstrated by the live areas. These benefits include how, through better partnership working and information about what problems are happening where, 101 has helped local police and councils to target their resources more effectively and efficiently and improve services to the public. The Home Office will therefore continue to provide funding for the national 101 infrastructure in order to enable and support local areas to maintain or develop their own locally funded 101 services, informed by and building on these benefits.

Postal Services

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many items of post sent by her Department were reported missing by the intended recipient in each year since 1997; [171286]

(2) what steps her Department has taken to protect the personal data on members of the public which it holds. [171416]

Mr. Byrne: I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 21 November 2007, Official Report, column 1179W. The review by the Cabinet Secretary and security experts is looking at procedures within Departments and agencies for the storage and use of data. A statement on Departments' procedures will be made on completion of the review.

PricewaterhouseCoopers

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the value of her Department's contracts with PricewaterhouseCoopers on private finance initiative projects was in each year since 1997. [180846]

Mr. Byrne: The Department does not hold a central record of individual contracts with external consultants. To identify and establish whether the Department let contracts where PricewaterhouseCoopers was engaged to work on PFI contracts, and compile their value from individual records would incur disproportionate cost.

Proscribed Organisations Appeals Commission

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will make a statement on the status of the Government's appeal against the decision of the Proscribed Organisations Appeals Commission in the case of the People's Mojahedin of Iran. [183485]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 31 January 2008]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for North Thanet (Mr. Gale) on 21 January 2007, Official Report, column 1786W.

Public Order Offences: Photography

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will issue guidance to police forces on steps which may be taken against persons taking photographs in public places. [183454]

Mr. McNulty: The police may remove persons from public areas, prevent filming or confiscate equipment where they are responding to an offence or where they suspect an offence is about to happen in order to prevent it from being committed. They may also take action to prevent a breach of the peace. In such cases the police may require a person to leave a place or prevent them from entering a public area where their presence is likely to cause a breach of the peace. Police tactics and decisions on how to achieve these objectives are a matter for the independent judgment of chief officers of police.

Smart Water

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police forces have purchased stocks of smart water; and how many crimes have been detected in each police authority area through the use of smart water. [178696]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 29 January 2008]: Smartwater is only one of a number of crime prevention tools available on the market. The use of Smartwater, as with other operational matters, is a matter for each police force.

Stop and Search

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the answer of 16 October 2007, Official Report, column 983W, on stop and search, for what reasons data on individuals stopped and searched under section 44 of the Terrorism Act 2000 is not collected by (a) gender and (b) age. [168642]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 29 November 2007]: The recording requirements for stop and search data under section 44 of the Terrorism Act 2000 are set out in PACE Code A issued under the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984. Code A does not require that gender details should be recorded although the officer exercising a stop and search can request a person's date of birth. Police forces nevertheless do collect data on individuals' gender and age when exercising stop and search powers under section 44 of the Terrorism Act 2000. However, these data are not held centrally and the information could not be provided except at disproportionate cost.

Terrorism

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what guidelines are given to the police in dealing with extremist literature discovered in UK mosques; [183779]

(2) what steps she is taking to ensure inflammatory literature is not available in UK mosques. [183782]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 1 February 2008]: The Racial and Religious Hatred Act 2006 makes it an offence to publish or distribute material which stirs up religious, as well as racial, hatred.

We have also introduced new offences and powers in the Terrorism Act 2006 to tackle those who promote terrorism, including glorification of terrorism; dissemination of terrorist publications; and powers to remove terrorist-related material from a website. We have extended in the Terrorism Act 2006 the grounds for proscription to catch organisations which glorify terrorism.

The police will deal with the discovery of extremist literature in mosques within the parameters of the available legislation. Where there is evidence of an offence being committed, the prosecuting agencies will take the appropriate action.

The Government are also working with the Muslim communities to support them in raising standards of governance in mosques. The Mosques and Imams National Advisory Board's (MINAB) work to develop core standards for mosques is an important step. These standards include a focus on strengthening governance and ensuring faith leaders have the leadership skills to isolate and defeat violent extremism. Strong mosques positioned at the centre of the community and effectively governed will be better able to withstand attempts by certain groups or individuals to incite hatred or promote violent extremist interpretations of Islam.

Vladimir Ismaili

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the Answer of 15 June 2007, Official Report, columns 1398-99W, on Vladimir Ismaili, whether Vladimir Ismaili has been deported. [172778]

Mr. Coaker: Vladimir Ismaili remains at large. As such no deportation action has been taken against him.

Work Permits

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many professional footballers offered employment by UK football clubs were refused a work permit in each year since January 1998, broken down by nationality. [185002]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested is as follows:

The figures quoted are not provided under National Statistics protocols and have been derived from local management information and are therefore provisional and subject to change.

Young Offenders

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the number of persons under 18 years who have committed (a) five offences or more, (b) 10 offences or more, (c) 20 offences or more and (d) 50 offences or more in each year since 1997. [167017]

Mr. Coaker: Estimates of the numbers of persons under 18 years who have committed offences is not available.

Statistics on offences committed by offenders sentenced for indictable offences by the courts are routinely published by the Ministry of Justice and can be found in the House of Commons Library.

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many crimes were committed by juvenile offenders in each year since 1997. [167102]

Mr. Coaker: Estimates of the numbers of crimes committed by juvenile offenders are not available.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan

8. Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made on the appointment of a special representative of the UN Secretary-General for Afghanistan. [186590]

Dr. Howells: As my right hon. Friend, the Foreign Secretary informed the House earlier, we understand the need to have in place a UN special representative able to undertake with real authority the co-ordination of the international effort to improve Afghan security and reconstruction. We are talking to the United Nations and working towards the appointment of a special representative as a matter of urgency.

The appointment is a matter for the UN Secretary-General. His spokesperson said on 8 February that work was ongoing. We hope an early appointment will be made, to allow more effective co-ordination of the international effort.

Kenya

10. Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the political situation in Kenya. [186592]

11. Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the progress in resolving the political situation in Kenya. [186593]

Meg Munn: The Government welcome the progress made by the Kenyan Government and the opposition in negotiations under the mediation of Kofi Annan. We urge Kenya's leaders to establish the basis for a lasting solution.

22. Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with Kofi Annan on political mediation in Kenya. [186606]

Meg Munn: My noble Friend the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN, the right hon. Lord Malloch Brown, has had regular conversations with Kofi Annan. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister discussed the mediation process with Kofi Annan on 8 February and reaffirmed our support for his work and for a sustainable outcome for the Kenyan people.

Kosovo

12. Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the political situation in Kosovo. [186594]

David Miliband: On 17 February the Kosovo Parliamentary Assembly passed a resolution that declared Kosovo independent, committing Kosovo to fully implement UN Special Envoy Ahtisaari's Comprehensive Proposal, including extensive minority safeguards and international supervision.

The UK has decided to recognise Kosovo's independence and establish diplomatic relations. Thus far we understand that at least 18 countries have indicated their intention to recognise Kosovo. We anticipate more will do so shortly.

Zimbabwe

13. Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the United Nations on the political situation in Zimbabwe. [186595]

Meg Munn: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary raised Zimbabwe during the UN General Assembly in September 2007. He underlined the need for UN action to support African leadership and to tackle economic and social devastation in Zimbabwe. Our embassy in Harare holds regular discussions with the UN Development Programme office there regarding human rights, democracy and good governance.

India

14. Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on UK relations with India. [186596]

Dr. Howells: The UK enjoys a strategic partnership with India and my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister's recent visit to New Delhi further strengthened this partnership, when progress was made on a range of bilateral and wider international issues.

Middle East Peace Process

15. Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government is taking in support of the middle east peace process; and if he will make a statement. [186598]

Dr. Howells: The Government support the political, economic and security elements of the peace process. We are committed to taking forward the Annapolis process to achieve a two-state solution. In support of the Palestinian economy, we committed up to £243 million over three years, linked to political progress. We will co-sponsor the Bethlehem Private Investors Conference and host the Ad Hoc Liaison Committee in London. We are contributing to security sector reform.

23. Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the effect of suicide bombings in the middle east on the peace process. [186607]

Dr. Howells: The UK condemns suicide bombing. The attack in Dimona on 4 February was the first in Israel for 12 months. Terrorist atrocities must never deflect us from our goal of just and lasting peace based on a two-state solution. The UK continues to support leaders whose commitments at Annapolis and since have given Palestinians and Israelis the best chance of progress in seven years.

Burma

16. Ann Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the political situation in Burma. [186599]

Meg Munn: The Government are deeply concerned at the continued lack of progress towards democracy in Burma. On 9 February the Burmese regime announced its intention to hold a referendum on a new constitution in May this year and elections in 2010. However, if any process is to lead to national reconciliation, all stakeholders must be allowed to participate and political prisoners, including Aung San Suu Kyi, must be freed.

Pakistan

17. Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the political progress in Pakistan. [186600]

Dr. Howells: Parliamentary and provincial elections took place in Pakistan yesterday. It was an important opportunity for the people of Pakistan to exercise their democratic voice.

The UK took part in the EU election observation mission, which is still working in Pakistan. We expect that it will give its preliminary assessment on the election process tomorrow.

Iran

18. Michael Fabricant: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on Iran's nuclear capability. [186601]

Dr. Howells: Iran is pursuing enrichment activities and heavy water projects in defiance of UN Security Council resolutions requiring it to suspend those activities and reprocessing. Their realisation would give Iran the capability to produce nuclear weapons. Iran's development of these technologies is not necessary for the peaceful uses of nuclear energy. If Iran suspends its proliferation activities, the E3+3 will negotiate a long-term agreement that would transform the international community's relationship with Iran.

Hamas

19. Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the policy of the Quartet is on talks with Hamas. [186602]

Dr. Howells: The policy of the Quartet on engagement with Hamas remains based on its three Quartet principles: non-violence; recognition of Israel; and acceptance of previous agreements, including the road map. These principles are not set unreasonably high and remain the fundamental conditions for a viable peace process. We hope that Hamas will accept the principles and grasp the opportunity for dialogue and progress.

The Balkans

20. Mr. Mackay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the political situation in the Balkans. [186604]

Mr. Jim Murphy: I refer the right hon. Member to my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary's reply to the hon. Member for North-West Cambridgeshire (Mr. Vara) today (UIN 186594).

The UK recognises how difficult Kosovo's independence is for Serbia. But we believe that it is in Serbia's long-term interest.

Having closed this final chapter in the disintegration of the former Yugoslavia, we are determined to support a peaceful and prosperous region moving towards a sustainable, stable European future.

Bilateral Relations

21. Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent progress has been made on strengthening relations between the UK and China. [186605]

Meg Munn: My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister's recent visit to China strengthened UK-China relations. As a result of his visit a new trade target was announced; new areas of co-operation on climate change, sustainable cities, education, health, science and Olympics links.

British Overseas Territories: Administration of Justice

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what safeguards exist against the arbitrary dismissal of chief justices in overseas territories which are compliant with European Convention of Human Rights and other international norms and treaty obligations; and if he will make a statement. [186457]

Meg Munn: There are chief justices in the following Overseas Territories: Bermuda, the Cayman Islands, the Falkland Islands (including South Georgia), Gibraltar, St. Helena and the Turks and Caicos Islands. The procedures concerning the dismissal of the chief justices in the Overseas Territories are set out in their constitutions. These procedures provide protection against arbitrary dismissal and are compliant with the European Convention on Human Rights and other international norms and treaty obligations.

Burundi: Elections

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he plans to take to support the elections scheduled for 2010 in Burundi. [186597]

Meg Munn: The Government will work to ensure that the conditions and resources are in place for holding peaceful, free and fair elections in 2010. With UN Peacebuilding Commission partners, we are urging that international expertise and resources be put in place for establishing an independent electoral commission. We expect the European Commission to include Burundi in its election monitoring and assistance work. Successful elections would promote peace and stability in Burundi.

Chad: France

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with French authorities on their intervention in Chad. [186835]

Meg Munn: The UK has worked through multilateral fora, namely the United Nations and the European Union, to discuss the international response to the rebel incursions in Chad, and to work towards longer term solutions. These discussions have included the French authorities, along with other international partners.

My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary spoke to the French Foreign Minister, Bernard Kouchner, on 11 February to discuss, among other topics, the situation in Chad and to thank him for his country's help in evacuating British nationals from N'Djamena. He was also contacted by Mr. Kouchner over the weekend of 2/3 February regarding Chad. Foreign and Commonwealth Office officials have been in regular contact with French Foreign Ministry officials concerning Chad, particularly regarding the evacuation of British nationals.

Chad: Peace Negotiations

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what support the Government are giving to the African Union's mediation efforts in Chad through (a) Colonel Muammar Gaddafi of Libya and (b) Denis Sassou-Nguesso of the Democratic Republic of Congo. [186217]

Meg Munn: The Government are fully supportive of the African Union's efforts to find lasting solutions to the conflict in Chad and welcomes the appointment of Colonel Muammar Gaddafi of Libya and Denis Sassou-Nguesso of Congo-Brazzaville as mediators.

The UK supported the UN Security Council presidential statement of 4 February 2008, which gave backing to the mediators. The UN statement also echoed the African Union in > "strongly condemning the attacks perpetrated by armed groups against the Chadian government, demanding to put an immediate end to the violence and calling on all the countries of the region to respect the unity and territorial integrity of the member states of the African Union".

Chad: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment has been made of (a) the security situation in Chad and (b) the impact on the deployment of the EUFOR operation for Chad and the Central African Republic; and if he will make a statement. [186218]

Meg Munn: The security situation in Chad remains unstable following rebel incursions into the capital, N'Djamena, on 2 February. As of 11 February 2008, the security situation in Chad is calmer, with Chadian rebel groups having retreated from N'Djamena. However, conditions on the ground have been changing rapidly. The UN estimates that over 30,000 people were forced to flee into neighbouring Cameroon as a result of the fighting, though many are now returning. There have been eye-witness reports of widespread looting in N'Djamena.

Deployment of the European Union mission to Chad (EUFOR), was delayed temporarily due to fighting in western Chad. However, Lieutenant General Nash, the EUFOR operation commander, indicated on 7 February that deployment could recommence with immediate effect. The EU agreed on 8 February that the mission should resume deployment, but agreed also to follow closely the evolution of the situation in relation to the mission.

China: Sudan

Mr. Cameron: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the extent to which the policy of the Government of China towards Sudan is in alignment with British policy towards that country, with particular reference to the situation in Darfur; and if he will make a statement. [186363]

David Miliband [holding answer 18 February 2008]: My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister agreed with Chinese Premier Wen, when they met during the UK-China Summit from 18-19 January, that both countries were keen to see a resolution to the Darfur conflict. Following their meeting, the Chinese Premier called on the parties to the conflict in Darfur to "realise a complete ceasefire in Darfur and reach a comprehensive peace agreement through negotiation".

When I visit China later this month I will continue to encourage China to use its influence in Khartoum to work for a solution to the Darfur conflict and support implementation of the Comprehensive Peace Agreement. We have also agreed with China that the Special Representatives of China and the UK on Darfur will work together for the early realisation of peace, stability and development in Darfur.

Democratic Republic of Congo: Detainees

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the authorities of the Democratic Republic of Congo on the detention of (a) Major Mbokolo Wawa, (b) Captain Kawende and (c) Pastor Fernando Kutino. [186875]

Meg Munn: The UN's mission in the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC) is in contact with the Congolese authorities regarding the detention of Major Mbokolo Wawa and Captain Kawende. We have not made representations on this issue ourselves.

We and our international partners in the DRC, including the EU and UN, have registered our concerns at the conduct of the investigation and subsequent trial of Pastor Kutino with the Congolese on several occasions. The UN is in regular contact with the Congolese authorities on the issue of his treatment.

Democratic Republic of Congo: Prisoners

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make representations to the government of the Democratic Republic of Congo on the treatment of detainees and prisoners in government-controlled areas of that country. [186491]

Meg Munn: We have called on the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC) authorities to respect international humanitarian law and human rights conventions. The UK remains in close contact on human rights issues with the UN mission in the DRC and with EU partners, through the local EU human rights forum. The UK supported the EU presidency's call in August 2007 for the DRC to meet its human rights obligations. We will continue to urge the DRC to uphold international human rights standards, including the treatment of people in custody.

The UK makes a significant contribution to the EU's programme on security sector reform in the DRC. One of the aims of this project is to promote accountability and awareness of human rights among members of the DRC's armed forces and its security and justice sectors.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisors

Mr. Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list the special advisers employed in his Department since 6 May 1997; and what the (a) start and (b) end date of employment was in each case. [184367]

Meg Munn: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Brent, East (Sarah Teather) on 14 January, Official Report, column 852W.

Departmental Public Relations

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many external contracts his Department held with public relations companies in each of the last 10 years; and what the total cost of those contracts was. [183168]

Meg Munn: Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) contracts and the resultant expenditure specifically for public relations, are not categorised separately from that for external consultancy as a whole. The information the hon. Member requests could, therefore, be provided only at disproportionate cost.

However, annual expenditure on external consultants or consultancies as a whole, is published in the FCO's annual departmental reports, copies of which are available on the FCO website at:

http://www.fco.gov.uk/servlet/Front?pagename=OpenMarket/Xcelerate/ShowPage&c=Page&cid=1007029395438

Departmental Publications

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what public information booklets were published by his Department in 2007; and what the (a) print run and (b) cost to the Department was in each case. [185791]

Meg Munn: During calendar year 2007, the following public information booklets were published by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) centrally.

The following table shows the numbers of copies and the overall cost of the publication.

| Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) Directorate/Department | Name of Publication | Print Run | Costs (£) |
|---|---|---|---|

| European Union Directorate | 'Guide to the EU'—Welsh | 1,000 | 2,439 |
| Human Rights Department | 'Annual Report on Human Rights 2006' | 400 | 2,750 |

The FCOs overseas posts and its non-departmental public bodies also occasionally commission public information booklets, but details are not recorded centrally.

Information about the costs could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Diplomatic Service: Complaints

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many formal complaints British ambassadors have lodged with host countries since March 2006; and what those complaints were. [186917]

Meg Munn: This information is not held centrally. Responsibility for protests and other diplomatic communications to Ministries of Foreign Affairs is devolved to embassies. Compiling this information would be disproportionately costly.

Ethiopia: Terrorism

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will offer technical support to the government of Ethiopia in developing its internal security infrastructure as part of its attempts to tackle international terrorism. [186451]

Meg Munn: Where suitable opportunities arise and we are satisfied that human rights concerns are being met, we remain interested in assisting Ethiopia to develop its internal security infrastructure in order to tackle international terrorism.

EU Grants and Loans: Trade Unions

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what records his Department holds of grants given to UK trade unions by institutions of the European Union since 1997. [186087]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 18 February 2008]: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office does not hold the information requested. This information could not be collated without incurring disproportionate cost.

Homosexuality

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to other countries on the decriminalisation of homosexuality in those countries where it is illegal. [185506]

Meg Munn: Foreign and Commonwealth Office Ministers and officials have been active in promoting and protecting the rights of lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgendered people in line with UK international policy. This is especially important in countries where same sex relationships are illegal, or there are moves to introduce criminalisation, where we seek ways to raise the issue and lobby for decriminalisation.

In May 2007, the then Minister for Trade, Investment and Foreign Affairs, my right hon. Friend the Member for Makerfield (Mr. McCartney) and I, as the then Minister for Women and Equality, issued a joint statement pledging our support for the worldwide protests against homophobia planned to mark the International Day against Homophobia (17 May).

Our High Commissioner in Singapore made representations to Singapore's Attorney-General on 26 October 2007 about various human rights issues, including the decriminalisation of homosexuality.

The UK has long been at the forefront of encouraging the EU to speak out in favour of promoting and protecting the rights of lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgendered people. At the Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe Human Dimension Implementation Meeting in September 2007, the EU condemned the fact that relationships between adults of the same sex are criminal in two participating states, namely Uzbekistan and Turkmenistan. The EU also called on all participating states to protect the rights of lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender people without discrimination.

Over the last year we have lobbied in support of the UN-Economic and Social Council continuing to grant consultative status to lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgendered non-governmental organisations and we also lobbied to persuade Rwanda not to criminalise same sex acts in the revised penal code, and Nigeria not to outlaw advocacy in favour of lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgendered rights.

Indonesia: Censorship

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make representations to the government of Indonesia on the banning and seizure of the book The Sinking of the Melanesian Race: The Political Struggle in West Papua, by West Papuan academic, Sendius Wonda. [186137]

Meg Munn: The human rights situation in Indonesia has improved over the last 10 years and we judge that the government remains committed to further progress, as indicated by its 2006 accession to the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights and the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights. We recognise that challenges remain and our embassy in Jakarta closely follows the situation in Papua, particularly concerning civil society work on human rights and freedom of expression. We will continue to encourage the Indonesian government to respect their international obligations in this regard. We remain firm in our commitment to freedom of expression, but do not believe that making representations to the Indonesian government on incidents such as the banning of Sendius Wonda's book would be as effective as the wide-ranging engagement we have with Indonesia on human rights.

Papua: Armed Conflict

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he has discussed with his European Union counterparts the prospects for EU-sponsored dialogue between West Papuan leaders and the government of Indonesia on a peaceful resolution to the conflict in West Papua. [186107]

Meg Munn: We continue to encourage EU engagement in promoting human rights in Indonesia, but we have not discussed any plans for EU-sponsored dialogue between Papuan leaders and the central government in Jakarta. We believe that the complex issues in Papua can best be resolved through peaceful dialogue between the people of Papua and the government of Indonesia. The Indonesian President has committed his government to improving the situation in Papua, which we welcome.

We continue to encourage all sides to support meaningful dialogue and to focus on fully implementing the existing special autonomy legislation. We judge that this is the best way to ensure the long-term stability and development of Papua and its people.

Russia: Crime

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent conversations he has had with his Russian counterpart on cyber crime perpetrated against British citizens and originating in Russia. [185957]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 18 February 2008]: I have been asked to reply.

The Secretary of State for the Home Department has had no conversations with her counterparts in Russia regarding cyber crime.

Sudan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Cameron: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many (a) troops and (b) other personnel are based in Darfur as part of the UNAMID force; and when he expects the UNAMID force to reach its full complement. [186361]

David Miliband [holding answer 18 February 2008]: At present, the UN-African Union Mission in Darfur consists of a total of approximately 10,000 personnel: 7,700 military personnel, 1,500 police and 800 civilian staff. This needs to rise to a total of approximately 31,000 for the UN-African Union Mission in Darfur to reach its full complement: 19,500 troops, 6,500 police, and 5,000 civilian staff, both local and international.

We are working very closely with the UN Department of Peacekeeping Operations and the African Union to help achieve the goal of full deployment as soon as practicable. This will be extremely challenging as not all outstanding shortfalls, particularly helicopter capacity, have yet been filled. The UN-African Union Mission in Darfur's deployment to Darfur is one of the most complex and logistically difficult that the UN has ever undertaken.

Treaty of Lisbon

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what competencies will be transferred from the UK to the EU under the Treaty of Lisbon. [186456]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The changes to the competences of the EU to be made by the Lisbon treaty were set out in the White Paper (Cm 7174) 'The Reform Treaty: The British Approach to the European Union Intergovernmental Conference' of July 2007, as well as the Explanatory Memorandum on the treaty of Lisbon submitted to Parliament on 17 December 2007.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

A Levels: Standards

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils in receipt of free school meals gained three A grades at A-level in mainstream maintained schools in the last period for which figures are available. [185780]

Jim Knight: The Department for Children, Schools and Families does not hold information on the achievement of pupils in receipt of free schools meals. Instead, the figures relating to pupils eligible for free school meals are given.

In 2006/07, 176 pupils eligible for free school meals in mainstream maintained schools achieved three A grades at A level. This was 3.9 per cent. of the pupils eligible for free school meals.

These figures relate to pupils aged 16 to 18, (age at start of academic year, i.e. 31 August 2006), in all maintained mainstream schools including academies and city technology colleges.

Academies

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what changes there have been to his Department's projection for the number of academies to be opened by the end of each of the next five financial years since inception of the programme; and what the reasons are for those changes. [164513]

Jim Knight: I refer the hon. Member to my reply given to the hon. Member for Yeovil (Mr. Laws) on 13 November 2007, Official Report, column 152W.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families for which academies (a) expressions of interest and (b) feasibility studies have been received since 1 May 2007; who the proposed (i) lead sponsor and (ii) co-sponsors are in each case; and if he will make a statement. [176721]

Jim Knight: 35 academies have completed feasibility studies since 1 May 2007 and have progressed to the implementation phase. 32 expressions of interest have been received since 1 May 2007 and feasibility studies have commenced for these proposals. A further three academy proposals have commenced feasibility studies without an expression of interest because they were selected by a local authority competition.

Tables 1, 2 and 3 show the lead sponsors and co-sponsors for each of these proposals.

Capita

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what meetings (a) he, (b) Ministers in his Department and (c) officials have held with (i) directors and (ii) senior executives of (A) Capita Group plc and (B) its subsidiaries since 1 January 2001; what the (1) location and (2) duration of each meeting was; whether a record of each meeting was kept; and if he will make a statement. [180711]

Kevin Brennan: Ministers and civil servants meet many people as part of the process of policy development and advice. It is not the usual practice of Government to disclose details of such meetings.

Care Proceedings: Fees and Charges

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what plans he has to change the charging procedures for local authorities paying court fees before they can issue proceedings to take a child into care. [186765]

Bridget Prentice: I have been asked to reply.

The Ministry of Justice is taking steps to minimise the administrative cost to local authorities of paying magistrates court fees (not just for care proceedings). Her Majesty's Courts Service (HMCS) is developing a new payment system that should mean local authorities will be able to set up accounts with magistrates courts allowing them to pay all court fees incurred by single monthly or quarterly payments. In addition we are currently consulting on proposals to increase court fees paid by public authorities in child care and adoption proceedings to reflect the full cost of the process. The consultation closes on 11 March 2008.

Children

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many times the Children's Plan expert groups have met; and if he will publish the minutes and attendance lists of each meeting. [186755]

Beverley Hughes: Between their inception in September 2007 and the publication of the Children's Plan in December 2007, each of the three age-based Children's Plan expert groups met three times as a group; there was one additional meeting which brought together all three expert groups in a plenary session in November 2007.

Lists of the original expert group members are published as annexes to the expert group reports, which are available on the DCSF Time to Talk website. Attendance lists were not published. Group discussions were held in confidence and minutes not published, as they relate to formulation and development of government policy and free and frank provision of advice and exchange of views for the purposes of deliberation.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when he proposes to publish the implementation documents referred to in the Children's Plan. [186763]

Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service: Finance

Kelvin Hopkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the budget for the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service will be in financial years (a) 2007-08, (b) 2008-09 and (c) 2009-10. [175762]

Kevin Brennan: The Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service (CAFCASS) has been initially allocated the following net amounts:

| | Funding (£ million) |
|---|---|
| 2007-08 | 106.7 |
| 2008-09 | 114.9 |
| 2009-10 | 124.1 |

Children in Care

Ms Dari Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the average time was that children waited in local authority care to be placed (a) with a foster parent or parents and (b) with a parent or parents for adoption in the most recent period for which figures are available. [183550]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested on the average time a child waited in local authority care to be placed with foster parents is not collected centrally.

The average time between the date it was decided that a looked after child should be placed for adoption and the actual date the child was placed for adoption, was nine months in the year ending March 2007, the latest year for which data is available.

Children in Care: Health Services

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what percentage of looked after children in each local authority area received the immunisations appropriate for their age group in the latest period for which figures are available; [179417]

(2) what percentage of looked after children in each local authority area received a health assessment from their primary care trust on an annual basis in the latest period for which figures are available; [179418]

(3) what percentage of looked after children in each local authority area received a dental check on an annual basis in the latest period for which figures are available. [179419]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 16 January 2008]: Improving the health and well-being of looked after children is of paramount importance, Children in care are more likely to experience health problems, particularly mental health problems, than their peers and it is important that more is done to meet their needs.

Our White Paper 'Care Matters: Time for Change' set out how this is a priority for the Government. It outlined a strong package of measures intended to ensure that we improve health outcomes for this vulnerable group of young people, including by ensuring better joint working between local authorities and health care bodies. For the first time guidance on promoting the health of looked after children will be put on a statutory footing for both local authorities and health bodies.

The available information about the health care of looked after children has been placed in the House Libraries.

Children: Accidents

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what steps his Department is taking to ensure that children are taught about managing risk and staying safe to prevent accidents and accidental injury; [186336]

(2) what guidance has been given to local children's services on measures to reduce incidence of accidental injury among young people; [186338]

(3) if he will take steps to (a) identify best practice in child accident prevention and (b) ensure that information on effective measures is shared between local safeguarding boards. [186344]

Kevin Brennan [holding answer 18 February 2008]: The Department has worked across Government to co-ordinate the cross-Government Staying Safe Action Plan which was published on 5 February 2008. The report can be downloaded from www.ecm.aov.uk/stayingsafe and a copy is available in the House Library. In the Staying Safe Action Plan, we set out new commitments to help children, young people and their parents understand better the risks to their safety, including from accidental injury. These include the establishment of a Child Safety Education Coalition to deliver and evaluate child safety education across the country and ensure that more children, including disabled children, are taught about how to manage risk. We also announced new guidance for professionals on common risks in the home as well as a Priority Review of local accidental prevention. These new measures will help to identify and share good practice in accident prevention work between local areas.

My Department issued guidance to schools, "Safety Education Guidance for Schools", in December 2001 This guidance sets out responsibilities for safety education and National Curriculum requirements, recommends approaches to teaching and learning, and provides examples of good practice. It is for schools to determine exactly how they provide safety education.

The effectiveness of these measures will be assessed by the public service agreement to improve children and young people's safety, which was announced in October 2007.

Children: Behaviour Disorders

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children were assessed as having behavioural difficulties in each London borough in each of the last five years. [185736]

Jim Knight: Information on pupils having behavioural, emotional or social difficulties identified as their primary need in maintained primary and secondary schools and all special schools in London local authorities is given in the following table for 2006 and 2007, the only years for which these data are available at local authority level. This information can be found in two SFRs, available on the Department's website here via the following links:

Children: Databases

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what assessment has been made of the security of the eCaf system; [167442]

(2) what assessment he has been made of the effectiveness of the interchange of information between ContactPoint and eCaf; [167443]

(3) what consultation took place on eCaf with the consultees of ContactPoint. [167445]

Kevin Brennan [holding answer 22 November 2007]: Security measures are a fundamental component of the national eCaf system design and all proposed security requirements have been reviewed by the Department's IT Security Officer.

When a common assessment is undertaken and fogged on the national eCaf system, it will automatically notify ContactPoint that an assessment has been carried out along with contact details of the practitioner that can provide information about the assessment (usually the practitioner who performed the assessment). This will help to prevent duplication of effort, allow practitioners to make more informed decisions and respond in a coordinated way. There will be no access to the common assessment, nor any details within it, from ContactPoint. ContactPoint will be provided with limited information (which does not include any case information) extracted from the national eCaf and other systems using a one-way process. ContactPoint will not update the case record systems.

As with ContactPoint, the development of the national eCaf system had significant input from a range of practitioners and managers across a wide range of children's services. Some of these individuals have been involved in the development of both systems.

Children: Day Care

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what information his Department collects on the qualifications of existing child care and early years workers in registered settings. [163354]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 12 November 2007]: Data on the qualifications of existing child care and early years workers in registered settings are collected as part of the Childcare and Early Years Providers Survey.

This data source is a nationally representative survey of registered Childcare and Early Years Providers, commissioned by the Department. The survey began in 1998 and was repeated in 2001, 2002-03, 2005 and 2006. The survey is also commissioned to take place in 2007 and 2008.

The 2006 Childcare and Early Years Providers Survey shows that the workforce is becoming better qualified across all provider types. There has been a rise in supervisory staff in settings coinciding with a rise in staff qualifications. Over 70 per cent. of all paid staff in full day care, and early years settings in maintained schools hold at least a Level 3 qualification, while in children's centres this rises to over 80 per cent. of staff. The proportion of staff with a Level 3 qualification or above in full day care is 10 percentage points higher than in 2005.

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the proportion of three to four-year-olds in workless families for whom the entitlement to 12.5 hours of formal childcare per week was taken up in the most recent period for which figures are available. [181860]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 24 January 2008]: The 2007 Parents' Childcare Survey collected information about take-up of the free entitlement for three and four-year-olds to 12.5 hours of formal child care per week, by child and family characteristics. This will allow an estimate to be made of the proportion of three to four-year-olds in workless families who had taken up this entitlement.

The findings from the 2007 survey will be published in late February 2008.

Estimates are not available for earlier years as questions about the take-up of the free entitlement to early years education for three and four-year-olds were not asked in previous surveys.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many additional childcare places have been (a) provided, (b) lost and (c) left available to the 100 local authorities with the worst incidences of multiple deprivation in each year since 1997. [185866]

Beverley Hughes: The information requested can be provided only at disproportionate costs.

Children: Sports

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether time spent (a) on roll call and general administration, (b) changing, (c) travelling and (d) before a lesson starting late may be included in the two hours spent on physical education in the public service agreement target. [181785]

Jim Knight: As with all other curriculum subjects, time spent on roll call in physical education (PE) lessons is part of the timetabled curriculum, so this will count towards the two-hour target. Time spent on changing for PE lessons also counts towards the two-hour target, as this is used by teachers to explain the lesson plan to pupils and to feed back on their performance after the lesson.

Time spent travelling to or from PE and sporting opportunities does not count towards the two-hour total. As take-up of the two hours is taken from a typical week, time spent before a lesson which starts late does not count towards the two-hour target.

Class Sizes

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the average pupil/teacher ratio was in (a) primary and (b) secondary schools in (i) Cornwall, (ii) the South West and (iii) England in each year since 2001. [186506]

Jim Knight: The available figures are given in the following table:

Pupil: teacher ratios at primary and secondary schools in Cornwall local authority (LA), the south-west Government office region (GOR) and England, 2001-07

| | 2001 | 2002 | 2003 | 2004 | 2005 | 2006 | 2007 |

Classroom Assistants: Qualifications

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many teaching assistants have reached NVQ level (a) 2 and (b) 3 of the Training Development for School programme. [163205]

Jim Knight: The information is not collected in the format requested.

The following table shows the number of "NVQ for Teaching Assistant" qualifications awarded at level 2 and level 3 for each year between 2002 and 2006.

Number of teaching assistants who achieved NVQ Levels 2 and 3 in 2002/03 to 2005/06

| | NVQ Level 2 | NVQ Level 3 |
|---|---|---|
| 2002/03 | 390 | 260 |
| 2003/04 | 2,090 | 2,240 |

Comprehensive Spending Review

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the effect of the Comprehensive Spending Review on future revenue funding of (a) academies and (b) maintained schools in Dorset. [168630]

Jim Knight: The comprehensive spending review 2007 provides funding for the expansion of the academies programme, a further 50 academies will be opened in each of the next three years, bringing the total to 230 academies open by September 2010. Academies are funded on the basis of equivalence with maintained schools of similar characteristics in the same area, and this will continue.

The average per pupil increases in dedicated schools grant for maintained schools in Dorset by local authority will be as follows:

| | Dorset | Poole | Percentage Bournemouth |
|---|---|---|---|
| 2008-09 | 4.5 | 4.4 | 4.3 |
| 2009-10 | 3.6 | 3.6 | 3.6 |
| 2010-11 | 4.2 | 4.2 | 4.2 |

Computers: Disadvantaged

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps the Government have taken to widen accessibility to computers and the internet for low-income families since 1997. [180067]

Jim Knight: The Government recognise the importance of closing the gap between the number of people with access to information technology and those without, commonly known as the 'digital divide'.

Since 1997 we have run a range of education-related programmes to widen accessibility to computers and the internet for low-income families, and these have provided hardware, connectivity and training both into homes and into the local community. In 2001, for example, we opened the first UK Online centres to provide community level access to computers, the internet as well as advice and training in how to use them. There is now a network of over 6,000 centres across the country in libraries, community centres and other accessible buildings.

We also supported cross government initiatives such as the seven point action plan to close the digital divide identified in "Connecting the UK: The Strategy for a Digitally Rich Nation" and were one of the main contributors to the plan's national digital challenge for a region to give universal online access to local public services by 2008.

We have concentrated our efforts on young learners and in school the level of access has increased significantly. In a primary school for example, 19 children had to share one computer in 1997 whereas now there is one computer for every 6.2 children and through our extended schools' programme and our support for the e-learning foundation we have helped schools to provide children with access beyond the school day.

In 2005 we started a £60 million Computers for Pupils programme to put ICT into the homes of the most disadvantaged secondary school pupils in the most deprived areas of the country and last year I established the Home Access Taskforce with representation from industry, education and the third sector. The Taskforce is due to report in April this year on how we might ensure that every family with 5 to 19-year-old learners in England has access to affordable ICT resources and support at home—and I recently announced an additional £30 million to provide further support under the Computers for Pupils programme until the task force proposals can be assessed and if appropriate, implemented.

Dance: Curriculum

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what plans he has to maintain dance's position in the Key Stage 3 and Key Stage 4 curriculum. [166558]

Jim Knight: Dance will remain an important element for schools to deliver within the PE national curriculum. The increased flexibility allowed by the new secondary curriculum for PE, being introduced from September 2008, will make it easier for schools to offer more dance provision within curriculum PE if there is sufficient demand.

Departmental Data Protection

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what audits his Department and its agencies have carried out in relation to personal data and IT equipment in each of the last 10 years. [176481]

Kevin Brennan: The internal audit work programme for the Department in line with Government Internal Audit best practice, adopts a risk based approach to identifying areas for audit coverage

The adequacy of controls over data, including personal data and IT equipment, is covered in all assignments where it is relevant to the risks under review.

The risk based audit tasks below had a specific focus on personal data and IT equipment.

Departmental Freedom of Information

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of Freedom of Information requests received by his Department have given rise to responses that have been published by his Department. [180210]

Kevin Brennan: This Department has adopted a selective disclosure log whereby only the most interesting and high profile pieces of information are published. Between 2005 and 2007 12.4 per cent. of responses to Freedom of Information requests, where information has been wholly or partially released, have been published on the Department's disclosure log.

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many people have been appointed to his Department outside civil service grades in the last 30 days; [163209]

(2) many people have been appointed to his Department outside civil service grades in the last 30 days. [164499]

Kevin Brennan: The Department has not made any permanent or temporary appointments outside civil service grades during the period described.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether any of his Department's special advisers also work for organisations outside his Department. [178486]

Kevin Brennan: Special advisers are appointed under terms and conditions set out in the "Model Contract and Code of Conduct for Special Advisers", copies of which are in the House Library.

Departmental Public Consultation

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many responses he has received to his Department's Time to Talk consultation. [166148]

Kevin Brennan [holding answer 19 November 2007]: The Department's Time to Talk consultation ran from 6 September to 19 October. I received over 3,000 responses from young people and adults, including public, private and voluntary sector bodies. A total of over 400 people also participated in consultation events in Bristol, Leeds, London, Birmingham and Portsmouth.

Departmental Public Participation

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what opinion polls the Department has conducted of (a) the public and (b) staff since 27 June 2007; and what the (i) name of the firm employed to conduct the poll, (ii) purpose and (iii) cost to the public purse was in each case. [164957]

Kevin Brennan: The Department has conducted one major survey since 27 June 2007. This took the form of a Customer Perception Tracking Survey of the public in July and August 2007. The survey is being run by BMG Research Ltd. The purpose is to track perceptions and awareness of developments in education and children's services among key stakeholder groups. This was wave 2 of a three-year tracking study. The sample of the public is designed to be broadly representative of the general public, and as such, includes parents, whose views are analysed in comparison with non-parents where relevant. The Department intends to publish the outcomes at the end of the study in summer 2009. The cost of this interim wave was £14,000 excluding VAT.

The Department has not conducted any opinion polls or surveys of staff since 27 June 2007.

Departmental Publications

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much was spent to produce the (a) Aiming High and (b) Children's Plan policy documents. [186756]

Beverley Hughes: The total cost of producing the document "Aiming High for Young People: a ten year strategy for positive activities" was £14,685 shared between HM Treasury and the Department for Children, Schools and Families. The cost of producing the "Children's Plan" policy documents was £151,259.

Departmental Recycling

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what (a) volume and (b) percentage of its waste his Department recycled in each of the last five years; [172509]

(2) how much and what proportion of its waste his Department and its predecessors recycled in each of the last five years. [174435]

Kevin Brennan: In the last five published reports on sustainable operations in Government the Department's headquarters estate reported the following volumes and percentages of recycled waste:

| Year | Volume (metric tonnes) | Percentage recycled |
|---|---|---|
| 2001-02 | 610.57 | 34.46 |
| 2002-03 | 284.83 | 25.13 |

| Year | Volume (metric tonnes) | Percentage recycled |
|---|---|---|
| 2003-04 | 497.93 | 21.15 |
| 2004-05 | 483.50 | 21.9 |
| 2005-06 | 1534.55. | 43.36 |

The 2005-06 year's performance met the 40 per cent. of total waste arisings recycling target. The Department's waste recycling performance in 2006-07 will be reported by the Sustainable Development Commission early in the new year.

Departmental Special Advisers

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether any of his Department's advisers have declared a conflict of interest; and if he will make a statement. [164233]

Kevin Brennan: Special advisers are appointed under terms and conditions set out in the Model Contract for Special Advisers. Copies of the Model Contract are available in the House Libraries.

Education: Assessments

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of children entitled to free school meals achieved a level four or above in every Key Stage 2 exam in 2006, broken down by (a) region and (b) local authority. [167367]

Jim Knight: This information has been published as part of a supplement to the "National Curriculum Assessment, GCSE and Equivalent Attainment and Post-16 Attainment by Pupil Characteristics in England 2005/06 (Provisional)" Statistical First Release (SFR) found at:

http://www.dfes.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000693/index.shtml

The additional publication "Local Authority tables showing achievements at Key Stage 2, by ethnicity, English as a first Language, free school meals and special education needs" to this SFR contains the data requested by my right hon. Friend the Member for Birkenhead (Mr. Field) and is found at:

http://www.dfes.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000693/Addition4.xls

I draw your attention to tables 62 (Achievements at Key Stage 2 English Level 4 and above in 2006, for Local Authorities, by Free School Meal provision and gender), 63 (Achievements at Key Stage 2 Mathematics Level 4 and above in 2006, for Local Authorities, by Free School Meal provision and gender) and 64 (Achievements at Key Stage 2 Science Level 4 and above in 2006, for Local Authorities, by Free School Meal provision and gender).

Education: Isle of Wight

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the reason is for the withdrawal of £7 million from the Isle of Wight Council budget in respect of primary capital funding from the national budget. [181803]

Jim Knight: There has been no withdrawal of funding. Overall capital support for Isle of Wight and its schools during the period covered by the comprehensive spending review (2008-11) is £36 million. Capital support for the period covered by the current spending review (2005-08) is £37.4 million (excluding funding earmarked specifically for a Building Schools for the Future One School Pathfinder project). Although, in comparison to 2006-07 and 2007-08, there has been a reduction in capital support for the provision of new pupil places in areas of population growth (or Basic Need) this is in line with forecast data provided by the local authority. However, from 2009-10, Isle of Wight will benefit from the introduction of the new Primary Capital Programme which aims to support local authorities in implementing a strategic approach to renewing at least half of all primary schools by 2022-23.

Education: Kent

Dr. Ladyman: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what funds in the form of (a) revenue payments, (b) capital grants and (c) supported borrowing for which his Department is responsible have been made available to (i) Kent county council, (ii) Thanet district council and (iii) Dover district council in 2007-08. [183060]

Jim Knight: The Department does not hold information on funding at district level. However it does collect information on funding allocated to Kent county council. The information on capital, revenue and supported borrowing allocations made by the Department are provided in the following tables. In total £114 million of capital funding (including supported borrowing) and £910 million of revenue funding has been allocated to Kent county council in 2007-08 via schools and children services grants. The figures exclude payments made by non-departmental public bodies which can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Jim Knight: The Department has informed Educentre Ltd. about the Building Schools for the Future programme. ## Finance

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the role of the finance director in his Department is in relation to authorising policies with significant financial implications for the Department. [164966]

Kevin Brennan: The Department operates a devolved financial framework in which budget responsibility for policy initiatives is delegated to those charged with administering and delivering the policy. The specific role of the Finance Director within this delegated framework is to ensure that line managers within policy areas are supported with professional accountancy and financial advice when considering the financial implications of policy proposals. In line with the Treasury's guidance within "Managing Public Money" (October 2007) the Finance Director is responsible for providing financial leadership within the Department by setting the financial governance framework, establishing the internal financial controls and maintaining the essential external links with Treasury and the National Audit Office.

The Department has a qualified accountant as Director General of Corporate Services who sits on the board and has overall strategic responsibility for all operational matters and for directly supporting the Accounting Officer. On a day-to-day basis many of the key financial tasks are delegated to a professionally qualified Finance Director who manages the Department's central finance function, is responsible for improving financial literacy of budget managers and ensuring that the Department meets all its statutory financial reporting obligations.

Forced Marriage

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will ensure that information on helplines and access to support for victims of forced marriage or persons in fear of forced marriage is available in secondary schools to teachers and pupils; and if he will make a statement. [184353]

Jim Knight: Schools have a duty to safeguard and promote the welfare of their pupils, and we have encouraged them, through guidance, to make available information about helplines and access to support for victims or people in fear of forced marriage. School staff should also be alert to the risk of forced marriage, as with other potential risks of harm to their pupils. They should not attempt to mediate in suspected cases, but should contact the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's Forced Marriage Unit where experienced caseworkers are able to offer support and guidance.

Foster Care

Ms Dari Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the average time was that local authorities took to interview and process an application form from couples and individuals wishing to (a) foster and (b) adopt a child or children in the last 12 month period for which figures are available. [183552]

Kevin Brennan: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply given to her on 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 532W.

Free School Meals

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) primary and (b) secondary schools have eligibility levels for free school meals of 20 per cent. or more in local authorities with overall eligibility levels for that type of school of less than 15 per cent.; and if he will make a statement. [163314]

Jim Knight: The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of secondary schools with free school meal eligibility of between 35 per cent. and 50 per cent. are not specialist schools; and what the estimated annual revenue cost to these schools is as a consequence of their non-specialist status. [164021]

Jim Knight: The information requested in the first part of this question could be provided only at disproportionate cost. No information is readily available to meet the second part of this request.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children (a) were entitled to and (b) claimed free school meals in each of the last 10 years. [164243]

Health Education: Nutrition

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps the Government plans to take to educate parents about nutrition. [185366]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 7 February 2008]: I have been asked to reply.

The Department launched the 5 A DAY programme to promote the health benefits of eating a variety of at least five portions of fruit and vegetables a day as we believe this gives a positive message to the consumer.

The 5 A DAY logo was launched by the Department; over 640 organisations are licensed to use the 5 A DAY logo. The Food Standards Agency's (FSA) Consumer Attitudes Survey, 2006 showed that 72 per cent. of people are now aware that they should eat at least five portions of fruit and vegetables a day, up from 43 per cent. in 2000.

'Top Tips for Top Mums' is a new 5 A DAY campaign. The campaign aims to help families by sharing real tips from real mums on how they got their kids to eat more fruit and vegetables. Mums or dads can e-mail mums@5adaytoptips.co.uk to send in their tip which may then be shared with other families via the 5 A DAY website, the media and other 5 A DAY partners.

In November 2006, the new Healthy Start scheme was implemented across the United Kingdom to provide vouchers for milk, fruit, vegetables and infant formula and free vitamin supplements to qualifying families and to back this up with information and advice through their health care professional on breastfeeding/healthy eating. They also receive an information booklet and a magazine with links to the healthy start website.

The Government will invest £75 million in an integrated marketing programme to inform, support and empower parents to make changes to their children's diets and levels of physical activity. It will include simple universal messages for all families as well as tailored messages for at-risk families. There will be an emphasis on highlighting opportunities to take part in activities in the local area—everything from fruit-tasting sessions to 'walking buses' and safe play areas.

The Government will also seek to further develop the NHS Choices website so that it provides highly personalised advice on diet, activity and how to maintain a healthy weight. The Government will work with the FSA and other relevant bodies to ensure that this advice is based on the best available evidence, so that individuals can make sense of often conflicting advice from other sources. We will also explore the potential to include information on which companies meet which aspects of the codes of good practice in food and entertainment technology.

Health Education: Sex

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what research he has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the impact of sex education on the attitudes and lifestyle choices of young people; and what guidance he has issued to schools on the recommended content of sex education materials. [184960]

Jim Knight: The Department issued its "Sex and Relationship Education (SRE) Guidance (DfES 0116/2000)" to all maintained schools in July 2000. This outlines the responsibility of schools in this area and provides information on the issues to be covered at each of the four key stages, taking account of the age and the physical and emotional maturity of the young people receiving this education.

The Department has not commissioned research on the impact of SRE on the attitudes and lifestyle choices of young people. However, as part of the Children's Plan we have given a commitment to review best practice in effective SRE and how it is delivered in schools. We have listened to young people and recognise that many feel that they do not currently have the knowledge they need to make safe and responsible choices about relationships and sexual health. We will involve young people fully in the review to make sure that future SRE better meets their needs.

Home Education

Languages: Education

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent steps the Government has taken to improve the quality of teaching foreign languages in schools. [184117]

Jim Knight [holding answer 4 February 2008]: My hon. Friend will be aware from my answer of 13 December that the Children's Plan, published that month, has announced a review of the primary curriculum that will examine how best to introduce languages as a compulsory subject in primary schools.

We are taking a number of steps to build up the capacity of the primary school system to deliver this, including a teacher training programme in a primary languages specialism. This has so far trained nearly 3,000 teachers, with thousands more to be trained over the next few years. A report by Ofsted, published on 29 January, showed that trainees on the course are being well prepared as future teachers of languages. Increased funding for local authorities to support the delivery of primary languages—£32.5 million in 2008-09, up from £27.5 million in 2007-08 will help schools to buy in specialist advice or resources. Teachers can also make use of sources of support in the classroom, such as schemes of work in French, German and Spanish and materials on the Primary Languages Training Zone, the online training resource for teaching and learning languages at Key Stage 2.

My answer of 13 December set out what we are doing to raise standards of teaching and learning at Key Stage 3. In addition, to ensure that gains made at primary level are not lost, CILT, the National Centre for Languages, is working with groups of primary and secondary schools in a variety of contexts to develop solutions to transition, and will be publishing draft guidelines later this term. There is already guidance for schools in the Key Stage 2 Framework for Languages and as part of the National Strategies and CILT Key Stage 3 programme to ensure that teaching of languages in secondary school builds on progress made earlier.

Languages: Qualifications

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which schools offered (a) GCSE and (b) A-Level Mandarin in the most recent period for which figures are available. [184195]

Jim Knight: The Department for Children, Schools and Families does not hold information on the subjects each school offers at GCSE.

Leisure: Finance

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what central Government funding for leisure facilities for persons aged between 16 and 21 years was (a) in total and (b) per capita in (i) Cornwall, (ii) each parliamentary constituency in Cornwall and (iii) England in each year since 1979. [166709]

Beverley Hughes: The Government do not collect specific information on local funding for leisure facilities as responsibility rests with local authorities.

However, Government are committed to investing in facilities "Aiming high for young people; a ten year strategy for positive activities", which was published in July 2006, announced the launch of a new programme of capital investment based on the reinvestment of unclaimed assets from dormant bank accounts and £60 million of new DCSF funding. Our ambition is that this will lead to new and improved youth facilities in every constituency over the next 10 years.

The "Children's Plan" subsequently announced a further £160 million of DCSF investment over the next two years to support this ambition.

We expect local authorities and the third and private sector to forge genuine partnership to deliver world class facilities driven by the active participation of young people.

Literacy: Enfield

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children in (a) Enfield and (b) Enfield, North of school leaving age were functionally illiterate in each of the last 10 years. [177027]

Jim Knight: Improving standards of literacy and numeracy at all stages of education has been one of the Government's top priorities. There is no nationally expected level of achievement for 16-year-olds (pupils at the end of key stage 4). The Government's current public service agreement target is for 60 per cent. of 16-year-olds to achieve 5 good GCSE grades (A*-C) or equivalent by 2008. Figures for 2007 published on 9 January show that this target has been met. But we are raising the bar and in future the target for the end of key stage 4 will be measured against the proportion of pupils achieving 5 grades A*-C or equivalent, including GCSE English and mathematics. The 2007 figure for England achieving this standard was 46.7 per cent. compared with 37.0 per cent. in 1998.

The following table shows the proportion of pupils in Enfield and Enfield, North achieving 5 or more grades A*-C or equivalent, including GCSE English and mathematics for each year since 1998:

| | Percentage | |
|---|---|---|
| | Enfield | Enfield, North |
| 1998 | 33.4 | 30.9 |
| 1999 | 36.5 | 30.5 |
| 2000 | 35.2 | 28.4 |
| 2001 | 37.4 | 32.5 |
| 2002 | 38.4 | 35.2 |
| 2003 | 38.3 | 37.9 |
| 2004 | 40.5 | 39.8 |
| 2005 | 42.2 | 40.8 |
| 2006 | 42.8 | 40.1 |
| 2007 | 47.5 | 45.4 |

In 2007 60 per cent. of pupils in England achieved at least Grade C in GCSE English compared with 53.2 per cent. in 1998. We do not publish disaggregated figures for GCSE subjects at local authority level.

Literacy: Greater London

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 29 January 2008, Official Report, columns 267-71W, on literacy: Greater London, what the number of children in each borough is from which the percentages for 2007 in table 3 are derived. The Learning and Skills Council operate the Education Maintenance Allowance (EMA) scheme for the Department and hold the information about take-up and payments made under the scheme. Mark Haysom, the Council's chief executive, will write to my hon. Friend with the information requested and a copy of his reply will be placed in the Library.

Letter from Mark Haysom, dated 21 January 2008:

I am writing in response to your Parliamentary Question that asked: "How many and percentage of students at the London Academy (a) are entitled to free school meals, (b) are in receipt of educational maintenance allowance, (c) have a special educational need and (d) have a mother tongue other than English."

EMA take-up is defined as young people who have received one or more EMA payments in the academic year.

EMA take-up for the London Academy is as follows:

| Academic year | Number in receipt (percentage of post-16 learners in receipt) |
|---|---|
| 2006/07 | 184 (59%) |

EMA take-up data showing the number of young people who have received one or more EMA payments during 2004/05, 2005/06, 2006/07 and to date in 2007/08 is now also available on the LSC website, at the following address:

http://www.lsc.gov.uk/providers/Data/statistics/learner/EMA_take_up.htm

Minibuses: Licensing

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what representations he has received on funding for training and testing of teachers and early years workers for the driving of minibuses. [173981]

Jim Knight [holding answer 13 December 2007]: We have received no formal representations on funding teachers or others to train and be tested for the D1PCV licence or MiDAS (Minibus Driver Awareness Scheme). Schools can provide such funding from within their dedicated school budget and local authorities, as employers, can help with the arrangements. Licensing Incidental Drivers of the School Minibus carries details at:

Numeracy: Qualifications

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made for the potential for public confusion between the Adult Numeracy and Key Skills Adult Numeracy qualifications. [180644]

Mr. Lammy: I have been asked to reply.

The adult numeracy qualifications referred to are properly called the "Certificate in Adult Numeracy' and were developed as part of the Government's national Skills for Life strategy for improving adult literacy, language and numeracy skills. The Skills for Life numeracy curriculum covers a tightly defined set of topics as laid out in the National Adult Numeracy Standards.

The Key Skills qualifications are properly called "Key Skills in Application of Number' and were designed for 16 to 19-year-olds as part of the Curriculum 2000 reforms of Key Stage 4 and Key Stage 5, The "Key Skills in Application of Number" is a broader qualification than Skills for Life Numeracy and covers a wider range of topics. As well as following a curriculum and completing a test, Key Skills qualifications require the student to present a portfolio of work.

The names of the respective qualifications were chosen to reflect the content of the qualifications and, in the case of Key Skills, to reflect the name of the policy. We do not believe there is potential for confusion between these two qualifications since they are named, marketed and described differently. We see these two qualifications as a lateral progression pathway for adult numeracy: adults can take the smaller Certificate in Adult Numeracy and, if they wish, then achieve the broader Key Skills in Application of Number qualification with the addition of a portfolio of work.

Physical Education: Teachers

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many qualified physical education teachers there were in each London borough in each year since 1997. [184182]

Jim Knight: The information is not available in the format requested.

Information is available for England from the Secondary Schools Curriculum Survey (SSCSS) which is an occasional sample survey last conducted in 2002 and 2007. 2007 figures will be published in spring 2008. The 2002 survey showed that there were 21,400 teachers in secondary schools teaching physical education of which 78 per cent. had a post A-level qualification in the subject. All teachers in primary schools are qualified to teach all subjects of the national curriculum including physical education.

The 2002 SSCSS figures were published in Statistics of Education, School Workforce in England (including teachers' pay for England and Wales), January 2003 edition, a copy of which has been placed in the House Library.

Primary Education: Admissions

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what account the Primary Capital Programme will take of the removal of surplus places; and if he will make a statement. [185333]

Jim Knight: We believe it is right that we should challenge local authorities to make best use of resources by taking action to balance the demand and supply of school places. Our guidance Primary Capital Programme: Guidance for local authorities on developing their primary strategy for change makes clear that strategies that fail to commit to doing so will not be approved. However, the guidance also acknowledges that it will not always be practicable, or desirable, to remove all surplus places and that authorities should allow for parental choice, accessibility of schools and possible future increase in pupil numbers due to demographic changes. It also recognises that in order to preserve access for young children, there may be more empty places in schools in rural areas than in urban areas.

Primary Education: Catering

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what capital grant will be available from April 2008 to those local authorities with large numbers of primary schools without school kitchens; which local authorities have the largest number of schools without kitchens; and if he will make a statement. [185332]

Jim Knight: Over the next three years, we are providing a record £21.9 billion of capital support for investment in school buildings. Much of this funding is devolved to local authorities and schools for their local priorities, which can include installing or improving school kitchens and dining areas. As part of this funding, we are making available £150 million of targeted capital grant to those authorities with high need who aim to install kitchens in over 20 per cent. of their schools where currently there are none, and where to do so without targeted support would put unacceptable pressure on other funding priorities. We issued an invitation and guidance to all authorities on how to apply for this funding in December 2007, and they have until the end of this month to make an application.

The Department does not hold detailed information on which schools do not have kitchens. Working with the School Food Trust in late 2006, we identified the following authorities as having relatively high numbers of primary and secondary schools without kitchens, but this may not be a full list: Bournemouth, Buckinghamshire, Dorset, Harrow, Hillingdon, Kingston upon Thames, Lincolnshire, Milton Keynes, North East Lincolnshire, Northamptonshire, Oxfordshire, Poole, Somerset, Swindon, West Sussex, Wiltshire, and Worcestershire.

Primary Education: Closures

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many primary schools closed in England in each of the last 10 years. [180395]

Jim Knight: The numbers of Primary Schools closed in England in each of the last 10 years are given in the table.

| | Phase of Education | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Close date | Middle deemed primary | Primary | Grand total |
| 1997 | 4 | 168 | 172 |
| 1998 | 3 | 171 | 174 |
| 1999 | 3 | 194 | 197 |
| 2000 | 6 | 182 | 188 |
| 2001 | 4 | 244 | 248 |
| 2002 | 3 | 223 | 226 |
| 2003 | 0 | 207 | 207 |
| 2004 | 9 | 219 | 228 |
| 2005 | 5 | 241 | 246 |
| 2006 | 2 | 246 | 248 |
| 2007 | 13 | 279 | 292 |
| Grand total | 52 | 2,374 | 2,426 |

Schools can be closed for a number of reasons including: to meet demographic changes (population decline); as part of an amalgamation; to allow a Fresh Start school to replace a school in special measures; to allow a school with a religious character to replace a school without a religious character; or as part of another type of local reorganisation.

Primary Education: Isle of Wight

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what specific issues his Department has informed the Isle of Wight Council are required to be addressed by 1 February 2008 in the local primary school strategy for change. [184186]

Jim Knight [holding answer 4 February 2008]: The 6 December guidance sets out the broad requirements. We will be contacting local authorities shortly with regard to specific issues that we would expect to be addressed through the primary strategy for change to be submitted by 16 June. Tackling poor performance and managing surplus places sensitively will be key considerations.

Primary Education: Rural Areas

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of pupils in primary schools designated as rural schools achieved level 4 or above in Key Stage 2 tests in the last period for which figures are available. [185781]

Jim Knight: Figures showing results in 2007 key stage 2 tests in all primary schools split by urban/rural areas are shown as follows:

| | | Percentage of pupils who achieved level 4 or above at key stage 2 | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Number of eligible pupils | English | Maths | Science |
| All | 569,337 | 80 | 77 | 88 |
| Urban areas | 465,470 | 79 | 76 | 87 |
| Rural areas | 103,867 | 85 | 81 | 91 |

These figures include LA maintained schools and academies.

This information can be found in table 14 of the Statistical First Release 'National Curriculum Assessments at Key Stage 2 in England, 2007', available at:

http://www.dfes.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000764/index.shtml

Primary Education: Standards

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what adjustments for sex are included in the contextual value added measure for Key Stage Two; and how such calculations are made. [173406]

Jim Knight [holding answer 11 December 2007]: The CVA model is calculated using an established statistical technique referred to as multi-level modelling. This method uses a formula which estimates the contribution each school makes to its pupils' attainment, taking account of each pupil's starting point and a broad range of contextual factors which are shown to affect progress and for which consistent national data are available. The impact of these factors that are accounted for, including gender, are calculated simultaneously. The formula is calculated each year based on the actual attainment of the entire national cohort of over half a million pupils. The CVA calculations, therefore, make an allowance for the different gender mix within each school, when calculating the school CVA measure.

The 2007 Key Stage (KS) 1-2 contextualised value added model shows that boys, on average, achieved 0.44 KS2 points higher than girls with the same pattern of prior attainment at KS1 and contextual factors. This means that boys made just under half a term's more progress than girls over this period.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families in how many primary schools (a) 20 per cent., (b) 30 per cent. and (c) 50 per cent. or more of pupils did not reach level 4 in Key Stage Two tests in 2007. [186631]

Jim Knight: The information requested is in the following table:

| Subject | Number of schools with: 50 per cent. or more pupils not achieving level 4+ | 30 per cent. or more pupils not achieving level 4+ | 20 per cent. or more pupils not achieving level 4+ |
|---|---|---|---|
| English | 487 | 2,598 | 5,398 |
| Maths | 567 | 3,384 | 6,734 |
| Science | 258 | 1,005 | 2,405 |

Schools covered are those published in the primary school Achievement and Attainment Tables and include maintained special schools.

Private Education

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what public benefit test is applied to private schools for charitable purposes; and if he will make a statement. [163291]

Jim Knight: The Charities Act 2006 provides a clear definition of charity with the emphasis on public benefit. At the heart of the Act is a new statutory definition of charity, based on a list of charitable purposes, and the principle of charities being for public benefit. The Act removes a long-standing presumption of public benefit for charities for the advancement of education, advancement of religion and the relief of poverty. This means that all charities will have to be able to demonstrate public benefit.

The Charity Commission, as independent regulator of charities in England and Wales, will interpret the public benefit requirement in the light of case law, modern conditions and the removal of the presumption of public benefit. The Charity Commission issued draft guidance on the principles of public benefit for consultation in May 2007, and received over 900 responses. The Commission will publish its final public benefit guidance in January 2008. It will follow this with the development of specific guidance for groups of charities likely to be most affected—including the independent school sector. The relevant provisions of the Act are expected to come into force in spring 2008.

Private Sector

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 17 January 2008, Official Report, columns 1405-06W, on private sector, for each of the two formal investigations referred to, which private sector organisations were concerned; what the result of the investigation was; what the start and end date of the investigation was; and if he will make a statement. [182074]

Kevin Brennan: In the first instance, the investigation started on 26 February 2007 and the final report was issued on 5 September 2007. Based on its conclusions, the Department has taken management and disciplinary action to address weaknesses in the way certain contracts had been managed. The release of information about the private organisations concerned would risk prejudicing commercial interests.

In the second instance, the investigation started on 6 July 2007 and the case was reported to the police for further investigation on 24 August 2007. The release of information about the private organisations concerned might prejudice the ongoing investigation, and risk prejudicing commercial interests.

Pupils

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many and what proportion of primary school pupils live within walking distance as defined by his Department of more than one maintained (a) primary and (b) secondary school, broken down by local authority; [186831]

(2) how many and what proportion of primary school pupils live within walking distance as defined by his Department of more than two secondary schools, broken down by local authority. [186832]

Jim Knight: The statutory walking distance is two miles for pupils aged under eight and three miles for those aged eight and over. However, from September 2007, under the terms of section 508B of the Education Act 1996, children aged eight but under 11 from low income families became entitled to free travel arrangements where they live more than two miles from their nearest qualifying school. From September 2008 all children from low income families of compulsory school age who are 11 or over will be entitled to free transport in two ways—to one of their three nearest qualifying schools where they live more than two but not more than six miles from that school, and to the nearest school preferred by reason of a parent's religion or belief between two and 15 miles from home.

The measurement of the statutory walking distance is not necessarily by the shortest distance by road. It is measured by the shortest route along which a child, accompanied as necessary, may walk with reasonable safety. As such, the route measured may include footpaths, bridleways, and other pathways, as well as recognised roads.

A table showing the number and proportion of primary school pupils who live within two miles straight line distance of more than one maintained (a) primary and (b) secondary school and the number and proportion of primary pupils who live within two miles straight line distance of more than two secondary schools, broken down by local authority, has been placed in the House of Commons Library.

Pupils: Assessments

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when the pupils who sat the pilot stage tests in English and mathematics will receive their results. [184196]

Jim Knight: In December 2007, 22,543 pupils took a total of 42,833 tests in English and mathematics in the first round of single level tests as part of the Making Good Progress pilot. As this is the first pilot of a new assessment instrument, the National Assessment Agency is reviewing the outcomes from those tests. The results were released to the individual schools which participated on 7 February.

Pupils: Attendance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the most recent attendance figures are for pupils in each school year from year three to year 11; and if he will make a statement. [163320]

Jim Knight: The first year for which information is available on absence rates by national curriculum year groups is 2005/06 and relates to secondary schools only. This analysis was published in Statistical First Release 11/2007 in March 2007 at: (http://www.dfes.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000718/index.shtml) and is provided as follows.

Data for 2006/07 are expected to be available in February 2008 and will also include figures for primary and special schools.

Pupils: Data Protection

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what guidance his Department provides on monitoring the security of IT equipment holding children's data on school premises. [177866]

Jim Knight: Becta is responsible for producing and publishing guidance for schools on how to ensure the security of their IT systems. Becta's latest guidance was published in September 2007 and is available on its website. This guidance includes information for schools on monitoring the physical security of ICT equipment, data security and the security of pupil information and data.

Pupils: English Language

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps the Government have taken to assist teachers with the change in the number of pupils with English as a second language since 1997. [175850]

Jim Knight: The Government's policy is to encourage rapid English language acquisition as the key to successful integration into the UK education system and the wider community. Newly arrived pupils are given additional help in learning English by specialist advisers and teachers of English as an additional language (EAL) and bilingual classroom assistants, who work in collaboration with classroom teachers to plan lessons and teaching materials. The evidence indicates that EAL pupils typically catch up with their peers in attainment terms within two years of first admission to a school in England.

The number of pupils for whom English is an additional language (EAL) rose from 500,000 to 790,000 between 1997 and 2007. Putting this in perspective, such children now comprise 12 per cent. of all pupils as against 7.5 per cent. in 1997 and 9 per cent. in 2001. Funding for EAL children has fully kept pace with these increasing numbers through:

an element within the Dedicated Schools Grant (DSG) for primary schools which was some £256 million in 2004-05, rising to £299 million in 2007-08, with a further rise to over £330 million in 2010-11—an 11 per cent. real terms increase on the 2004-05 level;

a substantial provision for EAL through the ring fenced Ethnic Minority Achievement Grant (EMAG), which has risen from £162 million in 2004-05 to £179 million in 2007-08 and will rise to £206 million by 2010-11—a 9 per cent. increase on the 2004-05 level; in addition an Exceptional Circumstances Grant (ECG) has been introduced to reflect changes in local authorities' pupil numbers which occur after the three year indicative allocations of DSG have been announced.

These increases form part of the substantial overall increase in school funding: over the past 10 years since 1997, overall per pupil revenue funding for schools has increased by 67 per cent. in real terms. We expect local authorities to be able to manage new pressures from within these increases, and to ensure that the resources reach the individual schools affected by new arrivals and EAL speakers.

The Government have recently launched a New Arrivals Excellence Programme intended to provide practical support for local authorities, schools and individual teachers. This programme is backed by other practical support including measures to improve the supply, training and qualifications of EAL specialist staff, and to deliver new web-based teaching and learning materials.

Pupils: Intimidation

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps the Government has taken to reduce bullying in schools since 1997. [184116]

Kevin Brennan [holding answer 4 February 2008]: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave him on 13 November 2007, Official Report, column 159W.

Pupils: Per Capita Costs

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much was (a) budgeted for and (b) spent per pupil on average in (i) schools, (ii) primary schools and (iii) secondary schools in each local authority area in 2006-07; and how much has been budgeted for each category in 2007-08. [186195]

Jim Knight: The available information has been placed in the House Library.

School Meals

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of schools demonstrate a surplus on their school meals service; and if he will make a statement. [163318]

Jim Knight: The requested information is not collected centrally.

School Meals: Expenditure

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the average daily cost to the public purse was of food provided in schools for each pupil in the most recent period for which figures are available. [168205]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested is not collected by this Department.

School Milk

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children aged between five and 11 were receiving school milk in the latest period for which figures are available, broken down by authority. [186754]

Jim Knight: The Department for Children, Schools and Families does not collect this information. However, the Rural Payments Agency has advised that in the period 1 September 2006 to 31 August 2007, subsidy on 39,524,364 kilolitres was paid. This figure divided by the maximum entitlement per pupil (250ml) and then divided by 190 school days (average) equals an average of just over 832,000 pupils per day.

Schools

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the number of pupils attending schools which had been built within the previous five years in each of the last 10 years. [186468]

Jim Knight: The Department does not hold information on the number of pupils attending schools which had been built within the previous five years in the last 10 years.

In 2007, the Department collected information from local education authorities on the outputs of schools capital investment in the previous 10 years. The information they supplied showed that since 1997, there had been 1,100 new and replacement schools built.

Central Government capital support for investment in schools has increased from under £700 million in 1996-97 to £6.4 billion in 2007-08 and will rise further to £8.2 billion by 2010-11. Over this period, increasing numbers of pupils have benefited from being in schools with new buildings.

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of how far on average (a) primary and (b) secondary school pupils travel to get to school in (i) Cornwall, (ii) the South West and (iii) England. [186501]

Jim Knight: The information requested is given in the following table:

Average straight line distance[1] in miles from pupil residence to school[2] attended

| | Primary | Secondary[3] |
|---|---|---|
| Cornwall local authority | 1.07 | 2.41 |
| South West Government office region | 0.91 | 2.18 |
| England | 0.78 | 1.84 |

[1] Distance is the average straight line distance from pupil residence to the school attended, based on pupil and school postcode.
[2] Maintained schools—pupils aged 5 to 15.
[3] Secondary includes CTC and Academies.
Source:
School Census 2007.

A table giving this information for all local authorities in England will be placed in the House of Commons Library.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) new schools opened and (b) schools closed in the (i) maintained and (ii) independent sector in each year since 1995; and how many schools there were open in each year. [186958]

Jim Knight: We cannot provide the information requested because it would require us to manipulate large volumes of data which could only be undertaken at a disproportionate cost.

Schools: Admissions

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will review the 10 per cent. target threshold for surplus places for (a) all schools and (b) rural schools; and if he will make a statement. [185819]

Jim Knight: The hon. Member refers to our guidance to local authorities on developing a primary strategy for change. There are no plans for reviewing the guidance.

We need to ensure that local authorities are able to provide good value for money for their communities, allowing them to invest in higher standards and better facilities for pupils. One aspect of securing good value for money is taking early and decisive action to balance the demand and supply of school places, but we recognise that the extent and nature of local authority plans will depend on local circumstances.

The guidance on preparing primary capital strategies must be read in its entirety. It explains that authorities should allow scope for parental choice, support schools with high standards, ensure schools are accessible to pupils, and take account of possible future increases in pupil numbers due to demographic changes. It also recognises that in order to preserve access for young children, there may be more empty places in schools in rural areas than in urban areas.

The guidance asks authorities to put in place decisive plans for early action to ensure that no school has more than 25 per cent. surplus places, and I anticipate that local authorities will make these plans sensitively taking account of my recent letter which has been placed in the House Library. The 10 per cent. benchmark relates to surplus capacity across the whole primary school estate of a local authority, and not to individual schools. We want local authority strategies to set out how surplus places across the authority as a whole will be managed down over time although there is no fixed timescale.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many (a) primary and (b) secondary schools in England operate as their own admissions authority; [186231]

(2) how many (a) primary and (b) secondary schools in England have their admissions managed by (i) local authorities and (ii) other bodies. [186232]

Jim Knight: Local authorities are the admission authority for community and voluntary controlled schools. Governing bodies are the admission authority for voluntary aided and foundation schools. Academies and city technology colleges also determine their own admission arrangements in line with the requirements of the admissions code and admissions law. The following table provides details of the number of schools in each category. Local authorities may delegate responsibility for determining the admission arrangements of community and voluntary controlled schools to individual school governing bodies, but we do not collect information centrally about the number of cases in which responsibility is delegated.

Admission authorities usually manage the process of considering applications for places themselves, but the governing body of a school which is its own admission authority may ask another body, including the local authority, to do so on their behalf. Again, we do not collect information centrally about the number of cases in which this happens.

Schools: Biometrics

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether planned guidance on the collection of biometric data in schools will be made available other than on the British Educational Communications and Technology Agency website. [164203]

Jim Knight: There are currently no plans to make the guidance on the collection of biometric data in schools available elsewhere other than on this website.

Schools: Buildings

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the number of poor quality school buildings which are situated in deprived areas; and if he will make a statement. [185337]

Jim Knight: The Department has not made an estimate of the number of poor quality school buildings which are situated in deprived areas.

For primary schools, the most deprived areas will receive higher levels of funding in the Primary Capital Programme. For secondary schools, deprivation is a factor determining the prioritisation of funding in the Building Schools for the Future Programme.

Central government capital support for investment in schools has increased from under £700 million in 1996-97 to £6.4 billion in 2007-08 and will rise further to £8.2 billion by 2010-11. A substantial proportion of capital funding is targeted at transformational programmes, such as those referred to above.

Schools: Catering

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what steps the Government have taken to improve kitchen facilities in schools since 1997; [183444]

(2) how much the Government have spent on school kitchen facilities in the West Midlands in each of the last five years. [183445]

Jim Knight: The Government have increased the capital available for investment in school buildings sevenfold in real terms between 1997 and 2010. In 1996-97, it was under £700 million: by 2010-11 it will be more than £8.2 billion a year. Most of this funding can be used for school kitchens where this is the local priority. Authorities and schools in the West Midlands will get over £1 billion over the next three years. For each of the next three years, a typical secondary school will get over £113,000 of its own money and a typical primary over £34,000 which can be used to improve kitchens and dining areas if they wish. Additionally, we are providing £150 million of targeted funding by 2010 to support authorities install new kitchens in schools which have none and where there is exceptional need.

In 2007 the Department published "Inspirational Design for Kitchen and Dining Spaces" to give good guidance to authorities and schools on how to build kitchens that are efficient and suitable to cook good healthy food, and dining areas that are attractive to children and encourage healthy eating. This was prepared in consultation with the School Food Trust and industry professionals.

Investment decisions are made locally and the Department does not collect information on how much authorities and schools have invested in kitchen facilities. In 2007, authorities provided information on school building projects, including that in the previous 10 years there had been improvement to kitchens and serveries in over 2,300 schools nationally. The School Building Investment Data are available in the parliamentary libraries, showing the information from each local authority.

Schools: Closures

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) primary and (b) secondary schools have closed each year since 1997, broken down by local authority. [184991]

Jim Knight: The numbers of secondary and primary school closed in each year since 1997, by local authority, are given in the table which has been placed in the Library.

Schools can be closed for a number of reasons including: to meet demographic changes (population decline); as part of an amalgamation; to allow a Fresh Start school to replace a school in special measures; to allow a school with a religious character to replace a school without a religious character; or as part of another type of local reorganisation.

The figures also show closures as part of the Local Government Reorganisation programme.

It was not mandatory to supply school closure dates prior to January 2002 and therefore the figures for the years 1997 to 2002 may not be complete.

Schools: Community Relations

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps the Government have taken to encourage schools to open their facilities to community groups. [185668]

Beverley Hughes: Opening school facilities to the community is one of the key elements of the extended schools core offer. We are committed to all schools providing access to the core offer of extended services by 2010 with at least half of all primary and a third of secondary schools doing so by September 2008.

Where a school has facilities suitable for use by the local community (e.g. playing fields, halls, sport and IT facilities) they are encouraged to open these up to meet the needs of the community in response to local demand. Schools are expected to consult with pupils, parents and the local community before providing extended services.

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much income has been generated by maintained schools in England providing facilities for community groups in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [186793]

Beverley Hughes: Opening school facilities to the community is one of the elements of the extended schools core offer. We are committed to all schools providing access to the core offer of extended services by 2010 with at least half of all primary and a third of secondary schools doing so by September 2008.

Information is not collected centrally on the number of school facilities that have opened up for extended school provision or how much schools charge for their facilities. Local authorities have different systems and variable rates around schools charging community groups to use their facilities.

Schools: Crimes of Violence

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many assaults there were on school teachers in 2005-06 which led to exclusions, broken down by (a) category of assault and (b) local education authority; and if he will make a statement. [163431]

Jim Knight: The number of incidents of assaults towards staff in schools is not collected centrally. The Department does collect information on the reasons why pupils have been excluded, either for a fixed period or permanently. This includes a category for "physical assault against an adult" although this is not broken down by category of assault.

Local authority level tables showing the number of permanent and fixed period exclusions by reason have been placed in the library. For 2005-06 this information is only available for secondary schools due to underlying changes in the data collection. For 2006-07 this coverage will extend to also include primary and special schools.

Schools: Expenditure

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what expenditure on schools was as a proportion of gross domestic product in each year since 1997; what estimate he has made of the likely proportion in each year until 2011-12; and if he will make a statement. [163442]

Jim Knight: The Department is unable to answer the question in the way it has been asked. The information is not held on a UK basis. However, spending on education in England is set to rise to £63.7 million in 2007-08. The Government will increase spending in education as a proportion of GDP to 5.6 per cent. in 2010-11. This compares to 4.7 per cent. of GDP spent on education in 1996-97.

| | Total Government education spend as a proportion of GDP |
|---|---|
| 2007-08 | 5.6 |
| 2008-09 | 5.6 |
| 2009-10 | 5.6 |
| 2010-11 | 5.6 |

Schools: Finance

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what factors determine the level of the dedicated schools grant per pupil in Plymouth is below the national average; and what the dedicated school grant per pupil is in (a) Plymouth and (b) England. [165585]

Jim Knight: The distribution method for Dedicated Schools Grant (DSG) starts from each authority's budgeted spend for schools in 2005-06, which largely reflects the historical allocation of resources through the Schools Formula Spending Share (FSS) formula, which gave additional funding for additional educational needs, sparsity, and area costs. The DSG per pupil for Plymouth is below the national average because it attracts no additional funding for area costs or sparsity, and its proportion of funding for additional educational needs at 11.6 per cent. is only slightly above the national average of 11.3 per cent. for 2006-07. The DSG guaranteed unit of funding per pupil for Plymouth will be £3,889 in 2008-09, rising to £4,198 in 2010-11. The England averages are £4,066 and £4,398.

Schools: Isle of Wight

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of surplus places there were in each of the last three years in (a) primary, (b) middle and (c) high schools on the Isle of Wight. [184673]

Jim Knight [holding answer 5 February 2008]: We do not collate figures for middle schools as they are deemed to be either primary or secondary schools. The percentage of surplus places in primary and secondary schools (including middle schools) on the Isle of Wight in each of the last three years is as follows:

| | Percentage | |
|---|---|---|
| | Primary | Secondary |
| 2007 | 18 | 12 |
| 2006 | 13 | 11 |
| 2005 | 12 | 10 |

Schools: Offensive Weapons

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what powers teachers have to confiscate weapons on school premises; and if he will make a statement. [185189]

Jim Knight: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave on 29 January 2008, Official Report, column 275W.

Schools: Rural Areas

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether all proposals to close rural schools have to be called into the Secretary of State for decision. [184187]

Jim Knight: Local authorities are responsible for deciding proposals to close schools, including rural schools. Where there is an appeal against closure, the schools adjudicator makes the decision. Ministers do not have a role in this process. In coming to a decision local authorities and the adjudicator must have regard to guidance issued by the Secretary of State. Those who may appeal against a local authority decision are the local Church of England and Roman Catholic dioceses, the governors and trustees of a foundation or voluntary school proposed for closure, and the Learning and Skills Council where proposals relate to a secondary school.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many rural schools closed in each year between 1996 and 2007; and if he will make a statement. [185339]

Jim Knight: The Department has only maintained information on rural schools closures since 1998. The number of rural schools closed in each year between 1998 and 2007 is given in the following table.

| Year | Number of rural school closures |
|---|---|
| 1998 | 5 |
| 1999 | 2 |
| 2000 | 2 |
| 2001 | 3 |
| 2002 | 5 |
| 2003 | 12 |
| 2004 | 9 |
| 2005 | 8 |
| 2006 | 7 |
| 2007 | 12 |

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many surplus places there are in (a) primary and (b) secondary schools designated as rural schools. [185778]

Jim Knight: The most recent data available on the number of surplus school places relate to January 2007. In primary schools designated as rural there were 111,187 (14 per cent.) surplus places. Rural secondary schools are not designated but are identified as being in an area classified as rural by the Office of National Statistics. In rural secondary schools there were 33,326 (7 per cent.) surplus places.

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what rural (a) primary and (b) secondary schools have closed in Cornwall since 1997. [186622]

Jim Knight: The Department has only maintained information on rural school closures since 1998. Rural primary schools that have closed in Cornwall between 1998 and 2007 are listed in the table. There have been no rural secondary school closures since 1998.

| School name | Date of closure |
|---|---|
| Lanreath CofE VC Primary | 31 August 2007 |
| Penzance Infant and Junior Schools[1] | 31 August 2005 |
| Tresilian Infant | 31 August 2004 |
| Barncoose Primary | 31 August 2002 |
| Nine Maidens Primary and Carnkie Primary[1] | 31 August 2002 |

[1]Two schools on two separate sites amalgamated and were replaced by a new school on a new site in the same area.

The table excludes amalgamations of infant and junior schools where the resulting primary school was located on the same site.

Schools: Science

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps the Government has taken to improve science facilities in schools since 1997. [180068]

Jim Knight: The Government have been and continue to be committed to improving science facilities in schools as part of their aim to transform all school buildings. More than £31 billion has been invested in school buildings since 1997 including through Schools for the Future and Academies during which time 6,644 new or refurbished laboratories have been provided.

This year £6.7 billion of funding is available for investment in schools, and this will rise to £8.2 billion a year by 2010-11. Most of this can be invested in science facilities where this is the local priority.

This unprecedented level of investment is a marvellous opportunity to create science facilities that inspire learners and teachers alike. With this in mind my Department set up Project Faraday in 2006, developing exciting design ideas at 12 demonstration schools that can act as 'exemplars' for science provision, to inspire and inform local authorities and schools.

A book showing the exemplar designs will be published later this month. The first built project will be completed at the end of 2008.

Schools: Standards

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) under what circumstances an executive board will take over the management of a failing school, as outlined by the Prime Minister in his speech of 31 October 2007; [186472]

(2) what powers an executive board taking over management of a failing school will have to improve that school; [186473]

(3) who will sit on the executive boards proposed by the Prime Minister to take over failing schools. [186474]

Jim Knight: The Prime Minister's speech indicated that the use of interim executive boards (IEBs) may be one of several measures to help raise standards in low attaining secondary schools.

Local authorities have existing legal powers to apply to the Secretary of State for permission to replace the governing body of a school with an IEB when, after an Ofsted judgment, a school is in special measures, or requires significant improvement. The power may also be used when a school has received a valid Warning Notice under section 60 of the Education and Inspections Act 2006.

The Secretary of State also has reserve powers to replace the governing body of a school with an IEB when a school is in special measures or requires significant improvement.

The IEB is the governing body of the school for the time it is in office. It has all the powers and responsibilities of a governing body. The IEB's main functions are to secure a sound basis for future improvement in the school and promote high standards of educational achievement.

Members of an IEB are chosen on a case-by-case basis by the appropriate authority, that is, the local authority or the Secretary of State, depending on the origin of the intervention.

Since the introduction of the policy in 2002, IEBs have proved to be an effective way of improving the leadership of failing schools.

Schools: Vocational Guidance

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps the Government plan to take to improve career advice services in schools. [180066]

Beverley Hughes: We are taking a range of measures to improve the quality of the careers advice received by young people in schools.

We are seeking to place a statutory duty on schools to deliver careers education impartially. This will be backed up by guidance to which schools will be required to have regard.

The Children's Plan announced several measures designed to improve the quality of careers provision in schools; for example, by promoting experiential learning and by providing materials to support more effective peer mentoring. It also announced pathfinder projects in primary schools designed to explore the benefits of early careers interventions in extending young people's horizons and raising aspirations.

And we are looking at ways of ensuring the delivery of high quality careers education within the new PSHE: Economic Well Being curriculum. This is expected to include the development of new curriculum guidance and the provision of high quality teaching materials for use in the classroom. We are also looking into new arrangements for the continuing professional development of the careers workforce.

Schools' careers support for young people is backed up by external, independent advice from the Connexions service. From April 2008 responsibility for Connexions will pass to local authorities which will enable them to make improved links with other services for young people. Local authorities will also be expected to have regard to recently published "Quality Standards" which set out my Department's expectations of the information, advice and guidance services that they will provide.

Science: General Certificate of Secondary Education

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps his Department is taking to encourage students to choose single science GCSEs. [179586]

Jim Knight: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 21 January 2008, Official Report, columns 1737-38W.

Secondary Education

Mr. Flello: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many of the (a) highest and (b) lowest performing 100 secondary schools, as listed in the Government's achievement and attainment tables for 2007, had (i) fewer than 500 pupils, (ii) between 500 and 1,000 pupils and (iii) more than 1,000 pupils in that year. [185390]

Jim Knight: The information requested can be found in the House of Commons Library.

Secondary Education: Enfield

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children were on the roll (a) in each secondary school and (b) at special schools in Enfield in each of the last five years; and how many children in Enfield with special educational needs attended special schools outside Enfield in each year. [183718]

Jim Knight: The requested information is shown in the tables.

Sure Start Programme: Tyne and Wear

Mr. Kemp: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many families have received (a) healthcare and (b) other support from the Sure Start programme in Houghton and Washington East in the last five years. [181825]

Beverley Hughes: Data on how many families have accessed health and other support services from the Sure Start programmes over the last five years is not collected centrally. Sure Start Local Programmes (SSLPs) have assessed their own progress against a range of outcomes for children and families as part of their local level monitoring and evaluation. Local evaluation reports can be obtained directly from the programme or from the National Evaluation of Sure Start (NESS) website www.ness.bbk.ac.uk The report for Sure Start Hetton and Houghton in 2005 shows that, based on 95 responses out of a survey sample of 240, 93 per cent. were satisfied or very satisfied with their antenatal services, 96 per cent. (of 58 responses) were happy with the baby clinic, and 90 per cent. with the health visiting services. The 2005 report for Sure Start Monument shows that, based on 92 responses out of a survey sample of 260, 98 per cent. were satisfied or very satisfied with their antenatal services, 92 per cent. with the baby clinic, 91 per cent. with the health visiting service and 90 per cent. with their GP surgery. The information in these reports is locally collected and is not validated by the NESS team or the Department for Children, Schools and Families.

Teachers: Food Technology

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many teachers qualified in food technology are employed in each London borough. [185733]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not currently available.

It is expected that the new School Workforce will be in place in 2010 and it will provide more detailed information on qualifications of teachers.

Teachers: Qualifications

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when he plans to bring forward specific proposals for the structure of the proposed Masters degree for the teaching profession. [186764]

Jim Knight: As we said in the Children's Plan, we will work with the social partnership for school work force reform and with the Training and Development Agency for Schools (TDA) to agree how we realise our ambitions to make teaching a Masters level profession. We will publish more detailed proposals for the structure of the Masters degree as soon as we are ready to do so.

Trade Unions

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what meetings he has had with trade union officials since 1 July 2007; on what dates; and with which trade unions. [179868]

Kevin Brennan: Ministers meet many people as part of the process of policy development. It is not normal practice to disclose details of such meetings.

Truancy

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the rate of unauthorised absence was in each school in each year since 2003; and if he will make a statement. [164423]

Jim Knight: The information requested is available as part of the Achievement and Attainment tables and can be found at:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/performancetables/

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of pupils took unauthorised absence in (a) 1997 and (b) 2007, broken down by local authority. [182749]

Kevin Brennan: The rate of overall absence in primary schools in 1996/97 was 6.1 per cent.; this has reduced to 5.3 per cent. for the first two terms of the 2006/07 academic year, the latest period for which information is available. For secondary schools the overall absence rate fell from 9.1 per cent. to 7.8 per cent. over the same period.

The standardisation of codes for pupil absence and attendance in 2006 has lead to a tightening of authorisation of absence from schools, correspondent with an increase in unauthorised absence in the context of falling overall absence.

For primary schools the unauthorised absence rate in 1996/97 was 0.5 per cent.; for the combined autumn term 2006 and spring term 2007 (the latest period for which figures are available) this had changed to 0.52 per cent. For secondary schools the rate of unauthorised absence changed from 1.1 per cent. in 1996/97 to 1.46 per cent. in autumn term 2006 and spring term 2007.

Tables showing the absence rates by local authority for both 1996/97 and combined data for autumn term 2006 and spring term 2007 have been placed in the House Library.

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many local authorities have a dedicated local pupil tracking officer to identify children missing from education. [185955]

Jim Knight: All local authorities have met the requirement to have a named individual responsible for identifying children missing education and their role includes proactively tracking pupils. Local authorities use different job titles for this responsibility which some have chosen to call pupil tracking officers.

Vocational Training: Finance

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the total value is of the fund set aside to support grants given under the Train to Gain skills development programme. [184496]

Mr. Lammy: I have been asked to reply.

The Train to Gain service is designed to meet employers' specific skill needs and thus is flexible in what it can fund, but there is no 'Train to Gain skills development programme' and thus no funds set aside for support grants given under it.

In 2006/07 we invested £270 million in Train to Gain supporting directly delivered learning. The expansion of Train to Gain means the budget is £524 million in 2007/08 and is projected to rise to over £1 billion in 2010/11.

We have set out our ambitions to reach more employers and to drive up levels of investment in skills in Train to Gain: A Plan for Growth, copies of which are in the Library of the House.

Work Experience

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the 10 types of work experience placement most frequently attended by schoolchildren were in the last year for which figures are available. [181084]

Jim Knight: 95 per cent. of learners participate in work-experience at key stage 4 (years 10 and 11) which represents around 550,000 learners each year. Information on types of placement is not held centrally by the Department for Children, Schools and Families. The Learning and Skills Council is responsible for managing the network of Education Business Link Organisation Consortia through which work-experience is brokered and which hold information about the range and type of work-experience placements. Mark Haysom, the chief executive of the LSC has written to the hon. Member and a copy of his reply has been placed in the House Library.

Letter from Mark Haysom, dated 4 February 2008:

I am writing in response to your Parliamentary Question that asked; "What the 10 types of work experience placement most frequently attended by schoolchildren were in the last year for which figures are available."

The Learning and Skills Council is responsible for contracting with Education Business Link Organisation Consortia through which work experience placements for 14-16 year olds are brokered.

The last year for which figures are available is the 2005-2006 academic year; in that year the 10 sectors which had the highest numbers of young people placements were:

Education/Training
Retail Business
Catering
Personal Service
Leisure Services
Community Care Engineering
Mechanical Construction

These placements represent 92.4% of the total number of work experience placements for the year.

Young People: Sports

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the impact of the Safeguarding Vulnerable Groups Act 2006 on 17-year-olds playing open age sport. [185747]

Kevin Brennan [holding answer 18 February 2008]: We have received useful feedback on the issue of under 18-year-olds playing in open age sport from stakeholders in the sports sector during the course of last year. It is not our intention to make any activity a regulated activity unnecessarily, particularly if that means children could be denied access to a wide range of sporting activity.

As a consequence of feedback from stakeholders we are currently consulting on the proposal that activities relating to the teaching, training and instruction of children aged 16-17 years should not be considered to be regulated activity, where the 16 and 17-year-old is part of an activity aimed at mixed age groups which includes adults. The proposals can be found in paragraphs 3.11-3.12. of the consultation document on the Safeguarding Vulnerable Groups Act 2006: Independent Safeguarding Authority scheme which is available on the Department for Children Schools and Families consultation website. The consultation will run until the 20 February 2008.

The Department for Children Schools and Families, Department of Health and Home Office will continue to consulting widely with stakeholders including sports bodies and organisations and will continue working with the Department for Culture Media and Sport and sports bodies to help inform Regulations and prepare for implementation of the Safeguarding Vulnerable Groups Act 2006.

Young People: Unemployed

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of (a) 16 and 17-year-olds and (b) 18 to 24-year-olds of each sex were not in education, employment or training in the latest period for which figures are available. [185384]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 7 February 2008]: Estimates of participation in education, training and employment for those aged 16-18 are published annually by the Department of Children, Schools and Families (DGSF) in a Statistical First release (SFR) each June. The most recent SFR relates to end 2006 and can be found at the following link:

Table 1 shows the numbers and proportions of academic age 16 and 17-year-olds not in education, employment or training (NEET) in England at end 2006.

Table 1: Proportion and number of young people aged 16 and 17 not in education, employment or training (NEET) by gender in England, end 2006[1]

| Total | 42,800 | 6.5 | 62,700 | 9.5 |

[1] Provisional.

The DGSF does not publish estimates of those NEET above academic age 18. However, it is possible to produce estimates for 18 to 24-year-olds from the Labour Force Survey (LFS). Estimates for England from the LFS, relating to the first quarter of 2007, are shown in Table 2. It is important to note that the LFS will not produce estimates that directly match those from the Department's Participation SFR, and that they will be subject to sampling error and respondent error. The LFS estimates of population size by cohort also differ from the Participation SFR. LFS estimates are also provided for young people of academic age 16-18 for comparison with the Department's estimates above.

WALES

Departmental Correspondence

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many people were employed in his Department's ministerial correspondence unit in each of the last five years; and how much it cost to run the unit, including utilities and other expenses, in each year. [187049]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Wales Office has a single correspondence unit which deals with all forms of correspondence, ministerial and other, as well as related issues. This unit's staff complement over the last five years has been three.

Many other Wales Office staff will work on ministerial correspondence as part of their work. It is not possible to quantify this.

Our costs are not readily available in the format requested, and obtaining these could be achieved only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Information Officers

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many people were employed in his Department's press office in each of the last five years; and how much it cost to run the office, including utilities and other expenses, in each year. [187053]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Wales Office has had three press officers in its press office in each of the last five years.

Our costs are not readily available in the format requested, and obtaining these could be achieved only at disproportionate cost.

Honours

Mr. Pope: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many members of the senior Civil Service in his Department have received an honour. [187117]

Mr. Paul Murphy: None.

Sunbeds

Mr. Paul Murphy: I have regular meetings with the Welsh Assembly Government on a range of issues.

I understand the Welsh Assembly Government supports the annual Sunsmart campaign, run by Cancer Research UK, advising people about the risks of using sunbeds.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Departmental ICT

Sarah Teather: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons

Commission how many (a) mobile telephones, (b) personal digital assistants and (c) laptop computers issued to House of Commons staff were reported (i) lost, (ii) missing and (iii) stolen in each year since 2001. [184338]

Nick Harvey: Records held on lost, missing or stolen mobile telephones, personal digital assistants and laptop computers are not differentiated between owners, i.e. Members or Members' staff or House of Commons staff, nor between those issued by the House of Commons Service and those owned personally by Members or others. Lost and missing items are not separately recorded.

The total number of reported (a) lost or missing and (b) stolen items in the years 2001-08 is given as follows:

(a) Lost or missing

| | Mobile telephones | PDAs | Laptops |
|---|---|---|---|
| 2001 | 4 | 0 | 0 |
| 2002 | 4 | 0 | 0 |
| 2003 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| 2004 | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| 2005 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| 2006 | 5 | 0 | 0 |
| 2007 | 14 | 0 | 1 |
| 2008 | 2 | 0 | 0 |

| 2003 | 5 | 0 | 3 |
| 2004 | 0 | 1 | 3 |
| 2005 | 3 | 0 | [1]18 |
| 2006 | 1 | 0 | 4 |
| 2008 | 2 | 0 | 0 |

[1] 17 laptop computers purchased by PCD were stolen from the back door of 7 Millbank in 2005 but these items had not at that time been allocated to Parliamentary users.

Department of Finance and Administration: Operating Costs

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission how much the Department of Finance and Administration cost to run in 2007. [186169]

Nick Harvey: The total resource cost of running the former Department of Finance and Administration for the year ended 31 March 2007 was £9,045,000. This figure includes a significant level of corporate expenditure which is not directly attributable to the direct costs of running the Department. Some of the larger corporate items during 2006-07 included contracts management (£1,084,000), specialist advice (£1,023,000) and child care vouchers (£229,000).

Political Activities

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Horsham of 28 January 2007, Official Report, column 3W, on political activities, how many and what percentage of staff working in the House are politically restricted. [186088]

Nick Harvey: Staff in catering, craft, cleaning and Vote Office porter roles are politically unrestricted. These members of staff represent 20.1 per cent. (395) of the House of Commons service. The other 79.9 per cent. (1,573) of staff are not necessarily politically restricted, but must obtain permission from their Departmental Establishment Officer (DEO) to take part in any political activity. Of these, 0.1 per cent. have requested and been granted permission for specific political activities. Staff in the Senior Commons Structure (SCS), staff in regular direct contact with Members in support of the business of the House and its committees, and those who provide information, briefing or advice to Members will not normally be given permission to take part in political activity. There are 86 SCS staff (4.4 per cent.), but it is not readily possible to identify the numbers of staff in the other categories.

Trade Unions

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission which (a) rooms, (b) furniture and (c) telephone facilities are allocated to recognised trades unions on the parliamentary estate for their exclusive use. [186089]

Nick Harvey: The recognised trade unions in the House have exclusive use of three rooms on the parliamentary estate. Two rooms are located in 2 The Abbey Garden and one in Portcullis House. In 2 The Abbey Garden, one room is furnished with a standard desk, a small meeting table and chairs, a filing cupboard and a bookcase. The office has computer equipment, two telephones and a fax facility. The second room is furnished with a large table and chairs, and has a telephone and modem facilities. The room in Portcullis House is furnished with a desk and meeting chairs. It has computer equipment, a fax machine, a small photocopier, a shredder and one telephone line.

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission which trades unions have recognition agreements with the House authorities. [186090]

Nick Harvey: The following trade unions have recognition agreements with the House administration: PDA, Prospect, Public and Commercial Services Union (PCS) and the General Municipal and Boilermakers Union (GMB).

NORTHERN IRELAND

Crime: Victims

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what measures are in place to inform relatives of victims who have been murdered when a convicted murderer is released from prison in Northern Ireland. [186816]

Paul Goggins: The Northern Ireland Prison Service's Prisoner Release Victim Information Scheme provides for close family members, who have registered under the scheme, to receive details about the release of individuals convicted of murdering their relatives.

Firearms

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many illegal firearms he estimates are in circulation in Northern Ireland. [185678]

Paul Goggins: As any estimate about the number of illegally-held weapons in Northern Ireland would be based on intelligence, it is the long-standing policy of the Government not to comment upon such matters.

Firearms: Licensing

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) what consideration is given to (a) imprisonable and (b) non-imprisonable driving offences when determining an application for a firearms licence in Northern Ireland; [186158]

(2) what consideration is given to criminal convictions, spent or otherwise, when determining an application for a firearms licence in Northern Ireland. [186164]

Paul Goggins: The Chief Constable of the Police Service for Northern Ireland has advised that applications for firearms certificates are assessed on a case by case basis and all relevant information, including criminal convictions, is taken into consideration in determining whether an applicant is a fit person to possess firearms within the meaning of Articles 5 and 63 (Prohibited Persons) of the Firearms (NI) Order 2004 and Appendix 2 of the Guidance on Northern Ireland Firearms Controls.

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what criteria are applied to applications for firearms licences in Northern Ireland. [186165]

Paul Goggins: The Chief Constable of the Police Service for Northern Ireland has advised that all applications for firearms certificates are subject to the provisions of the Firearms (NI) Order 2004 and with reference to the Guidance on Northern Ireland Firearms Controls as published by the Northern Ireland Office.

The Order and Guidance can be viewed at:

www.nio.gov.uk/index/firearms.htm

Official Engagements

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many engagements his predecessor undertook between 1 January 2007 and 27 July 2007. [185658]

Mr. Woodward: During the time in question and up until I took office on 29 June 2007, my predecessor carried out the full range of his ministerial responsibilities.

Organised Crime

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent assessment he has made of levels of organised crime in Northern Ireland; and what steps he plans to take to tackle this problem. [185674]

Paul Goggins: The Organised Crime Task Force Annual Report and Threat Assessment for 2006-07 highlights a range of threats from organised criminal gangs in Northern Ireland. Key threats include drugs, criminal finance, public sector fraud, intellectual property crime and paramilitary involvement in organised crime.

The Organised Crime Task Force has had significant successes in tackling organised crime and continues to work to improve our effectiveness in disrupting the criminals and raising public awareness of the impact of organised crime and the role everyone can play in tackling it.

Police

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many police officers there are in the Police Service of Northern Ireland, broken down by (a) sex and (b) religious belief. [185676]

Paul Goggins: The figures shown in the following table are as at 1 February 2008 and relate to regular officers only.

Regular officers as at 1 February 2008

| | Number | Percentage |
|---|---|---|
| Total number of Regular Officers | 7,402 | — |
| Gender | | |
| Male | 5,771 | 77.97 |
| Female | 1,631 | 22.03 |
| Community background[1] | | |
| Protestant | 5,460 | 73.76 |
| Catholic | 1,753 | 23.68 |
| Not Determined | 189 | 2.56 |

[1] The PSNI currently meets statutory monitoring obligations in line with the Fair Employment and Treatment Order (NT) 1998, the Fair Employment (Monitoring) Regulations (NI) 1999 and the Police (NI) Act 2000, by monitoring community background. The PSNI holds data on members who are members of the Roman Catholic community, the Protestant community and on those who belong to neither community. The PSNI does not currently monitor beyond these categories.

We remain on track to reach our target of 30 per cent. Catholic composition within PSNI regulars by March 2011.

Prisoners: Contraceptives

Mr. Borrow: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will ensure that condoms are made available in prisons in Northern Ireland to prevent the spread of HIV/AIDS. [185860]

Paul Goggins: I reviewed this matter very recently. The incidence of HIV and hepatitis infection in Northern Ireland is low and a survey published by the Northern Ireland Prison Service in 2005 showed that the incidence of blood borne infections in its establishments was very low indeed. Therefore, although the issue will be kept under review, there are no current plans to make condoms freely available to prisoners.

Real IRA

Sammy Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) what estimate he has made of the number of members of the command structures of the (a) Real IRA and (b) Continuity IRA; [185726]

(2) what estimate he has made of the number of former Provisional IRA members who are now members of the (a) Real IRA and (b) Continuity IRA. [185727]

Paul Goggins: As I am sure the hon. Gentleman is aware it is the longstanding policy of the Government not to comment on matters of intelligence. No matter how many individuals are involved in terrorist activity in Northern Ireland the Government have every confidence in the Police Service Northern Ireland to combat the threat they pose.

Sammy Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what reports he has received of Real IRA and Continuity IRA involvement with organised crime and criminal gangs (a) inside and (b) outside Northern Ireland. [185966]

Paul Goggins: The International Monitoring Commission regularly reports on the activities of paramilitary groups' involvement in organised crime, including the Continuity IRA and the Real IRA. The Organised Crime Task Force has had significant success in disrupting organised criminal gangs and we are determined to tackle organised crime from whatever source it comes.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Departmental ICT

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Leader of the House how many of her Department's personal digital assistants have been (a) lost and (b) stolen in each of the last five years; and what the value of those items was. [185270]

Helen Goodman: The Leader of the House of Commons Office forms part of the Cabinet Office. The Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster will be answering this question shortly on behalf of the Cabinet Office.

Government Bills

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Leader of the House how many (a) amendments and (b) Government amendments were made to Government Bills by end of the Report Stage in the House in each Session since 1997-98. [185236]

Helen Goodman: There is no single source of all such amendments. Therefore it is not possible to answer the question, especially over such a time period, without incurring disproportionate cost.

Legislation

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Leader of the House how many powers to enable primary legislation to be amended or repealed by secondary legislation have been enacted in each of the last 30 years. [185516]

Helen Goodman: The Government accept that powers to amend primary legislation by secondary legislation should only be created where circumstances make it necessary or appropriate to do so.

However, there is no single source of all such provisions. It is therefore not possible to answer the question, especially over such a lengthy time period, without incurring disproportionate cost.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Apprentices: West Midlands

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps the Government plan to take to increase the number of apprenticeships in the west midlands. [183841]

Mr. Lammy: West Midlands Learning and Skills Council plan to increase apprenticeships by around 4 per cent. in 2008-09. Projections are for 12,550 apprenticeship starts with 8,415 completions and a further 5,620 advanced apprenticeship starts with 3,385 completions in 2008-09. The overall completion rate will be 65 per cent. which represents a rise of 3 per cent. on the projected 2007-08 level The plans to increase apprenticeship numbers reflect our ambitions for growth outlined in the recent report of the 'Apprenticeship Review—World-class Apprenticeships: Unlocking Talent, Building Skills for All', published on 28 January 2008.

The increase in apprenticeships in the west midlands will be achieved by re-directing funding to high performing providers, introducing the apprenticeship matching service, developing closer employer engagement, removing support for poorly performing provision and introducing new opportunities for young people to prepare to undertake an apprenticeship.

Higher Education: VAT

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what estimate he has made of the total Value Added Tax (VAT) paid by higher education institutions in each of the past five years; and what forecasts he has made of such VAT receipts expected in each of the next five years. [185693]

Jane Kennedy: I have been asked to reply.

HM Revenue and Customs does not collect data on the amount of VAT paid on individual goods and services.

Ministerial Science Group

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the membership of the Ministerial Science Group is; how frequently the group has met in the last 12 months; and what subjects it has considered. [181724]

Mr. Watson: I have been asked to reply.

The Ministerial Sub Committee on Productivity, Skills and Employment, which superseded the Sub Committee on Science and Innovation, has responsibility for issues relating to science. Details of the Committee's membership and terms of reference can be viewed at:

http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/secretariats/committees/edpse.aspx

or in the Library of the House.

Information relating to the proceedings of Cabinet committees, including the number of meetings held and topics discussed is generally not disclosed.

TRANSPORT

A628

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much has been spent by the Highways Agency on preparation for the A628 Mottram to Tintwistle bypass public inquiry to date. [180962]

Mr. Tom Harris: The A57/A628 Mottram Tintwistle Bypass Public Inquiry started in June 2007 but took a number of years of preparation to get to this stage. Approximately £11.8 million has been spent by the Highways Agency on preparation for the A628 Mottram Tintwistle Bypass scheme.

Dartford Tunnel: Tolls

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what revenues have been received from the Dartford Crossing tolls for the period during which this programme object has had a comparability factor of 100 per cent. for the purpose of the application of the Barnett Formula. [186865]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The annual provision for the Dartford crossing toll receipts on which the Barnett formula comparability factor is based is £67 million as set out in the October 2007 Statement of Funding Policy. Previous years' revenues, since the regulatory charge was introduced for the Dartford Crossing in 2003, were:

| | £ million |
|---|---|
| 2003-04 | 68.1 |
| 2004-05 | 69.0 |
| 2005-06 | 69.3 |
| 2006-07 | 69.0 |

Railways: Bicycles

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many bicycles were carried by train by each train operating company in each year since 1997; how many bicycle spaces were provided on the railways (a) at the latest available date and (b) in 1997; and which train operating companies have increased the number of bicycle spaces on board their rolling stock since 1997. [181619]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not collected centrally.

We continue to encourage train operators to carry bikes on trains where possible. The Department's Cycling Policy document and the White Paper published last year set out our policy: train operators should facilitate the carriage of cycles on off-peak services and accept the folding cycles at all times. However, during the peak hours, where capacity is under pressure, it can be in the interests of the majority of passengers not to permit non-folding cycles on board. It is for individual train operators to determine which services cannot accommodate non-folding bicycles and of course to determine the number of bikes which can be carried at other times.

We want all Train Operating Companies to take into account the wider benefits of cycling when considering both investments in cycle facilities and their own rules for carrying cycles. This is particularly important when procuring new rolling stock where Space for bicycles must be considered.

The White Paper also announced the setting up of a task force to look into how bike and rail journeys can be better integrated. The task force includes the Association of Train Operating Companies, Network Rail, Passenger Focus and Cycling England. I look forward to hearing about their progress.

Railways: Swindon

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will ensure that the doubling of the Swindon to Kemble railway line takes place in 2009. [186273]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Government are supportive of rail growth to meet the needs of our growing economy and we have specified and funded the high level improvements in capacity, safety and reliability required by 2014. It is for the industry to determine the enhancement schemes required to deliver this specification, subject to independent evaluation by the Office of Rail Regulation.

Roads: Tolls

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport in respect of which tolled road crossings in England (a) tolls have ceased to be levied in the last five years and (b) there are proposals to cease to levy tolls. [184961]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The only tolled undertaking in England where a toll has been removed in the last five years is the Dartford-Thurrock River Crossing, where tolls ceased in April 2003 after the construction costs of the QE2 bridge had been paid for and a maintenance fund built up. The toll was succeeded by a regulatory charge under the Transport Act 2000, at the same level as the previous toll.

I am not aware of any formal proposals from concessionaires to cease the levying of tolls prior to the end of any concession agreement.

Shropshire

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the value was of each grant provided by her Department, its associated agencies and non-departmental public bodies to (a) Shrewsbury and Atcham borough council, (b) Shropshire county council and (c) Telford and the Wrekin borough council in (i) 2006-07 and (ii) 2007-08; and what grants have been planned for 2008-09. [184098]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department has provided grants and funding allocations for Shrewsbury and Atcham borough council, Shropshire county council and Telford and Wrekin borough council and has announced funding for 2008/09 as shown in the following table.

| DfT Funding | 2006-07 | 2007-08 | £000 2008-09 |
|---|---|---|---|
| Shrewsbury and Atcham borough council[1] | | | |

| Rural bus subsidy grant | 124 | 127 | 131 |
| Special grant for concessionary fares | — | — | [2]513 |

[1] Most funding for the Shrewsbury and Atcham area is allocated to Shropshire county council, which then determines its distribution.
[2] Provisional amounts.
[3] To date only part of this payment has been paid, outstanding payment still to be made.

Information on grants provided by the Department's agencies and non-departmental public bodies is held by the bodies themselves. This information is not held centrally.

Street Works

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 4 December 2007, Official Report, column 1068W, on street works, what assessment she has made of the ability of local authorities to implement street works regulations from 1 April. [186371]

Ms Rosie Winterton: A large majority of local authorities consider that they can implement the new street works regulations, laid in July 2007, from 1 April 2008. It is the responsibility of authorities and undertakers to ensure that they are compliant with legislation.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Birds: Nature Conservation

Martin Salter: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the conclusions of the Wildlife Law Enforcement Working Group meeting in July 2007 were on the illegal trade in falcons; and whether these conclusions were taken into account in deciding whether to retain the (a) peregrine falcon and (b) merlin in the bird registration scheme. [185857]

Joan Ruddock: The meeting noted that although research indicated that illegal trade in falcons is occurring, it is likely to involve single offenders and not organised crime groups. The Wildlife Law Enforcement Working Group considered that the level of criminality may increase if significant changes to Schedule 4 to the Wildlife and Countryside Act were introduced (i.e. a significant reduction in the number of birds required to be registered) and once Animal Health move to recover the full cost of registering Schedule 4 species and issuing CITES paperwork.

The meeting's conclusions, which did not specifically cover the peregrine falcon or merlin, were taken into account by the National Wildlife Crime Unit (NWCU) in its strategic assessment of UK wildlife crime. This, in turn, informed the development of wildlife crime priorities for 2007-08.

The NWCU indicated in its strategic assessment that the persecution of birds of prey occurs across the majority of the UK. The persecution of birds of prey (of which the taking of birds for the commercial market is a small component) is an area where the NWCU is collecting and analysing intelligence.

My Department will take into account the NWCU assessment when considering which species should remain on Schedule 4.

Carbon Emissions: Lancashire

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what proportion of total UK carbon emissions was estimated to be produced in (a) Ribble Valley constituency and (b) Lancashire County Council area in each year since 2000. [182267]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 25 January 2008]: The most recent estimates available show that in 2005 (a) Ribble Valley local authority area accounted for 0.3 per cent. and (b) Lancashire county council area accounted for 2.0 per cent. of end user carbon dioxide emissions in the UK. It is not possible to provide consistent estimates for years prior to this.

Estimates of carbon dioxide emissions which relate specifically to Ribble Valley constituency are not available, and figures covering the Ribble Valley local authority area have been provided as a close approximation. Lancashire county council area includes the following local government districts—Burnley, Chorley, Fylde, Hyndburn, Lancaster, Pendle, Preston, the Ribble Valley, Rossendale, South Ribble, West Lancashire and Wyre.

These estimates exclude emissions, which could not be spatially disaggregated to local authority level; such as aircraft emissions, further information is available on the DEFRA website.

Energy Using Products Directive

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what action the Government is taking to ensure that the Energy Using Products Directive does not have an adverse impact upon UK plants' manufacturing control systems. [186676]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 18 February 2008]: The Eco-design for Energy Using Products Framework Directive (EuP) aims to deliver EU objectives to reduce greenhouse gas emissions, reduce the negative environmental impacts of products and to ensure free trade in energy-using products. It is a Single Market Directive brought forward under article 95 of the EU treaty.

The EuP framework has involved a wide range of consultation and interested parties will have an opportunity to comment on the Commission's initial proposals at the EU consultation forum on 29 February or in writing up to three weeks after that.

Environment Agency: Finance

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will make a statement on the current and proposed budget of the Environment Agency with regard to planned expenditure in (a) capital and (b) revenue schemes. [183047]

Mr. Woolas: The Environment Agency budget for flood risk management in England in 2007-08 is £265 million revenue and £192 million capital. This is funded largely by direct grant in aid from DEFRA and by precepts on internal drainage boards, beneficiary contributions and other miscellaneous income. Additionally some 26 million will be raised and spent locally through Regional Flood Defence Committee levies on local authorities.

DEFRA grant to all operating authorities for flood and coastal erosion risk management in 2008-09 will be £559 million. This comprises £251 million for Environment Agency revenue expenditure and £308 million capital to be divided between the Environment Agency, local authorities and internal drainage boards. The capital budget has yet to be allocated to individual projects by the agency and it is not possible therefore to say how much will be spent on agency projects. These figures do not include agency income from other sources, but local levies are planned to raise a further £27 million in 2008-09.

Environment Agency: Pay

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what proportion of the operational budget of the Environment Agency was spent on staff salaries in the most recent period for which figures are available. [186381]

Mr. Woolas: The figures are available from the Environment Agency's 2006-07 annual report and accounts, a copy of which is in the House Library.

Flood Control

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what flood defences have been built in each of the last 10 years; and what the (a) final construction costs and (b) original contract prices were in each case. [186382]

Mr. Woolas: The Environment Agency forecast to have completed over 240 projects in the five years to 1 April 2008.

Information on final construction costs and original contract prices for each case cannot be provided without incurring disproportionate cost.

Floods: Gloucestershire

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the steps taken to reduce the risk of flooding in Gloucestershire since the floods of summer 2007. [178796]

Mr. Woolas: The Environment Agency's estimated annual spend in Gloucestershire on controlling development, flood warning and awareness, flood risk mapping, maintenance of flood defences and watercourses is £1.5 million. The Environment Agency has spent an extra £400,000 estimated in Gloucestershire since the summer floods of 2007 on flood recovery, data collection, watercourse maintenance and repairs to flood defence assets.

At the Government's request, Sir Michael Pitt is carrying out an independent review of last summer's floods and published an interim report in December. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has stated that the Government agree with all 15 of the urgent recommendations in this report and will work with other organisations involved in implementing them.

Plastics: Waste Management

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will bring forward proposals for incentives to companies proposing to invest in innovative plastics reprocessing facilities in England. [183630]

Joan Ruddock: My Department is funding the following work to provide incentives to companies proposing to encourage investment in plastics reprocessing.

The Waste and Resources Action Programme's (WRAP) current manufacturing programme is developing major projects that switch significant manufacturing processes from virgin material to recycled material input. This includes projects to incorporate up to 30 per cent. of recycled high density polyethylene (HDPE) in the manufacture of one-quarter of the UK's plastic milk bottle production. This work involves capital support for new equipment and work with local authorities to increase collection of plastic bottles. The new demand created by the project is encouraging the development of plastics reprocessing facilities. Furthermore, WRAP is providing direct support through its business growth programme to develop the recycling sector.

WRAP is also undertaking trials with a number of technologies with the aim of understanding the best ways to handle mixed plastics from an environmental, economical and technological perspective. The programme is investigating three main areas: collection, reprocessing, and end markets. Different recycling and recovery options are being considered as part of this work, including reprocessing mixed plastics into new plastics, incineration, chemical treatment and even turning them into diesel. WRAP's focus on mixed plastics follows on from the successful uptake of plastic bottle recycling.

WRAP is also currently finalising its business plan for the three-year period April 2008 to March 2011. This is likely to build on its present work on plastics collection, reprocessing and end markets, with the intention of incentivising further investment in each of these areas.

We also support industrial symbiosis via the UK wide National Industrial Symbiosis Programme (NISP). With over 10,000 members, NISP employs industrial symbiosis to bring together companies from all business sectors with the aim of improving cross industry resource efficiency through the commercial trading of materials, energy and water and sharing of assets, logistics and expertise.

Over the last three years, NISP has helped industry release over £16.2 million in private investment in plastics reprocessing facilities across the UK. Working with over 70 companies nationwide specifically on plastic reprocessing, NISP has helped recover almost 60,000 tonnes of plastics through landfill diversion, whilst actively helping to safeguard over 90 jobs and generating a further 39 new jobs in the plastics reprocessing industry through increased sales and cost savings of over £32 million.

For example, NISP has been working with Chem Polymer Ltd. to secure private investment of over £1 million which has led to the generation of over £10 million in increased sales. Working on landfill diversion of plastic wastes, NISP has helped Petlon Polymers Ltd. generate sales in excess of £10 million as a result of increased plant throughput.

Radioactive Wastes: Storage

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will make it his policy to publish (a) the letter to be sent to local authorities in respect of volunteer communities for the prospective hosting of a nuclear waste repository and (b) the local authority recipients to whom the letter is to be sent. [186449]

Mr. Woolas: Responses to the recent consultation document "A Framework for Implementing Geological Disposal" are still being considered. Once that process has been completed, we will publish a White Paper setting out the next steps. This will happen later in the year. At that stage, we expect to invite communities to express an interest in entering into discussions about the siting process, and in finding out more about what hosting a facility might involve. Decisions on how this invitation is to be made and publicised have yet to be taken.

Waste Disposal

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much recyclable waste was (a) landfilled, (b) incinerated and (c) sent overseas for disposal in each year since 1997. [185664]

Joan Ruddock [holding answer 18 February 2008]: The UK Plan for Shipments of Waste, which sets out Government policy on shipments of waste, prohibits the export of waste from the UK for disposal with very few exceptions. Waste may be exported for recovery, including recycling.

DEFRA does not have available data on the amount of recyclable waste that is sent abroad for recycling. However, based on HM Revenue and Customs export data, it is estimated that in 2006, the UK exported some 8 million tonnes of metal scrap, 4 million tonnes of paper, 441,000 tonnes of plastic and 136,000 tonnes of glass cullet for recycling. These figures will include recyclable materials collected from all sources including households, commerce and industry.

Statistics for waste arisings and disposal are available only for 1998-99 and 2002-03. In 1998-99, 51 per cent. of household, business and construction/demolition waste in the UK was sent to landfill and 32 per cent. was recycled, with the rest being sent to other recovery or disposal routes, including incineration. In 2002-03, the amount landfilled decreased to 43 per cent., with the amount recycled increasing to 43 per cent.

It is difficult to give a precise estimate of the proportion of the wastes not recycled which could have been recycled in a cost-effective manner, but the Government believe their target for average recycling of municipal waste of 50 per cent. (compared with 31 per cent. in 2007) by 2020 is realistic.

Waste Disposal: Fees and Charges

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research and opinion polling his Department has commissioned on introducing variable charging for household waste in the last 12 months. [183285]

Joan Ruddock: My Department commissioned the '2007 Survey of Public Attitudes and Behaviours' towards the environment, undertaken by the British Market Research Bureau, which included a section on "attitudes to recycling" and sought views on whether individuals would "favour a system that rewarded them if they recycled everything they could and penalised them if they didn't". 52 per cent. of residents were in favour of this statement with 23 per cent. not in favour.

In addition, Eunomia Research and Consulting Ltd. produced a report for DEFRA on the project 'Modelling the Impact of Household Charging for Waste in England'. This report is published on DEFRA's website.

Wind Power: Noise

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment the Environment Agency has undertaken of the noise produced by the WS 1200 wind turbine; when that assessment will be published; and if he will make a statement. [184114]

Malcolm Wicks: I have been asked to reply.

Under the Microgeneration Certification scheme, the Government are working with key stakeholders, including industry, to develop installation and product standards for micro wind turbines. These standards will address issues to do with airborne and structural vibration noise.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Armoured Fighting Vehicles

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps he is taking to ensure that sufficient spares for Mastiff armoured vehicles are available in Afghanistan. [186940]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Mastiff availability has never dropped below the critical 85 per cent. availability rate. We work hard to ensure that sufficient spares are delivered to our forces; in the vast majority of cases adequate re-supply to theatre takes place in a timely fashion. A number of measures are being introduced to improve the operational availability of the Mastiff fleet on operations in both theatres. In particular we have put in place an agreement with the US manufacturer to allow the UK Integrator to manufacture, and also to be able to procure spares direct from source. In addition we have established a spares handling warehouse within the US, exclusively to meet UK requirements.

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Mastiff armoured vehicles are deployed in Afghanistan; and how many more he plans to deploy. [186942]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I am withholding the precise number of Mastiff vehicles currently deployed in Afghanistan as its disclosure would, or would be likely to, prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the armed forces.

The Ministry of Defence continually reviews the requirements for protected mobility and where necessary deploys additional resources. As the Prime Minister announced on 8 October 2007, another 140 Mastiff are being purchased by the Ministry of Defence to support operations in Iraq and Afghanistan.

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Viking vehicles are deployed in Afghanistan; and what plans he has to increase that number. [186944]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I am withholding the precise number of Viking vehicles currently deployed in Afghanistan as its disclosure would, or would be likely to, prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the armed forces.

The Ministry of Defence continually reviews the requirements for protected mobility and where necessary deploys additional resources. There are no current plans to deploy additional Viking vehicles to support operations in Afghanistan.

Afghanistan: Medical Services

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what level of protection is provided to medical locums serving in Afghanistan. [183131]

Derek Twigg: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 18 February 2008, Official Report, column 57W.

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) helicopters available with winching equipment, (b) Pinzgauer vehicles and (c) mine resistant Mastiff trucks were available and being used by the British forces in Southern Afghanistan in January 2008. [183404]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Regarding the availability of helicopters fitted with winching equipment, I have nothing to add to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Congleton (Ann Winterton) on 24 January 2008, Official Report, column 2136W.

Regarding the number of Pinzgauer and Mastiff vehicles available to British forces in Southern Afghanistan, I am withholding the information as its disclosure would, or would be likely to prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the armed forces.

Afghanistan: Rifles

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what consideration he has given to supplying the Barrett Light 50 sniper rifle to snipers deployed in Afghanistan. [186941]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Barrett Light 50 sniper rifle is in service with UK forces and is available for operational use should commanders require the specialised capability.

Armed Forces: Disciplinary Proceedings

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many offences under the (a) Naval Discipline Act 1957, (b) Army Act 1955, (c) RAF Act 1955 and (d) Armed Forces Act 2006 resulted in (i) disciplinary action and (ii) convictions in each of the last 10 years, broken down by offence. [184315]

Armed Forces: Uniforms

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) sets of body armour, (b) AK47 assault rifles, (c) underslung grenade launchers for AK47s and (d) 9mm pistols are owned by UK forces. [185180]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Since 2006 approximately 24,550 sets of Osprey body armour and 3,766 sets of Kestrel body armour have been procured. Like Osprey and Kestrel, enhanced combat body armour (ECBA) is composed of a number of components, but because it is available in a range of sizes, comes from various suppliers, and its individual component usage rates vary, it is not possible to say exactly how many complete sets have been procured. Records are not kept of the number of components lost or destroyed, and hence it is also not possible to say exactly how many sets are currently owned by UK forces.

However every person is issued with a complete set of ECBA prior to deployment on operations. To ensure that sufficient operational stock is always available we monitor our requirement closely. At present between 14,000 and 16,000 sets of ECBA are being issued to personnel entering operational theatres, every six months. Further stocks are also held in theatre for maintenance purposes.

In addition, there is a pool of approximately 8,000 sets of ECBA which is used for training purposes.

The MOD does not procure or support AK47 assault rifles or underslung grenade launchers for AK47s. However, UK forces own a number of AK47 assault rifles as specimens, museum pieces and such like. Information on the numbers owned are not held centrally.

Bowman Combat Radio System: Batteries

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the impact of the defects in Bowman batteries on (a) armed forces personnel and (b) civilians in operational theatres, broken down by incident; and for what reason the Bowman batteries were recalled. [186661]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: There have been no known incidents involving Bowman battery defects that have impacted upon armed forces personnel or civilians in operational theatres.

However, in 2006, all Bowman high frequency (HF) mark 1 radio batteries were recalled when it became evident that an immersion requirement had not been met and water ingress could occur.

Fair Trade Initiative

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his Department's policy is on the use of fair trade goods (a) in staff catering facilities and (b) at official departmental functions and meetings; and if he will make a statement. [183851]

Derek Twigg: There are no mandatory policy requirements in place for the procurement of fair trade products. MOD catering services are usually provided as part of a site multi-activity contract and may include a pay-as-you-dine requirement for catering services in military establishments. The MOD is committed to supporting ethical trading, wherever possible, subject to the need to obtain best value for money. Each catering contractor may choose to offer fair trade products in their tender for a contract but a bid cannot be rejected or considered non-compliant because it does not include any desired fair trade options. After contract award, contract documents can be used to make it clear that, where the winning tenderer is able to provide fair trade options, such products should be made available.

The requirements for official functions and meetings are usually procured through the on-site catering service.

Helicopters

Mr. Tom Clarke: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many attack helicopters are owned by British forces; and how many are in active service in each location. [186307]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: British Forces own 67 attack helicopters of which 49 are in the forward fleet—i.e. available for use—in Wattisham, Middle Wallop and Afghanistan.

I am withholding a breakdown of the forward fleet numbers by location as its disclosure would, or would be likely to prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the armed forces.

Influenza: Disease Control

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 7 January 2008, Official Report, column 48W, on influenza: disease control, if he will place in the Library copies of (a) Preparing for an Influenza Pandemic in the UK, (b) Use of Influenza Vaccines and Antivirals in the events of an Influenza Pandemic and (c) Pandemic Influenza—Infection Control Guidelines for Military Settings; what further guidance the Defence Medical Services Department plans to issue on pandemic influenza; what elements of business continuity the generic influenza exercise scenario is designed to test; whether the scenario has been used to test business continuity; and if he will make a statement. [184221]

Derek Twigg: I will place copies of the requested documents in the Library of the House. Currently the Defence Medical Service Department have no plans to issue further guidance. The Ministry of Defence follows the guidance of the Department of Health as the lead Government Department for pandemic flu planning.

On the issue of business continuity, the generic influenza exercise scenario is designed to test that business continuity plans are able to maintain (or recover) and deliver Defence critical outputs in the event of a pandemic, which may result in the long-term absence of staff. As a secondary issue, the exercise scenario helps to raise awareness among staff of the threat of a pandemic, and its associated potential impacts. The MOD used the influenza scenario to test the pan-Defence Flu Framework in March 2007. MOD top level budgets and trading funds and agencies (down to business unit level) have also been encouraged to test their own business continuity plans using the influenza scenario.

Military Aircraft

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Hercules 170 aircraft have foam suppressants fitted to their wing tanks. [186729]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I am withholding the information requested as its disclosure would, or would be likely to, prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the UK armed forces.

All Hercules C-130 aircraft that are routinely deployed on operations in Iraq and Afghanistan are now fitted with explosion suppressant foam.

Military Aircraft: Helicopters

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether any (a) replacement lifting gear and (b) temporary alternative arrangements were considered for those Chinook helicopters in theatre which had their winches removed. [183612]

Des Browne: I will write to the hon. Member.

Ministry of Defence Votes A

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library a copy of each of his Department's (a) ACO 85 and (b) Votes A returns for each month since 2005-06. [185718]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Copies of DASA (Army)'s ACO 85 and Votes A Return need to be collated. Once this has been completed I will place copies in the Library of the House. ACO 85 was last published in March 2007.

Missiles: Procurement

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many (a) Aster 15 and (b) Aster 30 missiles will not now be purchased as a result of the forecast £30 million reduction in procurement costs; [186674]

(2) whether financial penalties will be incurred as a result of reducing the order for Aster missiles by £30 million. [186675]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: No final decisions have been taken on the numbers of missiles that will be required. As with all capability decisions, this will be considered in the context of defence requirements, affordability and value for money. Commercial and contracting strategies, including financial penalties, also form part of these considerations.

Peacekeeping Operations: Armoured Fighting Vehicles

Mr. Scott: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment his Department has made of the effectiveness of the mine/improvised explosive device resistant vehicles in service with British forces in Iraq and Afghanistan. [186359]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: We continually keep the effectiveness of our vehicle fleet in Iraq and Afghanistan under review in order that UK forces are properly protected against the continually evolving threat, including that from mines and improvised explosive devices. I am withholding the detail of the relative protection of different vehicle types as its release would, or would be likely to, prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the armed forces.

Reserve Forces: Job Satisfaction

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether his Department carries out separate continuous attitude surveys for reserve forces. [164550]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Continuous attitude surveys are currently carried out annually by the Royal Navy to cover the Royal Naval Reserve and the Royal Marine Reserve, and by the Army to cover the Territorial Army. The Royal Air Force conduct surveys biennially and planning for the latest is currently under way. All of these surveys are aimed specifically at reserve forces.

Russia: Land Mines

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will hold discussions with his Russian counterpart on improving information on legacy mines to reduce mine casualties amongst UK armed forces personnel. [185250]

Des Browne: I and my NATO colleagues meet regularly with the Russian Defence Minister in NATO-Russia Council meetings to discuss issues of mutual concern.

Vector Aerospace

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether he has agreed to guarantee to Vector Aerospace a specified volume of work from his Department; and if he will set out details of the arrangements agreed with Vector Aerospace. [186309]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: There has been no guarantee given to Vector Aerospace for a specified volume of work. The intention is to transfer the extant commercial contracts for DARA's Rotary and Components businesses to Vector Aerospace on the existing terms and conditions.

Vector Aerospace has legally undertaken to retain the operational capability currently provided in the UK and has given a full commitment to meet all employment and pension protections. Throughout the sale process, it has remained our priority to secure the best decision for Defence.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Children: Maintenance

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many live Child Support Agency claims there were in Peterborough in each year since 2001; and if he will make a statement. [180860]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 21 January 2008]: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 19 February 2008:

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will commission research to establish how frequently Child Support Agency clients are advised by the Agency to contact their hon. Member to make progress on their case. [181103]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 19 February 2008:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, if he will commission research to establish how frequently Child Support Agency clients are advised by the Agency to contact their hon. Member to make progress on their case. [181193]

The Agency does not gather data on the number of clients referred directly to Members of Parliament for resolution of their cases, as this does not form part of the Agency's complaints process. Under the Agency's Operational Improvement Plan, the Agency reviewed the complaints handling process, and designed a new streamlined approach which focuses on earlier resolution through the introduction of specialist caseworkers responsible for resolving all aspects of our clients' complaints.

Complaints Resolution Teams based in each of our main centres take responsibility for resolving all complaints. If having been through this process the client still remains dissatisfied, the Agency's Complaints Review Team based at Durham House, Washington will review their case. This two stage process aims to promote earlier and complete resolution and reduce the number of complaints escalated to the Chief Executive, Ministers and the Independent Case Examiner (ICE).

The Agency therefore will advise clients of the options open to them should they be dissatisfied about how their case has been handled and this will include advising a client to contact their MP, should the client wish to take issue with current child support policy. It is however clearly inappropriate for the Agency to direct clients to their Member of Parliament if the Agency has mishandled their case.

Should the hon. Member continue to find that his constituents are advised to contact him, I would like to be informed.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many cases the Child Support Agency holds which have outstanding debt; [181249]

(2) what proportion of total child support debt is owed (a) to the Secretary of State and (b) to parents with care; [181250]

(3) what proportion of the £3.7 billion child support arrears relates to cases on the (a) old child support computer system and (b) the new child support 2 computer system. [181252]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 19 February 2008:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many cases the Child Support Agency holds which have outstanding debt. [181249]; and

What proportion of total child support debt is owed (a) to the Secretary of State and (b) to parents with care. [181250]; and

What proportion of the £3.7 billion child support arrears relates (a) to cases on the old child support computer system and (b) the new child support computer system. [181252]

The Agency reports the amount of outstanding debt in its Annual Report and Accounts, the latest version of which is held in the House of Commons library. The information requested is supplementary to that reported and this additional analysis therefore does not include the provisions applied as a result of the annual debt analysis exercise within the Agency's accounts.

This debt is owed by non-resident parents as a result of their failure to meet their responsibilities to their children. The Agency is committed to recovering as much of the outstanding debt as possible and is significantly increasing collections under the Operational Improvement Plan.

At the end of November 2007, the latest period for which these figures are available, the Child Support Agency had 1,056,500 cases with outstanding debt. Of the total debt outstanding, we estimate that 53 per cent is owed to the Secretary of State and 47 per cent to parents with care. Of this debt, we estimate that 56 per cent related to cases on the old child support computer system, and 44 per cent to cases on the new child support computer system.

The Child Maintenance and Other Payments Bill proposes to strengthen and streamline the range of enforcement and debt management powers that will be at the disposal of the Child Maintenance Enforcement Commission. These will be used both to encourage ongoing compliance to prevent the new debt building up, and to enable more of the accumulated debt to be recovered.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of the £1.5 billion child support debt regarded as collectable is owed (a) to the Secretary of State and (b) to parents with care. [181251]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information requested is not available.

Low Incomes

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the cost of bus transport as a proportion of incomes of less than (a) 30 per cent., (b) 40 per cent., (c) 50 per cent. and (d) 60 per cent. of the median in each year since 1997. [185862]

Angela Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 19 February 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking what estimate has been made of the cost of bus transport as a proportion of incomes of less than (a) 30 percent, (b) 40 percent, (c) 50 percent, and (d) 60 percent of the median average in each year since 1997 (185862).

Estimates of household income are provided in the ONS analysis 'The effects of taxes and benefits on household income'. The latest analysis for 2005/06 was published on the National Statistics website on 17th May 2007 at: http://www.statistics.gov.uk/taxesbenefits.

The analysis is based on data from the Expenditure and Food Survey, which is a sample survey covering approximately 7,000 households in the UK. The EFS has been used for this response because it collects both income and expenditure data.

The most common and internationally recognised threshold to measure poverty is income below 60 per cent of median. The sample size for the number of households with an income below 30 per cent of median is too small to yield reliable results. In addition presenting information for households with an income of 40 or 50 per cent of median income can be misleading. One reason for this is that households stating the lowest incomes may not actually have the lowest living standards. Many households who report very low incomes appear to have high spending equivalent to households higher in the income distribution.

The table provided shows bus and coach expenditure as a percentage of household unequivalised disposable income for households that have income of 40, 50 and 60 percent below median income. Due to the issue of small sample size, an average for the period 2000/01 to 2002/03 and 2003/04 to 2005/06 has been provided. Data for 1997/1998 to 1999/00 is not available. In addition figures showing only bus fares could not be provided as expenditure on bus and coach fares are collected as one item.

Bus and coach fares as a percentage of median household disposable income[1] United Kingdom

Minimum Wage

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will consider the merits of paying apprentices a wage at least as great as the young persons' rate of the minimum wage. [184497]

Mr. Lammy: I have been asked to reply.

"World-class Apprenticeships: Unlocking Talent, Building Skills for All" published on 28 January 2008 confirms that the Government will be asking the Low Pay Commission to look at the whole issue of apprenticeship pay in the future.

We also recognise the need to ensure that apprentices in learning today are receiving at least the current minimum apprentice wage of £80 per week. We will therefore ask the LSC, as a matter of urgency, to write to all employers and providers contracted to the LSC to deliver apprenticeships to reiterate their contractual responsibility to ensure all their apprentices are paid at least the minimum weekly amount, and to check on compliance through the existing audit arrangements. We will also ask the new National Apprenticeships Service to work with employers and the TUC to publicise the national helpline for apprentices who believe they are being paid less than the minimum apprenticeship wage, and also look at how the current minimum could be more effectively enforced.

National Insurance: Edinburgh

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many national insurance numbers were issued in the city of Edinburgh in each of the last 18 months, broken down by parliamentary constituency of recipient. [180654]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 21 January 2008]: Information on the total number of national insurance numbers issued is not available at the level requested.

Occupational Pensions

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of private sector employers which offer pension schemes with contributions above three per cent.; and what percentage of occupational pension schemes this figure represents. [175059]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The information is not available in the format requested. Such information as is available shows approximately 300,000 private sector employers offer a contribution above three per cent to pension schemes (defined benefit schemes, defined contribution schemes, group personal pension schemes, stakeholder pension schemes and personal pensions)

Pensions: Elderly

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many women over state pension age on 5 April 2010 would benefit if the reduction from 39 to 30 in the number of qualifying contribution years required for a full basic pension applied to them; and what estimate he has made of the additional cost for 2010-11. [171793]

Mr. Plaskitt: The estimated total additional net cost in 2010-11 of reducing the number of qualifying years required for a full basic sate pension to 30 for women over sate pension age in 2010 is around £1 billion in 2007-08 price terms. It is estimated that around 2 million women would gain more basic state pension as a result of this.

Notes:

1. GB estimates based on the Government Actuary's Department Retirement Pension model.

2. This is an estimate of the net annually managed expenditure cost of re-assessing basic state pension entitlement of all women pensioners in 2010 against 30 qualifying years, rathor than just the cohort that reach state pension age in 2010.

3. These net costs take into account expenditure on income-related benefits.

Pensions: Females

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimated weekly rate of basic pension will be payable in 2010-11 to (a) a woman reaching age 60 years on 6 April 2010 with a contribution record of (i) 10, (ii) 15, (iii) 20, (iv) 25, (v) 30, (vi) 35 and (vii) 39 qualifying years and (b) a woman one day younger with a similar contribution record. [171794]

Mr. Plaskitt: The estimated weekly rates of basic state pension payable in 2010-11, to a woman reaching state pension age on 6 April 2010 with a contribution record of (i) 10, (ii) 15, (iii) 20, (iv) 25, (v) 30, (vi) 35 and (vii) 39 qualifying years are shown in the following table. A woman one day (or more) younger will receive the same amounts. The number of qualifying years required for a full basic state pension for anyone reaching state pension age on or after 6 April 2010 is 30 years.

| Number of qualifying years | Estimated weekly rate of basic state pension payable in 2010-11, for a woman reaching state pension age on or after 6 April 2010 (£) |
|---|---|
| (i) 10 | 31.90 |
| (ii) 15 | 47.85 |
| (iii) 20 | 63.80 |
| (iv) 25 | 79.75 |
| (v) 30 | 95.70 |
| (vi) 35 | 95.70 |
| (vii) 39 | 95.70 |

Notes:

1. For a woman reaching state pension age on 6 April 2010, qualifying years may be comprised of contributions and/or credits including home responsibilities protection. For these women, each complete year of home responsibilities protection awarded under the existing rules will be converted into a qualifying year for basic state pension.

2. We have uprated the current level of basic state pension by the Retail Prices Index, using Treasury economic assumptions. The level of basic state pension, in 2010-11, is forecast to be £95.70 per week.

3. Estimated weekly amounts are presented rounded to the nearest 5p.

Social Security Benefits

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the most common length of time was for each benefit delivery centre or processing site that social fund applicants had to wait for (a) initial decisions, (b) internal reviews, (c) applications awaiting any action and (d) applications not yet registered, or best estimate thereof in the most recent period for which figures are available. [179250]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 15 January 2008]: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 19 February 2008:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question about what the most common length of time was for each benefit delivery centre or processing site that Social Fund applicants had to wait for initial decisions, internal reviews, applications awaiting any action and applications not yet registered, or best estimate thereof in the most recent period for which figures are available. ## Sonia Poulton: Child Support Agency

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to his statement of 24 July 2007, Official Report, column 230WH, when the Child Support Agency case of Sonia Poulton will be resolved; and if he will make a statement. [179751]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 17 January 2008]: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter, from Stephen Geraghty, dated 19 February 2008:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, pursuant to his statement of 24th July 2007 Official Report column 230WH when the Child Support Agency case of Sonia Poulton would be resolved; and if he would make a statement. [179751]

As details about individual cases are confidential I have written to you separately about this case.

Sunbeds

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what progress is being made on updating Health and Safety Executive Leaflet INDG209 on sunbeds. [180624]

Mrs. McGuire: My noble Friend Lord McKenzie and my hon. Friend the Minister for Public Health met on 23 January to discuss how best to take forward HSE leaflet INDG209 in the context of the Government's Cancer Reform Strategy, announced in December 2007. It was agreed that HSE would put out for consultation a revised draft update of the leaflet and that a joint letter will be sent to the hon. Member to inform her more fully of the outcome of this meeting.

Winter Fuel Payments

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions with reference to the answer of 28 February 2007, Official Report, column 1414W, on winter fuel payments, how much was spent on making winter fuel payments to pensioners living outside the UK in 2006-07, broken down by country of recipient's residence. [179255]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 15 January 2008]: European Community law means that some benefits acquired in one member of state must be paid to people when they move to another country within the European Economic Area. Winter Fuel Payments are only paid to former UK residents living in the European Economic Area if they qualified for payment before leaving the UK. The number of Winter Fuel Payments made to former UK residents living in the EEA is in the following table.

Mrs. McGuire: The Department aims to answer parliamentary questions within the timescales set by Parliament. The average time taken to answer written House of Commons parliamentary questions in each of the last 12 months is in the following table.

Average number of working days taken to answer Commons written PQs in 2007

HOME DEPARTMENT

101 Calls

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 7 January 2008, Official Report, columns 253-4W, on 101 calls, (1) what information her Department has received from each pilot on the costs and benefits of the 101 single non-emergency number; if she will place the information in the Library; and if she will make a statement; [182614]

(2) what evaluation has been conducted of the costs and benefits of the 101 single non-emergency number pilots; and if she will make a statement. [182615]

Mr. McNulty: The Home Office has worked closely with all the initial 101 single non-emergency number areas since the service was launched to understand the costs and benefits of the 101 service and to inform options for its future operation. The information gathered has formed part of the overall evaluation of the costs and benefits of the 101 service and has included assessment of caller demand, customer satisfaction, public awareness and the impact on the delivery of local services and the management of resources.

The evaluation and assessment found that the 101 service has successfully demonstrated benefits around improving the public's access to and satisfaction in local community safety services. Through greater partnership working and better information about what problems are happening where, the 101 service has also helped local police and councils to target their resources more effectively and efficiently and improve the delivery of those services to the public.

The Home Office will be making available the wider learning and good practice identified from this assessment, to provide a toolkit to help enable and inform all local areas to embed the benefits in local services and to develop locally funded 101 services where possible. This material will be placed in the Library when it is available.

Crime: Computers

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many Serious and Organised Crime Agency (SOCA) staff work on e-crime; and what SOCA's budget for dealing with e-crime is in 2007-08. [186945]

Mr. Coaker: SOCA's e-crime work is carried out by either the e-crime department (within the Intervention Directorate) or by staff from elsewhere across the organisation. In addition, the Child Exploitation and Online Protection Centre—which is affiliated but operationally independent to SOCA—undertakes e-crime investigations in relation to child protection. SOCA's e-crime department has a target capacity of 58 staff, with 51 in post as of 12 February 2008. The staff budget for the e-crime department in 2007-08 is £3,337,000, which does not include the cost of centralised services such as IT and premises.

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of the Hi Tech Crime Unit in dealing with e-crime following its transfer into the Serious and Organised Crime Agency. [186946]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office monitors SOCA's performance regularly. As required under the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005, SOCA will issue an annual report as soon as possible after the end of the 2007-08 financial year to describe how SOCA discharged its functions in that year.

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were employed in the e-crime department of the Serious Organised Crime Agency in April 2006; and how many people are so employed now. [173827]

Mr. Coaker: In April 2006 there were 50 staff in the e-crime department. As of 25 January 2008 the e-crime department has 51 staff. Planned recruitment will bring the unit to its target capacity of 58 staff.

Crime: Statistics

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 29 January 2008, Official Report, column 209W, on crime: statistics, what account is taken in the compilation of crime statistics of unreported crime. [186948]

Mr. Coaker: The British Crime Survey (BCS) and police recorded crime statistics are complementary series, and together these two sources provide a more comprehensive picture of household and personal crime than could be obtained from either series alone.

The main purpose of the BCS is to give a count of crime that includes those incidents that are not reported to the police, or not recorded by them. As such, the BCS asks victims whether an incident had been reported to the police, or whether the police came to know about it another way, and is therefore able to estimate reporting rates. Overall, the 2006-07 BCS estimated that more than half of crimes are never reported to the police. Reporting rates are reported at a national level and published annually in the Home Office Statistical Bulletin Crime in England and Wales. See for the latest figures.

Driving Under Influence: Drugs

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 22 November 2007, Official Report, column 1066W, on driving under influence: drugs, when the Forensic Science Service will complete the specification for a roadside drug screening device. [186020]

Mr. Coaker: The specification must set realistic requirements to ensure reliability and lead to a device that the police will find helpful. The continuing identification of issues has delayed issue of the specification, but we hope to reach a conclusion shortly on how best to proceed.

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the Answer of 22 November 2007, Official Report, column 1066W, on driving under influence: drugs, what progress manufacturers are making towards preparing a roadside drug screening device; when they are expected to submit a device for type approval; and how long the type approval process is expected to take. [186021]

Mr. Coaker: Manufacturers and our advisers remain in contact over what should be required in a device that could be submitted for type approval. The development of such a device is a matter for the manufacturers The future time scale will depend on how quickly they can finalise and submit a device once a specification is available, how well the device performs, how quickly they can make any necessary adjustments and how soon they can put them on the market.

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the Answer of 22 November 2007, Official Report, column 1066W, on driving under influence: drugs, what progress has been made by the Home Office Scientific Development Branch in its investigation into developing an impairment measuring device. [186022]

Mr. Coaker: The HO Scientific Development Branch (HOSDB), in consultation with the Department for Transport, continues to discuss possible improvements to the field impairment test currently used by the police. A review of published scientific data originating from research in Australia into alternative impairment cues has been completed. Discussions regarding suitability of any further tests to meet the operational requirement and practical application are being undertaken. HOSDB continues to investigate a possible impairment measuring device through established contacts working in this area. Opportunities for partnership with a suitable university or other outside agency continue to be sought.

Drug Screening

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answers of 15 October 2007, Official Report, columns 553-4, on drug screening, what further progress has been made towards making a roadside drug screening device available for use by the police; and if she will make a statement. [186018]

Mr. Coaker: Any drug screening device to be used by the police in a suspected drug driving case must be of a type approved by the Secretary of State. It remains the position that no device currently available is type approved. The independent advice we have received is that, whatever its use in other circumstances, none should be type approved for use at the roadside in this country to assist in enforcing the criminal offence of driving while impaired by a drug.

Type approval will be granted to devices that meet an appropriate specification and perform satisfactorily in an operational setting. Our advisers are continuing their work to produce such a specification. We hope to reach a conclusion shortly.

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answers of 15 October 2007, Official Report, columns 553-4, on drug screening, when she expects a roadside drug screening device to be available for use by the police. [186019]

Mr. Coaker: It is necessary first to resolve the issues raised by setting realistic requirements for a device that will meet police needs and be useful rather than counter-productive. This work is in its final stages. Once it is done, it will be for manufacturers to prepare devices and put them through the type approval process. The time scale will depend on how quickly they can submit devices, how well those devices perform, how quickly the manufacturers can make any necessary adjustments and how soon they can put them on the market once type approved.

Drugs: Rehabilitation

Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of drug rehabilitation beds in England and Wales are (a) occupied and (b) vacant; and if she will make a statement. [178104]

Dawn Primarolo: I have been asked to reply.

This information is not collected centrally.

Drugs: Schools

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many school pupils were arrested for possession of illegal substances in schools in (a) England and Wales, (b) the North East, (c) Tees Valley district and (d) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency in each of the last five years. [185509]

Mr. Coaker: The Ministry of Justice and Department for Children, Schools and Families both confirm that no information is collected centrally on arrests of school pupils.

Genetics: Databases

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost of maintaining the DNA database was in each year of its operation. [167015]

Meg Hillier: The National DNA Database (NDNAD) was established in 1995, when responsibility for the operational management of the NDNAD rested with the Forensic Science Service (FSS) on behalf of the Police Service. No central records of costs relating to the maintenance of the NDNAD are held prior to 2002, as cost data were incorporated in other costs incurred by the FSS.

In December 2005, the FSS was vested as a Government owned company and ownership of the NDNAD transferred from the FSS to the Home Office. On 1 April 2007 the NDNAD transferred from the Home Office to the National Policing Improvement Agency. Costs for the 2007-08 financial year are not yet available.

The costs relating to the maintenance of the NDNAD from 2002-07 are given in the following tables. The costs for 2006-07 are higher than for previous years, because of the complete separation of costs from the FSS, and because the increase in the number of forensic suppliers requires additional resources for accreditation and continuous monitoring.

| | NDNAD Services costs | Supplier Accreditation costs | Total |

| 2006-07 | 2,041,743 | 527,677 | 2,569,420 |

Identity Cards: Databases

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much additional data storage will be required to administer the national identity card database. [185514]

Meg Hillier: Until the national identity scheme is up and running it is too soon to determine the amount, if any, of additional storage that will be required to administer the national identity scheme. The information that may be recorded on the national identity register is set out in section 3 and schedule 1 of the Identity Cards Act 2006.

Identity Cards: Finance

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much has been spent in preparation for and on development of the Government's identity card scheme. [172036]

Meg Hillier: I refer the hon. Member to the response to the hon. Member for Fareham (Mr. Hoban), on 4 February 2008, Official Report, column 812W.

Immigration: Children

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to her written ministerial statement of 31 January 2008, Official Report, columns 28-9WS, on care for children in the immigration system, how much extra funding will be allocated to local authorities that will be part of the specialist network looking after unaccompanied child asylum seekers; and whether her Department's central funding will cover the full costs incurred by the local authorities. [184737]

Mr. Byrne: The amount of funding available to local authorities who wish to be specialist authorities will be agreed in advance. Funding will be based on the costs the specialist authority incurs directly in supporting the care and accommodation needs of unaccompanied asylum seeking children.

Metropolitan Police Arts and Antiques Squad: Finance

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how much funding has been allocated to the Metropolitan Police Arts and Antiques Squad in each of the last three years; [186761]

(2) what plans she has to expand the Metropolitan Police Arts and Antiques Squad; and if she will make a statement. [186762]

Mr. McNulty: Funding of the Arts and Antiques Unit is an operational matter for the Metropolitan Police Commissioner.

Migration

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the impact of migration on the UK's gross domestic product in the last 10 years; and if she will make a statement. [186936]

Angela Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

In HM Treasury's trend growth framework, migration contributes to output growth through its contribution to growth in the working age population.

Latest data available from the Office for National Statistics indicate that between mid-1997 and mid-2006, migration contributed around 0.5 percentage points per year to growth in the working age population, and therefore towards the trend rate of growth in the economy.

Offensive Weapons: Durham

John Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were arrested and prosecuted for the carrying and use of a knife in the Durham police authority area in 2007. [183029]

Mr. Coaker: The arrests collection undertaken by the Ministry of Justice provides data on persons arrested for recorded crime (notifiable offences), by age group, gender, ethnicity, and main offence group only, i.e. violence against the person, sexual offences, robbery, burglary, etc. More detailed data about specific offences do not form part of this collection.

The information requested on prosecutions for 2007 will be available in the autumn of 2008.

Opium: Crops

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 21 November 2007, Official Report, columns 868-69W, on opium: crops, if she will break down the figures by the location in which the crops were grown. [181714]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 24 January 2008]: During 2007, opium poppies were grown at 67 locations in nine counties, as shown in the following table.

| County | Number of growing sites | Total area (ha) |
|---|---|---|
| Berkshire | 4 | 239.92 |
| Buckinghamshire | 1 | 24.80 |
| Dorset | 6 | 206.06 |
| Hampshire | 26 | 1,238.68 |
| Leicestershire | 1 | 16.13 |
| Lincolnshire | 9 | 445.61 |
| Northamptonshire | 1 | 63.88 |
| Oxfordshire | 10 | 281.71 |
| Wiltshire | 9 | 228.19 |

Police: Bureaucracy

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many departmental officials have been working on reducing police bureaucracy in each of the last 10 years. [176299]

Mr. McNulty: Until 1 April 2007, when the newly vested police-led National Policing Improvement Agency took on policy oversight for reducing unnecessary police bureaucracy, overall policy oversight for reducing unnecessary bureaucracy was held by the Police Reform Unit in the Home Office. However, a much wider number of departmental officials in many different business areas have been involved in contributing to this important area of work over the last 10 years. This work has included:

improvements to custody and case management information technology systems;

the implementation of new time and labour saving technology such as electronic fingerprinting;

the development of improved business processes and work force management as part of wider efficiency and value for money work; and the development of a new performance management framework which recognising the significant improvements made to date, will provide greater local flexibility and reduce the number of targets that necessitate measurement by the police going forward.

It is not possible therefore to specify a 'headcount' number which would properly reflect the contribution of such a wide number of departmental officials.

Reducing unnecessary bureaucracy is the duty of all those involved in policing. It is the responsibility of local managers and chief officers in particular, to keep processes as streamlined as possible and to empower and equip officers to provide the most visible and accessible police presence in the community possible.

Police: Surveillance

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) communications intercept and (b) surveillance requests by Essex constabulary have been (i) made and (ii) approved in the last 12 months. [186166]

Mr. McNulty: Figures for the numbers of interception warrants and authorisations in respect of directed and intrusive surveillance are published annually by, respectively, the Interception of Communications Commissioner and the Chief Surveillance Commissioner. Copies of both reports are in the Library of the House.

Police: Urban Areas

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps the Government is taking to increase the number of policemen on the beat in urban areas. [186916]

Mr. McNulty: The deployment of police personnel to urban areas is an operational matter for each chief officer of police.

Security Industry Authority

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many of the challenges to the Security Industry Authority's minded to revoke letters have been processed; and when this process is expected to be complete. [185696]

Mr. Coaker: I refer the hon. Member to my written ministerial statement on 31 January 2008, Official Report, columns 29-30WS, in which I outlined the steps being taken by the Security Industry Authority and the Borders and Immigration Agency following their checks on the right to work of non-EEA licence holders. In that Statement I reported that some 10,500 individuals had been contacted by the SIA and informed that the SIA was minded to revoke their licences, and that some 3,000 challenges to the minded to revoke letter were being processed.

We plan to send updates on the position to the Home Affairs Select Committee in March and June 2008. I will arrange for copies of those letters to be placed in the Library of the House.

Statistics of Scientific Procedures on Living Animals

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the Ministerial letter of 31 January 2006 responding to the recommendations within the Animal Procedures Committee's 2005 report on the Statistics of Scientific Procedures on Living Animals, if she will make a statement on her Department's commitment to explore the scope available to make the Home Office's RDSD database fully searchable by public stakeholders. [186252]

Meg Hillier: The Home Office is currently looking at ways of making statistics available on the internet. This project is still in the developmental stage and a decision will be made on the Animal Procedures Committee recommendation once the work has been completed and trialed.

Surveillance

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were under surveillance by criminal justice agencies in the UK at the most recent date for which figures are available. [186913]

Mr. McNulty: Figures in relation to surveillance are published in the annual report of the Chief Surveillance Commissioner, a copy of which is in the House Library. Law enforcement agencies were granted some 16,651 directed surveillance and 350 intrusive authorisations during the period 1 April 2006 to 31 March 2007, the most recent period for which figures are available. Figures for intelligence agency use of these powers are not published in the interests of national security.

Terrorism

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 15 November, Official Report, column 682W, on terrorism, which countries have proscribed Hizb-ut-Tahrir; and what account she has taken of these countries' positions in his decision on the position of Hizb-ut-Tahrir in the UK. [168897]

Mr. McNulty: The following countries to our knowledge have some form of ban in place on Hizb-ut-Tahrir:

Germany
UAE Russia
Pakistan (pending an appeal)
Turkey
Saudi Arabia
Egypt
Uzbekistan
Tajikistan
Kyrgyzstan
Syria
Turkmenistan

Different jurisdictions have different criteria for banning organisations. I understand, for example, that in Germany it is banned for, among other things, anti-Semitic activity.

We examine all relevant information about an organisation, including any action taken by other countries and the basis for that action if known, when an organisation is under consideration for proscription. I refer my right hon. Friend to the answer I gave him on 20 November 2007, Official Report, column 682W for the statutory and other tests which must be applied in proscription cases. It would not be appropriate for me to comment on the deliberations which may or may not have occurred in respect of organisations not on the proscribed list, except to say that Hizb-ut-Tahrir remains an organisation of concern and is kept under close review.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many times terrorist suspects have been held in pre-charge detention for (a) 28 days, (b) 27 days, (c) 26 days, (d) 25 days, (e) 24 days, (f) 23 days, (g) 22 days, (h) 21 days, (i) 20 days and (j) 19 days in each year since the 28 day maximum came into effect; and if she will make a statement. [185046]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 6 February 2008]: The Terrorism Act 2006 extended the maximum period of pre-charge detention to 28 days with effect from 25 July 2006. Statistics compiled from police records show that to date 11 individuals have been held for over 14 days pre-charge (10 in 2006 and 1 in 2007).

Of these, nine were arrested following Operation Overt, the disruption of an alleged plot to target aircraft. One individual was charged on the 27-28 day of detention following his arrest in a counter terrorist operation led by Greater Manchester Police and one individual was charged on the 18-19 day of detention following his arrest in relation to the incidents in London and Glasgow.

The following table provides a breakdown of the numbers:

| Period of detention | No of persons held | Charged | Released without charge |
|---|---|---|---|
| 14 to 15 days | 1 | 1 | — |
| 18 to 19 days | 1 | 1 | — |
| 19 to 20 days | 3 | 3 | — |
| 27 to 28 days | 6 | 3 | 3 |

Mr. Heath: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for how many of the criminal offences created by (a) the Terrorism Act 2000, (b) the Anti-Terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001, (c) the Prevention of Terrorism Act 2005 and (d) the Terrorism Act 2006 have (i) no arrests been made (ii) no prosecutions laid and (iii) no convictions gained. [185818]

Mr. McNulty: The power of arrest in section 41 of the Terrorism Act 2000 allows police to arrest a person upon reasonable suspicion of being a "terrorist", which is defined in section 40. It also allows arrests to be made at an earlier stage than if there was a requirement for suspicion of a specific offence. There is no power of arrest under any of the other Acts mentioned.

Statistics on the number of arrests, charges and convictions under the Terrorism Act 2000 and under other legislation are available on the Home Office website:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/security/terrorism-and-the-law/

These figures are compiled from police records and are not broken down in the format requested.

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many staff in the Serious and Organised Crime Agency work on on-line activities by terrorist and extremist groups. [186947]

Mr. Coaker: None. SOCA's remit does not include online activities by terrorist and extremist groups.

Terrorism: Arrests

Mr. Heath: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many cases are awaiting trial for people charged with offences under (a) the Terrorism Act 2000, (b) the Anti-Terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001, (c) the Prevention of Terrorism Act 2005 and (d) the Terrorism Act 2006. [184747]

Mr. McNulty: Statistics on the number of people awaiting trial are available on the Home Office website:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/security/terrorism-and-the-law/

The information is not broken down in the manner requested. Since 11 September 2001 to 31 March 2007, there have been 1,228 arrests under the Terrorism Act 2000 and under other legislation, where the investigation was conducted as a terrorist investigation. Of those arrested, 132 were charged with terrorism legislation offences only, 109 were charged with terrorism legislation offences and other criminal offences and 195 were charged under other legislation including murder, grievous bodily harm, firearms, explosives offences, fraud, false documents Of those charged 114 were awaiting trial on 31 March 2007. Statistics are compiled from police records and are subject to change as cases go through the system.

UK Football Police Unit

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many officers are assigned to the UK Football Police Unit. [186316]

Mr. Coaker: The UK Football Policing Unit undertakes a range of co-ordination and infrastructure functions related to the role of the police in preventing and tackling English and Welsh football disorder at home and abroad. The UKFPU incorporates the Football Banning Orders Authority and the UK National Football Information Point required under EU provisions. There are currently six police officers seconded to the unit in addition to a British Transport police liaison officer.

Victim Support Schemes

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people received state provided counselling as a result of being the victim of crime in (a) Romford, (b) Greater London and (c) Essex in 2007. [186920]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not centrally available.

Video Games: Young People

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police (a) cautions and (b) arrests were recorded for retailers selling (i) video games and (ii) DVDs to underage customers in each year since 1997; and what average fine was levied for subsequent convictions in each case. [186727]

Mr. McNulty: Statistics on the number of police cautions issued, the number of fines imposed and the average fines have been provided by the Ministry of Justice and are given in the following table for 1997 to 2006. Data on those arrested are not available.

Offenders[1] cautioned and fined for supplying video recording of classified work in breach of classification[2]

West Midlands Police Authority: Finance

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much West Midlands Police Authority has received from central funds in each of the last 10 years; how much its precept has been set at for 2008-09; and at what rate the precept will be levied upon local householders. [186784]

Mr. McNulty: As can be seen from the following table, the central funding of the West Midlands police authority has increased from £317.34 million in 1997-98 to £487.88 million in 2007-08.

West Midlands police authority central funding since 1997-98

City of London and Metropolitan police force area data have been provided, and combined they make up the Greater London police force area.

It is not possible to identify those defendants in (a) Romford constituency, as the data are not collected at this level of detail.

Departmental ICT

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many of his Department's personal digital assistants were (a) lost and (b) stolen in each of the last five years; and what the value of those items was. [185278]

Maria Eagle: The Department does not have a comprehensive historical record of this information. Records held centrally show that one personal digital assistant was lost in 2003. The estimated value was approximately £100. There have been no reported thefts of personal digital assistants.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many Wikipedia entries have been (a) created and (b) amended (i) by (A) special advisers, (B) Ministers and (C) communications officials and (ii) from IP addresses of (1) special advisers, (2) Ministers and (3) communications officials in (x) his Department and its predecessor and (y) its agencies since August 2005. [185537]

Maria Eagle: The information is not held centrally and could be provided only by contacting every member of staff in post in the areas requested during this period. The Ministry of Justice's IT Systems are unable to provide a record of Wikipedia entries which have been created and amended by special advisers, Ministers and communications officials since August 2005.

Firearms: Crime

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) non-EU citizens and (b) foreign nationals were convicted of (i) firearms and (ii) drug offences in Britain in each of the last 12 months. [182764]

Maria Eagle: Information on the total number of foreign nationals convicted for firearms and drug offences are not held centrally. The central databases of criminal court cases collect information on defendants' ethnicities, but do not presently contain information on their nationalities. This is because, as a general rule, nationality is not germane to the outcome of criminal court proceedings. Defendants will not be asked their nationality by the court for this reason. Information on nationality may be recorded where it is specifically relevant to the case (e.g. immigration-related offences) but this would be held on local files and would not be systematically recorded on central databases.

However, in preparation of the implementation of the UK Borders Act 2007, the Crown court IT systems are being changed to allow for the collection of nationality data. This Act introduces automatic—rather than discretionary—triggers for the deportation of foreign nationals who meet certain sentencing criteria, and it will require more detailed recording of data on foreign national criminal defendants. Upgraded systems to meet this requirement are expected to be in place in late 2008.

Data held on the prison IT system do record the nationality of offenders. The following table gives the number of foreign national and EU national prisoners received into all prison establishments in England and Wales under immediate custodial sentences between 2004 and 2006.

| | 2004 | 2005 | 2006 |
|---|---|---|---|
| Foreign nationals | 8,355 | 9,612 | 9,832 |
| EU nationals (not including UK nationals) | 2,087 | 2,457 | 2,840 |

Note:
The foreign nationals data are taken from table 7.5 of the Offender Management Caseload Statistics 2006.

It should be noted, however, that only a percentage of defendants found guilty of offences receive a custodial sentence.

HM Prison Service: MC2 Project

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what involvement HM Prison Service has had in the MC2 project. [186276]

Maria Eagle: A representative of the Prison Service has attended one meeting about the Multi Culture 2 (MC2) project in a consultative position. The service has had no further participation.

HM Prison Service's Race Advisory Group

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice who the members are of HM Prison Service's Race Advisory Group; how much they are paid; what recommendations they have made; and which have been implemented as a result of such recommendations. [186255]

Maria Eagle: There are 18 members of the Race Advisory Group (RAG), which was reconstituted during 2007. They include representatives of voluntary and community sector groups working in prisons, as well as managers from other large organisations and concerned and motivated individuals.

Membership of the RAG is on a voluntary basis, and members receive no payment other than reimbursement for travel and miscellaneous expenses.

The reconstituted RAG has completed two familiarisation visits to prison establishments, but has had only one formal meeting and has yet to make any recommendations to the Prison Service.

Judges

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many judges are expected to be appointed in 2008; what steps he plans to take to promote diversity amongst the judiciary; and if he will make a statement. [185005]

Mr. Straw: Appointments to judicial office are made by the Lord Chancellor following selection and recommendation by the Judicial Appointments Commission. The JAC puts forward its recommendations on the basis of requests from the Lord Chancellor to fill vacancies, the timing of which is determined by business need.

The JAC have already made 38 recommendations for appointment to me in 2008 and current plans are for some 30 further selection exercises to be completed, covering in excess of 250 posts for both courts and tribunals. These figures are, however, subject to change, as business need and priorities can vary in-year, affecting both the timing of selection exercises and the number of vacancies to be filled.

I plan to continue the work under way as part of the Judicial Diversity Strategy, which was agreed between my predecessor, the Lord Chief Justice and the Chairman of the Judicial Appointments Commission in May 2006, and to work constructively with stakeholders to drive progress in this challenging area. This includes legislative changes to extend the ranger of individuals eligible to apply for judicial office; outreach work to promote judicial service to a wider pool of applicants; judicial mentoring and work-shadowing schemes; and work to produce guidance for Diversity and Community Relations Judges in engaging communities.

I am also exploring what more we can do to work with others to support and encourage greater diversity in our legal professions

Magistrates: Easington

John Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many magistrates on the Peterlee Bench are resident in Easington constituency. [186212]

Mr. Straw: There are two local justice areas administered by the Durham Advisory Committee: North Durham and South Durham. There is no separate Peterlee local justice area. North Durham has 18 magistrates who are resident in the Easington constituency. South Durham has one magistrate resident in the Easington constituency.

Magistrates: Public Appointments

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps he is taking to encourage the appointment of more magistrates from areas which experience the highest levels of crime and antisocial behaviour; and if he will make a statement. [185007]

Mr. Straw: Her Majesty's Courts Service in liaison with the Advisory Committee will determine how many magistrates are needed and recruitment campaigns are run locally.

The need is based on workload forecasts which take account of anticipated number of cases coming to the magistrates court including criminal and antisocial behaviour cases. They also take into account projected retirements; possible resignations; average sitting days; bench make-up (responsibility to ensure that the magistracy is reflective of the communities it serves in terms of gender, ethnic origin, age, disability, geographical spread, occupation and industry); local workload data; resources and the use of district judges (magistrates courts).

Specific initiatives to encourage the recruitment and diversity of magistrates include: advertising materials to raise the profile of recruitment campaigns; information including a DVD that gives extensive and accessible information about the qualities and commitment required; a dedicated website; and awareness raising schemes including magistrates in the community, mock trials, and the magistrates shadowing scheme.

National Offender Management Service

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much was spent on offender services for adults by the National Offender Management Service (a) in prison and (b) in the community in the latest year for which figures are available. [185546]

Mr. Straw: Expenditure by the National Offender Management Service (NOMS) is not routinely divided between offender services for adults and non-adults. By deducting expenditure on the Youth Justice Board, its Sponsor Unit and an estimate of Probation Boards' contributions to Youth Offending Teams, from the total NOMS expenditure for 2006-07, the estimated expenditure relating to adults is £3.9 billion. Extracting a precise figure across all offender management activity would involve disproportionate cost.

Police National Computer

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether there is a unique personal identifier to connect individual data records in OaSys, C-NOMIS, Libra and the Police National Computer. [185542]

Mr. Straw: The information is as follows.

(a) Offender Assessment System (OASys)—OASys uses the 'PNC Number' as a unique personal identifier but this system has no physical interface to the PNC.

(b) C-NOMIS—C-NOMIS uses the 'NOMS Number' as a unique personal identifier. The NOMS Number is currently passed to, and stored within OASys, from C-NOMIS. The PNC number and arrest summons number (ASN) are manually entered into the C-NOMIS system if and when available.

(c) Libra—Libra has no specific unique personal identifier for a defendant, although each case related to one or more defendants is assigned a unique 'Libra Case Number'. This case number is not exchanged with any other system. Police forces supply Libra with their own 'Unique Reference Number' (URN) and the ASN from their case and custody systems that are case specific. Libra then uses the ASN as a unique reference to the PNC. A defendant will have many URNs or ASNs if they are involved in multiple cases. Libra can also store, via manual entry, the 'National Insurance Number' for the defendant if it is supplied by the police or the defendant.

(d) Police National Computer (PNC)—The Police National Computer uses the 'PNC Number' as a unique personal identifier. The Police National Computer also utilises the 'Criminal Records Office Number' if the defendant has previously provided fingerprints which can be positively identified and 'Arrest Summons Numbers' (ASNs) which links the defendant to one or more offences.

OASys, C-NOMIS, Libra and Police National Computer (PNC) systems do not share a 'unique personal identifier' that is common to all these systems. This has been a continuing challenge for joining-up the Criminal Justice System. The connection of individual data records, where specifically required to date, has largely been accomplished by other indirect identification methods which are further detailed by system.

OCJR is undertaking a review as to how a common unique personal identifier for the CIS might be achieved; the first stage of which is due to be completed by the end of March 2008.

Prison Service: Finance

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the cost of publishing and printing the communities engagement newsletter for HM Prison Service was, including staff costs, in the latest period for which figures are available. [186253]

Maria Eagle: The Community Engagement Newsletter is produced by a member of the Prison Service Race Equality Action Group (REAG): the higher executive officer (whose, annual salary is around £29,000) spends approximately 33 per cent. of his time producing the newsletter. There is a nil production cost as the newsletter is posted on and disseminated via the REAG site on the Prison Service intranet.

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what work the Anne Peaker Centre has carried out for HM Prison Service in each of the last three years; and how much they have been paid by HM Prison Service. [186277]

Maria Eagle: A representative of the Prison Service has attended one meeting at the Anne Peaker Centre in a consultative capacity. The service has had no other contact with the centre.

Prisoners: Death

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps the Government intend to take to reduce the numbers of deaths in prisons. [186297]

Maria Eagle: A broad, integrated and evidence-based prisoner safer custody strategy (an umbrella term for suicide prevention, self-harm management and violence reduction) is in place. The strategy can be summarised as,

'Reducing distress and promoting the wellbeing of all who live and work in prisons.'

It integrates with other agendas that share the aim of improving the quality of life in prisons; such as resettlement, drugs, detoxification, health, and staff leadership and training.

Prison Service Order (PSO) 2700: Suicide Prevention and Self-Harm Management, aims to embed improved methods of working in all relevant areas of prison life. Building on several years of learning from the experiences of prisoners, staff, investigators, inspectors and others, it incorporates developments such as the introduction of ACCT (Assessment, Care in Custody and Teamwork) a new care-planning system for at-risk prisoners, improved cross-agency information flows, and integrated local safer custody teams pursuing a continuous improvement plan in each prison. Also reflected in the PSO are long-standing areas of safer custody work such as listener and insider peer supporters, suicide prevention co-ordinators in each prison, and working with outside organisations.

A focus on personal safety, supporting victims, and repairing the physical and emotional harm caused by violence or abuse, links closely with the suicide prevention strategy. The recently revised PSO 2750 requires all prisons to have local violence reduction strategies appropriate to needs, encouraging a whole prison approach to reducing violence and the fear of violence. The PSO takes account of the recommendations of the report into the death of Zahid Mubarek (murdered by his cell-mate in 2000), and brings together policy on violence reduction, anti-bullying and cell sharing risk assessments.

Prisoners: Drugs

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps the Government intend to take to reduce re-offending rates by reducing the rate of prisoner dependency on drugs. [186296]

Maria Eagle: The National Offender Management Service (NOMS) has in place a comprehensive strategy to address the misuse of drugs by offenders serving custodial sentences. The strategy for prisons has a three-way focus:

reducing supply, through security measures and drug testing programmes; reducing demand, through targeted interventions for low, moderate and severe drug-misusers; and establishing effective through-care links to ensure continuity of treatment post-release in order to safeguard the gains made in custody.

NOMS' comprehensive drug treatment framework, based on the National Treatment Agency's revised Models of Care, addresses the different needs of drug-misusers in prison. Interventions comprise:

Clinical services, detoxification and/or maintenance prescribing

CARATs (Counselling, Assessment, Referral, Advice and Through-care service)—lower-level interventions that, following assessment, deliver treatment and support. CARATs take the lead Drug Intervention Programme (DIP) role in prisons, engaging with prison resettlement teams and Criminal Justice Integrated Teams (CJITs) in the community

Drug Rehabilitation Programmes

The Integrated Drug Treatment System (IDTS) will bring considerable improvements to the quality of prison treatment. With £18.7 million invested in 2007-08, around 24,500 prisoners annually will benefit from improved quality clinical treatment.

Offenders who are released on licence may have conditions attached to their licence that require them to address their problem with drugs. Prolific and other priority offenders who are released on licence may be required to submit to drug tests.

Prisons

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the value of new contracts let for prisons was in each of the last 10 years, in terms of (a) annual value and (b) value over the life of the contract. [185545]

Mr. Straw: The following table gives the financial details available regarding prison contracts awarded in the last ten years

| Date of award of contract | Name or prison | Annual value at current prices (£) | Value over the life of the contract (£) |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 July 1998 | Ashfield | 22,056,508 | 121 million over 25 years |
| 6 July 1998 | Forest Bank | 23,277,701 | 197 million over 25 years |
| 23 July 1999 | Rye Hill | 15,767,244 | 154 million over 25 years |
| 27 September 1999 | Dovegate | 25,461,259 | 240 millions over 25 years |
| 20 June 2000 | Doncaster | 20,277,198 | 140 million over 10 years |
| 20 December 2002 | Bronzefield | 23,020,125 | 219 million over 25 years |
| 5 January 2003 | Wolds | 6,711,541 | 45 million over 10 years |
| 14 February 2003 | Peterborough | 27,207,116 | 291 million over 25 years |

Notes:
1. The annual value is based on the payments made to the contractor during the contractual year.
2. The value over the life of the contract is based on the net present value (NPV) calculated for the winning bidder at the award of the contract. The NPV is a. standard method used for the financial appraisal of log term projects and is calculated in accordance with the HM Treasury Green Book. This information has previously been published.
3. There is no direct relationship between the annual value of the contract shown and the NPV for the whole life of the contract.
4. We do not hold details of annual contractual value for the duration of the contract as there are a number of changeable factors e.g. population levels, services requirements which would have a significant impact on the values.

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice by what means prisons are assessed on the effectiveness of their community engagement. [186209]

Maria Eagle: The effectiveness of community engagement in establishments is measured by internal audits of the Prison Service Standard on Race Equality. These are conducted annually.

It is also measured during inspections by Her Majesty's Chief Inspector of Prisons.

Prisons: Race Equality Action Team Training

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many people in HM Prison Service have completed race equality action team training; and how much this training has cost; [186204]

(2) how many people in HM Prison Service have completed the race equality officer training course; and how much this training has cost. [186205]

Maria Eagle: The Race Equality Action Team (REAT) training was rolled out in October 2006. Five training for trainers courses have taken place, training 79 associate trainers. In total, 1,576 REAT members had been trained by 31 December 2007—this includes 1,317 Prison Service employed REAT members, 166 prisoner representatives and 93 external representatives.

The Race Equality Officer (REO) training was rolled out in September 2007. 81 REOs have been trained to date.

The revised courses, including all course literature, were developed 'in-house' by two members of the Race Equality Action Group (REAG). Responsibility for the delivery of the training is shared between REAG, area offices and training services, and no figure for the cost is collected centrally.

Race Equality Action Group Conference

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the cost was of the recent Race Equality Action Group Conference held at the Emirates Stadium; and how many HM Prison Service staff attended the conference. [186254]

Maria Eagle: The Race Equality conference held on 27 September 2007 at the Emirates Stadium, London, entitled 'Uncovering Hidden Racism: The Next Challenge', was attended by 323 delegates at a cost of approximately £34,000.

Rosemary West

Mr. Wilshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps he has taken to establish how photographs of Rosemary West taken in Bronzefield prison came to appear in the 23 January 2008 edition of the Daily Mirror. [185710]

Maria Eagle: The Director of HMP Bronzefield has commissioned an investigation in to the origins of the material in the Daily Mirror on 23 January 2008, and further articles in the Daily Mail and The Sun. The investigation is being conducted by a senior manager at Kalyx who is external to HMP Bronzefield and this is due to be completed by 22 February 2008. A copy of the investigation report will be provided to the regional offender manager for the south east once completed.

Sentencing: Protection of Badgers Act 1992

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people were sentenced following successful prosecutions under the Protection of Badgers Act 1992 in each year since its entry into force. [186233]

Maria Eagle: The requested information is contained in the following table.

Number sentenced[1] for offences under the Protection of Badgers Act 1992, all courts, England and Wales, 1992 to 2006

Notes:

1. The offence of 'failing to give up a dog for destruction or having custody of a dog while disqualified' is an offence under the Badger Act (1992) and the Dangerous Dogs Act (1991). It has been included in these figures, although it is not possible to tell which Act was intended when sentencing.

2. These figures have been drawn from administrative data systems. Although care is taken when processing and analysing the returns, the detail collected is subject to the inaccuracies inherent in any large-scale recording system.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Afghanistan: Dams

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what contingency plans he has should the Kajaki dam in Afghanistan cease to work. [185252]

Mr. Malik: The Kajaki Dam is currently not working at full capacity and contingency plans are already in place. These include the installation of diesel generator farms in Lashkar Gah, Gereshk, Sangin, Kajaki and Musa Qala for nine months while repairs to the turbines are taking place. Generator farms have already been installed in Lashkar Gah, Sangin and Musa Qala, and are currently being built in Kajaki and Gereshk. A new sub-station for Lashkar Gah will also be installed shortly.

USAID is leading on supporting the Government of Afghanistan in the energy sector in Helmand. They are making electricity generation a priority. The UK plays a key role in providing the security that enables these power supply projects to be implemented.

Afghanistan: Reconstruction

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many reconstruction projects implemented by the UK provincial reconstruction teams in Afghanistan were subject to violent attacks in (a) 2005, (b) 2006 and (c) 2007. [186912]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Records show that violent attacks on reconstruction projects implemented by UK Provincial Reconstruction Teams (PRTs) in Afghanistan are rare. We are not aware of any such attacks during the UK's engagement in Mazar-e-Sharif during 2005. Since taking over responsibility for the PRT in Lashkar Gah, Helmand, in May 2006, information from the PRT indicates that none of over 200 Quick Impact Projects (QIPs) implemented has been directly targeted in violent attacks.

However, a number of QIPs have supported the development of Afghan security infrastructure, and we are aware that a small number of projects have been affected by attacks. In October 2007 an explosion in Gereshk resulted in four police casualties and five locals being killed. This damaged the walls of a day care centre being constructed as a PRT project, but it is most likely that the target of the attack was the police. In February 2007, another incident involving the Afghan National Police and Taleban resulted in damage to a school in Lashkar Gah.

Afghanistan: Tax Collection

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the Afghan Ministry of Finance's efforts to enhance revenue collection; and what discussions he has had with the Afghan government on the matter. [186863]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: At 8 per cent. of Gross Domestic Product (GDP), Afghanistan currently has one of the lowest rates of domestic revenue mobilisation in the world and the Government of Afghanistan (GoA) cannot cover its operating costs. It is essential that domestic revenue collection is prioritised in order to keep the Poverty Reduction Growth Facility (PRGF) and other international aid programmes on track. Along with our American colleagues, we have stressed the importance of this issue to the World Bank and International Monetary Fund (IMF), and we have all discussed with the Afghan government the need to fully and transparently collect existing taxes as well as continue reforms of the tax system to increase the number of tax payers.

Bangladesh: Elections

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assistance the UK is providing to Bangladesh to assist the electoral process. [186724]

Mr. Malik: The UK is providing the following assistance to Bangladesh for the electoral process:

Preparation of the Electoral Roll with Photographs Programme—the UK is the lead donor providing £10 million to this $77 million multi-donor and government funded programme. It will generate an internationally acceptable photo voter roll, with photographs, to reduce room for fraud, and generate public confidence in the Election Commission (EC). The data collected are also being used for National ID Cards, which will provide most Bangladeshis with proof of identity for the first time.

National Election Programme—£2.2 million is being provided to NGOs to reduce electoral fraud through international and domestic monitoring; support the EC's registration process through voter motivation and awareness, with a focus on ensuring those groups usually excluded (religious and social minorities and the poor) are included on the list; improve the quality of campaigning to deliver more accountable representatives.

Bangladesh: Overseas Aid

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what humanitarian programmes are funded by his Department in Bangladesh. [186722]

Mr. Malik: Total UK aid to Bangladesh in 2007-08 is £116.7 million. This includes just over £10 million of funding for emergency assistance to meet the humanitarian needs of people affected by the floods and by Cyclone Sidr in 2007, listed as follows.

| Title | Description | Commitment (£) | Duration (months) |
|---|---|---|---|
| UN Emergency Relief and Early Recovery Needs | Provision of immediate emergency relief and enabling vulnerable households and communities in 22 flood districts in Bangladesh recover their food security, shelter and basic social support in the following six months | 6,100,000 | 8 |
| Cyclone Sidr Relief and Early Recovery Support | Provision of immediate emergency relief and enabling vulnerable people in the most cyclone affected districts in Bangladesh to recover after cyclone Sidr and reduce their vulnerability to similar disasters in future | 4,500,000 | 9 |

Departmental Databases

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what databases are (a) owned and (b) maintained by (i) his Department and (ii) its agencies. [185416]

Mr. Malik: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 2 March 2007, Official Report, column 1552W, to the right hon. Member for Sheffield, Hallam (Mr. Clegg).

Departmental Information Officers

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department paid in bonuses to press and communication officers in each of the last 10 years; and what the (a) highest and (b) lowest such bonus was in each of those years. [182722]

Mr. Malik: The Department for International Development's reward arrangements do not allow for the payment of bonuses to staff below the senior civil service. No bonuses have been paid to press and communication officers in any of the last 10 years.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will list the special advisers employed in his Department since 6th May 1997; and what the (a) start and (b) end date of employment was in each case. [184371]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Since 2003, the Government have published on an annual basis the names and numbers of special advisers in each pay band. For the most recent information I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 22 November 2007, Official Report, columns 147-50WS.

Information on the employment of special advisers prior to 2003 was provided at regular intervals and is available in the Library of the House.

Nicaragua: Young Offenders

Mr. Pope: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will consider financially supporting the construction of separate police holding cells for minors in Bluefields in Eastern Nicaragua as part of his Department's work in Nicaragua. [186199]

Mr. Malik: The Department for International Development (DFID) continues to be concerned about poor prison conditions in Nicaragua's Caribbean Coast. In September 2006, DFID provided $14,600 for a seminar in Bluefields to address this problem. The seminar brought together penal reform experts, as well as local, regional and national officials. At that meeting, Bluefield prison authorities committed to a number of actions to improve the health and sanitation conditions of prisoners. This included measures for prisoners who are minors.

DFID does not provide financial support to prison construction. Nevertheless, working in conjunction with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, we will continue to use our good working relationship with authorities in Bluefields to encourage them to improve prison conditions and to specifically construct separate holding cells for minors.

Overseas Aid

Ann McKechin: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether the proportion of his Department's funding allocated to civil society through the Partnership Programme arrangements will increase in proportion to the overall increase in his Department's expenditure. [186440]

Mr. Malik: DFID is currently developing detailed plans for allocating its budget over the three year period 2008-09 to 2010-11 following the outcome of the comprehensive spending review announced in October. Individual programme allocations will not be finalised until March 2008.

Whaling

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development with reference to the answer of 19 February 2007, Official Report, column 195W, on whaling, what response his Department made to the letter referred to from the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs; if he will place a copy of that response in the Library; and if he will make a statement. [186048]

Mr. Thomas: The former Secretary of State, in his response to the letter of 19 January 2006 from the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, on international whaling, offered help where possible, in promoting UK policy on whales with the target countries listed in the letter. He also stated that DFID has limited engagement with countries that are not members of the International Whaling Commission.

A copy of the letter, dated 5 February 2006, has been placed in the Library of the House. DFID officials will continue to remain aware of any critical developments in international whaling that might affect international development issues.

TREASURY

Banks: Fees and Charges

Sarah Teather: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what processes are available to consumers who wish to reclaim bank penalty charges; and if he will make a statement. [186311]

Angela Eagle: Generally, if consumers believe that they have been wrongly or unfairly charged by their bank, they should raise the issue with their bank in the first instance. If they are not satisfied with the response they obtain, then it is open to them to take a complaint to the Financial Ombudsman Service or to pursue a claim in the Courts.

On the issue of bank charges for unauthorised overdrafts and returned item fees, there is currently a test case before the High Court. This is considering the preliminary legal point of whether such charges are subject to the unfairness test in the Unfair Terms in Consumer Contracts Regulations 1999.

Until the outcome of this legal action is known, the normal complaint channels have been affected as follows:

the Financial Services Authority has granted firms a waiver from dealing with complaints within the usual time-table, except where consumers are in hardship. Rather, firms will record and store complaints and deal with them as quickly as possible once the legal action is resolved;

the Financial Ombudsman Service will also not progress complaints or deal with new ones, other than in hardship cases; and the courts are generally suspending the hearing of cases.

Further information can be found on the websites of the Office of Fair Trading (www.oft.gov.uk) and the Financial Services Authority (www.fsa.gov.uk).

Sarah Teather: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what discussions he has had with the Financial Services Authority on a moratorium on consumers reclaiming bank charges. [186350]

Angela Eagle: The Financial Services Authority has given financial institutions a waiver in respect of compliance with time limits for dealing with complaints related to bank charges while a test case on such charges is proceeding in the High Court. The Chancellor has been kept informed about the issues surrounding the waiver. However, responsibility for the waiver is a matter for the FSA, which is independent of Government.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what guidance his Department has issued to financial institutions on the rate of interest to be applied to reclaimed bank and credit card charges; and if he will make a statement. [186351]

Angela Eagle: None. The issue of fairness of such charges is a matter for the Office of Fair Trading (OFT), which is independent of Government. In April 2006, the OFT stated that credit card default charges have been generally set at a significantly higher level than was considered legally fair. A £12 threshold for intervention was set: where credit card default charges are set above this threshold, the OFT will consider whether an investigation needs to be launched. The OFT also believes that the unfairness test in the 'Unfair Terms in Consumer Contracts Regulations 1999' covers bank charges and is investigating whether these charges are unfair. In order to provide certainty on whether the unfairness test applies, OFT is currently taking a test case against the major UK banks in the High Court.

Capital Gains Tax: Second Homes

Adam Price: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the likely change in tax revenue arising from the proposed revision to the capital gains tax rules governing homes other than a principal residence. [186907]

Jane Kennedy: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave him on 25 January 2008, Official Report, column 2340W.

Welfare Tax Credits: Complaints

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many written complaints have been made to the tax credit hotline by people in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) the UK in each year since the inception of the service; [184907]

(2) how many telephone complaints have been made to the tax credit hotline by people in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) the UK in each year since the inception of the service. [184908]

Jane Kennedy: The information is not available in the format requested. However, I would refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Fareham (Mr. Hoban) on 31 January 2008, Official Report, column 682W, regarding the total number of complaints received by the Tax Credits Helpline.

Child Benefit: Personal Records

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on what basis the police are conducting an investigation into the loss of child benefit data at HM Revenue and Customs; and whether it is classified as a criminal investigation. [183705]

Jane Kennedy: I refer the right hon. Gentleman to the Chancellor's statement to the House of 20 November 2007, Official Report, column 1101W, in which the Chancellor confirmed he instructed the then Chairman of HMRC to call in the police on 14 November 2007.

Council Tax: Valuation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of the minutes of the meeting of the Valuation Office Agency's Council Tax Revaluation Programme Board (England) of 22 November 2005. [176399]

John Healey: I have been asked to reply.

A copy of the minutes will be placed in the Library of the House.

Employment

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what percentage of the workforce is in permanent employment. [186773]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 19 February 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about the percentage of the workforce in permanent employment. (186773)

In July-September 2007, which is the latest period available, 94 per cent of all employees aged 16 and over had a permanent main job.

This estimate is taken from the Labour Force Survey (LFS). This figure covers employees only since the LFS does not ask self employed people, unpaid family workers or those on government supported training and employment programmes whether their job is permanent or temporary.

Permanency relates to the job itself rather than to the individual who does the job.

As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

Excise Duties: Motor Vehicles

Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many cars registered in the UK were eligible for Band A vehicle excise duty in the latest period for which figures are available. [186953]

Angela Eagle: As at the end of September 2007 there were 363 vehicles licensed under the band A zero rate of Vehicle Excise Duty.

It has also come to light that the figure reported for band A in a written answer to the hon. Member for Bexleyheath and Crayford (Mr. Evennett) on 30 October 2006, Official Report, column 318W, was incorrect. The Treasury apologises for this error. The correct figure for the number of band A cars licensed as at the end of October 2006 was 342.

The band A zero rate for cars with the very lowest carbon emissions was introduced in Budget 2006 to encourage take-up and assist the development of the low carbon market. The Government are aware of at least one model of car available in the UK market that is eligible for this rate.

Financial Services and Markets Act 2000

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on how many occasions since it was established the Financial Services Authority has used its powers under section 45 of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000. [186950]

Angela Eagle: The matter concerned is the responsibility of the Financial Services Authority (FSA), whose day-to-day operations are independent from Government control and influence. I have asked the Chairman of the FSA to write to the hon. Member on the issue he raises.

GCSE

Danny Alexander: To ask Chancellor of the Exchequer how many and what proportion of people of working age had fewer than five GCSEs grade A* to C in each region in each year since 1997. [186828]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 19 February 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about how many and the proportion of people of working age with less than 5 GCSEs at A-C grade or equivalent in each region in each year since 1997. (186828)

The answer was compiled using estimates from the Labour Force Survey (LFS). This is a sample survey covering around 53,000 households in the United Kingdom.

The attached table gives the number and percentage of people of working age in the category requested for the three month period ending June each year, from 2001 to 2007.

Comparable estimates are not available prior to 2001. These estimates have not been seasonally adjusted.

The LFS estimates at this detailed level are only consistent with the UK population estimates published in February and March 2003 and they do not incorporate the more recent population estimates that are used in the headline LFS series.

As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

Inflation

Mr. Cameron: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what percentage changes there were in (a) the retail price index, (b) the consumer price index, (c) fuel prices and (d) food prices in (i) 2006, (ii) 2007 and (iii) 2008 to date. [186895]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 19 February 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking what percentage of changes there were in a) the retail price index, b) the consumer price index, c) fuel prices and d) food prices in i) 2006, ii) 2007 and iii) 2008 to date. (186895)

In the table below I have provided the percentage changes over 12 months within a) the retail price index, b) the consumer price index, e) fuel prices and d) food prices.

| Consumer price index | 2.3 | 2.3 | 2.2 |
| Fuels and lubricants (CPI) | 5.5 | 2.9 | 19.3 |
| Food (CPI) | 2.3 | 4.6 | 6.6 |
| Retail price index | 3.2 | 4.3 | 4.1 |
| Petrol and oil (RPI) | 5.5 | 2.7 | 19.0 |
| Food (RPI) | 2.1 | 4.6 | 6.6 |

The 2006 and 2007 figures provided are annual growth rates based on average prices in each calendar year. The January 2008 figures are the latest figures available (published on 12 February 2008), the table shows the percentage increase in prices between January 2007 and January 2008.

The CPI and RPI both measure the average change from month to month in the prices of consumer goods and services purchased in the UK. However, they differ in both coverage and methodology. A detailed description of these differences is given in an article entitled "The New Inflation Target: the Statistical Perspective":

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/downloads/theme_economy/New_inflation_target_summary031210.pdf

Specifically when comparing petrol and oil (RPI) and fuels and lubricants (CPI), the major difference is the fact that the RPI measures pump prices on index day each month, whereas CPI measures the average pump price across the whole month.

The major difference between food in the RPI and CPI are the differences in the weights used to combine the low level indices.

Population

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the percentage change in (a) UK population growth and (b) population growth in England was in each of the last three years for which figures are available; [177452]

(2) what population increase has been attributable to migration in (a) Scotland, (b) Wales, (c) Northern Ireland and (d) each region of the England since 1997; and what estimate he has made of the likely future increase in population attributable to migration in each case in the light of the Government Actuary Department's principal population projections; [177460]

(3) what estimate he has made of the proportion of population growth attributable to migration in (a) the UK, (b) England, (c) Scotland, (d) Wales and (e) Northern Ireland in each year since 1987; [177463]

(4) what the percentage change in (a) UK population growth and (b) population growth in England was in each of the last five years for which figures are available; what the average percentage change in population in EU member states was over the same period; and if he will rank EU member states according to change in population growth in the last year for which figures are available. [178331]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply. The reply will be placed in the Library.

Small businesses

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the most recent estimate is of the cost over the next comprehensive spending review period of reversing the small companies rate increases announced in the 2007 budget. [163258]

Jane Kennedy: In line with the Code for Fiscal Stability, at Budget 2007 the Government published the impact on Exchequer revenues of the increase in the small companies rate for the years 2007-08, 2008-09 and 2009-10. These can be found in Table 1.2 of the Budget 2007 document.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Alcoholic Drinks: Supermarkets

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many discussions (a) he and (b) his predecessor have had with representatives from supermarkets where alcohol price, promotion and harm was discussed in the last 12 months. [186315]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Secretary of State and his predecessor have had no meetings with representatives from supermarkets over the last 12 months. However, my right hon. Friend the Member for Stalybridge and Hyde (James Purnell) did attend the Prime Minister's seminar on alcohol on 21 November which was attended by individuals representing supermarkets.

Bingo

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many applications to open (a) bingo halls and (b) high street bookmakers were approved in each of the last five years. [186778]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The table shows the number of new bingo licences issued under the Gaming Act 1968 by licensing magistrates (licensing boards in Scotland) for the five years from 1 April 2002 to 31 March 2007.

New bingo licences issued from 1 April 2002 to 31 March 2007

| April to March each year | Licences issued |
|---|---|
| 2002-03 | 34 |
| 2003-04 | 19 |
| 2004-05 | 10 |
| 2005-06 | 6 |
| 2006-07 | 8 |

Under the Gambling Act 2005 (the 2005 Act), the Gambling Commission (the Commission) is responsible for issuing bingo operating licences to operators; licensing authorities are responsible for issuing bingo premises licences in respect of individual bingo halls. Since 1 January 2007, the Commission has been able to accept applications for bingo operating licences; it has so far issued 218. (Under the 2005 Act the earliest date bingo operating licences or bingo premises licences could take effect was 1 September 2007.)

No figures are available for the period requested for the number of high street bookmakers to whom licences were issued. Prior to the introduction of the 2005 Act, high street bookmakers were authorised by permits issued by magistrates courts; no information was collated centrally. Since 1 January 2007 the Commission has been able to accept applications for general betting operating licences from operators wishing to run high street bookmakers; it has so far issued 691. Licensing authorities are responsible for issuing betting premises licences to high street bookmakers.

Under the 2005 Act the Commission is responsible for collecting information on the number of premises licences issued by licensing authorities. However, the Commission does not yet have figures for how many applications for bingo or betting premises licences have been granted by licensing authorities.

Departmental Freedom of Information

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what percentage of Freedom of Information requests received by his Department have given rise to responses that have been published by his Department. [180218]

Departmental Information Officers

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many (a) press and (b) communications officers his Department employed in each of the last 10 years. [182523]

| 2006-07 | [1]13 |
| 2007-08 | [1]10 |

[1] This includes press officers working on the Olympics.

The Department does not have a "communication officer" grade. The "White Book" of contacts in Government Departments and agencies contains listings for the Department and the book is updated twice yearly.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many Wikipedia entries have been (a) created and (b) amended (i) by (A) special advisers, (B) Ministers and (C) communications officials and (ii) from IP addresses of (1) special advisers, (2) Ministers and (3) communications officials in his Department since August 2005. [185530]

Mr. Sutcliffe: 103 Wikipedia entries have been created or amended by people in my Department. We do not hold the information as to how many of these changes were made by (A) special advisers, (B) Ministers and (C) communications officials.

All staff in the Department are required to sign an acceptable use policy before they are given access to the internet. Occasional and reasonable personal use is permitted provided it does not interfere with the performance of duties. Any activity that would bring the Department into disrepute is prohibited.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will list the special advisers employed in his Department since 6 May 1997; and what the (a) start and (b) end date of employment was in each case. [184364]

Andy Burnham: Since 2003, the Government have published on an annual basis the names and numbers of special advisers in each pay band. For the most recent information I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 22 November 2007, Official Report, columns 147-50WS.

Information on the employment of special advisers prior to 2003 was provided at regular intervals and is available in the Library of the House.

Departmental Publications

Digital Broadcasting: Television

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 4 February 2008, Official Report, column 775W, on digital broadcasting: television, when he expects a decision to be taken on the proposal to establish a rolling television channel to provide information on the digital switchover. [187083]

Andy Burnham: There are currently no plans to establish a rolling television service for digital switchover.

Digital Switchover Help Scheme

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what his latest estimate is of the number of people who are (a) eligible for the digital switchover targeted assistance scheme and (b) expected to apply for the scheme, broken down by constituency; and whether those figures were calculated before access was granted to records held by the Department of Work and Pensions; [184479]

(2) what his latest estimate is of the number of people who are eligible for the digital switchover targeted assistance scheme who will receive help (a) for free and (b) on payment of a £40 charge, broken down by constituency. [184480]

Andy Burnham: The information is not available in the form requested. A table giving details of the number of households eligible to receive assistance from the Digital Switchover Help Scheme, broken down by parliamentary constituency, has been deposited in the House Libraries.

The previous estimates have now been updated to reflect benefits statistics as of May 2007 and revised forecasts of benefit growth provided by DWP. The DWP benefits statistics used to produce these and previous estimates are publicly accessible through either the National Statistics Nomis portal or the DWP National Statistics tabulation tool.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what his Department's latest estimate is of the number of people in each region who will require assistance through the Targeted Assistance Scheme during digital switchover. [185636]

Andy Burnham: Details of the number of households eligible to receive assistance from the Digital Switchover Help Scheme broken down by ITV region are in the table. The table also shows current estimates of projected take up for each ITV region.

| ITV region | Number of eligible households | Projected to take up assistance |
|---|---|---|
| Border (excluding Isle of Man and Copeland) | 73,000 | 53,000 |
| West Country | 246,000 | 171,000 |
| Wales | 420,000 | 298,000 |
| Granada | 817,000 | 586,000 |
| West | 203,000 | 137,000 |
| Grampian | 136,000 | 94,000 |
| Scottish | 458,000 | 321,000 |
| Yorkshire | 631,000 | 435,000 |
| Anglia | 577,000 | 388,000 |
| Central | 1,030,000 | 685,000 |
| Meridian | 719,000 | 457,000 |
| London | 953,000 | 607,000 |
| Tyne Tees | 374,000 | 241,000 |
| Total—Great Britain | 6,640,000 | 4,480,000 |

1. The estimate of the number of households eligible for assistance from the Digital Switchover Help Scheme covers ITV regions covering England, Wales and Scotland. Information on Northern Ireland constituencies is held separately by the Department of Social Development. Revised estimates for Northern Ireland will be made available as soon as possible.
2. The figures do not include those living in the Copeland constituency who were outside the switchover area for the recent Copeland switchover or residents of the Isle of Man.
3. The figures do not include households where the person qualifying for help under the scheme is registered blind or registered partially sighted who qualify on grounds of registration rather than on grounds of age or entitlement to disability benefits.
4. Eligibility for help from the Digital Switchover Help Scheme will be by benefit unit rather than the whole household definition used by the Department for Communities and Local Government (CLG) the Scottish Executive, the Welsh Assembly Government and the Northern Ireland Office to forecast future household growth. The scheme definition of eligible households mirrors Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) definition of a benefit unit: a couple (which from December 2005 includes gay couples) and any dependent children. It excludes adults deemed to be non-dependents who, if eligible, will be able to claim assistance from the help scheme in their own right.
5. These revised estimates use data from the Department for Work and Pensions Client Group Analysis for May 2007 adjusted by changes in future household and benefits growth for the period from May 2007 until the date switchover takes place in the relevant area.
6. Totals for ITV regions are rounded to the nearest 1,000. Totals for Great Britain are rounded to the nearest 10,000. Totals may not sum due to rounding.

Licensing: Circuses

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will make a statement on the progress of his Department's review of the impact of the Licensing Act 2003 on travelling circuses. [183112]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Our assessment of the impact on circuses during the first year of the Licensing Act 2003 has confirmed that circuses were able to operate under the new legislation, but faced new burdens in doing so. We have therefore included a commitment to look at options for reducing the burden for travelling entertainment and mobile forms of licensable activity as part of the DCMS Simplification Plan which was published in December 2007. We will consider how to address some of the specific issues identified in our survey of circuses when progressing simplification projects such as minor variations and adjustments to the application process.

Olympic Games 2012

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what his Department's definition is of a sport; and whether each event planned for the Olympic Games 2012 meets this definition. [186189]

Andy Burnham: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport (DCMS) does not have a standard definition of a sport. However, a commonly used definition appears in the Council of Europe European Sports Charter 1993:

> "Sport means all forms of physical activity which, through casual or organised participation aim at expressing or improving physical fitness and mental well-being forming social relationships or obtaining results in competition at all levels."

The Home Country Sports Councils, for example, take account of the above definition, alongside other considerations, when making determinations about the recognition of an activity as a sport.

The Government are confident that each event planned for the 2012 Games will meet this definition.

The Council of Europe definition does not limit the scope for Ministers to determine, in the context of sports policy development, which sports or activities DCMS should or should not fund.

A list of sports and recreational activities for the local and national government measurement framework from April 2008 will be largely based on the broad definition of sport currently used for the Comprehensive Performance Assessment framework. The definition of sport will be based principally on the notion of moderate intensity, where some degree of physical demand is placed on the participant.

Sport England's forthcoming strategy on delivering a world leading community sport infrastructure will detail those sports which will fall under its remit to fund.

Sports: Sponsorship

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will make it his policy to regulate sponsorship of UK sport. [186957]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I have no plans to regulate the sponsorship of sport in the UK. However the Government have taken a number of steps to encourage sponsorship of sport that is socially responsible, particularly when aimed at children and young people. For example, the Government have supported moves by the Portman Group to place a voluntary ban on alcohol advertising on children's replica football shirts.

Furthermore, we have supported similar voluntary arrangements between the gambling industry and sport to remove gambling sponsorship from children's replica kit.

Finally as my hon. Friend will be aware, the EU ban on tobacco advertising for Formula One motor racing remains in place.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Departmental Publications

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what public information booklets were published by her Department in 2007; and what the (a) print run and (b) cost to the Department was in each case. [185796]

Mr. Dhanda: This information is not held in the form requested and could therefore be provided only at disproportionate cost. Details of departmental publications are published online at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/corporate/about/freedom-of-information/communities-lgps/publications-database/

Disabled: Access

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what discussions her Department has had with local authorities on access arrangements for those with temporary disabilities. [182556]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I have been asked to reply.

The Department for Transport has regular discussions with local authorities on a range of issues around access to transport for disabled people, including on taxis and access to train stations. These issues will often be equally relevant to people with temporary disabilities. We are also currently consulting on proposals to extend the Blue Badge scheme to people with temporary disabilities that severely impact on their mobility (for example, people with very severe Autism and Alzheimer's and people who are expected to recover following treatment for a stroke or multiple fracture).

Energy: Conservation

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the performance in reaching residential energy efficiency targets of (a) local authorities in England, (b) local authorities in each region and (c) each London local authority in respect of (i) private, (ii) registered social landlord and (iii) local authority housing; and if she will make a statement. [185755]

Mr. Woolas: I have been asked to reply.

The 1995 Home Energy Conservation Act requires local authorities with housing responsibility to prepare a strategy for improving energy efficiency within residential accommodation in their areas and report annually on progress. Since 1996, authorities have reported an average total improvement of approximately 19 per cent. to 31 March 2006. A breakdown of reported progress by English region can be found on the DEFRA website.

Results for the period up to 31 March 2007 will be published shortly.

A number of programmes are likely to have contributed to this improvement in energy efficiency, particularly the Energy Efficiency Commitment, Warm Front and Decent Homes.

It is important to note that the figures have not been independently verified and that, because Home Energy Conservation Act strategies and monitoring techniques differ, the information should not be used to compare the performance of authorities.

Enfield Borough Council: Finance

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much money was held in reserve by Enfield council in each of the last 10 years. [186500]

John Healey: The amount of revenue reserves held by the London borough of Enfield in each of the last 10 years is shown in the following table. Information for England has been published in Statistical Releases and editions of 'Local Government Financial Statistics'.

Fire Services: Buildings

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when the lease for each of the proposed regional control centres in respect of the FiReControl Project commences; how long each lasts; and if she will make a statement. [186134]

Mr. Dhanda: The Regional Control Centre (RCC) building leases commence five working days after practical completion of the buildings. Four buildings have achieved practical completion, as detailed in Table 1.

Table 1: RCC buildings that have achieved practical completion
